MACHEN INDICTED BY FEDERAL GRAND JURY

Nine Counts Found Against Former Official.

Find That the Prisoner Received $20,000.

Washington, June 5.—The federal grand jury which has been considering the case of August W. Machen, former superintendent of the free delivery service of the postoffice department, charged with accepting bribes in connection with department contracts, after being in session ten minutes this morning, adjourned to report to criminal court No. 1 at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

The fact that the jury concluded its investigation in so short a time occasioned some surprise. When an adjournment was taken yesterday afternoon until this morning, it was expected that out-of-town witnesses would be called today. Two of these witnesses were J. W. Herring, of Westminster, Md., and Harry J. Halstead, of Toledo. Mr. Taggart decided, however, to rest the government's case upon the testimony of the witnesses who appeared yesterday.

Justice Pritchard, presiding over criminal court No. 1, was notified last night that the jury would report at 11 o'clock today, and he was promptly on hand, but he was told that the submission of the report would be deferred until 2 o'clock, and the jury was excused until that hour. Word quickly spread about the court house that a true bill had been found against Machen. The fact that the indictment had to be prepared and could not be presented before that hour was given as the occasion for the postponement of the announcement. It is learned that the grand jury will continue with its investigation of the postoffice scandals next week, with particular reference to the case of the Groff Bros., the contractors who furnished the letter-box fasteners to the government and who were arrested at the same time Mr. Machen was taken into custody. Across the street, overlooking the court house, sitting in the office of Charles Douglas, his attorney, was Mr. Machen. When informed that the jury had concluded its hearing of evidence against Machen, Mr. Douglas evinced some surprise, and said that perhaps later in the day he would give out a statement.

The indictment against Mr. Machen embraces nine counts and consists of twenty-five typewritten pages. It follows closely the form of the warrant upon which Mr. Machen was originally arrested, reciting his connection with the postoffice department, his duties in connection with the purchase of supplies, etc., and the fact of the sale of letter box fasteners to the government by Groff Bros. upon his advice and recommendation. The jurors, upon their oath, find that upon June 30, 1900, Mr. Machen, "with intent to have his decision and action as superintendent of free delivery in regard to a purchase of Groff fasteners, influenced thereby, did ask of the Groff Brothers a promise that they would pay to him 40 per cent of any sum which might be received by them thereafter from the United States, through the postoffice department, in payment of such fasteners, the purchase of which might be procured upon Mr. Machen's advice, and did receive the promise of the Groff Brothers in accordance therewith."

The indictment then recites that in pursuance of this collusive understanding, Mr. Machen received, upon the various dates specified in the original warrants, the sum stated at that time, aggregating in all about $20,000.

President Roosevelt Makes a Short Stop at Pittsburg.

A Slow Schedule Arranged For the Allegheny Mountains.

Pittsburg, June 5.—The train bearing President Roosevelt and party arrived here over the Pennsylvania road at 8:23 o'clock this morning, seven minutes ahead of time, and departed for Washington sixteen minutes later. The train is to take a slow schedule over the Allegheny mountains.

During the stop here the president got off the train and walked the platform and took a stroll some distance up the track, stopping here and there to shake hands with the railroad employes. On account of the hour of the president's arrival there was a large crowd of people at the station, many coming in on trains from the suburbs to their daily employment. The crowd started to cheer after the president had returned to his car, and this brought him to the rear platform, where he bowed and said: "I am happy to be with you. Happy to get back from my trip. Good luck to you all."

As the train pulled out he waved good-bye.

Washington, June 5.—President Roosevelt will be given a cordial reception by the citizens of Washington upon his arrival at 7 o'clock this evening from his long Western trip. No formal program will be carried out, but the district commissioners will greet the president at the station, the regiment of high school cadets will escort him from the station to the White House and a concert will be given on the White House grounds by the Marine band. The citizens of Washington have been requested to turn out on Pennsylvania avenue and participate in the welcome to the president.

FIRES STILL RAGE

Intense Heat and Dense Smoke Hinder Fire Fighters.

Steamer and Gang of Men Missing For Three Days.

Saratoga, N. Y., June 5.—The sun today is still obscured by dense smoke and ashes from Adirondack forest fires. Reports which reached here today from the Catlin lake region are that the fires covered a territory fifteen miles in width and twenty miles in length, and are still spreading, despite the efforts of hundreds of fire fighters. The heat is so intense and the smoke so dense that the fighters cannot approach within two miles of the fires. Navigation on the Adirondack lakes is practically suspended.

A steamer with a gang of fife-fighters has been missing on Long lake for three days. The fires in the Cold river region cover twenty miles square.

Paul Smiths, N. Y., June 5.—In the last twenty-four hours the forest fires are reported to have crossed St. Regis mountain in the direction of the camps on the Upper St. Regis and have eaten their way through from the private park of William Rockefeller.

Sayville, L. I., June 5.—The section of Long Island that has suffered most seriously from the forest fires is that in the vicinity of Medford and Farmingville, and the individual losses will reach into the thousands. Many of the fire-fighters have been injured or burned.

SALISBURY ALL RIGHT.

London, June 5.—It was reported today that the Marquis of Salisbury was seriously ill at Hatfield House, his Hertfordshire seat, but, inquiries showed the report was exaggerated. According to the former premier's private secretary, Lord Salisbury had a chill during the night, which occasioned some alarm, but he was better this morning. A telegram received from Hatfield this morning announced Lord Salisbury was making good progress towards recovery and that there was no cause for alarm regarding his health.

MISSISSIPPI RISING; MISSOURI FALLING

St. Louis People Busily Engaged Moving Out.

Kansas City Committee Issues Statement.

St. Louis, June 5.—The river this morning attained the stage of 33.5 feet, a rise of 1.4 feet during the past twenty-four hours. The crest of the flood, which is expected by Sunday, may be three feet and may go even higher, as the rivers north and west are still pouring in their quotas of water.

In North and South St. Louis the river is several miles wide. Along the river front it is encroaching on buildings, making necessary the moving of household goods and business stocks.

The river, although it is out of its banks and in places as wide as an inland sea, is rising more rapidly today than at any time since the present flood began. The flood has reached a stage where barriers have been surmounted, and every additional inch increases the menace to life and property out of proportion to the actual amount of the rise.

At 10 o'clock the government gauge at the foot of Market street showed that the stage of the water was 33 feet and 8-10 above low water mark, or 3.8 feet above the danger line. Every hour increases the present and prospective property loss in St. Louis, and every hour increases the peril of the cities on the east side of the river.

To St. Louis nothing worse can happen than the gradual encroachment of the waters above the lower portions of the city. The Madison levee is all that holds back the waters at their barriers, ready to spread destruction through the east side communities. It is said that this levee is capable of withstanding 38 feet. When the water reaches 36 feet, or even 35 feet, it is feared that the constant washing at the base of the artificial bank may cause it to crumble and give way and let the flood loose.

The chief menace to East St. Louis, aside from the Madison levees breakwater breaking, is the backwater of Cahokia creek. For several days the water has been rushing up this stream from the Mississippi with the speed of a mill race, and spreading wherever it could find an outlet. It will continue to rise as long as the river rises.

Two hundred men are working incessantly in the vicinity of Mitchell, Ill., to prevent the Mississippi from breaking through the Madison levee and inundating the country surrounding Granite City.

A special to the Post-Dispatch from Louisiana, Mo., says: The Sny levee broke opposite here at 11 o'clock this morning. A hundred thousand acres of farm land protected by the levee will probably be flooded, and it is estimated that the losses will aggregate millions of dollars.

Kansas City, June 5.—The rivers here are now falling as rapidly as they rose before the flood. The Missouri has fallen a foot and nine inches in the past twenty-four hours, and at 7 o'clock this morning the gauge registered 31. The Kaw fell nearly two feet in the same time. By Saturday noon the platform of Union depot, at the high point, will likely be partially above water.

Permanent wire communication was opened up between the two Kansas cities today, for the first time since Sunday, and this will aid wonderfully in the work of restoring order.

The several hundred refugees from Armourdale and other districts, who have been housed in convention hall, were removed today to tents in the southern portion of the city, because of the unsanitary condition of the hall.

The Citizens' General Relief committee of Kansas City, Mo., has issued a statement to the public, giving thanks for sympathy and offers of aid, and asking that assistance be sent to Kansas City, Kas. The statement follows:

"As we decline, at this time, to accept assistance from without, it is because we believe it our duty to meet the situation which confronts us to the fullest extent of our ability. The calamity which has come to us is no doubt great, but it is not disaster.

"To the general public of the country not familiar with our city it may be proper to state that the two Kansas cities—that of Missouri and that of Kansas—are in the main situated on high bluffs. Between the two cities lies a low bottom country, on which, owing to its accessibility by railroads, has grown up a great distributing center, where are located many of our wholesale houses and manufacturing plants. Through this section flows the Kaw river. The same bottom country has many residences of the working population clustered about the manufacturing and wholesale houses and to the south, up the Kaw river, includes the hamlets of Armourdale, Riverdale and Argentine, all in our neighboring state—Kansas.

"This bottom land, known among us as West Kansas, is the severest sufferer.

"The water has reached here a level of ten feet, and there is every reason to fear there has been great injury to the property of the poor and to the goods and possibly the buildings of wholesale merchants and manufacturers. But until these districts are accessible it is futile to estimate the damage and to make any direct statement as to the relief necessary.

"The immense task of caring for the homeless, and housing, clothing and providing for them is well in hand. There is no suffering unrelieved. The spirit of the people is splendid. The conduct of the flood victims is admirable. The governments of the two cities have sanitation and policing well in hand, there are no disturbances, there is not even disorderliness.

"With the subsidence of the flood, work will be abundant, and business industry will assume its accustomed sway. Whatever may be the loss to our merchants, they will bear their loss; we may find a greater destruction of the property of the working people than is now anticipated, and if so, we will have to call for assistance from without, but until such a situation develops we see no cause for asking assistance.

"It is proper, however, to state that Kansas City, Kan., and other neighboring towns in Kansas have suffered severely, and while Kansas City, Mo., generously came to their assistance, we must not stand in the way of assistance to our neighbors from other sections of the country. To all those willing to assist these stricken towns we recommend that they address their offers to W. H. Craddock, mayor of Kansas City, Kan."

Topeka, Kans., June 5.—The river this morning was nine feet below the highest recorded point, the water having fallen during the night at the rate of an inch an hour. The approaches to the Melan bridge on Kansas avenue were completed early today and a steady stream carrying shovels and brooms were soon on their way to North Topeka to clean their homes and stores. The water has receded from the main streets for a distance of five blocks, north of Gordon street, and has left an accumulation of mud and slime that in some cases is piled three and four feet high along the front of stores and many of the buildings.

In spite of the most determined efforts the water company has been unable yet to force the water out over the entire city.

Washington, June 5.—The Missouri river at Kansas City continues to fall steadily, the gauge reading this morning 31.0 feet, a fall of 1.9 feet since Thursday morning. The river will come to a stand at Booneville, Mo., today with a stage in the neighborhood of 30 feet, but will continue to rise to the eastward. The Mississippi continues to rise steadily from Dubuque southward. At Keokuk the stage was 19.4 feet, 4.4 feet above danger line. The flood waters from the Iowa, Cedar and Skunk rivers are now entering the Mississippi above Keokuk, and there will be a further slow rise in that vicinity which will continue several days. At St. Louis the stage this morning was 33.5 feet, a rise of 1.4 feet since Thursday morning. As stated before, the water will continue to rise steadily and a stage in the neighborhood of 36 feet is expected during Sunday. From St. Louis to Cairo the stages will be about the same as at St. Louis.

HURRICANE SWEEPS

Over Philippine Islands Doing Great Damage to Shipping.

Several United States Steamers Have Been Totally Wrecked.

Manila, June 5.—A hurricane has swept over the Philippine islands and great damage has been done to shipping.

The United States troopship Shamshus (?) is reported to have been wrecked. This, however, has not been confirmed.

The United States steamer Pearla de Visayas has been totally lost off Camotes island. Part of her crew were saved.

The United States steamer Haurafel and the schooner Mayflower have been driven ashore off Ormoc, West Leyte, and will prove total losses.

All on board these vessels were saved.

Washington, June 5.—The war department has no record of the transport, but there is a small vessel in the service of the army in the Philippines named the Samshui.

ARGUMENTS IN CASE OF STATE VS. MERGER BEGINS IN ST. PAUL

Are Based on Practically Same Testimony as Given In Federal Suit—Two or Three Days Will Be Consumed By Attorneys.

St. Paul, June 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Arguments were begun today before United States Judge Lochren in the case of the state of Minnesota against the Northern Securities company, and the roads whose control is merged in the New Jersey corporation, in the United States circuit court at the federal building in this city.

The arguments are based upon practically the same testimony in most respects, as that in the case against the merger by the federal government.

The state's case, however, is on entirely different grounds. The federal case alleged a violation of the federal Sherman anti-trust law. The state's case is brought under a provision of the Minnesota constitution, which specifically prohibits the consolidation of parallel and competing lines of railway. The arguments may last two or three days. Attorney General W. D. Douglas opened the state's case and will be followed by George P. Wilson. The defense will then be heard. Attorneys George B. Young, M. D. Grover and C. W. Bunn will present the side of the Northern Securities company and the Great Northern and Northern Pacific roads. M. D. Dunn will then close for the state.

The state's case rests on two statutes enacted by the legislature in 1874, 1881 and 1899 respectively, prohibiting the consolidation, in any manner, of competing and parallel lines of railroad, and also prohibiting the formation of any combination which is in restraint of trade or commerce within the state, or the restraint of trade or commerce between this and any other state. In the opening by Attorney General Douglas, the action was described as a suit in equity to restrain the Northern Securities company from holding stock in either the Northern Pacific or Great Northern roads, and to prevent either of these roads recognizing the Northern Securities company in any way in the management of their lines. The complaint charged that the state owned 3,000,000 acres of land and various institutions located on the right-of-way of the two railroads, and, therefore, the state had a special interest in preserving competition between the two carriers.

Based on the necessities of the case, the state brought the action in its sovereign capacity for the sake of preventing litigation for its citizens, which might arise by violations of its law by the two railroads concerned. The action was brought under an act preventing combinations in restraint of trade, and other two other acts, forbidding the consolidation of parallel competing railroads.

A TANGLE AT DENVER

Question as to Proper Officers to Canvass Recent Vote.

Denver, June 5.—The election which was held last Tuesday to select delegates to the convention to frame a new city charter has been tied up by the courts. There is a question as to the proper officers to canvass the votes, the supporters of the non-partisan ticket, which is elected on the face of the returns, claim the city and county clerk and two justices of the peace should act, and the Republicans asserting that the city council is the legal canvassing board. Judge Mullins of the district, has issued an injunction to restrain the council from acting, and Judge Palmer, of the same court, has made a similar order against City and County Clerk Aichele.

IRISH LAD

Will Run In American Derby June 20.

Chicago, June 5.—"Irish Lad," winner of the Brooklyn handicap, will be a competitor in the American derby, to be run at Washington Park, June 20. This statement was made officially today by Secretary Howard, of the Washington Park club to a representative of the Associated Press.

"I received the assurance late last night," said Mr. Howard, "that Irish Lad would run positively, barring, of course, an accident to the horse itself previous to the great race."

BREAK AGREEMENT.

Chicago, June 5.—Dissatisfied with the wage scale, 300 men belonging to a loading gang of Armour & Co.'s plant in the stock yards have gone on strike. A wage scale was agreed on last week, and the men worked until last night, when they expressed dissatisfaction at the agreement. It is said that efforts will be made by the officers of the packing trades' council to persuade the men to return to work and fulfill their part of the agreement.

TO PROVIDE LIGHTS.

Washington, June 5.—Secretary Hay and Sir Michael Herbert, the British ambassador, today signed a treaty for the imposition of light dues at Zanzibar. The convention provides for an increase in shipping dues of an anna (3 cents) per ton, the proceeds to be expended in establishing lights on the coast.

MENONDEZ SENTENCED.

New York, June 5.—Augustine Menondez, a member of one of the first families of Havana, has been sentenced, says a Herald dispatch from Havana, to twelve years in prison for the murder of Gregoria Altazarra, after a quarrel in a safe. Altazarra was a leader in society and under the administration of Gen. Wood was practically the master of ceremonies at the palace.

THE MASSACRE AT KISHINEFF CAUSED BY THE BESSARABETZ

The Two Elements of the Population of Bessarabia Had Had No Conflict For Twenty Years Before Trouble Was Incited By the Newspapers.

St. Petersburg, May 23.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—There is virtual unanimity of opinion in the press, barring the anti-semitic papers, that the author of the strained relations and of the ritual murder calumnies was the newspaper Bessarabetz. A petition of the Jewish community of Kishineff to the director of the department of police, Lopeoukhin, in pointing this out, says:

"In Bessarabia generally and in Kishineff particularly, there were no strained relations between Jews and Christians until a very recent date. This is explained by the peaceful and orderly character of the local population and comparative prosperity of the province. During twenty years or more there had been no conflict whatever between the two elements of the population and when Jews were being pillaged all throughout South and Southwest Russia, the ordinary peaceful life of Bessarabia remained undisturbed.

The Jewish society named the Bessarabetz as the direct instigator of the trouble. "This newspaper was established five years ago," the report stated. "Until its appearance there was no local organ of the press. It, therefore, found virgin soil, and from the beginning had a tremendous influence. In its second year the Bessarabetz began a regular and systematic baiting of the Jewish population. In fact Jew-baiting became its recognized specialty.

"This has long been known to every reader of the Russian newspaper, scarcely a month passing without the citation of some anti-semitic utterance of this newspaper by other papers.

"We could quote articles," the report continued, "which amounted to a simple call for the extirpation of the Jews en masse."

The Jewish community went on to say that the local censorship, administered by the vice governor, evidently approved the course of the Bessarabetz, and directed attention to the persistent refusal of the St. Petersburg press administration to permit the establishment of any other newspaper at Kishineff. The Bessarabetz continued preaching "Death to the Jews," or "All Jews should be killed off," until the massacre, its attacks culminating in the accusation of ritual murder. The Jewish community established these facts and then related that leaflets were handed about the streets and posted in the cheap restaurants and tea houses, stating that "the czar has decided to kill the Jews during the first three days of Easter."

THE TOWN OF NEW LISBON, WIS., NEARLY WIPED OUT BY FIRE

Two Entire Blocks Were Destroyed at an Early Hour and the Property Loss Is Approximately $100,000, About Half Covered By Insurance.

La Crosse, Wis., June 5.—The business portion of the town of New Lisbon was almost entirely destroyed by fire early this morning and the loss is approximately $100,000. Two entire blocks of buildings were entirely destroyed.

The fire started in the back end of Stinson Bros. & Co.'s store about midnight from an unknown cause. The city fire department, with only 260 feet of hose and a small chemical engine, was entirely unable to cope with the flames and Mauston and Tomah, nearby towns, were called upon for aid.

The Mauston company responded and reached the city about 5:30, too late to be of any material service as the fury of the fire was by this time nearly spent. The buildings destroyed were the Cash department store and the opera house blocks, the two largest in town. The largest losses that were incurred are Stinson Bros. & Co., $11,500; Cash department store, $5000; F. E. Hurd, $2500; A. G. Anderle, $6000; Moore's Opera house block, $6000; Wolf Mercantile company, $14,000; B. D. Curtis, $6000; O. B. Chester, $11,000.

The entire loss, which is in the neighborhood of $100,000, is only about one-half covered by insurance.

During the fire F. E. Hurd, while attempting to remove the effects from the postoffice, narrowly escaped being killed by the large printing press located in the Argus office above, falling through the burning floor.

The fire is a severe blow to New Lisbon, as it is doubtful if several of the buildings will be rebuilt.

A WATER FAMINE FEARED IN NEW YORK UNLESS RAINS COME

Immense Quantities of Water Are Used Daily and the Reservoirs Are Rapidly Reaching a Very Low State—People Are Warned.

New York, June 5.—Unless rain comes soon to replenish the reservoir, which supplies New York city with water, there will be grave danger of a famine.

Since the beginning of May the storage reservoir has been drawn on at the rate of 250,000,000 gallons a day, and now Col. Monroe, commissioner of water, gas and electricity, has issued a warning in the form of a request that citizens be as sparing as possible in their use of water until the drought shall have been broken. Col. Monroe says there was a full storage of 45,000,000,000 gallons on hand when the drought began.

With the limited means at its disposal, the department has made investigations covering thirteen districts in Manhattan, which constitute about one-tenth of the area of the borough and it has been found that there is a waste of 32,000,000 gallons of water a day in the interior of buildings, without taking into account the leakage.

TONS OF STEEL FLY AWAY YEARLY

Berlin, June 5.—About 247,000 tons of steel fly away in dust from the railroads of the world yearly, according to the table sumbitted to the mining and smelting section of the international chemical congress by Dr. A. Harman, of Osnabruk. Of this amount, 19,000 tons is thus lost through friction on the German railroads alone. The experience of Europe, it is announced, had now demonstrated that iron ties are as cheap as wooden ties.

ANOTHER GREAT BIG ICE TRUST

New York, June 5.—The Standard Ice company has been incorporated in Maine with a capital of $10,000,000, of which one-fifth is 7 per cent preferred. The incorporation of the company was made through the Corporation Trust company, of Jersey City, and interests affiliated with that trust company are said to be behind the new concern. The charter of the company allows it to do business in every city of the country in selling and buying ice and dealing in ice machinery.

DEUTSCHLAND IS FAST IN THE MUD

New York, June 5.—The steamer Deutschland, which grounded yesterday in Gedney's channel, is still fast. Six tugs worked on the liner at high tide about half past 3 o'clock this morning, but failed to move her.

Another attempt will be made at high tide this afternoon. The steamer has suffered no damage and as soon as he is floated will proceed on her voyage across the Atlantic. In the meantime she is in no danger, although surrounded by a heavy mantle of smoke and fog. Blame is placed on the first-class passengers and their friends for the accident. Capt. Barends, in command of the ship, figured on crossing the bar at 3:15 o'clock yesterday afternoon, but so many friends of the passengers crowded the vessel that she was late in getting away. In the interval the smoke had settled over the harbor and the big steamer had to crawl slowly on her way out to the open sea. She was under a slow bell when she struck and the engines were reversed, but despite this she buried fully half her length in the muck. Communication was established with the Marconi station at Fire Island, and from there the news was sent to the New York agent.

A MILLION CHINESE STARVING

Hong Kong, June 5.—The estimate of Governor Wong, of Kwang Si province, that over 1,000,000 natives are starving in the province is pronounced here to be approximately correct. The distress in certain districts is more acute. Children and women are freely offered for sale. The rice harvest promises well, but it will not be available for from four to six weeks. Extensive relief operations will be difficult without foreign supervision, which will be hard to obtain in Kwang Si. Assistance has been sent to the province from Pong Kong and Canton, but the funds available are becoming exhausted. The Hong Kong committee will welcome subscriptions. The newly appointed viceroy of Canton, Tsui Chaus Suen, is hastening his journey to his post because of the serious condition in Kwang Si province. The population of Kwang Si is largely agricultural.

BACKED OFF HIGH BRIDGE

Fractious Horse Caused the Drowning of Two Children.

Boise, Idaho, June 5.—A sad accident occurred on one of the city bridges over the Boise river shortly before 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, as the result of which two boys, one 2 and the other 14 years of age, were drowned.

When Mrs. James Stephenson, wife of the assistant state engineer, was driving across the Ninth street bridge, her horse became unmanageable and backed the buggy against the side of the bridge. The supports gave way and the horse and buggy and the two children, who were with Mrs. Stephenson, toppled over into the stream and disappeared under the rushing waters.

Mrs. Stephenson jumped out of the buggy as it went over and made a frantic effort to rescue the children, but the buggy dropped so suddenly that she could do nothing. The accident happened so quickly that Mrs. Stephenson had barely time to escape with her life.

The buggy rose to the surface as the rapid current whirled it down stream, and the horse could be seen floundering in the water for a few moments, but no trace of the children was observed after they fell off the bridge.

The youngest of the two children was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Stephenson. The elder child was Tommy Watkins, whom Mrs. Stephenson had taken with her for a drive.

RIVER MADE HIM RICH.

Title to Missouri Accretions Is Decided.

Sioux City, Iowa, June 5.—The earning of a fortune for A. L. Beardsley of this city by the Missouri river was approved yesterday in a decision of the district court giving Beardsley title to 1890 acres of land worth $20,000.

Beardsley owned 100 acres of land on the Iowa side of the river, the title dating back to 1855. The river began backing away in 1856 and kept it up till 1894. In that time several farms on the Nebraska side were devoured by the stream and a corresponding amount of land deposited on the opposite side, forming an accretion of 1890 acres to the original 100 acres.

An ice gorge formed in 1894, which caused the river to commit an act of evolution, resuming its original channel in a few hours, and throwing the accretion on the Nebraska side again. The river literally made a fortune for Beardsley unaided.

HE SHIELDS HIS PAL

"Cheerful Charley" Howard Says Martin Moore Is Innocent.

Came Back From Penitentiary to Testify For Him.

Brought back from Stillwater, where he is serving time for forgery in the second degree, "Cheerful Charley" Howard sat in the witness chair in district court this morning and tried to shield Martin Moore of any blame in connection with the fake poker game in which Joseph Benning was fleeced out of his money last February.

Howard is as cheerful as ever and gave his testimony this morning with the same smiling countenance and cool demeanor that characterized his actions at his own trial.

Several times he refused to answer questions put to him by the county attorney on the ground that he might incriminate himself. He was, apparently, wary of all questions and considered their import before he gave an answer.

Martin Moore, the defendant, was a witness in his own behalf and finished his testimony just as court adjourned for the noon recess.

While on the stand this morning, Howard testified that Billy Edwards' true name is Edward Moore, and that he is a full brother to the defendant, Martin Moore. Howard claims that he first met Martin Moore in Minneapolis some months ago, when Edwards introduced him as his brother, telling Moore that Howard was a stockman from Montana. Witness claimed that the Montana stockman business was simply a joke between himself and Edwards, but that Moore took it seriously and wanted to get a position on the mythical ranch, which Howard readily promised to him.

Howard claimed that when he and Edwards came to Duluth in February last, the meeting of Moore on the train bound for the city was a matter of chance, and that he never cared to have Moore mix up in his business and while at the Merchants' hotel would often refuse to let Moore into his room when the latter came for a visit with his brother. To bear out his assertion that he used every means to get rid of Moore before the poker game was commenced with Benning, Howard says that he sent Moore out of the hotel after a railroad map and, on his return, tried to get him to go down to the St. Louis hotel for a Minneapolis paper, the latter refusing to go because it was too cold.

Howard testified positively that Moore did not have any understanding with Edwards and himself as to any trick that was to be worked on Benning to separate him from his money, and that Moore had no interest or part in any plan to fleece young Benning. He further claimed that he tried to get Moore to give up the $8 won from Benning, but the latter laughed at him.

On cross-examination Howard said that it was all a matter of chance that Moore drew the four kings in the alleged fake poker game, that any fair-minded man could be convinced that it was merely a chance. He declared that Benning dealt the cards, and refused to admit that the game was other than on the square. When pressed to tell what plan he and Edwards had in mind to try on Benning that they were so anxious to get rid of Moore, witness refused to answer on the ground he might incriminate himself.

Howard admitted taking the name of Wilson while in Duluth for the reason that he wanted to keep out of Minneapolis just then and did not care to go about Duluth with a sign on himself. Previous to his conviction here on the forgery charge, Howard claimed to have been in jail but once before and that about a year ago when he served ten days on a charge of swindling.

Howard said that when Moore was sent out of the hotel before the poker game it was thought he knew enough to stay away, though it would not have been policy to have told him why he was wanted to stay away.

As to his notoriety as a "big mitt" man, Howard claimed that the newspapers are responsible for that and that he never compelled anybody to lose a cent to him unless they were avaricious. Witness admitted to the county attorney that Moore got the best of it in the poker game, but refused to state whose fault it was that things turned out as they did. He claimed never to have played with a "cold deck," admitting that he knew what such a term meant, but thought Chief Troyer could explain it better than himself.

Howard admitted telling Moore to get out of town after he knew trouble was developing, but claimed he did so because he knew the police would think the defendant was mixed up in some plan to fleece Benning, when, in reality, he knew nothing about it. Howard claimed that he did not want Benning to bet, and raised objections until the latter said positively that he had a ticket home. He said he considered the hand that Benning held, of four queens, a good one, but not good enough to go broke on. He denied that he bet any money with Benning against Moore, and said that the card game was a very unpleasant feature to him all the time it was in progress. If Moore had kept out of it he would have saved himself a great deal of trouble. Witness claimed that Edwards did not hold four aces, for he remembered seeing one ace in Benning's hand.

When asked why Edwards did not manifest interest in his brother's welfare enough to come back to visit him, Howard said he thought Edwards had good reasons for staying away from Duluth. He claimed to have known Edwards for five or six years.

Martin Moore made a very good witness in his own behalf, except when it came to giving answers which the county attorney alleged were in contradiction to his testimony at the Howard trial. He testified that he is somewhere between 22 and 24 years of age, was born in New York, where his mother died when he was 3 years old, and his father when he was 6 years old. He claims that the family, consisting of two other brothers and a sister, became scattered and that he came to Minnesota three years ago last November. Questioned further by his counsel, Moore testified that during the interval he has worked in Minneapolis teaming, in Ohio on a farm, for a butter maker, a well digger, as bell boy in the West hotel in Minneapolis, on a farm at Barnesville, Minn., and with a threshing crew in North Dakota. He says he has a homestead near Ashland, N. D., and has worked in the woods at Embarrass, Minn., and Drummond, Wis.

Moore claims that he first met his brother, Edward Moore, alias Billy Edwards, by accident on a train while going to Willmar, Minn. He received his brother's Minneapolis address, and has lived with him some during winter months. Witness claimed that he supposed his brother was a traveling salesman up to the time he returned to Minneapolis from Barnesville. He claimed that his meeting Howard and Edwards on the train en route to Duluth was an accident. He was then on his way through Duluth bound for the woods, he said, but changed his mind, expecting that Howard would give him a place on his alleged ranch in Montana.

Moore said his brother told him that he had better take the name of Martin Burke while in Duluth, that himself and Howard would be known here by the names of Williams and Wilson, respectively, and it might save trouble for all concerned. Moore claimed that after they reached Duluth he lost track of his brother and Howard, but finally met Edwards on the street, and was told they were stopping at the Merchants hotel. Witness said he went frequently to the hotel because the room he rented at a private house was not heated and the weather was very cold. He said Howard and Edwards frequently refused to let him in their room and he sat down in the office reading a paper, because it was warm there.

Moore corroborated the testimony of Howard that he was requested to go out after the map and the paper, and said he became interested in the card game and bet, winning Benning's money. He admitted that Howard afterward asked him for the money, claiming Benning would complain to the police, but that witness refused to give it up on the ground that Benning would not dare complain, for he would have to admit that he, too, was gambling. On his cross-examination, and in answer to County Attorney McClintock's question if he did not testify at the Howard trial that he had gone by the name of Burke for four or five months, Moore claimed he did not remember making such a statement; that he had only used that name after coming to Duluth.

He told of Chief Troyer questioning him at the Union depot when he gave the name of Martin Burke, and said that Howard afterward told him he had got them in a nice mess and had better quit the city at once.

Moore was positive in his testimony that he did not know of any plan between Howard and Edwards to fleece Benning, and claimed to be entirely innocent of any intention to fleece the country boy.

He claimed that his coming to Duluth to testify at Howard's trial was voluntary on his part, and that Howard had written him saying that his, Moore's, testimony was necessary to keep him from serving time. Moore said he understood that he would not be prosecuted when he came back, but was taken in custody while leaving the court room.

Moore showed his resentment toward the police by stating that they can tell a good story in court and manufacture the evidence if they need it.

Moore said his brother always received his mail under the name of Edward Moore, and was known by that name among his neighbors.

County Attorney McClintock referred to Moore's testimony at Howard's trial, when he said that the first time he met Williams was on the train coming to Duluth. Moore claimed what he meant to say was that it was the first time he knew his brother by the name of Williams.

Several witnesses for the state were examined yesterday afternoon.

Joseph Benning, the young country boy who was the victim of the big mitt men in the fake poker game, told practically the same story of the manner in which he was separated from his money that he did in the trial of Charles Howard. E. W. Meinhardt testified that Howard, Edwards and Moore stopped at the Merchants' hotel under assumed names.

Chief Troyer and Detective Irvine told of meeting the three men at the Union depot and of questioning them.

During the cross-examination of Chief Troyer, John Brown, counsel for the defense, asked him a few questions with a view of bringing out the trouble or misunderstanding between the local police department and Capt. Alexander of the Minneapolis police department. Chief Troyer said the only trouble is that Capt. Alexander is a friend of Howard and did not want him prosecuted; that Howard and some others were pets of the Minneapolis police captain.

During his testimony Chief Troyer said the local police are still looking for Edwards or for any other man that tries to work the "big mitt" game in Duluth.

Since the Howard trial Benning has been employed in the city by a lumber company and is now working in a pavilion at Lester Park.

HIS SUPERSTITIONS.

The other day a man with a woeful face and a Teutonic accent came to my door and tried to sell me a chest developer for $2. That is to say, he developed my chest to abnormal proportions by calling me by names and telling me how widely I was known as a person of rare intellectual attainments and broad human sympathies, says a writer to the Brooklyn Eagle. Then he tried to borrow $2 because, as he said, he was the editor of a Bohemian newspaper and was going to be dispossessed unless he paid $2 instanter. To convince me of the truth of his story he showed me a copy of a Bohemian newspaper, which I could not read. It reminded me of the time Clark Carr, in order to prove that he had licked Phillip Post at a certain bridge, walked me more than a mile and conclusively pointed out the bridge. But that, Kiplingly speaking, is another story.

I had nothing smaller than $100 bill in the house, and, as this was Confederate money and my Bohemian caller could not change it, I recommended that he try my neighbor, Absolem Duzen, who has a reckless habit of carrying small bills on his person. But I noticed that when the unfortunate journalist left me he did not go toward Duzen's house.

That evening I met Duzen and told him of the distinguished honor I had tried to confer on him. Then Duzen told me a story.

It seems that for two or three years, at least, this "Bohemian editor" has been going about working the same dispossess racket with considerable success. He chooses and locates his intended victims by means of the convenient voting lists, and Duzen informed me that nearly every voter in our precinct had contributed $2. He himself had been touched up just prior to the big May slump in Wall street two years ago.

"I was undecided," said Duzen, "as to whether I should give the fellow $2 or send him about his business, when suddenly he clasped his hands in ecstacy, rolled his eyes into a beatific expression and exclaimed: 'Ah! I am so glad. You vill be very lucky. See!' He picked a lady bug from the lapel of my coat. 'Dat iss a very lucky sign,' he continued with such manifest joy in my coming good fortune that I decided in his favor and gave him the $2. The next day the bottom fell out of the market and I lost over $12,000."

"Well, Duzen," I remarked, with a superior air (I like to make my neighbors see their shortcomings), "if you get rid of that silly superstition about lady bugs bringing good luck, you really profited by the experience."

"Oh," he answered, "the lady bug was all right. It wasn't her fault. I believe that infernal Dutchman put her on my coat when I wasn't looking."

Now see that! You couldn't blow a superstition out of a gambler's noodle—not with dynamite.

Are you thin? Would you like to get fat and plump? Tried "laughing," wouldn't work, now take Rocky Mountain Tea—'twill do the business. 35 cents. S. F. BOYCE.

JEWS ARE ARRESTED IN AFRICA

Tripoli, North Africa, June 5.—Twenty Jews, comprising a specially appointed commission, have been arrested and imprisoned for refusing to comply with the governor general's orders to assess the Jewish community for a military exemption tax. The commission claims that the extreme poverty of the Jews renders the payment of the tax impossible, and points out that the Mohammedans are not forced to pay the tax or perform military duty. The Jews have suspended all business at a protest against the government's action.

A MINNESOTA CHURCH BLOWN UP

St. Paul, June 5.—A Rochester, Minn., special to the Dispatch says: The village of Byron is in a state of excitement today, as the Baptist church there was blown up by dynamite last night and terribly damaged. Rev. Mr. Hisinger, the pastor, is trying to locate the perpetrator. The dynamite was placed in the attic near the chimney.

FOR FLAG DAY

Mayor Hugo Issues Proclamation Urging That It Be Observed.

Monday, June 15, Is the Date—Origin of Flag Day.

The observance of flag day in Duluth will be urged.

Mayor Hugo will issue a proclamation urging a proper observance for this anniversary, set apart to promote reverence for the Stars and Stripes.

Flag day was originated by the American Flag association in 1897, it being the desire to have the widest possible recognition of the occasion, and a general and patriotic celebration every year. Among those interested in the movement are Lieut. Gen. Nelson A. Miles, Maj. Gen. O. O. Howard, Maj. Gen. J. C. Breckenridge, Brig. Gen. Frederick D. Grant, Rear Admiral Winfield Scott Schley and Rear Admiral B. Gnerardi.

June 14 is the anniversary day, but it will be observed this year on June 15, for the reason that the 14th falls on Sunday. It was on June 14, 1777, that congress declared the flag of the thirteen United States to be thirteen stripes, alternate red and white, with a union of thirteen stars in white in a blue field.

That held until April 4, 1818, when congress declared that the flag should have thirteen stripes of alternate red and white, with a union of twenty stars in a blue field, and that on admission of a new state into the union, one star should be added, the addition to take effect on the fourth day of July next, succeeding the new state's admission.

Since 1818 twenty-five stars have been added, making forty-five in all. The American Flag association, in its call for general observing of the day, says:

"The Stars and Stripes within the recent past possesses new beauty for friendly eyes and new terror for the foes of liberty.

"We earnestly exhort our citizens to join in making flag day an event, and its celebration in 1903 a great event. May we see from one end of the land to the other the Stars and Stripes greet the rising and salute the setting sun from every church edifice, school and building, public or private, and however humble, throughout the entire land on June 15."

CAPE COLONY PARLIAMENT

Session Opened at Capetown By Sir Walter Hutchinson.

Capetown, June 5.—The governor of Cape colony, Sir Walter Hely-Hutchinson, opened parliament today. In his speech he said he hoped shortly to be able to relax the remaining restrictions on liberty, in consequence of the success which had attended the policy of peace and reconciliation. All the races were settling down to ordinary life. The present session was called to ratify the customs convention, drawn up at Bloemfontein, and to sanction the construction of several new railroads. With the continuance of the present buoyancy of the revenue, the increased expenditure would not involve additional taxation.

SAWMILL MEN STRIKE.

Many Men Have Gone Out at Mason, Wis.

St. Paul, June 5.—A Mason, Wis., special to the Dispatch says: A big strike is on here in the White River Lumber company's sawmills. About 85 per cent of the employes refused to go to work this morning because a 15 per cent raise was not granted. The striking employes last night threatened bodily violence to anyone who offered to go to work this morning. Sheriff Simpson and two deputies arrived early today, and at present everything is quiet.

NAME IS GOOD ENOUGH.

GAMEY CHARGES ARE DISPROVED

Commission Finds Preponderance of Evidence Against Allegations.

Toronto, June 5.—The commission which investigated the charges made by Mr. Gamey, the member of the legislature who alleged that he had been approached by parties representing the Liberal government and offered a bribe of $2000 if he would vote with the government, has made its report. In the opinion of the commission the charges "stand disproved by a great body of evidence which appears to be more accurate and credible than that advanced in support thereof."

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Mrs. Sanderson of Menominee Attempts to Poison Herself.

Menominee—Mrs. S. Francis Sanderson attempted to commit suicide by taking carbolic acid and is unconscious and not expected to live. About three years ago she secured a divorce from her husband, S. D. Sanderson, a lumberman of this city, under sensational She then went to Chicago with her son developments in the Milwaukee courts, to live and had been there since.

Her husband returned to Menominee and had charge of the Francis Beidler Lumber company's business here, which position he still holds. Mrs. Sanderson wrote threatening letters to him and it is thought her mind was affected. About a month ago her son, William, came here and was soon taken ill. His father was out of town on business for several weeks and his mother then came from Chicago to attend to her son. She intended to return, but the boy was too ill, and last Friday she rented a house and started to keeping boarders.

She acted strangely, and Wednesday night, between 12 and 1 o'clock, went to the kitchen and took a large dose of carbolic acid. She returned to the room of her son, and when he saw the bottle in her hand he realized what she had done and immediately telephoned for physicians.

"The smartest clothes in town."

Saut Ste. Marie—A scheme by which immigrants denied admission to the United States were able to get in has been discovered and stopped by the Soo immigration officials. Crossing the international railroad bridge by foot at night is the method, and the indications are it had been followed for an extended period. A tip gave the officials the cue, and a watch was productive of the capture of three gangs of Finlanders, who had previously been adjudged unworthy of admittance.

But for the presence of mind of Henry John, a fellow employe, Howard Hart, employed at McCarthy's sawmill, would have bled to death. Hart's arm had come in contact with a saw and had been completely shattered. The blood was rushing out in streams when Joonson caught hold of the severed arteries and held the ends tightly while he directed the other men in tieing them with cords. This method sufficed until a doctor could be brought to the scene.

Samples brought in from the Mariposa mine, in the Michipicoten district of Canada, show the rock to be rich in gold and that the property will be apparently an exceedingly valuable one.

Hancock—Delegates from every part of the United States are in Hancock in attendance upon the fifteenth annual convention of the Finnish Evangelical church of America. Discussion of church educational and charity work is the principal business of the gathering. The Finnish Evangelical church of America was established fifteen years ago and has fifty-five congregations with 20,000 members.

Members of the St. Jean de Baptiste society of Hancock and Houghton are making plans for a monster demonstration for Saturday, June 24, when the annual convention of the society will be held in Hancock.

Calumet—The Houghton County Gas company, capital $250,000, recently organized by local capitalists, has secured a site for its gas plant at South Lake Linden. Work on the plant will be commenced as soon as franchises are secured from the villages that have not already granted them.

Negaunee—The shaft being sunk by the Cleveland Cliffs company on its Mass property, for which it paid about three-quarters of a million dollars, is finally down to the ledge, and one of the greatest engineering feats in the history of the Lake Superior district has been performed.

Ishpeming—The first consignment of checks sent to men injured while at work at the Lake Superior mine, operated by the steel trust, and who came within the provisions of the Carnegie aid fund, have been received, the amounts ranging up to $400.

Powers—There are strong suspicions that the recent death of Andrew Juncau, who was supposed to have committed suicide, was due to foul play. It is believed he was murdered and his body placed on the track to hide the crime.

Houghton—While blasting to lower the ground floor to the level of the street, workmen employed by Judge Barnd in remodeling his house found a 15-foot vein of copper-bearing rock.

A new station to replace the old one that has been an eyesore for years will be built by the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic.

Lake Linden—Mrs. Jane Munn, aged 66, one of the pioneers of the copper country, is dead.

INTERNAL TRADE

Commerce Movements For First Third of Current Year.

Receipts at Live Stock Markets Show Continuous Decline.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, June 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—The internal commerce movements for the first third of the current year, compared with those of the corresponding period in 1902 and 1901, are just announced by the treasury bureau of statistics.

The five leading live stock markets of the interior, for the first four months of 1903, report receipts of 10,089,769 head, as compared with 10,220,516 head in the same months of 1902, and 10,263,859 head in the first four months of 1901. From this it appears that there has been a continuous decline in quantity. The chief loss, however, has been in the receipts of hogs, the four months' figures being, for the five markets considered, 5,069,148 head in 1901, 5,996,499 head in 1902, and 5,038,423 head in the present year. Thus far this year, therefore, receipts of hogs have been almost 1,000,000 head short of the receipts in the first third of 1901. Gains have been made in the receipts of cattle and sheep, compared with either of the two preceding years.

Wheat receipts at eight markets, to the end of April, are reported as amounting to 221,288,863 bushels. To the corresponding date last year receipts were 264,081,866, and in 1901 only 193,736,822 bushels. Minneapolis has received this season thus far 77,747,420 bushels, or more than half the total receipts at the four spring wheat markets of Minneapolis, Milwaukee, Duluth and Chicago.

The flour trade at Minneapolis has been subject to conditions peculiarly unfavorable to the regular movement of this commodity. During the fourth week of April shipments sunk to less than one-third of the weekly shipment during the preceding three weeks. The export movement from this market during the first week of April was 101,635 barrels; the second week it fell to 75,255 barrels; the third week to 30,150 barrels, and in the week ending with May 2 it was only 25,830 barrels. No such extraordinary change marked the movement of flour in either of the preceding two years to this season. A similar condition prevailed at Chicago. During the week ending with April 4, there were shipped on trunk lines from Chicago and Chicago points 129,797 barrels, whereas in the week ending with May 2 only 55,562 barrels were shipped. A year ago 74,820 barrels were reported and two years ago 142,256 barrels.

Provision shipments to May 2 were 424,726 tons this year, compared with 466,035 tons last year, and 376,612 tons in 1901.

Stocks of cut meats at the five markets reporting on the 30th of April this year were 235,221,035 pounds, compared with 264,923,930 pounds on April 30, 1902, a reduction of 11.2 per cent.

On the great lakes during April 2,700,735 tons of freight were received at 109 different points reporting, compared with 3,282,841 tons in April, 1902, and 338,153 tons in April, 1901. For the four months ending with April, 3,511,103 tons were reported as received this year, compared with 3,897,659 tons last year and 890,430 in the same months of 1901. The total freight passing through the Sault Ste. Marie canals in April, this year, was 1,651,839 net tons, compared with 2,339,234 net tons in April, 1902.

At the North Atlantic seaboard the receipts of grain at Boston, New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore in the four months ending with April, this year, were 87,873,979 bushels, including flour reduced to bushels. The total for the corresponding period of 1902 was 63,023,198 bushels. At New York four months' receipts were 38,091,914 bushels this year, compared with 30,115,639 bushels last year. At Boston the corresponding receipts were 12,178,242 bushels and 8,948,083 bushels; at Philadelphia, 13,222,565 bushels, compared with 13,157,425 bushels; at Baltimore, 20,320,400 bushels, compared with 10,347,245 bushels. Inspected receipts at Portland, Me., for four months ending with April were 4,392,561 bushels, of which 817,586 bushels were from American and 3,574,975 bushels from Canadian sources.

Coastwise commerce at Atlantic and gulf ports shows a total of 4,460,287 tons of coal shipped from New York harbor points during the first quarter of 1903; from Philadelphia, 1,158,434 tons; from Baltimore, 394,086 tons; from Newport News, 478,875 tons, and from Norfolk, 536,189 tons. The total shipments reported from these five ports were 7,027,821 tons. Coal receipts at Boston for four months were 2,178,515 tons, compared with 1,604,576 tons for the first third of 1902. Thus far this year 815,054 tons of foreign coal have reached Boston, compared with 254,495 tons in the corresponding period of 1902.

The first eight months of the cotton year show that of 10,018,123 bales sight receipts, 7,369,629 bales were port receipts. Overland receipts netted 1,066,063 bales and Southern mill takings equaled 1,543,500 bales. Of these receipts 3,890,513 bales were derived from the Atlantic states, 3,397,558 bales from the gulf states and 2,730,052 bales from Texas.

The grain trade at the gulf ports and Galveston indicates marked gains over last season. Four months of 1903 show, at New Orleans, 18,554,350 bushels received; in 1902, 4,191,942; at Galveston, 3,593,167 bushels, compared with 484,822 bushels.

Shipments of oranges and lemons from Southern California by rail in the first twenty-six weeks of 1903 reached 13,375 cars; last year, 12,937 cars, and in same weeks of 1901, 17,360 cars.

EFFECTIVE WEAPON

Adopted For the United States Army and Navy.

Washington, June 5.—The army and navy and eventually the militia of the United States will be equipped with the most effective firearm in the world. This is the result of exhaustive tests just completed with the new experimental 24-inch magazine rifle, designed by the ordnance department, embodying the best features of the army and navy service weapons, with numerous improvements over their mechanism, as well as over the best points of foreign ordnance.

This rifle, which has just triumphed in the most ingenious tests that could be devised by a board of infantry and cavalry officers, uses a rimless cartridge. The weight of the bullet is 220 grains, and that of the powder charge is 44.5 grains. The powder pressure is 42,000 pounds to the square inch, and the muzzle velocity is 2300 feet a second. The rifling in the barrel makes one turn in eight inches. The magazine can be charged from a clip by inserting either end of the clip in a seat in the rear of the receiver, and by forcing the cartridge from it directly into the magazine by pressure of the right thumb on the top of the cartridge. The clip is ejected by the forward motion of the bolt. The gun can be used as a single loader with the magazine empty, and if the magazine is partly empty it can be filled by the insertion of single cartridges.

The experimental rifle, with the 24-inch barrel and rod bayonet, weighs two pounds less than the United States magazine rifle, model of 1898, the present service arm, with its bayonet and bayonet scabbard. The penetration in pine of the former, up to and including 1500 yards, is about 50 per cent greater than that of the latter; and the accuracy of the former is 14 per cent greater at 500 yards, 4.6 per cent greater at 1000 yards and also greater at 1500 yards than that of the latter. The use of the clip and the change in the cartridge increase the weight of 100 rounds three-quarters of a pound.

A comparison of the 24 and 30-inch barrels shows that the former is .72 pound lighter than the latter, and a slight saving in weight is made as a result of the shorter hand guard. The 24-inch rifle is equally accurate; it will have practically the same penetration; it is better balanced and more easily manipulated; is especially available in brush or when used as a club; its modified length makes possible the equipment of all branches of the service with precisely the same weapon.

The variations in range tests of the new and the present service rifles were at 500 yards, an average of 8.30 per cent for the 30-inch barrel and 8.88 per cent for the 24-inch: at 1000 yards 21.24 for the 30-inch and 20.81 for the 24-inch. By using a new type of cartridge a muzzle velocity of 2300 feet can be obtained with the new rifle. The recoil with the new weapon is not noticeably greater than with the present service arm, nor is there any material loss in penetration.

In an extensive test made of rapid firing at 100 yards, marksmen kneeling or prone, a general average of 12 shots a minute gave an advantage to the new gun over the service weapon of 9.3 per cent in rapidity and 18.6 per cent of hits.

The examining board recommends that the regulations require that the new rifle be habitually used as a magazine gun, and that single loading be permitted only under exceptional circumstances.

In a series of experiments in firing at the regulation shields for 3-inch field gun and for Gatling gun, it was shown that the new rifle, with a muzzle velocity of 2300 feet a second, was much more effective than the present service arm.

The entire resources of the great Springfield armory will now be devoted to turning out quantities of the new type of rifle as rapidly as possible, and it is hoped that by next winter all branches of the regular service will be equipped with it. As soon as this has been accomplished the same weapon will be supplied to all militia organizations which have complied with the provision of the recent militia reorganization law. The advantages to be derived from the uniform equopment of all branches of the regular and volunteer services are regarded by ordnance officers as incalculable.

Bishop McGolrick Believes In Education That Develops Them.

Commencement Exercises of Sacred Heart Institute —Four Graduates.

"I am a believer in a good ordinary education," said Bishop McGolrick at the commencement exercises of the Sacred Heart institute held at the Lyceum last evening. "I do not believe in giving a student a smattering of a number of deep and abstract subjects which are calculated to spoil their hild. I will give a gold medal to the young lady who will come before me and pass a satisfactory examination on the following subjects: Plain sewing, (I mean stockings and torn trousers) cooking, (by all means) how to lay a table, how to take temperature, how to make a bed, how to alight from a street car (I never yet saw a lady who could) how to select shoes that are an easy fit, how to tie knots, how to fill a fountain pen, how to fold clothes, (men's as well as ladies') how to do up an umbrella, how to trim lamps, how to open tin cans, how to drive nails, how to light fires, how to feed the dog, cat and canary, sanitation, how to weave baskets, how to make paper flowers.

"There was never a time or never a country where there are better opportunities for education than in America at the present time. It is brought to everyone's door and foolish is he who does not avail himself of the opportunity.

"The examination system, however, which is in use in our country is not calculated to bring out the education of the child, but rather his memory. It is a well-known fact that a semi-idiot may have the best memory."

The Lyceum was crowded with the friends of the Sacred Heart institute, it being the occasion of the annual graduating exercises. Four young ladies received the graduating medals: Miss Louise Lyons, Miss Emma Brown, Miss Estelle Miller and Miss Margaretta Sweeney.

The program rendered in connection with the exercises was divided into two parts. It was opened with a song by the school chorus entitled "My Own United States," followed by a reading by Miss Emma V. Brown, one of the graduates. Her essay showed careful preparation and was well delivered. A piano solo by Miss Emily Quinn followed. She rendered Wilm's "Valse Impromptu" in a very able manner. A piano solo of two short numbers from Beethoven and Mozart was played by Miss Cora Fitzgerald and much appreciated by the audience. The "Fairyland Chorus" was rendered by the senior class. A very carefully prepared essay on "The Eye Physical and Spiritual," was read by Miss Estelle Miller of the graduating class. The essay was original in its thought and was well delivered.

The distribution of medals and diplomas followed after which the graduates delivered their valedictory in song. Miss Alice Lambert played with excellent technique and good expression Bendel's "Silverquelle in That" and the "Rondo Brilliant" by Von Weber. A very clever recitation by little Miss Ruth Crowley brought the first part of the program to a close.

The second half of the program consisted of a sacred cantata "Jeptha's Daughter," given by the young ladies of the school, Miss L. Schumann took the part of Jeptha, general of Israel's army in a very able manner. Miss Louise Lyons displayed a very sweet sprano voice in the role of Salome, Jeptha's daughter. Miss Mugle Lana, as Deborah, a prophetess, interpreted her part well and Asser, a messenger, was in the capable hands of Miss Katherine Morten. The choruses of children, virgins and people showed careful training. Miss Alice Lambert fulfilled the difficult requirements of accompanist in a very able manner. The staging was excellent and the performance was a very creditable one.

COMMITTED SUICIDE.

Used a Knife and Then Drowned Himself.

Fergus Falls, Minn., June 5.—G. A. Heard came from Henning yesterday and drowned himself in the mill pond here. Marks on his body show that he first made an ineffectual attempt to end his life by stabbing himself with a jackknife. He was about 45 years of age, and had a store at Fessenden, N. D. He also had property interests near Henning. Family trouble was the cause.

Umpire Cusack Makes Glaring Decision That Costs Duluth Game.

President Bryan Demands His Removal—Superior Also Protests.

Clubs—	Won.	Lost.	Pct.
Winnipeg	13	2	.866

Crookston	10	6	.625
Fargo	6	9	.400
Duluth	4	11	.266
Superior	1	13	.071

* * *

A glaring and bleary decision by Umpire Cusack robbed Duluth of yesterday's game.

A protest has been filed, however, and in addition to the protest President Bryan wired President Laxdal of the Northern league that Mr. Cusack would not be permitted on the local grounds again in his official capacity.

In the eighth inning the score was two to two. Grand Forks came to bat in the last half. Chandler, first man up, broke off a sizzling single over third. Cole was out on a pretty catch by Quillan in deep left. Mullane got a base on balls despite the fact that two of the four were strikes to every person but Cusack. That gave Grand Forks two men on bases. Sessions hit a high infield fly. Shepard started for it and so did Plischer. Each saw the other coming and both hesitated. Plischer then started for the ball and muffed it. Shepard picked it up and touched Mullane before he reached second. Here is where Umpire Cusack had his attack of mental palsy. He called Sessions safe on first, despite the fact that the rule says a batsman is out if he hits a fly ball that can be handled by an infielder while first and second bases are occupied unless two hands are out in which case the umpire should declare an infield or an outfield hit.

Sessions was out easily and that would have retired the side with the score still 2 to 2 but Grand Forks then scored three runs, and, according to Umpire Cusack the visitors won the game 5 to 2. Duluth fans are confident that when the league officers are acquainted with the facts the game will not linger with the missing in the Cardinal's lost column.

Until the point in dispute is passed on by his superior officers Mr. Cusack's decision, however rank, stands, and, according to his ideas the score is as follows:

Summary: Stolen bases—Chandler, Sessions. Two-base hits—Hanrahan, McCoy, Kennelly. Struck out—by Mueller, 6; by Sessions, 6. Bases on balls—off Mueller, 3; off Sessions, 3. Hit by pitched ball—McCoy. Time of game—1:45. Umpire—Cusack.

Honors were even between Mueller and Sessions yesterday. Nine hits were made off each. Both struck out six men. Each gave three bases on balls.

* * *

Sessions started in like a whirlwind. Out of the first seven men that faced him five struck out, but after that he failed to fan out any person until Quillan came up in the ninth.

* * *

Errors gave Grand Forks the only two runs that are entitled to consideration in the score.

* * *

An outburst of feminine loveliness was expected at this afternoon's game. On Fridays every person but men and boys are admitted to all privileges of the grounds—except peanut, popcorn and score card privileges—free.

* * *

Quillan's catch of Cole's long drive to the left field fence in the dizzy eighth indicates that he can play the outfield some as well as the infield.

THE STAGE

"The Bohemian Girl," the second of the series of operas to be presented here this summer by the Wilbur Opera company, was sung last evening at the Metropolitan before a large audience. All of the solo parts were cleverly rendered and Miss Hattie Richardson, as Arline, was particularly pleasing. The Gardner children and the other vaudeville features also attracted their share of attention. "The Bohemian Girl" will be rendered again this evening, tomorrow evening and tomorrow afternoon at the matinee. Beginning next week, the orchestra of the company will be in charge of Arthur C. Pell, who closes a season's engagement with Mrs. Leslie Carter at Minneapolis tomorrow night. Mr. Pell is said to be one of the best musical directors in the country. He is well known in Duluth.

The Swedish play is ever popular and "Ole Oleson," the original one of the entire class, the first work of Gus Heege, who first realized the possibilities of a drama with a Swedish character as the central figure, has been the most popular of all. This great play will appear at the Lyceum tomorrow evening with Ben Hendricks in the cast. The Swedish ladies' quartet will sing with the company.

Nearly a carload of special scenery, costumes and properties, including some musical instruments for the orchestra, arrived today, consigned to the Northwestern Opera company at the Lyceum. The production of "The Black Hussar" is all together, and the director, Mr. Hoffman, and Manager Walle, are now working on two or three of the big ensemble numbers, which are to be made features of the piece.

The regular box office sale is still in operation and Monday night promises to be, in the words of the Fourth-of-July orator, an "auspicious occasion."

LONG TERMS IN PRISON

For Two Men Concerned In Criminal Operation.

Milwaukee, June 5.—Adolph W. Dude and James B. Hanson, who have been under arrest since last Christmas, awaiting trial on the charge of manslaughter pleaded guilty on the eve of their trial in the municipal court yesterday morning. Dude was sentenced to six years in Waupun and Hanson to from four to five years in the reformatory at Green Bay.

Last December Hanson, a young man of 22, Dude said, came to his house and besought his assistance in the performance of an operation upon Miss Alpha Lelster, the 19-year-old daughter of a well-to-do farmer of the town of Granville.

During her illness she had come into the city and accepted employment in an East Side boarding-house. Dude treated her for several weeks and finally, on Dec. 3, performed an operation from the effects of which blood poisoning set in and caused death Dec. 22. Dude pretended to be a physician, but has no diploma. He was, in fact, a peddler.

Superior's garrison finish in the ninth yesterday gave Winnipeg a hard game. The Canadians, however, won out in the tenth but it is understood that a protest will be entered, Superior claiming that an unfair decision gave Winnipeg a run in the ninth to which the Champions were not entitled.

Both teams fielded well and O'Dea of Winnipeg made a spurt to retrieve the dent the Duluth pitchers put in his batting average by getting four safe drives out of five times at the bat.

Superior did not find Corbett until one man was out in the ninth and then they drove in five runs tying the score.

AFTER THE BUTTER

Chicago Dealers Actively In Market For Packing Stock.

Strawberries Are Working Northward and Floods Keep Prices Up.

Large quantities of butter have been shipped to Chicago and the Twin Cities from Duluth and the surrounding district during the past week. Buyers from produce houses in all of the three cities have been in Duluth securing packing stock for the firms they represent and, as they offered the full market price for the butter they have secured, the price of the packing stock has been kept firm in spite of heavy receipts.

June is always the month relied upon by the dealers to secure the stock of winter packing butter and the heavy demand in the East has caused the Chicago dealers to turn their attention to Minnesota as their base of supplies. Nothing but the grass butter is now being received and in the creameries and dairies the price is now slightly lower than last week. Creamery prints are selling at 22 cents and fancy dairies at 18 cents. This price is slightly lower than last year. The price of packing stock is also about a cent lower than at this time last year in spite of the inroads of the large Chicago dealers.

Fresh eggs are firm at 13½ and 14 cents, a price that is somewhat lower than the price at this season last year.

Strawberries are now being received from Iowa, Illinois and Michigan and would be considerably lower in price were it not for the floods in the Middle Western states, which are keeping back the shipments. The Wisconsin or local berries are expected next week and the price will then touch the low water mark for the season. The crop promises well, the early rains and the present fine weather having been very favorable to their growth.

Chickens have been coming in more freely during the past week and for the first time in many months the supply is fully equal to the demand. The price remains the same as last week. Other poultry is quiet, but firm at the same prices which have been quoted for the past month.

No serious shortage in meats is noticeable on account of the floods, although shipments have been delayed. The prices remain firm, but no rise has taken place. Mutton is selling at 10 cents, lamb at 12 cents and dressed beef at 7 and 8 cents.

All of the Michigan street dealers, both in meats and produce, report a good week's trading. The fine weather has been very favorable and retailers, both in the city and on the ranges, are buying freely.

SISTERS HAVE LEGAL QUARREL

One Gets Verdict Against Another For Part of Estate.

Annie Jane Prescott, of North Dakota, was rendered a verdict of $1814.51 against her sister, Louisa Johnson, of this city, in district court. The verdict was returned by the jury late yesterday afternoon. The action involved the division of the property of the deceased mother of the plaintiff and the defendant.

When the mother died some months ago, at the home of the defendant, application was made in probate court of this county to have the estate probated. The Dakota sister, however, contested the settlement, and being appointed special administrator of the estate of her mother, brought the action in district court to compel a division. Part of the estate consisted of a sum of money in one of the local banks which the defendant drew out, claiming that the mother gave it to her as a gift before she died.

The case was warmly contested and developed a feeling of bitterness between the sisters. The Duluth sister claimed that the North Dakota sister had always been lazy, while Mrs. Prescott claimed that Mrs. Johnson used undue influence on her mother previous to her death to get the money.

Among the witnesses in the case were a number of the women relatives and friends of the parties in the action.

STILL IN THE RING.

Mrs. Katrina Mueller Makes Things Lively In Detroit.

A Detroit, Mich., paper gives an account of a lively encounter between Mrs. Katherine Mueller, who figured prominently in the famous Johann Mueller case here, and her former attorney, Mr. Hislop, of the Michigan city. Mrs. Mueller is said to have met the attorney in the street and to have attacked him with her umbrella, striking him several times over the head and shouting maledictions on him with every blow. Mrs. Mueller then went to the office of a prominent law firm and demanded warrants for the arrest of several Duluth people who were on the winning side of the famous trial.

MILLERS WANT

More Reciprocity Treaties to Secure Greater Foreign Business.

Strong Resolutions Are Passed at the Detroit Convention.

Detroit, Mich., June 5.—The Millers' National Federation yesterday afternoon adopted resolutions demanding the speedy adoption by the national government of a broad, liberal and comprehensive policy of genuine reciprocity.

The fullest possible reciprocity between the United States and Canada was especially favored and a memorial which will be forwarded to President Roosevelt, was adopted.

Resolutions were also adopted on the labor question, recognizing the right of all men to organize, but denying the right of any labor organization to demand that individuals be compelled to unite with it or to demand that only union men shall receive employment. During the afternoon session an attack was made on labor unions by S. T. Ballard, of Louisville. Mr. Ballard said:

"It would be well to form an association of employers in every town in the country. We must do something to preserve for ourselves and our children the principles of freedom and independence which our forefathers handed down to us in their declaration of independence that 'every man shall have the right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.'"

The resolutions on reciprocity say:

"Whereas, extension of foreign markets affords the most feasible, if not the only practical solution of the grave difficulties which now confront the American manufacturing industry.

"Resolved, that necessity compels the flour milling industry as a whole to demand the speedy adoption by the national government of a broad, liberal and comprehensive policy of genuine reciprocity, one of the results of which will be the equalization of the import duties upon American wheat and flour by all importing countries and thereby securing to the American miller entrance to a large number of important foreign markets from which he is now effectually excluded, and

"Be it further resolved, that we strongly recommend that each individual member, irrespective of party affiliations, shall bring such constant pressure to bear upon his local congressional representative, and the United States senators from his state, and all future candidate for national office, as will commit them unequivocally to the furtherance of these measures both by voice and vote.

"Resolved, that we especially and most strongly favor the fullest possible measure of reciprocity between the United States and the Dominion of Canada, the nearest and the next to largest market for American products and manufacturers, and that in view of the early reassembling of the joint high commission the following memorial be forwarded to the president of the United States:

"The Miners' National Federation, assembled in mass convention at Detroit, Mich., represents a manufacturing industry embracing upward of 10,000 separate establishments, having a combined annual production of over $500,000,000 and involving a labor expenditure of over $25,000,00.

"The industry is the one conspicuous exception to the otherwise universal manufacturing prosperity.

"Existing conditions are largely due to the exclusion of American flour from many important foreign countries. This exclusion results from discriminating duties imposed by them in favor of wheat and against flour. The government of the United States can by a liberal and comprehensive policy of reciprocity with these countries secure the removal of this discrimination. The enormous and steadily increasing surplus of Canadian grown wheat thrown upon the markets of the United Kingdom depreciates prices abroad, enables the foreign miller to undersell his American competitor and lowers the selling price of the entire wheat crop of the United States.

"The grinding of this wheat in American mills would place the regulation of prices in this country, thereby increasing the farm value of wheat, securing the larger and more steady employment of mill labor and reasonably profitable returns to American flour manufacturers.

"Present conditions are favorable and make highly desirable the fullest measure of reciprocity trade arrangements with the Dominion of Canada, the nearest and next largest market for American products, both of farm and factory, and in view of the early assembling of the United States and Canadian joint high commission, we most earnestly urge the exercise of your strongest influence toward the successful accomplishment of these objects."

The resolutions also urge the railroads to give better dispatch to flour and mill products, at the same time declaring that millers should be well assured of their ability to ship flour within the specified time when they are making contracts.

Last night the delegates attended a banquet at the Hotel Cadillac.

FIELD-VOORHEES.

Morristown, N. J., June 5.—Miss Cornelia Emmett Voorhees and Dr. Peter Conoyer Field, first lieutenant and assistant surgeon, U. S. A., have been married in this city. Several army officers from Fort Robinson, Neb., where the groom is stationed, were in attendance.

GEORGE A. FLINN ARRESTED

For Conducting Auctioneer's Business Without License.

Grand Rapids, Minn., June 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—The extensively advertised "state grant" land sale now being conducted by George A. Flinn, ex-chief clerk of the state land office in Itasca, Aitkin, Carlton, Crow Wing and Cass counties, on behalf of a number of Twin City land companies, met with a reverse at Grand Rapids on Wednesday, when, on complaint made, Mr. Flinn was arrested for conducting an auctioneer's business without a license. The case was brought before Justice Husan, who continued the hearing until June 13, and released the accused on his giving a bond to appear on that day.

As the only authority on which Mr. Flinn relies in support of his right to conduct the sale is an instrument purporting to make him the deputy of a licensed auctioneer in Aitkin county, Mr. Flinn himself being a resident of St. Paul, it is generally believed that the sale was contrary to law. The provision of statute claimed to be violated is that requiring auctioneers to procure a license from the county commissioners of the county in which they reside, on payment of a fee and giving a bond, such license authorizing them to conduct their business in their own and adjoining counties, and imposing quite severe penalties for attempting to carry on the business without a license. A license being a personal trust, lawyers say that the party licensed has no authority to delegates his powers or duties to others.

No great interest was taken in the sale at Grand Forks, only a few forties being sold. The arrest of Mr. Flinn was a surprise to many, who supposed, from his peculiarly worded advertising, that he was acting on behalf of the state.

WISCONSIN SCANDAL.

Milwaukee, Wis., June 5.—Charges against certain members of Wisconsin National Guard companies have been lodged with the adjutant general, and a scandalous state of affairs is being developed. It grows out of a brawl at the Broadway armory in this city several days ago, in which one man was kicked in the face and badly disfigured by a member of another company.

Charges have also been filed against three members of Company E for the alleged stealing of government property from the quartermaster's room of Company A. One of these three was at one time elected to the office of second lieutenant, but resigned his commission at once. He is one of the oldest guardsmen in the city.

The property stolen consisted of overcoats and other clothing. All the articles were recovered. A court martial will be called to hear the case, as well as the others.

A LARGE SURPLUS.

With but one month more in the fiscal year of the government, it is evident that the treasury will show a surplus in spite of the repeal of the war tax. While the internal revenue has decreased somewhat, the customs receipts have increased and the total results will undoubtedly show a handsome surplus. For the month of May the receipts were $44,113,969, and the receipts from the different sources for the month have been as follows: Customs, $20,471,049; internal revenue, $19,160,309; miscellaneous, $4,482,610. For the eleven months of the fiscal year the total receipts have been $510,533,471, and the expenditures $471,584,855, showing a surplus for the fiscal year to date of $38,948,616. Treasury experts estimate that in June the surplus will possibly be in the neighborhood of $5,000,000, which will make the surplus for the fiscal year about $44,000,000.

The receipts from the different sources during the fiscal year have been as follows: Customs, $262,194,416; internal revenue, $209,436,750; miscellaneous, $38,902,205. For the same period of the last fiscal year the total receipts were $510,243,765, and the expenditures $438,334,999, showing a much larger surplus than will be the case during the present year. But this is accounted for by the fact that congress repealed all the war revenue taxes imposed during the Spanish-American war, and the repeal went into effect June 1, 1902, and by the fact that the expenditures this year are much greater than for the same period last year.

The decrease in internal revenue is shown by the figures of this and last year. For the eleven months of the last fiscal year corresponding to the eleven months of this year, the receipts from internal revenue were $246,825,084. For eleven months of this year they have been $209,436,850, a loss of about $37,000,000. The feature of this year, however, has been the increase in customs receipts. That the country has been largely increasing its imports is testified to in the constantly increasing receipts of the government from tariff duties. For the eleven months of the last fiscal year, the government had derived from customs $237,306,362, while for the eleven months of this year the receipts have been $262,194,426, an increase of about $30,000,000.

The expenditures this year as already shown have been $471,584,855, while for the same period of the last fiscal time the total was $436,334,999. This increase has been divided among all the branches of the government. The war department has so far expended this fiscal year, $110,136,742, not quite a fourth of the total expenses of the government for the year.

There is now sufficient evidence that the financial showing of the year which is drawing to a close will be entirely satisfactory in every way. With so large a surplus, why should not taxes be further reduced?

LONDON'S WATER SUPPLY.

It will not be long before London, the greatest city in the world, will be supplied with water under municipal ownership, the plant being managed by a municipal water board. The necessary transfers will be effected by June 24, 1904, in accordance with the terms of the metropolitan water act of 1902. The property to be assessed is now owned by eight different companies, which are supplying London and some places in the immediate vicinity of the city. The present owners are to be paid such amounts as may be fixed by arbitrators appointed for that service under the act, but in some cases prices have been agreed upon between the board and the private companies. The board consists of sixty-six members appointed by the various councils, boroughs and organizations interested, and its complexion shows the varied and complicated nature of London's municipal government. The provisions for taking over the plant of the absorbed companies permit the borrowing of money on 80-year loans for the payment of existing companies, and on 60-year loans for other purposes. Power is also given to issue 3 per cent water stock, which may be used to pay any company willing to accept it. The board is required to maintain the existing rates of the private companies, and no reduction may be made if it is likely to cause a deficit. Among the special provisions regarding the purity of the supply is a clause requiring chemical and bacterial examinations.

The water supply has been one of London's most serious problems. Every dry season has brought complaints of scarcity, always from the poorer districts. The inconvenience and hardship, the distress and sickness that have resulted have been speedily forgotten with the return of an abundant or normal supply. It is expected that the change will result in a more reliable service, although there is little expectation of any material reduction of rates in the near future. The magnitude of the water service to be combined under a single management gives special interest to the experiment, which is sustained by the general conviction that the board will prove competent to discharge the duties devolving upon it.

W. H. Noyes, formerly of the Barnum Gazette, has re-entered the newspaper pusiness and is now the publisher of the Birchwood Press. Birchwood is a new town in the southeastern part of Washburn county, Wis., at the western end of Birch lake, a junction point of the Omaha and Soo roads. Mr. Noyes' many friends will wish him success in his new venture and that he may not be tempted to "break into" the Wisconsin legislature.

The Chamberlain protective tariff policy may carry the British Tory government down to defeat.

THE "THREE-R" LEARNING.

The regents of the Minnesota state university have adopted a new rule regarding admission to that institution, which will commend itself to every person who has deplored the tendency in the modern system of education to neglect the "three-R" learning in favor of "higher culture." A resolution passed by the regents declares that "from and after 1904 every person admitted to this university shall be examined in reading, writing, spelling and composing the English language; that all who fail to obtain a credit of 75 per cent shall be required to take instruction as provided; and that no person shall ever receive a diploma or other certificate of merit or proficiency until he shall have passed such an examination and obtained the specified credit."

This is an excellent rule, not only because it will result in the university graduates being better educated in those branches which are most useful in everyday business life, but because it will necessarily cause the preparatory schools to pay greater attention to reading, writing and spelling. Those who leave the high schools are generally very deficient in these respects, being poor spellers and worse writers, and as these subjects were not included in the examinations for admission to the state university, many also got through that institution without ever acquiring the ability to spell correctly or write legibly. The Herald believes that the regents should have made the new regulation even stricter, by absolutely refusing admission to those who fail to obtain a credit of 75 per cent in these essential branches of learning. The school boards throughout the state could accomplish much good along the same line if they would adopt rules that no pupils shall be permitted to graduate from the high schools unless they are able to obtain a credit of 75 per cent in examinations on reading, writing and spelling, and it might also be advisable to insist on at least a 50 per cent credit on composition, to which not enough attention is paid in the schools, as graduates discover to their sorrow when they enter business life and find themselves unable to compose a satisfactory business letter.

DIVIDEND DISBURSEMENTS.

The dividend and interest disbursements for June present several interesting features. They are smaller than for any month in a year and still, taken in connection with the low prices that are ruling in the stock market, show that securities may safely be put away in strong boxes and left there, certain that they will earn a good income. According to a compilation by the New York Commercial, the dividend and interest disbursements this month will amount to $17,144,788, as compared with $47,476,604 in June, 1902. The decrease is due entirely to the cut to 7 per cent in the Standard Oil dividend. Otherwise the total this month would be $50,069,788. The payments this month are the smallest for any similar period in a year, except those made in September, 1902, which amounted to $42,093,998. December came next with a total of $30,632,149 and May followed with $53,900,000. February is usually considered one of the poorest of dividend months, but last February the disbursements amounted to $65,039,985, or nearly $5,000,000 in excess of the corresponding month of 1901.

An interesting feature of the dividend record this month is the small number of large payments. The total of railroad dividends will be $6,610,047, but of this amount, the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe will distribute $3,040,000 and the New York, New Haven & Hartford, $1,003,708. The only company in the lighting and traction group which will pay more than $1,000,000 is Consolidated Gas, the dividends of which will be $1,458,342. In the strictly industrial list the total disbursements will amount to $17,756,494, but of this sum the Standard Oil and the United States Steel corporation will pay $11,909,952, $5,084,952 of which will be paid by the steel trust to holders of its common stock. The only other industrial company which pays $1,000,000 is the Calumet & Hecla Mining company. With this month's dividends, this company will have distributed since its organization $79,350,000 to stockholders. No corporation will pay $1,000,000 in interest on bonds.

POSTOFFICE RENTALS.

The rent scandal in connection with recent postoffice exposures and the stinging comment on the bureau having the matter in charge, has thoroughly aroused the general department to action and there will be a thorough examination of the leases of the postoffices throughout the country. The showing that excessive rentals were being paid all over New York state, amounting to large sums has incited the officials to activity and there is likely to be something doing along that line.

The leases of third-class postoffices, which constitute by far the largest number of the three presidential grades, number approximately 3500, and are limited in specific terms by law to a maximum of $400 a year, plus $60 a year for fuel. There is, however, no limit whatever governing the rentals of the first and second-class offices, and the amounts the government contracts to pay for rent of such offices are governed by local conditions, and, of course, vary considerably. All propositions for leases are investigated by inspectors, and assistant superintendents of the salary and allowance division. While approved by the first assistant postmaster general, the leases really are passed on by the head of the salary and allowance division.

The purpose of the investigation will be to ascertain whether there has been any favoritism or collusion in arranging leases or any excessive rentals paid. There has been a steady average increase in postoffice rentals as postal business has expanded, but there is as yet no official indication that abnormal rentals have been paid. No computation of any kind, however, has been made by the department along this line, and the inspectors have not yet taken hold of this phase of the case. When this task is begun it is probable that inspectors will be sent wherever the rentals appear to be abnormal. This work will not begin until investigations into other branches of the postal service which call for more immediate attention have been finished. When the work is begun it is to be hoped it will be thorough and if faults are found that they will be rectified and the guilty ones punished.

A St. Louis wholesale grocer, who had accumulated a fortune, sold his business and went to New York. He aspired to become richer and tempted fate in Wall street. Two weeks later he committed suicide, his fortune having vanished.

A New York woman placed her diamonds in her stocking and later they were found in the street. Can it be, asks the Buffalo Express, that openwork shoes also are coming into popularity in the metropolis?

Clerks working overtime in a New York bank unintentionally touched a burglar alarm and five policemen came to the place on a run. No burglar would have been so careless.

Of course the postoffice scandals cause the postmaster general much pain.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

"This may sound like a yarn," said Walter Vilas, who travels on the road out of Peoria, Ill., and who says he is going to be present at the meeting of the U. T. C. here next week.

"If you don't believe it, look at these white hairs. They turned that color on the ride, and I never pulled them out for fear there would be twice as many more, or twelve, grow in.

"This happened a year or so ago, so if the superintendent happened to hear of it now he couldnt fire anyone. It was on the run west of Davenport and way to Omaha. I was traveling to Omaha and had to lay over at Des Moines to see a party, and when I had finished, I took a stroll out on the street.

"I was just about going back to pack up, when I saw an old friend of mine I hadn't seen for years, and we hooked on to each other and started to talk old times. He was an engineer then, he said, and was running to Omaha, and would go out the next afternoon. He had just come in and was pretty tired. But that didn't cut any figure, as he had a lot to talk over, and we talked and wondered and sat around and walked, all night long and next morning, and I stayed over till he was going out.

"I told him I would ride out on the engine with him, and he thought that was fine.

"I checked my stuff through and walked up to the big machine and got into the cab. The fireman grinned when I came up and offered his seat to me, which I took. I was frightfully tired, and it was good to sit down alone and think after the two days and a night of wakefulness.

"Well, George said he was pretty sleepy, when he got up on his side and tested a few gauges and looked things over, and said if he had half a chance he would fall asleep.

"I sat there awake, until the rythmic pounding of the engine lulled me off to sleep. I awoke once with a little start. I blinked a little, and looked across the cabb. There was George asleep.

"He had one hand on the throttle, he snored loudly and his eyes were tightly closed. I thought I had better wake him up, but before I got around to it I reconsidered and thought sleep was a fine thing. We were tearing it off at the rate of fifty or sixty miles an hour bounding around curves, and the fireman watching everything and firing every few seconds.

"I went back to sleep, just as the dusk was closing in, and the last I remembered was seeing the fireman stagger from the lurch the engine made going around a curve.

"With the most awful feeling I have ever experienced in my life, I opened my eyes, in what seemed a second later. Everything was a jolt and a pull, as if the engineer had tried to stop her quick.

"I was sitting at the front of the seat, looking toward the front of the train. I didn't realize it for a second, but then I saw we were within 100 feet of a big, red headlight, coming right down on us, both engines lighting up the rails with horrible brightness.

"I was paralyzed with fear. I tried to stir; I tried to push my shoulders through the glass of the window. I couldn't do it. I thought of several things I had done, and wondered what made me foolish enough to ever get on the engine. It took about a second and a half to do this wondering.

"Then my faculties began working again. We were standing still, and the cheery voice of George said: 'Well, wake up old man, we're in Omaha.'

"I wept with joy, and was so limp and weak I could hardly stand up. The engine standing in front of us was on our tracks, just outside the station yards, and I awoke just as our train had stopped.

"I went to bed, but didn't sleep much, and the next morning, I discovered the gray hairs."

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

A Langford Woman Almost Entirely Consumed By Fire.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Langford—Mrs. John Slatengren, living four miles north of Langford, met a fearful deatth from burning. It is supposed she poured oil from a twogallon can on a fire in the kitchen range, and the can exploded, throwing the burning oil all about her. She escaped from the house, which was on fire and an artesian well drilling crew near at hand was engaged in putting out her burning clothing when she broke away and ran back into the flames under the hallucination that her four children were inside, when, as a matter of fact they were safe in the yard. The house burned and her remains were almost entirely consumed.

Centerville—The mill dam went out last night. The river, which had overflowed its banks, is now a shallow stream, only a few feet wide. Many small buildings in this vicinity were washed away and the rural mail service is meeting with much trouble.

Rev. George S. Evans occupied his pulpit for the first time since his sickness. He and his wife started for London, England, about July 1, for a three months' vacation.

Sioux Falls—Another hearing of the now celebrated case of Mrs. Jane E. Waldron vs. Black Tomahawk, involving the ownership of a valuable tract of land adjoining the Port Pierre townsite, is being held this week before Special Master Little, of Pierre. It is expected this will be the final hearing, and that the testimony secured can soon be submitted, and it is thought there will be about 200 pages more.

He was sent to the reform school from here when a boy for stealing.

HIS BIBLE READ

By Wolcott, Who Later Stole Some Valuables.

Cleveland, Ohio, June 5.—One of the strangest cases that ever came to the attention of Sheriff Barry is that of W. E. Wolcott, night clerk of the American house, who is charged with taking money and jewelry from the hotel safe.

Wolcott, because of his intelligence, excellent education and his gray hairs, was respected among the hotel people. Last Sunday he read his Bible in his room for a long time and went to the Old Stone church in the evening. When Wolcott left the hotel at 4 a. m. Monday he took only bills, gold and some jewelry, leaving silver and checks.

"I don't know why I did it," wailed the aged man in the county jail, tears coursing down his cheeks the while. "This is the first time a shadow of this kind has come over my life. I've handled financial interests worth millions, and never was there a breath of suspicion against me. I was in the service of several large corporations. At one time I traveled over Indiana and Ohio settling up an estate worth $2,000,000. My salary was $5000 a year. I accumulated $200,000 of my own, but, by making business errors, I lost all within a year, and then my wife and three children died."

The property recovered from Wolcott consisted of $612.27 in cash, a diamond stud, a gold watch and a seal ring.

PARENT FOILED.

Girl Elopes With the Man She Loves.

Chicago, June 5.—"Well, father, if you won't let me marry Harry, call him up and tell him that I am through with him," said Mary Schultz, of Joliet, after she had spent several hours trying to persuade her parent that she never could be happy without Harry Cowan.

Papa Schultz, delighted at the view which his daughter took of the case, went into the telephone booth in his hardware store and asked central to let him talk with the man who would be his son-in-law. The telephone booth formerly was a cashier's box, and the spring lock, which had duty several years ago, was still in working order. Miss Schultz slammed the door, the spring lock did its w- she fled with Harry, who was waiting a few blocks away. They came to Chicago and all might have been well if papa had not pursued them. Cowan was arrested, and he will have to answer to charges of abduction.

The girl is 19 years old, but her father is determined she shall not marry the young man she has selected.

FIGHT FOR FORTUNE

Half a Million Dollars Involved In the Legal Swirl.

New York, June 5.—In the prospective struggle for the large fortune left by the gambler and poolroom proprietor, Albert G. Burtis, it is certain already that there will be three contestants, and it is not unlikely there may be a fourth—all of them women.

Hearings before the Surrogate are now under way at Auburn, near where he died, with the view of probating the will under which Miss Eliazbeth C. Burgess is made Burtis' sole heir. But an earlier will has been produced, and it will be contended that the one favoring Miss Burgess to the exclusion of all others is not valid.

Of the trio of contestants already in the field, Miss Burgess is certainly not the least interesting. The fiancee and legatee of the late gambler is a girl just out of her girlhood, but talented, tall and beautiful.

It is only two years ago since she first met Burtis. It was said to have been a case of love at first sight on his part. At the second meeting he offered to defray the expenses of a thorough education, and soon afterward Miss Burgess entered a select school in Syracuse. It was announced that at the conclusion of her school course, which was to include several years abroad, she was to become the wife of Burtis.

The million or more which Burtis made by his control of poolrooms and in his various gambling houses was increased by a legacy of about $500,000 left to him by an uncle, Thomas Cowell, late of Akron, Ohio, who died leaving a fortune of more than $2,000,000.

Among the legatees under the will of Thomas Cowell was his daughter, Miss Elizabeth Cowell, who had been since early girlhood an inmate of the home of Mrs. Cary C. Burtis, Al's mother, where she came to be looked on as a daughter rather than a niece, and where she was a great favorite of her cousin and foster brother Al.

It is not thought strange that by a will in existence, but antedating the instrument offered for probate by Miss Burgess' attorney, John D. Teller, Burtis left his entire fortune to Elizabeth Cowell. Subsequent to the execution of this will, however, Miss Cowell married William Scott, of Auburn, and it is given as one of the reasons for change of feeling toward her and the revocation of the will by which she was to have been the sole beneficiary, that her choice of a husband was distasteful to her foster brother and that his late will in which his newer protege took the place of favorite, was in part intended as a rebuke for her matrimonial venture.

The interests of Mrs. Scott are in the hands of Underhill, Sterke & Seward, lawyers of Auburn, and all the circumstances surrounding and acts leading up to the execution of the will making Miss Burgess, an entire stranger to the whole Burtis family, sole beneficiary of Al Burtis' estate, are being thoroughly investigated.

To the credit of the dead and the living, no impropriety is hinted at in the love affairs of this girl, and the blase man who won her heart. Her influence over him was from the first elevating, and whatever the sins of omission and commission chargeable to the dead gambler, the closing months of his eventful life were redeemed by the unselfish love of this girl.

A Mrs. Robinson, common-law wife, who lived with Burtis for many years in this city, is also a contestant.

Burtis was legally married to still another woman, who is remembered by many of his old acquaintances in New York as a black-haired, black-eyed girl, who faithfully followed the varying fortunes of her gambler husband during the dark days that preceded his good fortune. It is contended that he divorced her and that she subsequently died.

That Burtis was afraid of her and carefully guarded his apartments against her day and night is well known. For years this woman was his Nemesis, and though he offered money in large sums to obtain her consent to a divorce, she refused to give him the relief he sought.

Al's older and sole brother, Edward C. Burtis, is a prominent and wealthy business man of Auburn, of high character. Between him and his brother there always had existed apparently much affectionate relations. It was a surprise to nearly everybody that he was not the principal beneficiary under the will. He is a successful brewer and wealthy.

That the contest will be notable is certain.

One of the members of the law firm who has been investigating the claim of Mrs. Robertson said:

"We are confident we will be able to establish her rights as the lawful widow of Burtis and her claim to share in his estate. For five years she has been an invalid from rheumatism. We expect to show that at the time Burtis executed the latter will in favor of Miss Burgess he was not capable of realizing his duty to a woman who had a wife's claim upon his consideration. We have had numerous volunteer witnesses, including a prominent official in the New York police department.

Judge Teller, attorney for Miss Burgess, said that Mrs. Robertson, even if she could establish her claim as Burtis' widow, could only obtain her dower right in the testator's real estate, which would make her share only about $100,000, the bulk of his fortune having been in personal property.

PHILLIPS,

MERRIAM TO BE HONORED

Banquet and Testimonial For the Retiring Census Director.

Washington, June 5.—Director of the Census William R. Merriam will formally present his resignation to President Roosevelt in person, on the arrival of the president in Washington next week.

Although Governor Merriam has been frequently alluded to during the past few months as "former director of census," he has not resigned in fact or form. He has continued to draw the salary and has been at his desk nearly every Saturday, although the greater portion of his time has been spent in New York, where he will soon take up his residence and act as first vice president of the International Credit company.

Governor Merriam last March gave notice that he would retire, but did not fix a date.

He simply notified the president of his intention. On the same day Merriam retires, which will be June 9, S. D. North will step in and take possession as director. On the evening of the 9th or 10th the heads of the different bureaus in the census office propose giving Governor Merriam a complimentary dinner. Merriam has made a good record and accomplished the work assigned by congress within the specified time. Quite a number of Minnesota employes in the census bureau who hope to be retained permanently are somewhat apprehensive lest they lose their positions under Director North. About 100 clerks will soon be discharged or transferred to some other departments.

Director Merriam will remain in Washington during the remaining days of his official career, and wind up the work of completing several reports before turning the department over to North.

WILL IS SUSTAINED.

Olympia, Wash., June 5.—The lower court has upheld the will of Abbey R. H. Stewart, founder of women's clubs in the Northwest. Mrs. Stewart, in January, 1902, left an estate of over $100,000, which was devised to Mary Lowe Dickensen, the New York temperance lecturer and authoress. The will was contested by Mrs. Stewart's brother, John G. Hunt, and other relatives living in Massachusetts.

POLICE IN CLOVER

Half-Witted Boy Gives Chance For a Pipe Dream.

They See In the Boy a Big Anarchist Conspiracy.

Denver, Col., June 5.—One of the most daring and deep laid of the many desperate plots which have been given birth in Denver is thought to have been frustrated when Boyd Irvine, who claims to come from Rocky Ford, was arrested for an attempt to blackmail Walter S. Cheesman for $10,000. Both the federal and city officers are at work on the case and it is believed that when their combined efforts cease a band of shrewd and desperate outlaws will land behind the bars.

From what can be learned so far the theory now being pursued is that young Irvine was not alone in the threat to blow up the twin hotels at Broadway and Seventeenth avenue. The young man's simplicity is said to be only feigned and that he is playing the part of a half-witted boy for a purpose. Moreover, the belief rests in official minds that in all probability a band of anarchists or a society of oathbound communists was behind the young man in his mad plot.

These conclusions have not been jumped at for want of a better explanation of the queer conduct of the youthful prisoner and the strange letters he sent to the capitalist. A modern process of deduction has been followed out by these men familiar with latter-day criminology and the result has been such as to bring out a genuine alarm.

When Boyd Irvine was first arrested he played the part of a feeble-minded, heavy-witted boy, and the police did not disturb the enactment. They fell right in harmony with the "silly boy" idea and gave it out that their prisoner did not have wit nor nerve enough to plan and execute so bold a project.

Meanwhile, the three letters he sent to Mr. Cheesman were being carefully digested. The first thing apparent was the futile effort of the writer to disguise his chirography and his mental caliber. The first letter, sent to Mr. Cheesman through the mail, showed between the lines that a cunning hand and mind had done the work. Parts of the letter were in a bold, back-hand style, but the writer lapsed occasionally into vertical and Specerian writing. It was also apparent that he was not so ignorant of the English language as he pretended to be, and it was a clever analytical mind which planned the way for Mr. Cheesman to convey the $10,000 to his correspondent. The wording of the letters was of a nature calculated to lead the casual observer to believe they were penned by a rambling, rattle-brained fellow, but the more convinced they became that a nimble wit had arranged the wording.

The very mildness of the diction was enough to start all sorts of suspicions in the mind of the person threatened, for it was hard to say whether a madman, a crank or an accomplished crook was the author. Suspicion grew by what it fed upon and as the doubts kept piling high the more uncertain the outcome grew.

Another point which particularly impressed the officers was that while Irvine had signed the letters as one of a secret band of desperadoes, he had endeavored to write them in the first person singular, whereas he could not keep from lapsing into the plural. Several times he had used the word "we" and then scratched it out, substituting the personal pronoun "I."

Having carefully unraveled the tangled skein of theatrical evidence up to this point, it next came to mind that a recent report from Trinidad had told of the presence of a strong but secret band of anarchists in that neighborhood. Naturally enough attention was then turned in that direction and it is now along that line that the officers of the law are working.

Another feature of the Irvine plot is that it was planned much after the same fashion as the Cudahy kidnaping in Omaha and this led some people to a belief that the "Pat" Crowe gang might have a hand in the scheme. All theories being worthy of consideration, this one was followed carefully for a while, but finally abandoned.

Irvine sent three letters to Mr. Cheesman. The first, giving explicit directions as to the amount of money to be paid the blackmailer and the place where it must be left, was sent through the mails. The second letter, a reminder, was thrown upon the lawn in front of Mr. Cheesman's residence. The third, a last warning not to fail with the money, was put into the door of Mr. Cheesman's office.

According to these letters, the writer had a mine of nitro glycerine planted under the twin hotels at Seventeenth avenue and Broadway, and any treachery on Mr. Cheesman's part, or failure to pay the money as directed, would result in the explosion of the mine.

The letters gave explicit directions as to the placing of the $10,000 in a hole under a stone beside a stump at the corner of Tenth and Lincoln avenues at 10 o'clock Friday night. Instead of placing the money there, Mr. Cheesman turned the letters over to Chief Armstrong. It was Detective Carr, instead of Mr. Cheesman, who walked from the Cheesman residence to the corner with a box. And the box contained scale weights instead of specie. And instead of having only the stars to gaze down upon him when he went to get the box of money, the blackmailer found himself gazing into the muzzles of the detectives' guns. He was quickly taken prisoner, and in half an hour had confessed an alleged plot to Chief Armstrong.

Helena, Mont., June 5.—Nimacle Guieau, a French-Canadian, swore to a complaint at Missoula yesterday, charging M. He became indebted to his employer. Later, Guieau says, Gabriel hitched him to a plow beside a mule and made him plow the livelong day. He was in bondage thus for two weeks before he managed to make his escape, he alleges.

ELECTION OF PRESIDENTS

By Convention to Conciliation Board Not Acceptable to Miners.

Indianapolis, June 5.—John Mitchell, president of the United Mine Workers, started for Chicago this morning to confer with Herman Justi, who represents the mine operators of Illinois, and T. J. Reynolds, who represents the miners of the Illinois district. The conference will be in regard to local wage scales in the Illinois district. In regard to the statement of the Pennsylvania coal operators that the three district presidents would be recognized on the board of conciliation if they were re-elected at the convention of miners, to be held at Pottsville, Secretary M. B. Wilson said today that such an arrangement would not be satisfactory to the miners, if it would establish a precedent, as the convention would cost the miners $15,000.

DEPUTY COLLECTOR IN JAIL.

Seattle, June 5.—A special to the Post-Intelligencer from Dawson says: W. J. Idleman, deputy collector of United States customs at the boundary of the Forty Mile river, is in jail at Eagle City charged with embezzlement. He was imprisoned by United States Commissioner Garc. His reported shortage is $40,000.

NECK WAS BROKEN.

Friends of Riley Believe He Was Murdered.

Livingston, Mont., June 5.—The body of Pat Riley, who was found Tuesday in the Yellowstone river, near Gray Cliff, has been brought to this city. An examinatoin shows that his neck was broken and that he received very serious injuries about the head.

It is the belief of those who have the case in hand that Riley was killed before being placed in the river. His neck appears to have been broken by a club, and the wounds upon the head are of such a character as to indicate that they were caused by an assailant with a club or some blunt instrument.

It is possible that the injuries may have been caused by a fall from the high bank into the river, but those familiar with the situation do not believe it probable.

At the time of Riley's disappearance he had about $30, but when found his pockets were empty. Riley's friends believe he was murdered and afterwards thrown in the river.

The officers are working on this supposition, and it is said have discovered a clue which may lead to the detection of the guilty person. It is said that Riley's whereabouts until a short time before he was placed in the river are known and that the man who accompanied him is being shadowed.

GLITTERING WEAPONS

Capture Pot In "Quiet" Game In Chicago.

Chicago, June 5.—"We hold the winning hand; put your mitts!"

Five poker players in W. L. Flynn's saloon at 256 Seminary avenue, threw down their cards at the command and gazed into the barrels of two big revolvers. Behind each weapon was a masked highwayman.

"Do we take the pot?" inquired one of them. "The man that thinks he can beat us'll play another game of poker."

"Oh, sure," said Flynn. "The house is yours. Take anything you want."

The hold-up occurred about 9 o'clock as Flynn and his four friends sat in a friendly game in the saloon. Before leaving, the robbers took $50 from the cash register and $130 and five watches from the players.

DANIEL RENOMINATED.

Richmond, Va., June 5.—United States Senator Daniel was today declared the nominee of the Democratic party as his own successor for the United States senate. He had no opposition under the party primary law, and the state chairman, J. Taylor Ellyson, today declared him the nominee. His name was the only one presented under the law.

Senator Daniel is now serving his third term in the senate.

WAGNITZ WAS MURDERED.

Missoula, Mont., June 5.—A coroner's jury sitting at Nixon returned a verdict to the effect that Paul Wagnitz, the county assessor, whose remains were found in the river yesterday, was murdered. His skull was crushed in. No water had entered his lungs, proving that he was dead when thrown into the water. There is no clue to the murderer.

HOLDS HUNTING RECORD.

Samuel Day who lived near the town of Wesley, and who for many years bore the distinction of being the champion bear slayer of Maine, died on Monday night, writes the Bangor correspondent of the New York World. He was born in Wesley 67 years ago.

As a hunter and trapper Mr. Day made a record. In his boyhood days bears were numerous around Wesley, and his love for hunting and trapping early led him to take up the trail. While still a youth he became expert as a bear slayer.

In 1865 he settled near the eastern side of Breakneck Bridge, on the old road leading from Bangor to Calais. The locality was an ideal one for a hunter. From the time that he went to live at Breakneck to the time of his death he killed 253 bears. A conservative estimate of the number he killed previous to setting at Breakneck would give him a grand total of 275 or 280, a number equal to the record of any two bear hunters living in Maine today.

At one time he killed seven in two days, and at another time 27 in five weeks. In the early days of his career his traps were of the "dead-fall" variety, and were built of logs in such a way that when the bear attempted to take the bait a heavy log would drop upon him, and being heavily weighed, it usually broke the animal's back or pinioned the head between the upper and lower logs in such a way as to cause death by strangulation. When steel traps came into use Mr. Day adopted them, but he saw where they might be improved. He devised a model of his own, which he had manufactured by a Calais blacksmith and which he afterward further improved. The Day trap has never been patented, although it is acknowledged to be superior to any other bear trap made.

In the flush times of the bear hunting industry Day had as many as 25 traps set at once, and he visited them all once a week or oftener. In spite of the many adventures he had with bears, Day was never seriously injured by one of the animals, and only once did a bear draw blood from him. That was when he caught a cub in a tall tree and put it into a bag, desiring to take it home alive. The cub gave him a vicious scratching, and was tugged after a struggle and taken out alive.

In recent years the old hunter had been a great sufferer from rheumatism, so that he could not make long journeys in the woods as in former times, and the removal of the bounty on bears also served to discourage him. He took up his traps, one by one, and retired.

NO CHANGE MADE

Annual Meeting of Duluth & Iron Range Is Held.

Old Officers Are All Given Compliment of Re-Election.

The annual meeting of the Duluth & Iron Range railroad was held this morning in the offices of the company at the Wolvin building and resulted in the selection of the present officers, throughout, to succeed themselves.

J. H. Chandler, of Chicago, a director of the road, was in the city and attended the meeting.

The meeting of the Minnesota Iron company was called to order at 3 o'clock this afternoon, and it is not expected that there will be any change in the officers of that company either.

The officers elected at the meeting of the railroad company were as follows: President, F. E. House; vice president, A. H. Viele; secretary, H. Johnson; treasurer, C. P. Coffin; assistant secretary and treasurer, Thomas Murray; directors, J. H. Chandler, E. H. Gary, N. P. Huist, T. F. Cole, Fred H. White.

The meeting was a formal affair, and a few improvements to be made on the road were talked of briefly. Some general expression on the trackage improvement was secured, but the operating department will take care of all that work.

Mr. House, who begins his third term under this election, received expressions of pleasure from the men at the head of the road, who complimented his management. He came here at the organization of the steel corporation from the Carnegie road, but is already strong in the admiration of the men in his departments.

A. H. Viele, who was chosen to succeed himself as vice president of the road, is the oldest employe or officer, in point of service of any of the men on either of the range roads. He has been with the road since 1882, twenty-one years, long enough to have attained his majority in the railroad business. Mr. Viele was with the road at the outset, under the Charlemagne Tower regime, and remained there ever since. There are other men who were in the service as long ago as that, but the continuousness of their services has been broken by leaving the road at times.

Fred H. White, who was chosen a director again, is probably next oldest in point of service in the range railroad business at Duluth. He is about a year younger than Mr. Viele, having taken his first position with the road when it was being extended from Two Harbors to Duluth in 1883.

H. Johnson, the secretary, has been at his post since 1888, and is fifteen years in the service of the road. The company has always made it a point for men to remain with it and see something ahead of them to strive for.

There will be no outside officers present at the meeting of the Minnesota Iron company this afternoon, and Mr. Cole will be re-elected president, Mr. Huist vice president and the other officers the same.

It was said that the meeting would be entirely a formal one and that new business would not be taken up to any extent.

THE COUNTY BOARD.

School, Road and Town Matters Coming Up.

The board of county commissioners is in session this afternoon, the various committee meetings having been held this morning. The board will have a large number of road and new school district petitions for the formation of new towns. It is likely that some attention will be paid to tax matters as the report of the committee on the Northern Pacific company's petition for tax abatement is expected to come before the board from the city assessor, to whom it was sent by resolution at the last meeting.

The taxpayers residing in the Midway school district will be given an opportunity to explain why the Solway residents should not be set off in a district of their own.

He Likes Duluth.

Abe Stein, of the Stein-Bloch Co., of New York, is in the city today, the guest of M. S. Burrows. Mr. Stein has not been in Duluth for many years, in fact not since Dr. Smith was the mayor of the city, but he has been watching it closely all along. He was impressed with Duluth from his first look at it, and was so confident of its becoming a big city that he purchased real estate here, which he still owns. He is much pleased over the appearance of the city, and his confidence has been given no set-back.

"AUNTIES."

They Belong to the Whole Neighborhood.

That dear old neighbor we knew as "Aunty," and who lived down the street was no relation, of course, except that her tender old heart made her "Aunty" to all the young people. And how she did love the young mothers! One who remembers her says: "We could always depend on 'Aunty' for good, sound advice. She was particularly well informed on food and what to use for certain troubles. After having taught in the public schools for years my health became bad and I suffered frequently from indigestion. After my marriage I had indigestion so badly it became chronic. Owing to my condition my little baby did not get proper nourishment and was a very delicate child. I had about decided to put her on artificial food altogether when the advice of dear old 'Aunty' put baby and I on the right road.

"She insisted upon my trying Grape-Nuts food, declaring that it would help me and give baby more nourishment, so to please her I did, trying it for breakfast. The result was so marked and so quick that I ate it for luncheon too, and I must say the change has been wonderful. I have good health now and baby is a strong, active child.

"My mother says that Grape-Nuts helps her more and keeps her more cheerful and happy than anything else she has ever taken. Truly pure scientific food has great power." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

The housekeeper who reads the little recipe book in each package of Grape-Nuts is usually famous for her clever desserts.

OBJECT TO PAVING

Lake Avenue Owners Raise Point as to Paving Cost.

Say Railroad Should Pay For Part of the Avenue.

Several property owners on Lake avenue object to paying an assessment for improving the thoroughfare between Superior street and the viaduct.

They claim that the grade up from Superior street is a part of the approach to the viaduct and under an old state law and a contract with the St. Paul and Duluth road, the Northern Pacific road is now responsible for that section of the street and must therefore pay for the improvement instead of having it assessed against the property.

They have also asked the city to start a mandamus suit to compel the railway company to make the improvement without cost to the property but the officers are not disposed to take much stock in the question that has been raised, for the reason that the street between Superior street and the viaduct is on an established grade made by the city engineer.

It is probable that the interested owners of property will take the matter into court, and, if their case be sustained it will mean delay in the paving of the avenue for at least eight months.

The question raised has resulted in one fortunate discovery for the city—that of the old contract between the city and St. Paul & Duluth road whereby the road agreed to build the Lake avenue viaduct if the city would maintain it.

It is now claimed that this old contract is invalid and that the maintenance of the viaduct will fall on the Northern Pacific Railway company.

There has been an urgent demand for a repaving of the viaduct, but the city has been putting off the improvement from time to time for lack of available money. Now it is held that the paving can be done at the expense of the railway company just as soon as the city can secure a judicial opinion on the old contract.

GET STATE LEASES

Eastern Parties Acquire Some Mining Property Near Hibbing.

Deposit Adjoins Buffalo & Susquehanna Mine—May Be Valuable.

Eastern parties will, some time this afternoon, fulfill the terms of their options on the state mining leases for the east one-half of the southeast one-quarter of section 6, 57-20.

The Eastern men, who are dealing through D. M. Philbin, assistant general superintendent of the Great Northern road, have held these options for several months, and have carried out the explorations which were started by the original leaseholders.

The holders of the state leases were A. Chisholm, Dr. Rood, of Hibbing, and J. C. Flynn. There was another one in the party of owners, but his name has not appeared in the transaction.

The names of the Eastern capitalists going into the property is not made public at this time either, simply because of the desire of interested persons not to be mentioned in connection with it.

The property under the lease is south of the railroad tracks, just southeast of the city of Hibbing. It has not been thought a valuable property, though the Buffalo and Susquehana mine is situated just west of it.

The first explorers, the original leaseholders, proved up about 1,500,000 tons of merchantable ore of the soft variety, and then the Eastern party secured options on the property and continued the explorations. They developed the fact that there was as much more in sight, and it is understood that the explorations will be continued further.

It is entirely unlikely that the mine will be a shipper this year, though the Great Northern will probably hurry, and is arranging for transportation facilities into the mine.

EMPLOYES TO CONFER

With Hotel Men Before Going Out on Strike.

Chicago, June 5.—With two hotels and twelve restaurants and lunchrooms already tied up as the result of labor troubles, cooks and waiters endeavored to spread the strike today by calling out the helpers in three leading hostelries of the city. Union delegates visited the Auditorium hotel, the Auditorium annex, and the Palmer house restaurants, but walkouts at these places were temporarily averted at least by an agreement for a conference to talk over the situation. The meeting was arranged for 1 o'clock and the decision of the labor representatives to receive a committee of proprietors from the leading hotels and restaurants came as the result of the attitude of powerful men in labor circles who were opposed to the action of the employes in refusing to open negotiations.

SIR ROLAND'S EXPERIENCE

By Wilson M. Matthews.

(Copyright, 1903, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

When Sir Roland Chesterton announced his engagement to Camille Rodays, a popular French actress, English society was horrified, while the French elite merely shrugged their shoulders and said: "Ah Dieu!" Then the reported engagement was declared false and again Dame Rumor circulated the announcement as a positive fact this time.

Sir Roland, having just reached his majority, was a handsome, reckless, dare-devil sort of a fellow, with an income of £20,000 sterling a year. One day at the club, when in one of his reckless moods, he publicly announced the engagement. As a matter of fact it caused a great row in the young baronet's family. Lady Chesterton, the mother of Sir Roland, and the handsomest and haughtiest woman in all England, became hysterical when a "dear" friend told her the news. She actually took the boy in her arms and in affectionate and endearing terms entreated him to renounce this foolish love. The Ladies Blanche and Eleanor, his elder sisters, went on their knees to him; his cousin, who came next in succession to the title and estates, asked him to abdicate; his fellow clubmen simply laughed at him; but Sir Roland remained obdurate—for a little while.

Then very unexpectedly came the announcement that the "marriage" was indefinitely postponed, and Sir Roland suddenly determined to make a tour of the continent. He was gone almost a year when one morning he returned as suddenly as he had departed. He was received with open arms by all members of the baronetcy, for they were thoroughly convinced that his infatuation for pretty Camille was gone.

It was shortly before midnight one evening, as Sir Roland was preparing to leave the club, that a letter was handed to him by a messenger boy. The handwriting on the back of the envelope caused him to turn deathly pale, and with trembling fingers he broke the seal.

"My dear Roland," it ran. "Come to me as soon as you get this. I have but a little while to live, the doctor told me yesterday. My long sickness has made me horribly ugly, but I am starved for just one smile from you. I am always at home and can see you any time."

The next day at two o'clock he went to see her and was horrified at her changed appearance. Her cheeks, once oval and tinted with delicate pink, were now sunken and colorless; great, ark rings encircled her eyes, and deep, heavy lines that told of long suffering marred the face that was once famous for its beauty. The eyes retained much of their former brilliancy, the lips were still fresh and pink, and the glorious locks of hair, as they lay in tangled disorder on the white pillows, were still beautiful as when first he met her. The room, with the curtains all drawn, and the medicine bottles arranged in profusion about her, Camille seemed really about to enter the portals of death. Sir Roland remained but a short while in the sick room and as he turned to go he met a large, brusque woman in the doorway wearing the garb of a nurse, and who treated him in a surly fashion when he inquired after the patient. "The illness is her affair, not yours!" she said, brushing past him. The next day Sir Roland again visited the sick room and found Camille a trifle better, her eyes flashed with the old brilliancy and in every way her manner was quite like the Camille of former days. Sir Roland passed a most congenial hour in her company until the nurse came and in the same brusque fashion dismissed him from the room. When he reached the stairway a bell rang in the lower hall.

"I knew the doctor would come and find you here!" cried the nurse, shaking her fist in Sir Roland's face. The next instant a fine, portly-looking man entered the hallway. When the nurse went upstairs to inform Camille of the doctor's arrival Sir Roland seized the opportunity to make inquiries.

"Is Mademoiselle Camille dangerously ill? Or do you think she will recover?

"I presume you are a near friend of mademoiselle's?"

"Yes—yes, of course!"

"Then I would say mademoiselle is quite ill. I have done everything for her that medical science can do, but—" he hesitated.

"Is her illness so serious that you have given up all hope?"

"Practically. You see it is what people call 'heart break.' A wealthy baronet, who came of a very aristocratic family, left her suddenly. At first she succeeded in hiding her sorrow, but it proved too much for her strength, and as a consequence she collapsed.

"When she was able to sit up she insisted on having a window open, and in an hour afterward was taken with a hard chill, then came a hacking cough, which affected her lungs—that is all; it is simply a question of time."

"There must be something you can do for her to save her from death, medical science is so advanced nowadays. If it is simply a matter of money—"

"No, no, no! Money, science or nothing else can save her. She tried change of climate, she consulted the most eminent specialists, and at last she asked that she might come home to spend the few remaining weeks of her life."

"Doctor, mademoiselle is ready to receive you," said the nurse, appearing at the door.

A week after Sir Roland went again to see Camille, but was refused admission to her apartments. "Mademoiselle is much worse. Lord Chesterton, and she has changed dreadfully; she absolutely refused to see anyone.

"Then it would not make her happy now—she would not care to—"

"To what, my lord?"

"To marry me."

"I fear—but wait; here comes the doctor now."

Sir Roland took the doctor to one side and unfolded his plan, although the doctor warned him that Camille could live but a few hours; then, deliberately, pushing the nurse to one side, he entered Camille's room, and was horrified at the change in her condition, her lips were white as death, her face was ghastly like that of a corpse, and the light from the green shaded lamp made the room look weird and strange. Had he been a closer observer he would have noticed a mocking smile playing about her mouth as he told her of a certain thing he intended to do. But, as a most natural consequence, he saw nothing. Returning two days later, clothed with all the necessary authority of the law, Camille Rodays became Lady Chesterton, the nurse and the doctor acting as witnesses to the ceremony. After the ceremony was over, Sir Roland bent over the bed and, taking the new Lady Chesterton in his arms, kissed her colorless lips, despite her efforts to struggle away from him. The next instant the nurse was ordering him out of the house, declaring that the excitement brought on by the hasty marriage would be the death of the girl.

Sir Roland walked rapidly down the narrow little street with a very serious expression on his handsome young face. He was sloth glad and sorry; he was thoroughly convinced that he had done the right thing by Camille. He at least had kept his word, but the family—what would they say? Then the thought came to him that probably Camille would die in a week or so; before his chivalrous act became known; and the very next moment the thought of Camille dying set his heart to beating wildly. After he had walked some distance he took a cigar from an inner pocket, bit off the end and was going to light it when he felt a sticky substance on his lips. Impulsively, he drew his hand across his mouth, then looked at his fingers, and saw they were smeared with a cosmetic.

"Could it be?" he asked himself, then he remembered how round and plump Camille's hand was when he placed the ring on her finger. Turning back, he walked rapidly, his heart filled with doubt and misgiving. As he again approached the pretty little villa he turned hastily down a side street that led directly past the garden. Reaching the gate, he lifted the latch and entered, with the same rapid strides he walked up the graveled pathway; upon reaching the house he entered unannounced.

In the garden room, seated about a table, was a merry company; Camille, in the best of health and bewitchingly beautiful, sat at the head of the table arrayed in a costly gown; one one side sat the fake nurse, and on the other the "doctor" in whom Sir Roland recognized a young variety actor that had lately become popular; some chorus girls and a few amateurs completed the company. "How strange that I should not have been asked to this feast," he said, entering the room very quietly.

The "doctor" made an effort to reply, the "nurse" covered her face with her hands, the chorus girls sat mute and dumb with terror, but Camille, calm and collected, rose and went to him.

"Roland, I know it was wrong, but it is no more than you deserve. I will admit it was all a trick, but the law can't annul the marriage on that account," and her voice grew tender and pleading. "I never meant you to know how I had deceived you. You will forgive me—you will— Roland!" She held out her beautiful arms to him, and for a moment he hesitated, then almost fiercely he took her in his arms and showered her face with kisses.

A fortnight later London was startled by the announcement that Sir Roland Chesterton had abdicated in favor of his cousin, Sir Charles.

PYTHIANS MEET

Their Convention Will Be Held In Duluth June 9.

Members Coming From Lake and St. Louis County Lodges.

The Knights of Pythias of the district composed of the lodges of Duluth, Two Harbors, Proctorknott, Cloquet, New Duluth, Biwabik, Eveleth, Hibbing and Grand Rapids, will hold their convention at the Castle hall of North Star lodge, No. 25, at 118 West Superior street, on Tuesday, June 9. Harbor lodge, No. 88, of Two Harbors, with its uniform rank company and band will come on a special train.

The afternoon session will be open to the public, at which time a welcome will be extended to the visiting knights and their families.

At the evening session the rank of knight will be conferred on a class of esquires, after which ceremony, the banquet and social session will bring the convention to a close.

Minnesota is divided into twenty-two Pythian districts, in which conventions are being held. The order of Knights of Pythias has made great progress during recent years, and is now universally recognized as one of the most progressive of fraternal orders.

Its uniform rank which is claimed to be the strongest and best drilled body of men in the United States, aside from the regular army, particularly attracts young men to the order.

While the object of the order is the spreading of the gospel of brotherly love and friendship, patriotism and all that goes to make men good citizens, rather than providing life insurance, the endowment rank furnishes insurance to those of the members who desire it. The local knights are making preparations to properly entertain the large number of visitors who will attend the convention on June 9.

AT WEST DULUTH

The West Duluth and Big Duluth teams will come together for a second time this season at the grounds of the West Duluth club, at the head of Fifty-second avenue, Sunday afternoon, at 3:30 o'clock.

In the first game the West Duluth team was defeated, and the boys have been looking for another game for some time past, in hopes of retrieving themselves. A hard practice was held yesterday afternoon, and the men will be in the best of shape for the game. Since they met the Big Duluth nine the team has improved greatly and has been strengthened by the addition of several new players. A close contest is expected.

Brotherton will not be able to play Sunday, having but recently recovered from an attack of pneumonia, but otherwise the personnel of the team will be about the same as in the last few games. The line-up will be as follows: Pitcher, Young; catcher, T. Robinson; first base, Coughlin; second base, E. Robinson; short stop, F. Robinson; third base, Williams; outfielders, Faublister, Carey and Johnson.

Fred Robinson, who is expected to play short stop, is of the same family as the other two brothers who have been playing on the team. He comes from Iowa, where he has played with several fast amateur teams, and is reported to be an exceedingly speedy infielder.

COMMERCIAL CLUB.

Matter of Tax Abatements Will Be Taken Up.

The West Duluth Commercial club will meet this evening. It is expected that the subject of tax abatements will be taken up by the members and some action taken. The committee, which was instructed at the last meeting to consult with the county auditor, will probably be prepared to report. The members express keen disappointment that their endeavorse should have met with no success. They believed that a distinct understanding had been reached with the state auditor by which the abatements should be allowed in part, at least, and the turning down of the compromise by the county auditor was a great surprise and disappointment to them. It is felt that without this tax abatement, by which considerable property would be put on the active tax list, plans for sewer extensions will be much more difficult to carry out.

MUST BE SOLD AT ONCE.

At a great sacrifice, a 12-roomed house, with modern conveniences; will pay 15 per cent as investment. Call and investigate without delay. J. A. Scott.

A 2 or 3-year-old child came near meeting death last evening while playing on the corner of Sixteenth avenue west. A westbound car had slacked up, awaiting the eastbound Superior car. The child had just crossed the tracks, but being frightened by a dog suddenly turned and ran back in front of the oncoming car. Had it not been for the quick thought and action of Miss Lottie Robinson, a young lady of West Duluth, who threw herself in front of the car to rescue the little one, the accident would have proved fatal.

A young lad named George Swanson caused no little excitement on the bay front yesterday by falling into the water. He was rescued with difficulty by some men on the shore who witnessed the accident. He lost no time in getting home after being pulled out, and seemed none the worse for his ducking.

The final arrangements have been completed for the banquet of the Irving alumni this evening. The banquet will commence at 8 o'clock.

Railroad Men About to Go There on a Junket.

More Than Twenty Are Expected to Take the Trip.

The junket of Duluth-Superior passenger and railroad men of the Northwest to the copper country will start this evening at 6.45 o'clock, when a party of twenty or more will board the South Shore train for Calumet.

General Passenger Agent G. W. Hibbard, at whose invitation the trip is made, will welcome the western railroad men to his native haunts, and by the time the party reaches Hancock and Houghton it will be in the hands of the delegations of citizens, who will conduct the members to points of interest in that locality.

The men who will make up the party from Duluth, include railroad men of prominence. The following are the guests:

George H. Shaw, traffic manager Canadian Northern, Winnipeg.

George H. McRae, assistant general passenger agent of the Omaha, St. Paul.

F. B. Cudworth, chief clerk general passenger department, of Great Northern, St. Paul.

Thomas H. Larke, northwestern passenger agent Dominion line, St. Paul.

C. L. Kennedy, commercial agent, Milwaukee road; T. E. Blanche, general agent Northern Pacific; L. D. Kitchell, northern passenger agent, Great Northern; J. L. Thomas, local freight agent, Northern Pacific; Martin Adson, general agent, South Shore, all of Duluth.

F. L. Bacon, general agent, Omaha road; J. D. Morrissey, local freight agent, South Shore road; F. C. Buckley, depot ticket agent; A. J. Perrin, city passenger agent, Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic, all of West Superior.

The party will have a Pullman car on the night train out of Duluth, and will arrive at Calumet for breakfast. From Calumet the party will move to Lake Linden, where luncheon will be served, and from Lake Linden they will go to Hancock, and from there to Houghton, where dinner will be served. The train returning will leave Houghton at 10:30 o'clock tomorrow night and arrive here at 8:30 o'clock in the morning.

Residents of the cities to be visited will be present to welcome the representatives of the Western roads, and the Calumet and Hecla mine and the smelters and other industrial works will be shown the visitors.

The trip has been arranged so that there will be no time hanging heavy, and the party will move with extreme regularity and at every move meet something of interest. Mr. Hibbard has fixed the itinerary so that it will cover in daylight the most desirable points to see, and he will be on hand himself to superintend things and act as host.

The party will be in charge of Mr. Adson to and from Duluth.

Charles S. Fee, general passenger agent of the Northern Pacific road, was in town today, but he could not arrange things to permit him to accompany the party.

The state railroad and warehouse commission will not hold its meeting June 10, as announced, to hear the arguments upon the complaint of the rates on coal and lumber in the state.

The commission a day or two ago announced it would give the railroads eight days more in which to file statements, and arguments will be made after the filing of the statements. The reason for the delay was that the railroads were unable to get their case into shape by June 10.

It has been announced that the commission would hold its session at Duluth June 10, for the purpose of continuing the hearing of this case, which is known as the Litchfield case, but the meeting here will probably be delayed with the postponement of the hearing, and continued until Thursday, June 18.

TEXTILE MILLS ARE RESUMING

Some Strikers Return; Some Mills Grant Their Demands.

Philadelphia, June 5.—Three textile mills in the Manayunk district resumed operations today. The strikers in that section are for the most part unorganized, and the threat of the manufacturers to keep their mills closed indefinitely is said to have caused the striking operatives to lose heart. Two hundred employes of the Phoenix knitting mill, principally women and girls, returned to their looms today.

Nine dye houses have granted the demands of the operatives, making seventy-eight firms who have made concessions.

The ranks of the strikers in the Kensington district, where the majority of the textile mills are located, are said by the leaders to be intact. Two mass meetings attended by about 9000 strikers were held today.

SHOT BY BURGLARS.

Lexington, Ky., June 5. William Boston, aged 22, one of the most prominent young men in this country, was found dead in the yard of his home, five miles from this city this morning, with a bullet hole in his forehead. The presumption is that he was shot by burglars. Bloodhounds will be used to track the murderer.

KYLE FEARED EXPOSURE.

Vancouver, B. C., June 5.—The certainty of exposure of his misappropriation of funds is supposed to be the cause of the suicide by poison of William Kyle. He was employed by the British Columbia Transfer company as assistant bookkeeper. Kyle is said to have confessed his wrong-doing to his employers.

Milwaukee, Wis., and Return $15.00.

On June 11, 12 and 13 the C., St. P., M. O. railway will sell excursion tickets to Milwaukee at one and one-third fare for the round trip. Tickets good for return June 15. City ticket office, 405 West Superior street.

MASONS TO MEET

Duluth District Lodges Are to Hold Their Annual Reunion.

Nine Lodges Will Meet In Duluth on Friday, June 19.

Masons from the nine lodges of the third Minnesota district will gather in Duluth on the afternoon and evening of Friday, June 19, for their annual reunion.

District Deputy Grand Master S. L. Frazer, who is arranging the reunion, has sent out invitations to all of the outside lodges, asking them to be the guests of the three Duluth lodges on this occasion.

The nine lodges include two in Duluth, one in West Duluth, and one each in Cloquet, Grand Rapids, Hibbing, Eveleth, Tower and Two Harbors. The Hibbing lodge was instituted May 28 by District Deputy Grand Master Frazer.

Word has been received from Grand Master Henry Adams of Minneapolis that he will be present, and it is expected that a number of other members of the grand lodge will be in the city.

In the afternoon there will be a lodge of instruction, conducted by Right Worshipful Brother W. B. Patton, one of the conservators of the work in this state. This will give the lodges a chance to brush up in their work, which is one of the objects of the reunion.

In the evening the three Duluth lodges will work the third degree upon a class. This will be followed by a banquet, at which there will be a number of excellent speakers.

The Cloquet lodge has arranged to have a special train to bring them down for the reunion.

Glen Falls, N. Y., June 5.—Reports today from North Creek region state that the fire fighters are holding the flames back. At Newcombe they probably will be able to keep the fire out of the Prospect reserve. Nearly 3000 men are at work fighting the fire in the Hudson river watershed.

DANGER AT PANAMA

Maj. Black May Report That It Is Death Ditch.

Great Perils That Confront Workmen From United States.

Washington, June 5.—Will Maj. W. M. Black, corps of engineers of the army, now investigating health conditions along the proposed Panama canal route, report that it will take a year and millions of dollars to put the territory in a safe condition? Or will he report that it is impossible for science to overcome the conditions of climate so that the sending of American workmen there will be anything less than a crime?

The answer is keenly awaited by government officials, who are becoming more and more appalled as the conditions in Panama are studied. That his report will at least show the necessity of tremendous undertaking before any degree of sanitary safety can be obtained now seems assured.

Maj. Black has been long enough in the country to learn that the natives of Colombia care almost nothing for sanitary laws. Whatever is done must be done by Americans alone, and that clause in the treaty providing for joint sanitary control must be ignored before any results can be obtained. A clash of authority is bound to come at the outset, because one of the first necessities will be the destruction of many old frame buildings.

Grave doubts are felt in Washington as to whether this government can create health conditions any more satisfactory than those established by the French, who found an unexpectedly bad health situation. Even after spending large sums, both by way of prevention and cure, the Panama route is still known in France as "the death ditch."

The true history of the death rate in Panama during the French operations has never been written, and, to make a more thorough investigation of this question is one of the objects of Maj. Black's stay on the isthmus.

It is now thought within the bounds of likelihood that Maj. Black's report to the president will be of such character that this government will welcome any means, like amendment of the treaty by Colombia, for instance, to enable it to call a halt.

Attention has again been called to Dr. Wilfred Nelson's book, "Five Years in Panama," so often quoted by Senator Morgan, who regards Dr. Nelson as an eminent authority on health conditions in Panama, because he has made on the isthmus a personal study of the question. Speaking of the type of yellow fever prevalent in Panama, Dr. Nelson says:

"The yellow fever of the isthmus of Panama is a peculiarly malignant disease. I can recall forty-one admissions to the charity hospital in a few weeks following my arrival on the isthmus. Not a single man escaped. Funeral trains at Mount Hope are as much an institution as passenger or goods trains.

"Since the advents of De Lesseps' canal men, on the 28th day of February, 1881, thousands upon thousands have been buried there. During two seasons of epidemic it is said that the burials averaged from thirty to forty per day, and that for weeks together."

As illustrating the native idea of sanitary regulations, Dr. Nelson says: "The natives in Panama after death throw away cots, mattresses, pillows and often the eating utensils of the 'late departed.' As many on the isthmus, both native and foreign, die of yellow fever and smallpox, this practice means simply a constant perpetuation of the infectious and contagious diseases named.

"The authorities never do more than publish an item on reform in La Cronista or La Estrella de Panama. This is deemed ample, as it gives the people something to think about, and yet these authorities fondly fancy that they are the sanitarians of the century.

"I remember an old well near the gasworks, one of those huge stone wells which the Spaniards were so fond of building. That well had been filled in with just such bedding, and at last it coned up above it.

"In a country like that, where all is perpetual summer, the average temperature being about 80 and the average humidity nearly as great, vegetation is of very rapid growth, and, apropos of humidity, there are places on the upper levels of the isthmus where it nightly is 100 degrees, the point of saturation.

"But these conditions make vegetable decompostion as rapid as the growth. The result of the whole is the creation of an intense miasmatic poison. People living on the isthmus are all malarious, either in one form or the other, and it is impossible to avoid this.

"It is true that a few escape malaria while resident there, but they no sooner get into temperate climates than it develops. The sallow faces of a great many tell of paludal poison.

"My friend, Dr. L. Girerd, late chief surgeon of the canal company, instituted a series of most interesting experiments. He examined the blood of newcomers—canal men—and found it in a perfectly normal condition. At the end of a month he examined it again, when he invariably found the malarial bacillus.

"There is another factor that has a bearing on this subject of malaria on the isthmus. It is the admixture of salt and fresh water in the lagoons and rivers, in addition to the vegetable decomposition already referred to. This admixture of water is considered to be of great importance in creating intense forms of malarial poison, particularly on tidal coasts like that of the Pacific."

STARTLING EVIDENCE.

Fresh testimony in great quantity is constantly coming in, declaring Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, coughs and colds to be unequaled, recent expression from T. J. McFarland, Bertorville, Va., serves as example. He writes: "I had bronchitis for three years and doctored all the times without being benefited. Then I began taking Dr. King's New Discovery, and a few bottles wholly cured me." Equally effective in curing all lung and throat troubles, consumption, pneumonia and grip. LOVE FOR FINERY

Caused Girl Chums to Become Shoplifters.

Philadelphia, June 5.—Their fondness for finery and gayety led to the undoing of Isabella Brinkley and May Hassenplug, who were arraigned in th ecentral police court on the charge of shoplifting. It is the second time that they have been arrested, but on the first occasion they were released on their promise to reform.

Both girls come from respectable families and are well known in Wissahickon, and Manayunk. Until a year ago Isabella Brinkley taught a Sunday school class in a church at Wissahickon. She graduated from the girls' high school and afterward attended Temple college. She is about 20 years old and her parents, it is said, live on Cresson street. May Hassenplug's parents are now residents of Mifflinburg, Pa.

The two girls, who have been mutual friends since graduating from school, have been living recently at 320 North Broad street, where they occupied adjoining apartments. They were together when arrested on Thursday afternoon in a Market street department store.

A stylish shirt waist displayed on one of the counters was their temptation, and after being taken to the city hall one of them confessed that the black skirt which she was wearing had also been stolen. The girls, crying, then told of their previous trouble and admitted having a number of stolen dresses and other goods at their home. Accompanied by Detective Edward Gallagher and Special Officer Davis of the department store, the girls went to the house and surrendered the goods, all of which were the latest style and best quality.

ADAMLESS EDEN EVELESS TOO

John Olson's Search For the Mythical Pacific Isle.

Alameda, Cal., June 5.—After his vision of an "Adamless Eden," where he and his fellow colonists were to found a new republic in the South Seas, John Olson of this city has returned from extensive travels with the first authentic account of the sufferings of the party of adventurers who left this port on the schooner Percy Edwards some years ago, with expectations of fortune which were dismally shattered.

At the time wide publicity was given the colonization scheme, 45 colonists, including some from Oakland and Alameda, started out to find a wonderful island described as overrun with South Sea maidens and where there were no men. Fragmentary news was received later of the disruption of the expedition, but Olson is the first of the voyagers to return with particulars of he "Forest of Doom," where the remnant of the settlers finally lodged.

Olson says that some of the party deserted at the island of Lavoca, in the Fiji group, to work a German plantation on shares, and about twenty others were led into a plantation scheme on Suva, where the British governor general gave a grant of land for a banana plantation, with the stipulation that the fruit raised was to be sold there for 16 cents a bunch. While attempting to sail to New Zealand the vessel was disabled in a storm and the rest of the party put into New Caledonia, where the schooner was sold. It was on this island that Olson and twenty companions found the climax of their fortunes.

"The governor of New Caledonia gave us an audience after we had seen the American consul," said Olson, "and after we had stated our object he agreed to give us a grant of land comprising 600 hectors, or about 1800 acres, to establish our colony in the northern part of the island. We were taken with our supplies on a steamer to the mouth of a river and supplied with two government scows, kanaakas and horses to tow us about fifty miles. When we reached the place we found the banks of the streams so heavily wooded that we had to cut our way through the lands, the Poradenuns, but we came to know it as the Forest of Doom." The party, Olson says was dumped in a swamp country swarming with mosquitoes.

The colonists built a rude house and planted vegetables in the clearings, but when the rains and floods came all their crops were swept away. They had elected an American mining man as president of the colony, who had a dream which the distrait colonists took as an omen. He related that in his dream an "unseen power was directing him to communicate with the governor of New Caledonia, asking him to change the colony to some other part of the island where there were no mosquitoes."

So fierce were the winged pests that even the Kanakas avoided the region given to the Americans to farm. Bunches of the men began to desert, and one day Olson found one of his companions hacking into the trunk of a tree in the woods. The man told him he was making a dugout canoe to get away form the "Forest of Doom." Olson helped him to make two canoes, which were covered with a platform like a catamaran, and after getting their division of the remaining supplies they floated down the stream. Olson succeeded in working his way to Sydney, went from there to London and finally drifted to this city.

NINE PERSONS WERE KILLED

In a Head End Collision at Stillwell, Kans.

Topeka, Kas., June 5.—Nine persons were killed yesterday at Stillwell, Kas., in a head-end collision between Santa Fe passenger trains, which were running at high speed on Missouri Pacific tracks on account of the flood. The dead:

CARLOS M. TAMPARDO, aged 21, a Porto Rican student at the Kansas state university.
PULLMAN CONDUCTOR THOMPSON.
E. W. WARD, address unknown.
FRANK HOOVER, Steubenville, O.
JOHN MONNIHAN, Prescott, Ariz.
C. A. KNISKERN, Monett, Mo.
LINK DAY, Los Angeles, Cal.
WILIAM NEWMILLER, Plainfield, N. J.
UNIDENTIFIED MAN.

John Green, Indianapolis; left leg fractured and scalp wounds. Edward McCann, Salvation army, back strained. Andrew Dunlap, Topeka, Kas., engineer, burised.

Orders were somewhat mixed, it is said, on account of the strange tracks. Since the flood destroyed or disabled the Santa Fe trains on its main line trains have been running over the tracks of the Missouri Pacific roads.

News of the wreck was delayed on account of the poor wires left by the rains and the flood. A relief train went to Stillwell as soon as possible.

HORRIBLE MASSACRE

Inhabitants of Smerdash All Killed By Bashi Bazouks.

Monastir, European Turkey, Sunday, May 1.—Horribly details are arriving here of the slaughter of the inhabitants of the village of Smerdash, south of Lake Presba, May 21, by Bashi Bazouks. It appears that one the arrival of the Bashi Bazouks, Schakalaroffs' band of insurgents withdrew to the mountains without sustaining any loss. As no rebels were left in the village the inhabitants experienced no anxiety until, suddenly, at sunset, the Turks, who had completely surrounded the place, commenced a regular bombardment, whereupon all the villagers assemhbled in the streets. Though the artillery ceased firing during part of the night, the Turkish infantry fired all night long.

The artillery bombardment was resumed at daybreak, but as it was ineffective the Turks set fire to the village on all sides and commenced a general massacre, slaughtering women, children and the aged. About 300 houses were burned and upward of 200 persons, mostly women and children, were killed. The women and girls were murdered while resisting outrage. Whole households were slain. One family of seven were slain and their bodies were heaped on the hearth. Not a living soul was left in the village. The survivors, many of them having been burned or otherwise injured, were captured and had their ears and noses cut off before they were butchered. The report adds that 1500 villagers were in the mountains, without clothing or food. One band of these, consisting of forty women and children, were caught by soldiers in a ravine and were killed after horrible treatment.

NEGRO LYNCHED.

Brute Hanged In Presence of Many Women.

Greenville, Miss., June 5.—John Dennis, a negro, was lynched yesterday afternoon by a mob of 200 men. The negro has attempted a criminal assault upon a well known young woman Tuesday night. He was arrested and placed in jail. Yesterday afternoon when the streets were crowded by women shoppers, a body of 200 men went to the jail and demanded admittance. This was refused and the mob battered the door of the prison. Dennis was taken to the telephone exchange and hanged on the cross arm of a telephone pole. Many women witnessed the lynching.

STUDIES IN ACTS

PAUL'S VOYAGE AND SHIPWRECK

International Sunday School Lesson For June 7, 1903.

Acts 27:33-44. "And while the day was coming on, Paul besought them all to take food, saying, This day is the fourteenth day that ye wait, and continue fasting, having taken nothing. Wherefore I beseech you to take some food: for this is for your safety, for there shall not a hair perish from the head of any of you. And when he had said this, and had taken bread, he gave thanks to God in the presence of all; and he brake it, and began to eat. Then were they all of good cheer, and themselves also took food. And we were in all in the ship two hundred three-score and sixteen souls. And when they had eaten enough they lightened the ship, throwing out the wheat into the sea. And when it was day, they knew not the land: but they perceived a certain bay with a beach, and they took counsel whether they could drive the ship upon it. And casting off the anchors, they left them in the sea, at the same time loosing the bands of the rudders, and hoisting up the foresail to the wind, they made for the beach. But lighting upon a place where two seas met, they ran the vessel aground, and the foreship struck and remained unmoveable, but the stern began to break up by the violence of the waves. And the soldiers' counsel was to kill the prisoners, lest any of them should swim out, and escape. But the centurion, desiring to save Paul, stayed them from their purpose, and commanded that they which could swim should cast themselves overboard, and get first to the land, and the rest, some on planks, and some on other things from the ship. And so it came to pass that they all escaped safe to the land."

Golden Text: "Then they cry unto the Lord in their trouble, and he bringeth them out of their distresses." Psalm 107:28.

It was in the early autumn of the year 60 A. D. that Festus sent Paul and certain other prisoners from Caesarea to Rome. The season for navigation on the Mediterranean was nearly over for that year, and, as the event of Paul's voyage proved, the period of storms was even then imminent. Julius, a company captain of the Augustan cohort, was in Caesarea. He was put in command of the detail of soldiers sent to guard the prisoners, and embarked with them in a vessel that hailed from Adramyttium in the Aegan sea. Caesarea at that time was a line and busy port. Herod the Great had built immense moles in the shape of circular arms, enclosing a space of water nearly equal to the famous Piraeus of Athens. "A few ruins on the southern shore alone mark the spot, that appears to have been part of the mole, and on which are the remains of a fortress. A little further to the north are numerous granite columns in the sea, evidently placed there as a landing place, probably for the embarkation of the vast masses of stones which were carried away, for the strengthening and embellishing of Acre."

Paul was permitted to have as companions for the voyage Luke, the physician and friend of so many journeys, and Aristarchus, who seems to have stayed with him during his first Roman imprisonment. When the ship weighed anchor the wind was probably blowing from the west, for it carried the vessel without delay to Sidon, which then had a port capable of holding over fifty galleys. This harbor was formed by a low ridge of rocks and a mole similar to the one at Caesarea. It was a favorite harbor for mariners. Back of it lay a fertile fruit country, which must then have been a veritable garden spot. Wealth abounded, for amidst the old gardens one can even now find ruins of massive and palatial structures. There were Christians there and Paul, being paroled during the stay of the ship in port, found much comfort in the fellowship and kind help of the brethren.

From Sidon the master of the ship wished to go across toward Rhodes, and apparently wished to take the direct course, leaving Cyprus on his right hand. But the winds at Sidon blow from a westerly direction, an average of twenty days in August and of twenty-seven days in September. In those months respectively they blow on an average of thirteen and eleven days directly from the west. This statement is based on the British admiralty tables, which are the result of careful observations during a series of eight years. Because these "winds were contrary," the ship sailed to the eastward, "under the lee" of Cyprus, and so beat northward until it came into the inshore currents off the Cilician coast, which currents constantly set to westward except when disturbed by gales. On those currents the ship was carried quietly and slowly until it put into Myra, where Julius found a grain ship from Alexandria, bound for Italy to dispose of its cargo. This ship had probably been driven out of its course by that same wind that had forced Paul's ship "under the lee" of Cyprus. In it Julius took passage for himself and his command. The wind probably continued to blow from the northwest, and the ship could not make much headway. The current carried her along and she "sailed slowly many days," bringing up just off Cape Krio, on which was situated the ancient Onidus, with a harbor on either side of the peninsula. The ship had evidently been hugging the coast to get the benefit of the current, but, though just in the offing from Cnidus, the wind did not permit her to enter the harbor. The master of the ship evidently desired to thread his way through the Aegean archipelago to Cape Matapan and thence stand across the sea of Adria to Syracuse. But "the wind not further suffering," that is, not permitting the ship to keep its westerly course, she was headed a little east of south, and, with a fair wind, soon rounded Salmone, a cape at the eastern end of Crete. It was with great difficulty, even under the lee of the island, that the ship was kept on a westerly course. But she crept along the coast to Fair Havens, the modern Kalo Limniones, of which the Mediterranean Pilot says, "It is open to the eastward, but partially sheltered by two islets, which lie to the southeast and south of it. It is not recommended as an anchorage to winter in; although a vessel well found in anchors and chains, as in the present day, would have a better chance than in the days of St. Paul, by securing with stern fasts to the shore, under the lee of or on the northern side of the islet of St. Paul." It is interesting to read from these modern sailing directions so clear a confirmation of the verdict of a sailing master of Paul's day.

Paul had experienced the perils of the sea many times. He had some years previous to this time written to the Corinthians, "Thrice I suffered shipwreck and a night and a day I have been in the deep." The Jews regarded the season of navigation as closed on the day of Atonement, which occurred in this year on Sept. 24, and was already past when Paul warned the officers that they would leave Fair Havens that season at the peril of ship, cargo and lives of all on board. But the Gentiles did not regard the season for navigation as closed until about the middle of November; then, too, the harbor was small, exposed and without any attractions to amuse or means of provisioning the 276 people on board; therefore the ship's master and the centurian decided to try to make the harbor of Phoenice, only thirty-four miles away, that they might there spend the winter.

The Mediterranean Pilot says that Phoenice, the modern Lutro, "is the only bay on the south coast (of Crete) where a vessel would be quite secure in winter." It is circular in form, from 600 to 700 feet in diameter, is open to the eastward, and from the southwestern point has a rocky shoal projection which ends in the islet of Lutro, sheltering a part of the harbor from the southerly winds. "It is represented to be safe in winter, as the south wind seldom or never blows home against the lofty and precipitous mountains which rise above it, and the swell which then reaches the shore is consequently merely a dead swell, causing only motion to the vessels without strain to their ground tackle. The head of the port has a narrow strip of shingle beach in front of a garden, and a few houses, the position of which seems to confirm the statement of the natives regarding the safety of the port; for one of the houses is built within ten feet of the sea, and shows no indication that the swell ever reached its foundations, consequently no damaging sea can ever exist within the port."

It was toward this favorable port that the ship set sail as soon as a breeze began to blow from the south. All promised well, and as the craft bowled along over the waves, there was joy in every heart but Paul's. No doubt his fellow-voyagers bantered him about his unwelcome advice to stay in Fair Havens. Sailors are always glad to get away from an uninteresting port, especially if they are exchanging it for a better one. Close inshore the master merrily drove the ship along; but he had not gone far until his joy was turned into anxiety, for the towering peak of Psiloriti and its neighbors, whose clear outlines had loomed distince, were now enveloped in a fleecy bank of white clouds. Every skipper who had sailed that coast knew what that meant; but before any preparations could be made against the storm, it broke in fury over the lofty mountains of the island and caught the ship in its unrelenting grip. The ship could not sail close enough to the wind to make the entry to Phoenice, so they put her bow off and let her run before the wind.

Owing to local conditions this storm probably broke from the north, but when the ship had been driven a short distance out to sea the steady direction of the storm seems to have been from the north-northeast. During the brief time the ship was under the lee of the island of Clauda the crew succeeded with difficulty in hoisting on board the small boat that had been towing behind. The strain of the storm was already beginning to open the seams in the ship, so they passed great hawsers under her, like belts about the waist, and drew them tight to keep the ship from foundering. Many an ancient sailor was driven by this same wind upon the great quicksands banks off the northern coast of Africa. So they tried to hold this ship on its course toward Syracuse, but the high stern and the heavy rigging, masts and yards rendered it impossible to prevent drifting—the nightmare of all mariners. So they lightened the ship aloft as much as possible by lowering all spars and gear which they could lower. She was probably shipping water and leaking; si they jettisoned some of the cargo. On they drove. Their situation grew more and more desperate. On the third day they threw overboard much of the ship's tackling. The storm settled on them with an impenetrable gloom.

The hour when the crew lost hope was the hour of Paul's opportunity. He stood before them and recalled the fact that he had advised against sailing from Fair Havens. He did this with no mean spirit of "I told you so," but to show that his present advice was founded on sound wisdom. He promised them on the word of God that none of their lives would be lost, only the ship would go down. He exhorted them to be of good cheer. God had stood by him as an angel and in the hour of night's darkness and of the ship's dread fright had said, "Fear not, Paul; thou must stand before Caesar: and, lo, God hath granted thee all them that sail with thee." With strong words of faith in God Paul sought to stimulate the flagging courage of the men and to fit them for the arduous struggles ahead. Each event that called Paul into prominence served as a pulpit from which he preached the gospel of his God and Christ.

Honesty was a characteristic of Paul. He did not encourage the crew by deceiving them, but told them frankly that they would all be cast upon a certain island. The fourteenth night of their distress came and they were being driven to and fro by the fitful wind and sea. About midnight the vague intuition of the sailors told them that they were approaching land. Soundings were made, showing depths of 120 feet and ninety feet, the water evidently shoaling toward some beach. As quickly as possible four anchors were let go from the stern in the hope that the ship would ride out the night so that a landing could be made with safety. Nowadays ships anchor from the bow, but in Paul's day the bow and the stern of ships were both alike, so that it made no difference from which end the anchors were cast—the ship would ride equally well.

Some of the sailors cowardly tried to desert the ship, under cover of carrying out anchors from the bow. But Paul saw what they were doing and the soldiers quickly stopped it by cutting away the boat falls and letting the unmanned boat fall into the sea. Paul declared that unless the sailors stood by their duty, the rest would perish. "The waiting time, my brother, is the hardest time of all." The uncertainty of their prospects rendered the situation on this occasion very trying. There had been no regular meals for two weeks. The strain would tell on the men at the first relaxation and their exhausted condition might add to the peril if extraordinary exertion was demanded. So thought Paul and called upon them all to eat and cheer up, while they waited for the day. He set the example, giving thanks to God before them all for the food he was about to eat. His actions and spirit were contagious. All ate and were cheered and strengthened. The sullen doggedness born of their fight with the storm was gone from every face. They were all once more men of hope and courage.

All on board were mustered—a natural procedure before attempting to land on an unknown shore. They were 276 people in all. They found it necessary, before day, to jettison more of the cargo. At daylight they saw a shore which no one recognized; but it had a small bay with a beach—almost certainly the spot now called St. Paul's bay, which is six miles from Valetta, the principal port of Malta, and is one and three-quarter miles deep, with an irregular shore line and a beach at its head. The outer part of this bay is deep and inner part is shallow. They slipped their anchor cables, shipped the rudder, hoisted the foresail and made for the beach. At the north side of the bay is the islet Gzeier. Between it and the mainland runs a current which meets that from the open sea just inside the bay and causes a shoal to form. On this shoal the ship grounded and there finally beat to pieces.

The small boat had been lost while at anchor the previous night. They had no means of escape from the wreck, but their native strength and the planking and timbers that broke loose from the ship. The first impulse of the Roman soldiers was to kill all prisoners lest they escape. A Roman soldier was answerable with his life for prisoners put in his charge. But Julius wanted to save Paul's life. This led him to forbid the proposed butchery. The minutes that succeeded were full of excitement. The strong plunged boldly into the sea and quickly reached the shore, followed by the weaker swimmers and those who had to resort to such timbers as they could pick up from the wreckage: until all were safely on solid ground, drying and warming themselves and rejoicing that they were alive.

COURTING BY MAIL.

Both Were Disappointed When They Met.

Benton Harbor, Mich., June 5.—Spinks Corners, a small village in this county, puts up the oddest case of "courting by mail" on record. The man in the case, Frank Jakway, hails from Spinks Corners, and he was induced to start up a correspondence with Mrs. Merrifield, an Iowa widow.

In the correspondence both parties were somewhat extravagant in describing their personal appearance and charming manners, and the upshot of it was that the Hawkeye widow traveled to South Bend, where by appointment she met Mr. Jakway. The immediate result was that both experienced the pangs of utter disappointment as soon as they saw each other. Neither was backward in expressing opinions of the other, and accusations passed thick and fast.

Finally a compromise was effected by Jakway offering to employ the widow as his housekeeper. The latter accepted, but it is alleged that Jakway refused to settle, and the widow brought suit in a local court to recover the amount alleged to be due her.

DEAD 25 YEARS—IS ALIVE.

Wanderer Returns to Demolish His Tombstone.

Rochester, N. Y., June 5.—A strange romance was narrated to Chief of Police Cleary by a man who was supposed to have been dead for years. It was told by a man who had come from Mount Hope Cemetery, where he had read his epitaph on a tombstone and then razed the stone to the ground. And it was told to a man who had acted as pallbearer for the man supposed to have been dead.

Twenty-eight years ago this month the body of a man was found floating in a mill race here and identified as that of William H. Stone. The identification was made positive by Mrs. Stone, the supposed widow. The One Hundred and Fifth New York Infantry, of which he had been a member, adopted a memorial and attended the funeral in a body. Chief of Police Cleary, then a policeman, was one of the pallbearers. The burial was in the Stone family plot in Mount Hope. Last week Stone suddenly appeared and fully identified himself to his family and the police. He has been a wanderer.

KITTEN'S BITE CAUSED DEATH

Attacks Girl Who Whipped It and Blood Poison Resulted.

Philadelphia, June 5.—From a cat bite that looked like a pin prick when an angry black kitten attacked her about three weeks ago, Abra Barnett, a girl of 17 years, lies dead at her home, 908 Ridge avenue.

The day the household pet bit the girl she had just finished scrubbing the floor of the dining room. With that perverseness that characterizes the feline family, the cat came into the newly cleansed room. Miss Barnett whipped the animal, and, picking it up with the intention of putting it outdoors, it turned upon her and bit the third finger of her right hand.

The injury was minute, and only a bead of blood marked the spot. The young girl paid little attention to it, and seemed to forget it. A few days later, however, the finger festered. This was treated, and before a week had gone round Miss Marnett's left arm was swollen to an alarming extent. As the pain and swelling increased the girl was taken to the Hahnemann hospital about two weeks ago.

As no history of an injury accompanied the case, it was diagnosed as rheumatism. The girl was taken home again and the family physician summoned, the case still being considered one of inflammatory rheumatism. Finally the patient's condition became so serious that she was removed, on May 19, to the Jefferson hospital.

As no statement of any injury was given, again there was difficulty in correctly diagnosing the case. However, an abscess formed on the patient's left arm, and parts of her body began to show signs of blood poisoning. Then it was recollected that she had been bitten on the finger by a cat. It was too late, however, to stop the ravages of the poison, and on Monday she died in the hospital.

CONTINUES BULLISH

St. Louis Traders Still Buying But Other Markets Sag.

Foreigners Do Not Follow American Advance—Flax Is Steady.

Duluth Board of Trade, June 5.—The St. Louis market was again rampantly bullish today but failed to draw other markets into line with it. The advance in the July option at that market was 1¼c, but in every other market there was a slight decline. A dispatch from St. Louis says that everybody there is loading up with wheat and that outsiders are selling, the local traders all having a big londs that will be light if wheat keeps on going up very heavy if they have to sell them. Ie damage reports have failed to convince the foreigners and a cable from Liverpool this morning reported that market dull and slow and wheat very hard to sell there or at London. The Liverpool market closed ¼d higher. The Modern Miller was not bullish reporting that while there had been too much rain which flooded bottom lands and may lead to a considerable loss of crops, the conditions in the principal wheat producing states of the central region are seasonally favorable. There was some rain again yesterday in the districts that have had a surplus and the southwestern element is apparently as much convinced as ever that the wheat crop is in bad shape.

In Paris there was an advance of ¼ to ¾c; in Berlin 1¾c, in Buda Pest 1¢c and in Antwerp there was no change.

Argentine shipments for the week were 1,772,000 bushels, against 1,880,000 bus., last week and 658,000 bus. last year.

A report from Winnipeg estimates the wheat remaining in farmers' hands in Manitoba at only 1,250,000, bushels, a much lower figure than has been considered right heretofore. There is in elevators in the Canadian country, however, 10,000,000 bushels.

Primary receipts of wheat were 321,000 bus, last year 394,000 bus. Shipments 140,000 bus., last year 144,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour were 663,000 bus. Bradstreet reports clearances of wheat and flour this week of 4,760,000 bus., against 4,678,000 bus., last week and 4,600,000 bus., last year.

Stocks of wheat at Duluth are estimated to decrease 300,000 bushels this week. At Minneapolis a decrease of 600,000 bushels is looked for.

Receipts of wheat at Duluth and Minneapolis, 283 cars, and at Chicago 22, a total of 305 cars, against 139 last week and 209 last year.

In the Liverpool corn was ¾d higher and in Chicago he July option was unchanged. July oats continued their upward course advancing 3¼-8c. Primary receipts of corn were 285,000 bushels, last year 386,000 bus. Shipments 273,000 bus., last year 310,000 bus. Clearances of corn were 208,000 bus. Bradstreet reports weekly clearances of 1,014,000 bushels, against 1,179,000 bushels last week and 86,000 bus., last year. Argentine shipments were 2,568,000 bus., against 1,412,000 bus., last week and 1,741,000 bus. last year.

Trading in wheat was rather slow on the Duluth board. July opened ¼c up at 80⅝c, sold off to 80⅝c at 9:30, and then rallied ¼ 80¾c at 10:45 from that point it sold off sharply, falling to 80c at 11:23, it rallied to 80¾c at 12:25 and closed at 80¾c, which was a decline of ¼c. September fell ¾c. In Chicago the July option was a shade lower and September ⅛c lower. Minneapolis July was off ⅛@¼c and September ¾c. New York July was unchanged and September ⅛c lower.

Cash prices continued at ¼c over July for No. 1 northern and ⅛c under for N. 2. Sales were 15,000 bushels.

Flax trading was light and prices steady. July sold ¼c up to 81.13¾ and fell back to 81.13¼. It held steady at that figure and closed there. There was no change in any of the option prices except October, which had an advance of 8c. Flax stocks at Duluth are expected to increase about 75,000 bushels this week.

There was an advance of ½@⅝c in oats. Following are the closing prices:

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Active With a Decidedly Bullish Sentiment.

Chicago, June 5.—Actiyity prevailed in the wheat pit from the tap of the bell today and the sentiment was decidedly bullish, opening prices strong. July was up ⅞c to ¼c at 76¾c to 76½c, but with considerable profit-taking the market soon became somewhat easier, July receding to 76c but rallying again to 76¾c. The buying was mainly by shorts and commission houses. Duluth and Minneapolis reported receipts of 281 cars, which with local receipts of 22 cars, one of contract grade, made total receipts for the three points of 305 cars, against 129 cars last week and 200 cars a year ago.

After the first hour the offerings became more free as compared with the demand and this, in connection with the break at St. Louis, caused an easier tone. July selling down to 75⅞c. Trading was quiet the last part of the day and final figures were about where they left off yesterday, with July a shade lower at 75⅞@76c.

There was an urgent demand for July corn the early part of the day with shorts and commission houses the best buyers influenced almost exclusively by the dismal crop prospects. Opening prices were higher with July up ⅜@½c at 49½c to 49¾c, and although there was plenty of liquidation, the market held up well, the price being confined within the opening range. Local receipts were 429 cars, with 36 of contract grade.

Continued liquidation gradually caused an easier feeling and the close was steady with July unchanged at 48⅝@⅝c.

Heavy buying in July and September oats at the opening caused an exceedingly strong tone at the start, July being ⅝c to ¾c higher at 36¾c to 37c. The demand was of a general character, and with only limited offerings, prices were well maintained. Local receipts 138 cars.

Liberal purchases of hogs and further declines in prices at the yards caused an easier tone in provisions at the opening and with little trading prices showed no special change. September pork opened 5c lower at $16.80. September lard was also down 5c, at $8.82½, while ribs were unchanged to 2½c lower at $9.07½@9.10.

GRAIN GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—The market here was active and unsettled but fairly strong after the recent advance. There was a good deal of profit-taking on early firmness which caused some weakness but the strength in the Southwest markets held prices here. St. Louis closed sharply higher than yesterday. On the whole there is no improvement in crop prospects and we still think that wheat should be bought on weak spots. Cables are not following the advance here, but on like conditions they hardly ever do on the start. There is a large Southwest trade and much good buying. Estimated cars 35.

Corn—Market here very active and irregular. There was good deal of profit-taking by prominent local holders on the early advance and the improvement was lost. There is less rain throughout the West although the conditions are still unsettled, but on the whole the weather prospects are rather better. We regard corn at the moment as a weather market. Should the weather improve, we doubt if present prices will be maintained. The acreage may be somewhat curtailed, but there is a long summer in which to improve the crop. Cash situation is not much of a factor at the moment. Estimated cars 375.

Oats—Market very active. There was an urgent covering of shorts, particularly in July, during early part of the day which advanced prices sharply. Later the tone was quieter. Conditions affecting the crop are not favorable and prospects are fairly improving. A good deal of strength in this market of late has been the speculative situation, although cash demand the past day or two has been better. We are inclined to think conditions have been pretty much discounted. Estimated cars, 150.

Chicago Record-Herald: The present experiences in the wheat market illustrates anew that it is not wise to ignore the Southwestern speculator when he predicts something about the winter wheat crop outlook. Spencer and the other St. Louis people for two weeks have been asserting that the soft winter wheat crop had been half lost and while making this claim, the Southwestern group has been buying wheat on a great scale. There has been persistent skeptics here and the feeling that no losses had been suffered that would not still leave the winter wheat yield the largest ever harvested. But the Southwestern man has convinced the outsider and the July wheat price is up 3c since the crop condition became the topic and the deferred futures are up more than that. Furthermore now the Chicago man seems quite willing to admit the St. Louis claims.

"May and June wheat advances usually collapse," says E. A. Driver, who is back from California. "I saw nothing the matter with wheat through the West that a few days of fine weather would not cure."

• • •

Modern Miller: Excepting too much rain, which flooded bottom lands and which may lead to a considerable loss of crops, and reports of rust in wheat in some sections, the conditions in the principal wheat producing states of the central region have been seasonably favorable. Improved conditions are reported from Southwest and the states in the Mississippi and Ohio valleys and the Southeast. On the Atlantic and Pacific coasts prospects are below the average.

• • •

Liverpool—Portugal: Harvest prospects are medium, requirements for next season will be about 4,000,000 bus.

United Kingdom—Reports less satisfactory and average yield is impossible.

Argentine—Wheat market has shown improvement since last week, the tone now being firm with good demand for export. Arrivals from interior large and quality giving satisfaction. Corn markets continue firm with good export demand. The visible supply of wheat in Argentine ports today is 4,456,000 bus., week ago 4,008,000 bus.; year ago 328,000 bus. Corn today 2,232,000 bus., week ago 2,258,000 bus., year ago 256,000 bus.

DECLINE IN STOCKS

Heavy Selling of Pennsylvania, Atchison and Union Pacific.

The Closing Was Strong and With a Sharp Rally.

New York, June 5.—Opening dealings in stocks showed no relief from yesterday's depression and there were heavy offerings of some of the principal issues. A thousand shares of Pennsylvania followed by a 3000 share block carried it down ¾ and there were sales successively of 3000, 2000 and 1000 share blocks of Union Pacific which depressed it ⅞. Amalgamated Copper fell nearly a point and there were large fractional declines in U. S. Steel stocks, Missouri Pacific, B. & O. and Smelting. Losses of a point or over were scored by Canadian Pacific, Illinois Central, Consolidated Gas and Union Bag. Hocking Coal dropped 2.

Some selling orders for minor stocks was worked off at substantial declines during the early downward rush, but their depression did not extend to the active leaders, which met immediate support. Rallies were sharp and were led by Pennsylvania and Copper, which sold a point above their lowest prices. A deluge of selling orders met the recovery about 52 in Amalgamated and it plunged downward to 51. Sugar also fell off ex-dividend and the railroad stocks came back but not quite to the opening level. At 11 o'clock Copper was ruling above yesterday's closing level again. The general list was feverish and irregular. L. S. Express declined 4, Linseed 1 and St. Louis Southwestern preferred 2¼. Minneapolis, St. Paul & Soo pfd advanced 1.

There was evidence of support in some of the standard stocks, and Pennsylvania, St. Paul, Southern Pacific, Atchison and Amalgamated got a fraction over last night. New sales points developed and kept sentiment disturbed. Brooklyn Transit was forced down 2½, Atchison to 70⅞ and Tenn. Coal lost 3. There was a decline of 4⅝ in St. Louis Southwestern pfd, 2¼ each in Evansville & Terre Haute, Twin City Rapid Transit and Kansas & Michigan and 5 in Wells-Fargo. Prices generally reacted in sympathy. Bonds were easy at noon.

Numerous selling orders appeared simultaneously in various active stocks and they fell below the morning prices. Severe declines were made by some high priced inactive stocks, which contributed to the market's weakness. Lackawanna lost 5; St. Louis Southwestern 4; Adams Express 4; North American 2¾. Texas Pacific 2¾ and Canadian Pacific 2¾. Buying orders came in at the low level and the market hardened but became very dull at the recovery. Amalgamated rose to 52¾ and the railroad stocks rallied a good fraction.

The heaviest selling movement of the day broke out after 1 o'clock. The movement had its inception in Atchison, and Union Pacific, thousands of shares of these stocks being thrown over at rapidly declining prices. Atchison tumbled to 69¾, a loss of 2¾ and Union Pacific sold at 175⅞, or 1⅜ under yesterday's close. Other standard stocks broke to the lowest of the day and in some cases well below it, but generally rallied to the level. Sales were made of many less important properties at figures from 2 to 4 points below previous prices. These included Mexican Central, St. Louis & San Francisco certificates, Gas and General Electric, Hocking Valley declined 6. Amalgamated Copper was taken in large amounts after it got down around 51¾, and then made a quick rally to 52¾ which helped the general market to recover a fraction before 2 o'clock.

There was some rather sharp declines in special stocks, but after the last drive against the market shorts were inclined to cover. Copper was actively bought up to 2 points over last night. Rallies generally ran between 1 and 2 points. The late losses were United States Express, 7; Pacific Coast, 6; the second preferred and Kansas City Southern, 1¾, and Denver & Rio Grande 2¼. Soo preferred reacted to ½ under last night. The rally caused substantial recoveries and brought some conspicuous stocks to above last night's level. There were some fractional recessions just at the close, but prices generally were well maintained at the rally.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Dick to B. E. Baker: The selling of Pennsylvania has done more to demoralize the tone than anything else. That the standard stock of the world after a decline of 45 points should be pressed for sale has a disquieting effect. Copper while weak was never considered a standard security and has been more a plaything for speculators. The balance of the list held remarkably well in view of the weakness developed in these two stocks.

• • •

F. M. Dick to Paine, Webber & Co.: Stocks broke badly again today and at times the market acted as though a bad break was threatening, but support seemed to come in on the drives and in the afternoon the list looked sold to a standstill. In the last hour there was a suddenchange in the market's tone and it began a rally which carried many stocks up to their best prices. The weakest stocks were Atchison and Union Pacific, but both of these rallied well. Indications are that bank statement tomorrow will be less unfavorable than has been expected.

• • •

Waldorf to Coe Commission Co.: Encouraged by indications of a poor bank statement the bear clique in the stock market has increased its out-standing commitments the last two days to over 100,000 shares, with the sale for this account and those made for long account by people who sold with the view of getting their stock back at lower prices. It is estimated that in the general list there is practically a short interest of over 1,000,000 shares, in fact some observers believe that the bear account now open is the largest known since the summer of 1896, when the great banking interests of the street in the midst of the Bryan panic combined for the purchase of some 2,000,000 shares of stocks; now as then, borrowing of securities is done very largely outside of the loan crowd, so that the transactions in the latter are not a true index to the real demand. That the enormous existing shorts there will be able to cover at a profit is not regarded as probable unless some accident happens to further depress sentiment. On the contrary it is argued that speculative situation is such that in the event of some unexpected favorable development a powerful operator could not only turn the market upward, but advance it 5 to 10 points alone. Notwithstanding the disappointing further decline in Pacifics, the feeling in conservative circles is bullish. The consensus of opinion is that there is continued buying of securities by banking interests, that the bulk of current selling is by professionals, that prevailing prices about discount the worst that has happened or likely to happen.

• • •

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market is active and shows a loss for the day. The closing was strong and with a sharp rally in prices. Much of the pressure has been on raiding by the bear element, which has uncovered some stop orders and made some liquidation. We think stocks have had break enough and the unfavorable conditions have been fully discounted. Bears are in the majority, where a few months ago the sentiment was bullish. The short interest must be considerable. We consider the long side will make the money from now on and advise buying stocks on the breaks.

• • •

Ridgley to W. H. Laidley & Co.: The export this week of nearly five millions of gold making a total outflow since April of over seventeen millions, looks like a serious matter. If the loan account was falling, it would have no effect whatever on the money market, but loans increase and the only thing in sight to keep up bank reserves is our eight millions or so monthly gold production.

Walker Brothers to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market today opened weak and with further heavy liquidation. All through the early trading there was a great deal of stock thrown on the market and the declines were quite heavy. In the late afternoon on news that Rogers had taken over all of Lawson's Amalgamated Copper at private sale and that Standard Oil people were heavy buyers of stocks the market rallied and had much better tone. The close was steady and with much better feeling.

Clarke, Dodge & Co. to Paine, Webber & Co.: Heavy liquidation in Amalgamated Copper, Atchison and Union Pacific, part of it coming from Boston, broke the market and brought out a great deal of stock held by traders on the floor. Aggressive tactics by the bear part helped decline. Good buying by strong interests appeared in market and checked decline. Market closed steady on good rally.

COPPER GOSSIP.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: The general market was, as a whole, a trifle firmer today. There was continued heavy selling of most of the active stocks and new low record prices were made in several issues, including Amalgamated Copper. In the afternoon there was decidedly better buying of Amalgamated and most of the other coppers. The London market was lower. There is a large short interest in the market and when it starts to cover there may be a very sharp rally.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, June 5.—The cotton market opened barely steady at an advance of 4 points to a decline of 2 points, ruled generally weak in the face of some evidence of support from the New Orleans bull crowd), partly owing to the larger increase in acreage reported by the Chronicle as compared with the late government report. Covering arrested the decline and caused a partial rally, but in the main the undertone of the market was easy in the absence of public interest with a better general run of crop news as popularly interpreted.

Cotton spot closed quiet; mid ups, $11.50; do gulf, $11.75. Sales, 761 bales. Futures closed easy and steady. June, $11.09; July, $11.17; August, $10.65; September, $10.02; October, $9.51; November, $9.35; December, $9.35; January, $9.35.

LIVERPOOL GRAIN.

Liverpool, June 5.—The scarcity of American corn and the flood reports from America caused a sharp advance in prices here today. New corn was quoted at 5s 1d, a gain of 2½d and old corn held at 5s 2d or 2d advance over yesterday's closing. Wheat spot, No. 2 red Western winter, firm, 6s 4½d; No. 1 northern spring, quiet, 6s 7d; No. 1 California, steady, 6s 8½d; futures, quiet; July, 6s 4d; September, 6s 2¾d. Corn, spot, firm; American mixed, new, 5s 1d; American mixed old, 5s 2d; futures, quiet; June, 4s 1d; July, 4s 8¾d; September, 4s 6¾d.

A LYNCHING IS POSSIBLE

Citizens of Monroe County, Wis., Are Greatly Excited.

La Crosse, Wis., June 5.—A telephone message received by the Republican and Leader at 2 p. m. today stated that a lynching mob of several hundred angry citizens and farmers of Tomah and vicinity in Monroe county, had gathered at that point bent on taking the life of Samuel Montgomery, who is charged with the murder of his wife. Montgomery has been taken out of the Tomah jail and hurried toward Sparta on a freight train, and the mob at last reports was planning to follow him. The Tomah National Guard company is being called together and will make an effort to disperse the mob.

"Montgomery and his wife were driving along a lonely road, in Monroe county, when Mrs. Montgomery's death occurred. With the dead body of his wife lying in the buggy, Montgomery drove to the nearest town on a gallop and there claimed that they had been in a runaway and his wife's neck was broken by a fall out of the buggy. His stories were so conflicting that he was placed under arrest and held at Tomah until this morning, when the coroner's inquest began its work.

"The testimony at the inquest was so overwhelmingly against Montgomery and the sentiment here expressed was of such a dangerous nature that the prisoner was taken back to jail before the examination was concluded. An angry mob soon began to gather around the front entrance to the jail and then the authorities sneaked their prisoner out of a back door to the jail and took a train for Sparta. Later reports received here at 3 p. m. were that the mob was following the train, which is due to arrive at Sparta at 4 o'clock.

DISCRIMINATION AGAINST FLOUR

Considered the Paramount Issue By the Millers.

Detroit, June 5.—At the final session of the convention of the Millers' National Federation today, the committee on resolutions reported through Chairman C. Rovey, of Minneapolis, on the question of rate discrimination against flour, in favor of wheat, which they declared was the paramount issue before the millers of the country today. The memorial of the British Wheat and Corn Trade association on this subject, which was presented to the convention Wednesday, was referred to the resolutions committee at the time. Today the committee reported that the memorial truthfully set forth present conditions in the export flour trade and said:

"We believe that the export flour trade will continue to decline until flour and wheat are put on a parity as far as regards rates of transportation."

The resolution was adopted by the convention and copies of it, together with the memorial from the British Flour and Corn Trade association was ordered sent to the traffic manager of every railroad in the country. The committee also presented a resolution declaring that wheat should not be classed as coarse grain in making freight rates but with its products should constitute a separate class. This was greeted with applause and immediately adopted. A resolution was also adopted urging the steamship companies to incorporate in the freight charge on flour the present London dockage charge for the purpose of abolishing the separate charge for landing the flour.

The delegates recommended that the next convention be held at St. Louis during the exposition.

LAW IS AMBIGUOUS.

Business Man Arrested By Game Warden.

A Lake county deputy game warden today arrested one of Duluth's most prominent business men for having between 250 and 300 brook trout in his possession the deputy claiming that he was allowed only 50.

The trout, deputy, business man and law all appeared before the associate city attorney and the matter gone over at some length. The law, like many laws passed in haste, does not convey its meaning well and instead of saying that no person shall catch over fifty brook trout, in a day, it simply says that no person shall catch over fifty brook trout.

The associate city attorney informed them that a literal translation of the law as printed would mean that a person could catch only fifty trout in a lifetime or else be liable.

It was finally decided to take the matter up with the state game and fish commission in St. Paul and the business man from police headquarters had a long discussion over the telephone with S. F. Fullerton, executive agent of the commission.

Mr. Fullerton said that the commission had taken notice of the apparent error in the printing of the new game law and had already established a precedent by interpreting the statute as originally intended to be—permitting one person to catch 50 trout each day. The catch exhibited by the Duluthian represented nearly fifty a day for six days and the charge was withdrawn.

PLANS ARE HERE

The New Weather Building Will Be Built This Year.

Bids Will Be Called For and Sent to Washington.

Plans and specifications for the new building of the weather bureau have been received by Local Forecast Official Richardson from the head office of the bureau at Washington.

The plans call for a two-story building about 30 feet by 50, to be built either of brick or stone. Bids will be advertised for by the local office and forwarded to Washington at once, and it is hoped that ground will be broken before the end of July. The work will be rushed, and it is expected to have the building ready for occupation before Jan. 1.

The present hilltop observatory will be done away with and all the instruments and recorders moved to the new building. The office in the federal building will also be vacated. A residence for the official in charge will be built in connection with the new building, thus enabling the weather man to keep in constant touch with his work and be in proximity to his instruments during the entire day.

The new station will be one of the most complete in the country. The site of the building, immediately adjoining the incline station, will make it easy of access and at the same time give it the required altitude for making observations.

Mr. Richardson, of the local bureau, hopes to increase the usefulness and efficiency of the storm signal service at this port and make it one of the principal branches of the work here. The weather office is constantly used by mariners, and the new equipment will bring this branch of the work to its highest degree of efficiency.

New instruments will be added to those already in use, among which will be the new lightning recorder recently ordered for the local office.

The situation of the new building at a considerable height above the lake and overlooking a great amount of territory, together with the new and complete equipment, will give excellent facilities for original research on the part of the local officials, a branch of the work of the weather bureau in which the local office has hitherto not been able to keep pace with more completely equipped stations.

QUEEN OF CARNIVAL

Miss Margaret Campbell Is the First Candidate Announced.

The first candidate in the field for the honor of being queen of the big carnival to be given here in July, is Miss Margaret Campbell, of 4 West Fifth street. Miss Campbell has the strong endorsement of some of the leading business interests and will begin at once a canvass for votes to land the honors and win the handsome piano offered by the carnival management.

Secretary A. L. Preston, of the Carnival and Amusement company, has returned from Minneapolis, where he has been for a few days taking in the carnival there. He says that the jobbers, manufacturers, retail merchants and Commercial club are taking the greatest interest in the carnival and are co-operating in the carnival management in every way to make it a big success. The city is crowded with visitors from the outside. The streets and business places and private houses are gaily bedecked with carnival colors and the jobbers are sending out tons of carnival literature besides personal letters of invitation to their out-of-town customers to visit the fair.

Mr. Preston describes the working of the famous "Kangaroo court" as something completely funny. The court is established at the carnival grounds and a patrol wagon with policemen is constantly on the go to bring before the court some person against whom some absurd charge is made. A fine is imposed and the offender compelled to spend five minutes in jail, when he is given a big button that makes him immune from further arrest. Yesterday a bridegroom was taken out of the West hotel and fined $1.10 for getting married, besides a five-minute imprisonment in "jail." Governor Van Sant and his entire staff were arrested and contributed to the fund raised by the fines.

N. F. Hugo, of Duluth, was arrested, but managed to elude the police and escape trial.

TO GO TO CAMP.

Militia Boys Go to Lake City June 14.

Companies A and C and the Third Regiment band of the local branch of the state militia, will go into camp at Lake City the week of June 14.

Northern Passenger Agent L. D. Kitchell of the Great Northern road, received word yesterday that the company would send three special coaches and a baggage car to transport the soldiers to the camping grounds, and the forces will leave over that road a week from Sunday evening, at 11 o'clock. The cars will be attached to the regular St. Paul train, and made a part of the special for the encampment at St. Paul.

It is expected that Duluth will be represented by about 200 members of the citizen-soldiery.

WANT CHILDREN'S PLAYS

But the Gerry Society Is In the Way.

Overzealous Gerryites have been for years the bugaboo of the small player folk, says the Brooklyn Eagle. And now since Millie James has scored such a hit in "The Little Princess" as to call for a definite revival of child plays, they are becoming a serious problem to the big manager folk as well. There is no doubt that children's plays are to be a decided feature of the coming theatrical season, and several of the leading managers are lying awake nights trying to think up schemes whereby they may get around the Gerry society.

Not since the days of Mrs. Burnett's "Little Lord Fauntleroy," and the juvenile Pinafore companies has there been so marked a demand for child plays as has followed the success of Mrs. Burnett's "Little Princess." Apparently it takes Mrs. Burnett to enamour New York's rather blase theatergoing population with the nursery and the school room.

Among the most notable of next season's productions is to be one by David Belasco, in direct response to this demand. He promises "The Little Pilgrim," produced on a lavish scale, and played entirely by children. But "the Gerry man will get him—if—he—don't—watch—out!" or else stay out of New York state. For while the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children exists in every state in the Union, it devotes the pernicious activity of its war upon stage children especially to New York state, its regulations against the use of children in the theatrical performances being either more lax in other states or not so strictly enforced.

It was Millie James' hit in William A. Brady's "Lover's Lane," that suggested to far-sighted managers that the time was ripe for a real child's play, and that a public nauseated by a long series of problems, of more or less notorious Mrs. Ebbsmiths and weak-minded Irises, and rather weary of the flare of trumpets and the clash of swords, would welcome the pathos and the humor and the basic humanity of the child. Several wise men, whose wisdom has won them shekels in the theatrical business, made bids for Millie James, and rather envied C. B. Dillingham when she awarded herself to him, and he fitted her with Mrs. Burnett's own dramatization of "Sara Crewe" and started her on her starring tour.

Millie James, as every one knows, is not a child at all. She is a married woman. But none the less she is remarkably well suited to her child parts, and it is told that during her engagement with Brady, the real children who played the other child roles in the play supposed her to be quite one of themselves, and insisted upon sharing their toys and candy with her. She is, without doubt, the most remarkable impersonator of children ever seen on the stage.

Most of the other stage children really are children, young enough to be in continual dread of the "protection" of the Gerry society. In fact, from their point of view the official name of the organization should be the Society for the Perpetration of Cruelty Upon Children. And it frequently is a cruelty to interfere with most of them. For child actors love their profession, their instincts for it being, as a rule, inherited from a long ancestry of players.

From the time he learns to walk the child of actor parents begins to develop the dramatic instinct, if he has it. It is in the very air he breathes. He plays "theater" as naturally as other children play house or store. A silent parlor is his theater. The pier glass between the windows reflects an imaginary stage. He is the star of an imaginary play. If he can array himself in the discarded stage wardrobe of his parents, master the intricacies of Ophelia's flowing draperies, or buckle about his small person the rattling armor of a Richard III or Henry V, or insert himself into the doublet and hose of some Elizabethian hero, and strut his little hour before the glass he is filled with the joy of a destiny fulfilled. The average child who can only dress up is the object of his unbounded pity and contempt.

Small wonder that in such a child the latent ambition to act in a real stage before a real audience should cry out against the oppression of the Gerry society's restraining hand. Small wonder that given the opportunity he will wait for his "cue," and respond like an old timer, or that he looks for a "hand" at the conclusion of certain speeches and comments as sagely to his mother on the temper of the audience as any in the cast of maturer years.

As a matter of fact it is rare that an infant prodigy becomes a great actor or actress. About as close as they have ever come to it, are two little girls and one little boy who years ago sang in a juvenile Pinafore company, and are known now to the amusement loving world as Julia Marlowe, Corinne and Fritz Williams, respectively. But whether their ultimate fame fulfills their early promise or not is beside the question. They are, contrary to the belief of some, very well cared for indeed. If they are playing engagements that keep them up late at night, they make up for the lost rest by prolonged sleep the next morning. They are thoroughly schooled by private teachers, where regular attendance at public or private school is not feasible. And they are as carefully taught and gently bred, and as well mannered a set of boys and girls as one is likely to find in the residences of wealth and fashion on Fifth or Madison avenues.

More than this they enjoy every minute of their work when they are let alone. The managers say that it seems rather a pity when one considers the number of children who dog the footsteps of theatergoers as they pour out of amusement houses along Broadway, whining out some tale of woe, or using papers as a thin cloak for beggary, that the Gerry society should make the lives of these theater children, who by the time the play is out are rapidly rolling to home and comfortable beds, such a burden to them. These well-fed child actors earn from $30 to $150 a week at work which is better than play to them.

It is the little dancers particularly that the Gerry society marks for its own. There have been a number of them. Some years ago there were Ewer, one of the leading high church Episcopal clergymen of the city, whose mother was always in the wings, always watching, always careful that they did not overdo. Dr. Ewer himself had been a great friend of many leading actors and artists. His daughter was one of the cleverest animal artists in the city. But the old clergyman was dead, and things had gone sadly awry with his daughter and his little grandchildren until this chance came for the children. But the Gerry society stepped in. The children might starve to be sure, but they must not dance. There was no appeal. Nor was there last winter when "Little Miss Lillian," a celebrated little English dancer came over. She had appeared before the Prince and Princess Christian on the other side and had made a big reputation on the other side. But she was not 16, so she must not dance in public.

Meanwhile managers and children having common desires for their mutual benefit are looking each other in the face and whispering dismayed.

"The Gerry men'll get you—ef—you don't watch out!"

Where Is It?

Where is the jaunty thatch of straw
We used to know so well,
When summertime
Was in its prime
And spring had heard its knell?

Oh, where is now the lid that once
We much rejoiced to see,
When the summer sun
Could bake a bun
Fry eggs or draw your tea?

The roof of straw was once au fait,
As we in French remark,
But now, past doubt,
It's hiding out
And skulking in the dark.

The heavy lids are still in style
We wore in winter raw,
Oh, where can be,
On land or sea,
The dinky hat of straw?

One of Lincoln's Best.

Philadelphia Ledger: The world is indebted for the preservation of this anecdote to the late Senator Voorhees of Indiana, who related it in Washington not long before his death. As Voorhees told it, Lincoln had in court a case in which he felt no great confidence, and, agreeably to a time-honored rule among lawyers ("if you have a poor case abuse the opposing counsel"), touched lightly on its merits, but paid his respects to his opponent, who happened to be a young lawyer, not without ability, but very glib, very bumptious and a little "too previous" generally to make a favorable impression on the jury. The situation "indicated" (as the doctors say) the professional rule too strongly for Lincoln to resist its application. But he tempered the wind before shearing the lamb. After complimenting the young man on his remarkable flow of language, as exhibited in the speech which he had just delivered to the jury, and paying a warm tribute to his good qualities and those of both his parents, Lincoln said:

"But my young friend's gift of words has one serious drawback, which you, gentlemen, have witnessed in this case. It interrupts the action of his mind. His thinking machine and his talking apparatus don't seem to jibe. When his tongue works, his brain quits. He reminds me of a little steamboat that used to run on the Sangamon river. It had a 2-foot boiler and a 5-foot whistle, and every time it whistled it had to stop."

TERRIBLE CLOUDBURST BRINGS DISASTER IN SOUTH

WATERS OF MISSISSIPPI RUSH WILDLY THROUGH LEVEES

Three Missouri Villages Are Covered By Water.

Oldenburg, Mitchell and West Granite Suffer.

Hundreds of People Are Driven From Homes.

St. Louis, June 6.—The river this morning reached a stage of 34.7 feet, a rise during the past twenty-four hours of 1.2 feet, and continues rising at about the same rate. All along the levee the water is up to the stores and houses, in some of them it being at least a foot and more deep on the first floors. So far traffic on the river has not been greatly hindered, but when the water reaches a stage of 36 feet some of the boats will probably refuse to receive freight, as the approaches cannot be used and the water will be too deep for teams to drive through. At the ferries the loading of teams is done with great difficulty, the horses having to wade in up to their shoulders. The national stock yards at East St. Louis has notified the shippers that no more stock will be received until the water recedes.

The break in the great Madison county levee, which gave way yesterday, has widened, and this morning the water is rushing through a gap 100 yards wide, covering 20,000 acres of fertile farm land and three villages—Oldenburg, Mitchell and West Granite. About 500 persons have been driven from their homes by the flood. The rear of the water as it pours through the break can be heard a mile and a half.

The break is only a mile from the head of this great bulwark, which was regarded until this morning as the principal barrier between the river and all the east side cities, including East St. Louis. Back of the Madison levee is another mud embankment, known locally as "The Cross levee," which is three feet above the flooded w heat fields. The water is within one foot of the floor level of the Relay depot, in East St. Louis, which is representative of the altitude of the principal business and residence sections of East St. Louis. "The island," that part of East St. Louis which lies between the river and Cahokia creek, is under six feet of current. It is now only a matter of the flood advancing a foot above the present stage until the current that is now sweeping through the east trestles of the Merchants bridge, will be rushing over the embankments. Once that current is over the embankments, the reinforcing work that has been done by the railroads, will go for naught, and the embankments are expected to crumble before the current.

At the Merchants bridge this morning, just south of the junction of the Cross and Madison levees, the water was within a foot of the railroad tracks. In several places the water was over the Big Four tracks.

Since Wednesday the Chicago & Alton railroad has had a big force of men working to protect their embankment below the Merchants bridge.

DULUTH WELCOMES THE NEW WEATHER OBSERVATORY.

South Carolina Town the Scene of Calamity.

Mills, Churches and Other Buildings Wrecked.

Great Flood Is Sweeping Everything Before It.

Atlanta, Ga., June 6.—A special to the Journal from Spartanburg, S. C., says:

Mill No. 1 of the Pacolet Cotton company at Pacolet was washed away last night by a terrible cloudburst and mill No. 2 was totally destroyed. The dams of three mills were washed out. It is feared there has been loss of life, as the mills employed a large number of operatives who lived near the mills.

The warehouse of mill No. 1 was washed away with the total stock of goods and cotton.

The hotel, Presbyterian church, livery stable and many other buildings in the town were washed away.

The flood is moving with the river and is sweeping everything before it.

At Clifton, S. C., cotton mill No. 1 was destroyed and mill No. 2 is expected to be destroyed. The property loss for this part of the country is appalling.

Greenville, S. C., June 6.—Reports are being received here of great havoc wrought by a storm last night and early this morning.

The steel bridge across Tiger river at Arlington, several miles above here has been washed away and the Southern railway's trestle at Duncan is gone.

Several houses and barns were washed away and much property damaged at Greers, S. C.

A special train is being made up here to take the place of No. 39, now on the other side of the trestle near Duncan No. 36 from Atlanta for Washington is held up by the loss of the bridge at Greers.

CITY OF BERLIN IS IN THE MIDST OF A HOT CAMPAIGN

What Started In as an Uninteresting Contest Has Now Developed Into a Fierce Warfare and Scores of Meetings Are Held Nightly.

Berlin, June 6.—There were eighty-one political meetings in Berlin last night and ninety-six are announced for tonight. What appeared to be an uninteresting campaign is now warming up and there is a prospect of a lively ending of the election warfare. This is especially so in the provinces, where personalities and local interests have aroused considerable feeling. The capital being overwhelmingly Socialistic and the other political parties except in two districts of Berlin are working their hardest in the country, but the question which politicians everywhere ask each other is: "What will the Socialist vote amount to?" The issues that the anti-Socialistic parties push to the front are loyalty to the monarchy, to the church, to stable institutions and to the rights of property against the Godless, lawless, propertyless, greedy disintegrators of dreamers." The Socialists lay stress on cheap bread and meat, economic prosperity based on lower tariffs and freedom of speech and criticism, omitting theoretical discussions. Much very offensive language is being used on the platforms and the speakers of all parties are constantly interrupted by cries of "That's a lie," "You know that's false," and other insulting expressions. Police in uniform are present at every political meeting, none of which can be held without a police permit.

CHICAGO NIGHT WATCHMAN SHOT

Chicago, June 6.—Fred Burkhardt, a night watchman, was shot and probably shot early today by men whom he believed to be burglars. Near the rear door of a saloon at 110 Sedgwick street three men stood in the shadows. Burkhardt approached and asked what they were doing there. In reply three shots were fired, two striking him in the head. Seven men were placed under arrest and will be taken to the hospital as soon as the wounded man is able to stand the ordeal, for identification.

CHILKAT INDIANS ENFORCE ORDER

Tacoma, June 6.—The Chilkat Indians have cut and destroyed the big salomn nets placed in position in Lynn canal by the Alaska Packers' association and the Pacific Packing and Navigation company. During May the Chilkats warned the salmon canners that they must not plant their nets until the Indians had finished catching their allowance. Their warning not being heeded, the Chilkats last week boarded a number of war canoes and went out in the deep water, near Haines, where they cut and tore up all the salmon nets they could find.

SPIRITUALISTS HAVE THEIR RIGHTS

New York, June 6.—A will, which had been contested by relations, on the ground that Mrs. A. D. Thompson, who made it and left the bulk of her esate to Joseph H. Mahan, a protege of her husband, was under the influence of Spiritualism and not of sound mind, has been admitted to probate by Surrogate Thomas. The latter said, in enterign the order: "Almost every one at some time investigates what is known as American spiritualism. That some people believe they can have communications with their loved ones in the other world is a well known fact, but the fact of that belief is no ground for the setting aside of a person's wishes in his last will and testament."

STEAMER AND SCHOONER COLLIDE

Woods Hole, June 6.—The steamer Martha's Vineyard, plying between the island of Martha's Vineyard and this port, having on board a large number of passengers, the United States mail and a heavy freight, collided with a fishing schooner off Vineyard Haven in a dense fog today and was badly damaged. One man was seriously injured and a number of passengers were made unconscious by the shock of the collision. The damage to the steamer was all above the water line, and she succeeded in reaching this port. The name of the fishing schooner was not ascertained owing to the fog. She lost her fore rigging.

THOUSANDS OF MEN AND WOMEN ARE CLEANING UP KANSAS CITY

Armed With Shovels and Brooms They Are Following Close to the Receding Waters.

Kansas City, June 6.—Thousands of men and women, armed with shovels and brooms, are invading the west bottoms, following closely the receding waters, and by nightfall much will have been done toward restoring the wholesale and stock yards district to their former condition of activity. The Missouri had fallen slightly over two feet during the night, and at 7 o'clock this morning a still greater district was uncovered. The Kaw also continues to recede at an increased rate. Today hundreds of flat cars, loaded with sand and construction material, pushed several blocks farther west, and began actively the work of reconstructing the miles of washed out or damaged tracks in the yards from here to Armourdale and Argentine. The railroads alone will put several thousand men to work immediately, and all lines are making preparations to resume business. Today it was possible to reach and clean out to a great degree the wreckage at the stock yards and at the live stock exchange, where the water at its height stood 15 feet deep.

Three shifts of men are working night and day at the pumping stations to restore the water supply to its normal condition, and as this service improves the likelihood of an epidemic of sickness is disappearing. But few cases of sickness are reported.

Washington, June 6.—The Missouri river at Kansas City continues to fall setadily, the gauge reading this morning being 28.9 feet, a fall of 2.1 foot since Friday morning. At St. Louis there has been a rise of 1.2 feet, and there were 34.7 feet of water on the gauge this morning. The interruption of the rise in the Mississippi, north of the mouth of the Missouri, will probably have but little effect on the St. Louis stage, and no reason at present exists for a modification of the estimate of between 37 and 38 feet of water by Monday or Tuesday. The danger line will probably be passed at Memphis by the end of next week, but accurate estimates of the crests, both at Cairo and Memphis, cannot be made until the full effect of the flood is felt at St. Louis.

Topeka, June 6.—The Kaw river fell two inches an hour throughout Friday night and today the south side of Kansas avenue was uncovered clear to the bridge. On the north side pedestrians and wagons can get five blocks north from the bridge to Gordon street without getting into water. In some residence portions of North Topeka, however, the water still stands in eddying pools and rushes down Cross street, in a whirling channel at an average depth of three feet. At the present rate of disappearance the entire townsite will be free from water Sunday noon.

The Rock Island and Union Pacific are still unable to resume traffic in or out of the city. The Santa Fe and Missouri Pacific are getting over their tracks west and south but not to he east.

Bloomington, Ill., June 6.—All trains of the Santa Fe road are now passing through Bloomington, using the tracks of the Chicago & Alton, between Chicago and St. Louis. This is a temporary arrangement, made necessary by the flood in and near Kansas City. Between St. Louis and Kansas City the Santa Fe trains use the tracks of the Missouri Pacific.

BUT TWO TENDERS

For Fast Atlantic Service For Canadian Government.

Ottawa, Ont., June 6.—There have been but two tenders received for fast Atlantic steamship service by the government. One was from the Allan line, which offers two steamers at twenty-one knots and two at sixteen knots for an annual subsidy of $1,500,000. The other tender is from the British North Atlantic Steam Navigation company, which offers a similar service for $1,000,000. In addition they want the imperial and Canadian governments to pay for the mails.

DRANK FORMALDEHYDE.

Billings, Mont., June 6.—Ex-Senator B. L. Babcock, one of the wealthiest and best known Republican politicians in this section of the country, lies in a serious condition at his home in this city. He swallowed several mouthfuls of formaldehyde under the impression that it was distilled water.

FIRE AT PHILADELPHIA.

Philadelphia, June 6.—The five-story building at 221 Chestnut street, occupied by eight business firms, was partly destroyed by fire early this morning. The occupants were the Hilda Cigar company, the Wilson Manufacturing company, shirt makers; Linea, Weaver & Co.; Morris Goroschoosky, shirt waists; Tichenor Hat company; Shaley & Baker, bookbinders; Benjamin F. Burgman, pantaloon maker. The total loss is estimated at $50,000.

RESPECT FOR CIVIL LAWS

Alone Can Save This Country From Civil War.

Chicago, June 6.—"Respect for civil law and obligation alone can save this country from civil war in the next generation."

Dr. T. S. Chamberlain, former president of the university of Wisconsin and now a professor in the university of Chicago, thus summed up the labor situation as seen in Chicago and throughout the country.

"Things are transpiring today in Chicago," he said, "which are causing citizens grave concern. I refer to the labor question and to the right of a man to labor where and when and how he pleases, and the right of a man to manage his business in what manner he may decide."

Dr. Chamberlain was the principal speaker at the annual banquet of the university of Wisconsin clubs held last night in the Auditorium hotel.

He held out as a panacea for existing conditions education as offered in the state universities.

AMERICAN ZIONISTS

Gather In Pittsburg For Sixth Annual Convention.

Pittsburg, June 6.—Many delegates to the sixth annual convention of the Federation of American Zionists arrived in Pittsburg today, and when the convention opens tonight it is expected 200 delegates will be present from all parts of the country. Many stores and dwellings in the business and Jewish sections of the city are elaborately decorated in honor of the meeting. The federation aims to reunite the Jewish people, and hopes eventually to inhabit Palestine. Its membership in the United States is very large, embracing branch societies in nearly every state and territory in the country. The convention will be in session four days.

LIFE SENTENCE FOR KEARLY.

Helena, Mont., June 6.—James S. Kearly was today sentenced by Judge Smith to life imprisonment for the murder of Thomas Crystal. Kearly was one of the best known civil and mining engineers in the Northwest.

CRUISERS AT ARABIA.

Aden, Arabia, June 6.—The United States cruisers Cincinnati, Albany and Raleigh have arrived here on their way to Manila.

DEPUTIES FIGHT DUEL.

Paris, June 6.—M. M. Berteauz and Guyot De Villeneuve, members of the cahmber of deputies, fought a duel today as a result of a violent altercation in the house. At the sixth encounter, M. De Villeneuve was slightly wounded in the forearm.

PRESIDENT AND HIS ADVISERS DISCUSS IMPORTANT TOPICS

A Special Meeting of the Cabinet Was Held to Enable the Returned Executive to Get In Touch With Current Events.

Washington, June 6.—President Roosevelt, refreshed and vigorous from his long Western trip, appeared at his office in the executive building early this morning. He plunged at once into the mass of business awaiting him, excusing himself to all callers except those who had urgent business with him.

To members of his cabinet he announced personally last night that he desired to have a meeting with them today.

Before 10:30 o'clock the cabinet, with the exception of Secretary Shaw, had assembled in their rooms in the executive offices. They were in session until shortly after noon. Postmaster Payne and Secretary Root remained with the president after the other members had departed. The president himself occupied a considerable portion of the time of the meeting recounting to his advisors what happened on the trip. Each member of the cabinet made a brief statement regarding conditions in his department, the postmaster general naturally consuming more time than the others in detailing the progress of the investigations in his department. Secretary Hay had little to report, as he has kept the president fully advised concerning the Russian situation in Manchuria and the appeals to his department in behalf of the Jews at Kishineff.

In the course of the discussion of the postoffice department investigation, Mr. Payne took occasion highly to praise Fourth Assistant Postmaster General Bristow for the energy he has displayed and the thoroughness of his work. Secretary Root talked with the president after the cabinet meeting about the general staff and the general officers who are to be assigned to the staff were agreed upon. Their appointments will probably be announced later in the day.

CAR OVERTURNS INJURING NINE

Orange, N. J., June 6.—Nine persons have been hurt here by the overturning of a trolley car that ran wild down Eagle Rock, on its way to Orange. Conductor Curtis may die. It is said the car was standing at the top of Eagle Rock waiting for passengers. When the car was scheduled to leave for Orange, a passenger who got on is said to have struck the brake handle by accident. Before the brakes could be set again the car was tearing down the hill at great speed. When a sharp curve was reached the wheels left the rails and the car overturned. It landed on its top and was badly smashed. Nine of the eleven passengers were hurt.

STOCK TRAIN RUNS DOWN HANDCAR

Columbus, Neb., June 6.—Two men were killed and two fatally injured in a handcar that was run down by a stock extra near Genoa this morning. The stock extra was coming down a Cedar Rapids-Spalding branch of the Union Pacific. The section men were going to work up the track. The engine struck the handcar about a mile west of town.

The dead:

FRANK VROVAS.

JOHN MEKUS.

Fatally injured: W. Steele and M. Ikinsch.

TEN THOUSAND FOR FAMINE RELIEF

Washington, June 6.—The Christian Herald today transmitted to Assistant Secretary of State Loomis a check for $10,000 for the establishment of a relief fund for the famine sufferers in the Chinese province of Kwang Si. Mr. Loomis deposited the money here and notified United States Consul General McWade, at Canton, that he may draw for the amount of the check. Every report that comes to the state department, either by mail or cable, contains the most pathetic stories of extreme destitution prevailing in Kwang Si leading to the commission of unnatural crime such as the sale of daughters into concubinage and there are even hints of cannibalism.

MRS. LOO LIN RELEASED.

San Francisco, June 6.—Mrs. Loo Lin, whose case has excited so much attention in the papers, was released yesterday from the shed at Mail dock after forty days of detention, in transit to Montreal, via Vancouver. She will sail for Victoria on July 10.

TREATY WITH CHILE.

New York, June 6.—It is officially announced, says a Herald dispatch from Lima, Peru, that the Bolivian government has signed a treaty with Chile, the basis being a cession of the Bolivian coast lands, now under the virtual control of Chile, in return for a pecuniary compensation.

JEWS ARE BLAMED

For the Horrible Massacre Which Occurred at Kishineff.

Russians Say the Attack Started From Assault on Woman.

New York, June 6.—The Christian Herald, in response to a cable dispatch sent to the czar asking for an official report of the occurrences at Kishineff, has received a reply from the director of the Russian police department. The reply follows:

"St. Petersburg, June 4, 1903.—The Christian Herald, New York: Russia's agricultural and laboring population is ill at ease, living the common life with Jewish inhabitants of widely developed commercial instincts; hence there is constant antagonism, the material difference and a Christian was seen to fall, receiving a bullet wound.

"This called forth the popular passion in all its abject form and abomination, the Russian peasants, when driven to frenzy and excited by race and religious hatred and under the influence of alcohol, being worse than the Americans who lynch negroes.

"Unfortunately, the governor of Bessarabia did not make his appearance in person on Easter Sunday, and on Monday he gave over the command to military men, which he had no right to do, as he in consequence laid the police aside, and, on the other hand, left the military forces without actual guidance. Troops can take towns by assault, but cannot carry out police duties without special instructions.

"In the end, the town having been divided my different streets, with a special military command in each, the disturbances ceased on Monday evening. By this time the minister of the interior had ordered by wire the proclamation of martial law, and— an unprecedented fact—had sent the director of the police department to investigate as to the responsibilities of the local officers. In consequence, the governor, the chief of police and some other officers were dismissed, many hundreds of rioters were placed in prison, and hard work in the Siberian mines was awarded to them. The minister of the interior has issued a circular to governors all over Russia, authorizing them to make immediate use of firearms in case of anti-Jewish disturbances. The Russian government is the first to disapprove of such horrid acts of violence, but it cannot, in compliance with the requests of a radical and revolutionary press, give the Jews new rights of citizenship, as this would be sure to drive the Russian population to new excesses against the Jews, who are hated by the peasants with such extraordinary force. "Lopukhine, Director of Police Department."

The strike of the Union Pacific machinists came to an end on Thursday and while Duluth was not directly affected by this struggle of eleven months, yet the local machinists were delighted with the victory for their fellow workmen in the union machine shops of the Western states. It has been a source of considerable expense to the machinists all over the country and the Duluth men did their share toward contributing financial aid. The terms of the settlement published here for the first time are:

First—Piece work shall be abolished in its entirety from the machine shops.

Second—Every striking machinist shall be reinstated upon his own application within sixty days.

Third—An increase of 7 per cent in wages over those prevailing when the strike began shall be given.

Fourth—Nine hours shall constitute a day's work.

Fifth—The company retains such of its present force of non-union men as it desires on equal terms with the old employes and gives notices to them that all hotels within the shops will be closed at the end of two weeks.

Sixth—The strike is to be declared off and work resumed Monday morning next at these points: Council Bluffs, Omaha, Columbus, Grand Island, North Platte, Cheyenne, Rawlins, Green River, Evanston, Ogden, Denver, Wells, Ellis, Junction City and Kansas City.

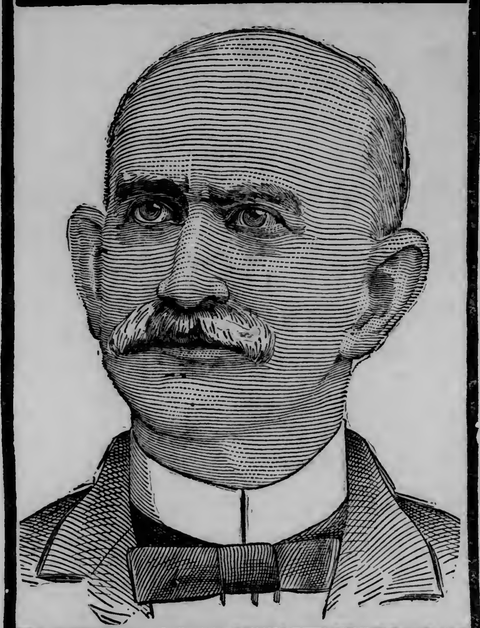
A Consul General's Letter.



PERRY M. DeLEON.

PE-RU-NA IS THE BEST OF TONICS FOR SUMMER ILLS.

FOR SUMMER COLDS PE-RU-NA IS A PROMPT SPECIFIC.

Mr. Perry M. DeLeon, Consul General from the United States to Guayaquil, Ecuador, writes:

"I cheerfully join with my friend Congressman Livingston, in recommending Peruna as an effective remedy for catarrh, colds and coughs."—Perry M. De Leon.

THE SECRET.

How Doctors Protect Themselves From Contagious Diseases.

Doctors rarely catch contagious diseases. Almost everybody knows this, but few know how they escape. Many believe that the doctor has some charm or antiseptic which protects him. Dr. Hartman lately made the truth of this matter public, that all might realize its benefit. Contagious diseases are conveyed by minute organisms known as disease germs. These germs find their entrance into the system through the mucous membrane. If the mucous membrane is healthy, they cannot get into the system. If the mucous membrane is affected by catarrh the germs find easy access. Catarrhal secretions furnish exactly the material upon which they thrive and multiply. To get rid of the catarrh and thus preserve the mucous membrane healthy, is the only way to be safe from contagious diseases. This explains why it is that some people catch diseases easier than others.

Everyone is exposed just the same. Not every one, however, falls a victim to contagious diseases. A disease germ cannot enter the system through a perfectly healthy mucous membrane. Doctors know this and therefore guard against it. This is all the secret there is about it.

Catarrh of the Stomach Most Common In Summer.

Mr. Virgil Rowelee, Fulton, Oswego county, N. Y., writes:

"I am a well man. I had stomach trouble for three years, tried several doctors and got no help; then tried your Peruna, and now feel like a new man. Would recommend it to anybody with catarrh of the stomach. I have gained forty pounds and can eat most anything. I cannot say too much for your medicine. People tell me I look like a new man. I tell them that I am, and that it is Peruna that did it. I had doctored with five different doctors, but did not get any help, but when I began to take your Peruna it began to help me. I now feel like a well man."—Virgil Rowelee.

Mr. D. B. Van Huffle, Highland Park College, 360 Third street, Des Moines, Iowa, writes:

"For many months I have been annoyed with stomach troubles. I tried all kinds of medicines but they did not do me much good. I heard so much of Peruna that I finally came to the conclusion to try it. I used one bottle and commenced to feel some better. I used two bottles more of it, and felt rid of my stomach trouble. I think it my duty to recommend Peruna to all who are suffering from stomach troubles, and I am sure they will find Peruna an excellent remedy."—D. B. Van Huffle.

The best cure or preventative known to the medical profession up to date for catarrh in all its conditions is Peruna. During the uncertain weather of springtime it is an unnecessary hazard for anyone to neglect to guard himself from taking disease, by taking Peruna. Send for free catarrh book. Address The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, O.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

PREVALENCE OF CATARRH.

Growing Use of Hyomei Will Soon Show a Decrease of of This Disease.

Statistics show that at least 97 out of every 100 persons in this state are suffering from catarrh in some form. While the disease is one of the most common with which the medical profession has to contend, it also is one of the most dangerous. This is owing to its tendency to affect the bronchial tubes, causing consumption and other diseases of the respiratory organs.

Prior to the discovery of Hyomei, every method of treatment for the cure of catarrh had been found worthless. This can be clearly proven by the weekly statements published in every large city by the Board of Health, showing a great increase in the death rate from diseases of the respiratory organs, and the startling growth in the number of persons afflicted with such troubles.

The discovery of Hyomei and its increased use has already reduced the percentage of persons suffering from catarrh. This wonderful remedy is the simplest and most pleasant of all treatments. Just put a little Hyomei in the pocket inhaler that comes with every outfit, breathe through the inhaler for ten minutes four times a day. Relief will be seen from the first treatment; cure will soon follow. It is the true treatment for diseases of the respiratory organs.

Scientific and medical men recommend it. Leading druggists have so much faith in it that they guarantee a cure or they will refund the money. In this city S. F. Boyce is selling it upon that plan, so that any of our readers can use Hyomei without its costing them a cent unless it cures. Can there be a fairer way?

Are you thin? Would you like to get fat and plump? Tried "laughing," wouldn't work, now take Rocky Mountain Tea—'twill do the business. 35 cents. S. F. BOYCE.

PICK YOUR PHRASE

Expressions Appropriate to Advertisement Will Be Received Until June 25.

Commercial Club Committee Formulates Rules Governing Contest.

The committee of the Commercial club, appointed with the object of securing an appropriate advertising phrase for Duluth has formulated the rules for this contest.

In the first place the committee requires that all submitting suggestions shall be residents of Duluth. Suggestions will be received until June 25 and the committee will announce the result on July 1.

Suggestions should be addressed to the secretary of the Duluth Commercial club, giving the name of the person originating the phrase, but the secretary will submit the list of phrases to this committee without the list of the names originating them. In this manner the committee desires to make an award on the merits of the phrase absolutely uninfluenced by the knowledge of its origin.

To give an idea of the essential requirements of the phrase a short history of the movement is in order: In some manner advertise Duluth and its advantages in a short concise way, such as would attract the attention in some manner advertise Duluth and its advantages in a short concise way, and fix the interest of any prospective investor. It is felt to be especially important that any investor seeking a new location should be impressed with such advantages as Duluth can offer and if the first interest can be aroused by a short concise statement, it may lead to the establishment of an industry profitable to Duluth. Very few people will read, unless especially interested, the statistics or a minute description of the advantages of any commercial point. Chicago has adopted a typical figure with the motto "I Will" and this is used freely in all its advertising matter, and especially in cartoons representing that city. The question presenting itself is, is it possible to originate in Duluth a short phrase which will express something which it is desired the outside world should know and express it in such a way that no one can fail to comprehend the meaning at a glance?

The committee has limited the consideration of any phrase to those containing not more than ten words, but brevity is a very important part of such a phrase. Any one person can submit more than one suggestion if they so desire.

The committee has been authorized to offer a small prize of $5 for a successful phrase, but depends more upon the local pride which would be taken in a successful competition of this sort to stimulate every class of citizen of Duluth to strive to evolve such a phrase as will meet their requirements. It would be an honor alike to a school child and to a business man of large interests to successfully typify the progress and advantages of Duluth in this manner.

The Dead Body of Shaw Is Found.

Idaho City, Idaho, June 6.—The body of George Shaw was found on Crane creek with a bullet through his body. He had been missing since Monday and a party had been in search of him. It is supposed he was shot accidentally, as his revolver was lying about twelve feet from him and there were evidences of his having struggled on the ground after being shot.

Business University Happenings.

W. C. McCarter has returned from an extensive Eastern tour. During his absence he visited the leading commercial colleges in Chicago, Ill.; Cleveland, Ohio; Cincinnati, Ohio; Detroit, Mich.; Buffalo, N. Y.; Saginaw, Mich.; Toronto and Hamilton, Ont.

Two additional men teachers have been engaged for the beginning of the fall term, Sept. 7, and it has been decided to put in a special course in advertising.

During the past month forty-three applications have been received at the college office for young men graduates of the commercial and stenographic departments of the school. In response to these applications nine young men were recommended and thirty-four good paying positions offered were not filled, as we had not the graduates to fill them. As these positions are worth from $40 to $65 a month to begin, and are offered by the best business firms of the Northwest, with excellent opportunities for advancement, they certainly ought to be an incentive for ambitious young men to prepare themselves for the business world at this institution.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer one hundred dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address

TWO OPERATIONS

First You Must Cure the Grip, Then Banish Its After-Effects.

"I was worse after the grip had gone than I was when I had it," says Mr. J. L. Hamalle, proprietor of the Cosmopolitan hotel, at No. 115 South Madison avenue, Peoria, Ill. Many others who are still suffering from the effects of an attack of the grip will appreciate the statement. Mr. Hamalle continues: "The disease left me in bad shape. I had night sweats, sleep did not refresh me, I could not eat, grew weak and had severe chills. Then, worst of all, rheumatism set in and nearly crippled me.

"After spending considerable money for medicines that only made me worse, I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. Then I began to improve and by the time six boxes were taken I was well and strong again. Since then I have always kept Dr. Williams' Pink Pills on hand and my family has taken them at various times, always with good results."

After every attack of grip the health is shattered—the blood becomes poor, the flesh falls away, the sufferer grows irritable, and even slight exertion causes shortness of breath. These are dangerous symptoms and indicate that the system is in a state that invites pneumonia, bronchitis or even consumption. A specific, however, has been found which not only will quickly restore the health after an attack of the grip and expel the lingering germs but, working through the blood, will render the system proof against the disease. In hundreds of cases it has been shown that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People have accomplished this result. The power of these pills in the vast number of diseases due to impure blood or to derangements of the system, has been demonstrated in thousands of instances. No one who is suffering can rightfully neglect this way to restore health.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are sold by all dealers, or will be sent postpaid on receipt of price, 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, (they are never sold in bulk or by the hundred) by addressing Dr. Williams Medicine company, Schenectady, N. Y.

ST. CYR KILLS HIS PARTNER

Mining Engineer of Repute In a Tragedy In Idaho.

Weiser, Idaho, June 6.—Word has reached this city of the killing at Lardo, about 100 miles from here, of Harry Emmons by H. M. St. Cyr, a mining engineer and expert of almost national reputation.

Emmons and St. Cyr were partners in a hotel at Lardo, on the Payette lakes. There were no witnesses to the tradegy except Mrs. St. Cyr and a Finn girl, who cannot speak English. St. Cyr went to the Meadows, in this county, and stated he had killed Emmons; that Emmons had shot him three times before he fired a shot.

A party immediately went to Lardo to investigate. They found Emmons lying on the floor covered with blood and St. Cyr's revolver lying beside him with three chambers empty.

St. Cyr says the trouble originated over the settlement of the property, the men agreeing to dissolve partnership. They divided the property and next day Emmons came back and attempted to take away a team and harness against St. Cyr's remonstrance and fired three shots before St. Cyr returned the fire.

FOR THE LOVE OF A WOMAN

Young Harry Rowe's Sensational Suicide at Fort Barton.

Fort Benton, Mont., June 6.—Harry Rowe, 23 years old, son of James Rowe, one of the oldest and wealthiest ranchmen in this section, shot himself through the heart with a 44-caliber revolver while standing on the Missouri river bridge, and died instantly. The suicide was the result of an infatuation for a woman of the lower world, who was beside the young man when he took his life.

Harry Rowe had a bright future before him. His father's wealth would soon have been at his disposal, and a good business was ready for him. A year ago he met Georgie Bryan, and from that moment his fate was sealed, as he fell desperately in love with her. He pleaded with her to leave her wayward life and become his wife. This she promised to do, it is said, but later decided to remain where she was.

Thursday night Rowe went to the resort and asked her to go out with him. The two walked down to the river and out on the bridge. What passed between them there is not known, as the woman refuses to speak. Shortly afterward the sound of a shot drew an officer to the scene, and Rowe was found dead with a bullet in his heart, while the woman was crouched in terror at his side. She, too, tried to commit suicide, but was restrained.

The young man's parents were overcome by the nature and surroundings of their son's death, and the affair has created a decided sensation.

SOCIETY SET IN THE DRAMA

They Will Present "The Charity Ball" Assisted By G. A. Forbes.

One of the chief society events of the early summer will be a presentation of the society drama, "The Charity Ball," by a number of the prominent society men and women of Duluth. They will be assisted by G. A. Forbes, recently leading man at the Metropolitan theater, who will play the part of Rev. John Van Buren, a character in which Mr. Forbes has made the greatest success of his career. This will be Mr. Forbes' farewell to his many Duluth admirers, as he will leave shortly for his home in Toronto, where he will spend the summer. The play will be put on at the Lyceum for a special matinee June 19, and will be made a great society event.

The last time "The Charity Ball" was presented in Duluth was by the Frohman company, about eight years ago, and it has never been forgotten. It is one of the most beautiful of the society dramas, and not only the society people, but the theater-goers of Duluth will be delighted with an opportunity of witnessing it.

The piece calls for elaborate furnishings, and the ladies will exploit some wonderful new creations in stunning gowns. The scene, which is laid at the ball given at the Metropolitan Opera house, is a sumptuous one.

Among the well known people who will take part in the production is Miss Elizabeth Frazer, and this will be the first time she has appeared in dramatic work. She will play the part of Mrs. De Pyster. Miss Wylie, the well known reader, will play Phyliss Lee. Miss Edith Harcourt-Lees will play the beautiful part of Ann Cruger. N. S. McCormick, Leslie Hubbell, Joseph Cook, L. D. Kitchel, Clinton McCormick, Gilbert Cutler, James Morrison, are some of the men that will assist. The full cast will be announced later.

The Beginning of Trouble.

A disordered stomach may cause no end of trouble. When the stomach fails to perform its functions the bowels become deranged and the liver and kidneys congested, causing numerous diseases, the most fatal of which are painless, therefore the more to be dreaded. The important thing is to restore the stomach and liver to a healthy condition, and for this purpose no better preparation can be used than Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. Paine's Celery Compound

Opened Up a New and Happy Life For a Lady Who Suffered Intensely From Nervous Prostration and Sleeplessness.

As summer advances we are too prone to neglect the little ills and the warning symptoms of disease, simply because we are not suffering acute pain. It is a well-known fact that in summer we too often neglect the necessities of the system. Never forget that sleeplessness, nervousness, headaches, back and sideaches are forcible reminders of fatal diseases. We should therefore at this time grapple with the trivial aches and pains by using Paine's Celery Compound, the great blood purifier, nerve bracer, digestive regulator and system builder. Today tens of thousands are using Paine's Celery Compound with marvelous success, fortifying the system for the weakening effects of the hot weather. Mrs. H. L. Moore, York Harbor, Me., says:

"One year ago last spring I was taken with nervous prostration. I was in such a condition that for six months I did not sleep any to speak of. I tried various kinds of medicines, but got no relief. I was induced by a friend to try Paine's Celery Compound, which, thanks be to God, has done me more good than all the medicine I have ever tried. My trouble was so bad at times I did not care to live. Now I am well and strong. I cannot say too much in praise of Paine's Celery Compound."

SESSION IS SNAPPY

Lively Time Develops at Ordinarily Prosy School Board Meeting.

Dr. Codding Intimates That Superintendent Leaked on a Report.

Jarring discord broke in upon the calm, peaceful serenity of the school board last evening when Dr. C. L. Codding, chairman of the committee on buildings and grounds, became incensed at some remarks of Director Washburn, and asked to be allowed to resign his place on the committee.

The remarks of Mr. Washburn which were so distasteful to Dr. Codding were called forth by the report of the committee on buildings and grounds recommending certain improvements in the school buildings to be made during the coming summer. The improvements recommended called for an outlay of several thousand dollars, and no sooner had the report been made by Dr. Codding than Director Washburn had the floor and was arguing against the proposed expenditures. In his arguments he showed a thorough familiarity with the report of the committee, which led Mr. Codding to believe that he had in some manner anticipated it and made investigations in order to be thoroughly conversant with the matter.

When Mr. Washburn had completed his arguments, Dr. Codding noted the familiarity of Director Washburn with the report and hinted that perhaps the superintendent of schools was responsible for it. He was immediately taken to task by Superintendent Denfeld, and asked if he meant to imply that the superintendent had given away any information. Dr. Codding admitted that he did, whereupon the superintendent emphatically denied doing so.

Director Salter rose and took Dr. Codding to task for using unparliamentary and ungentlemanly language, and the incident was closed for the time being by the chairman calling the meeting to order.

The discord showed itself again when Dr. Codding expressed a desire to resign from the committee on buildings and grounds, saying: "I have no more time to devote to the committee of which I have the honor of being chairman. My work is evidently not satisfactory and I ask to be relieved."

The president was unwilling to entertain such a request, saying that no fault had been found with the manner in which Dr. Codding had performed his duties, although he stated that he could sympathize with Dr. Codding in the present instance, having served on the committee for several years himself.

Director Washburn, in his comments on the report of the committee, picked out several items which he thought unnecessary, such as the painting of the frames and sashes of the high school at an expenditure of $350. He pointed out the need for economy on the part of the board in order that a further call for money would not be necessary in the fall.

"The recommendations made here," he said, "call for an expenditure of $9000, which may easily mount up to $14,000 or $15,000 before the repairs are completed.

"I have never made any personal reflections on any member of this board and will not stay here long enough to do so. I have only asked that the expenses be laid over until the next meeting in order that we may have an opportunity to investigate and see what is absolutely necessary to be done to the school buildings."

Director Salter supported Mr. Washburn in advocating a reduction of expenses wherever possible.

Director Moe also favored keeping down expenses as much as possible, but thought that necessary repairs were no economy.

The matter was finally laid over until the next meeting of the board.

The matter of the smoke nuisance at the Endion school was referred to the committee on buildings and grounds with instructions to obtain some device, if possible, for abating the nuisance.

The report of the superintendent of schools showed a total enrollment of 11,109 against 10,900 at this time last year.

Insurance Adjusted.

An adjusment of the insurance on the Seafield mill, which burned on Superior bay front several weeks ago, has been effected. The total insurance carried was $66,000, and settlement was effected on the basis of 80 per cent, the proprietors of the mill property receiving $53,000 for their loss. The matter of rebuilding the mill is still undecided. Intimations have been made recently that if the mill is not rebuilt it will be replaced by a temporary structure, built by the Hines Lumber company, which will do its own sawing.

GET RAISES IN SALARIES

Two Officials Are Advanced By County Board —Other Matters.

At the meeting of the board of county commissioners yesterday afternoon the salary of V. A. Dash, deputy clerk of court, was increased from a $3 per diem basis to $100 per month. The salary of Deputy Sheriff John Wesenberg was increased to $85 per month. In both cases the action was taken at the request of the heads of the departments.

The commissioners considered the petition for a new school district in Solway, and finally denied it. The Solway petitioners wanted twenty-four sections in Hermantown and twelve sections in the Midway district included in the new district. There are two school buildings, however, on the land it was proposed to bring into the new district and the law provides that not more than one school shall be taken from a district in a division. The Solway people were willing to concede section twelve to Hermantown.

The commissioners postponed action on the application of Fred Faber for a license to open a saloon on the northwest quarter of the northwest quarter of section 36-50-15. A protest against the proposed saloon was made by the Twoby-Killen Logging company, on the ground that the saloon would be demoralizing in its influence on the men employed by the company and at the Stevens mine. The protesters claimed that there was no police protection, and the nearest officer resides five miles from the location. Grant & Hawes were granted a license to start a saloon near the Wallace mine, notwithstanding the protests of numerous Buhl residents.

Sheriff Butchart reported that his office has, up to June 1, collected about $2700 of delinquent personal property taxes and asked that the time of getting the balance be extended until July 1. The request was granted.

THINGS TO KNOW

About Coffee and What It Does.

"Being a very hard worker and of an extremely nervous temperament I fell into the habit of making coffee do for both food and drink when my work was pushing me and my appetite poor," says a trained nurse.

"This I would do for a day or two and then be prostrated with heart trouble, fluttering, faint spells and other disagreeable feelings. One day I was persuaded to try Postum Food Coffee and N found I could drink as much of it and as often as I wished, and instead of knocking me out as coffee used to I steadily gained strength. I had no more trouble with my heart, no more bloating, and no more stomach sickness for all time. I will stick to Postum and be well in the future.

"My mother had been a great coffee drinker from her youth and had suffered all of the minor coffee ills such as stomach trouble, heartburn, severe headaches, etc. She tried Postum, but did not make it right. Then I made some for her, boiling it fifteen minutes and did not tell her what it was; she wanted to know what brand of coffee it was that was so delicious. I had taken it out of her own box of Postum and when I told her so, she was much surprised and pleased and has been drinking it ever since with the result that her coffee ills have disappeared and she is now healthy and contented.

"One of my patients (I am a trained nurse) is a great sufferer from ulcerated stomach and sometimes she does not eat a mouthful of food for several days. At such times she relies on Postum for nourishment. Since using Postum she gets over her attacks much quicker, is stronger and the attacks are less frequent than formerly. Her stomach seems to be getting better and we are quite certain that Postum will soon cure her completely.

"Another patient is a splendid example of what Postum will do. Her health had been very bad for three years and a year ago she was a wreck from nervous prostration and the worst form of dyspepsia, bloating, heart trouble, etc. I made her leave off coffee and all other drinks and gave her Postum and she improved immediately. She is now able to attend to her home and says that Postum has given her a new lease of life. She feels like a new woman and is getting fat.

"I must tell you of one more case, a person I nursed through what the physicians termed a morphine breakdown. This woman's stomach revolted at sight or mention of food and she took absolutely nothing but strong coffee. I knew her heart would not much longer stand up under coffee and I told her husband to get a box of Postum. I made it strong for her and in less than a week she could take all necessary food and not once was Postum refused and now after three months she is well and strong and is kept so by her steady use of Postum in place of coffee." Name given by Postum company, Battle Creek, Mich.

SECULAR SHOTS AT PULPIT.

Louisville Courier Journal: Rev. Newell Dwight Hillis loudly proclaims his willingness to make up Booker Washington's bed. No objection is heard. Making up Booker Washington's bed is more commendable employment than stealing Henry Ward Beecher's writings.

Indianapolis News: If the Presbyterian ministers of Los Angeles indorse the Woman's Christian Temperance union resolutions that ministers should not stay at hotels where liquor is sold, it is supposed that they will hereafter travel with tents prepared to camp out in the public parks.

Buffalo Express: The decisive majorities given by the presbyterians on the amendments to the confession of faith show how large was the sentiment in the Presbyterian church in favor of the revision. The stated clerk of the General Assembly reports that all of the eleven amendments have been adopted by an almost unanimous vote. No one amendment received less than 195 votes in favor, or more than 9 against.

Kansas City Star: The rector of St. Paul's Episcopal church in Oshkosh is about to open a restaurant just to prove to the public that it is possible to elevate the standard of such an institution to a level worthy of the best patronage. Almost anything is likely to happen in Oshkosh, though as a matter of fact, there are plenty of people who might be benefited by a decent restaurant who could never be reached through the influences of the gospel.

Chicago Record-Herald: That the inadequacy of ministers' compensation in the days of vigor and power must finally impose a heavy burden upon the churches was shown by Dr. Agnew of the board of ministerial relief in his report to the Presbyterian assembly at Los Angeles. The remarkable statement was made that only 2500 Presbyterian clergymen get as much as $1000 a year salary. The other 5000 pastors in this one denomination get an average of $600 a year. A board of ministerial relief has upon its roll at this time 993 names, some the names of worn-out ministers, others of widows and orphans of ministers. For the support of these the church contributed $232,365 last year. "It is not reasonable to suppose that the conditions in other denominations are very different. The ministry is a vocation that calls for higher standards of scholarship and greater capacity for leadership and sacrifice than ever before. As the worn-out preachers who have saved nothing must go upon the roll of annuitants and add to the burden of the churches, would it not be better to pay them larger salaries in the days of their greatest power and usefulness?

The Hamburg-American line steamship Deutschland, after being stuck in the mud off the Hook for nearly twenty-four hours, was worked free at high water late Friday and proceeded to sea. It took the combined efforts of several other vessels and its own powerful screws to get the Deutschland into deep water.

Petitions filed some time ago for rehearing the cases testing the eligibility of Governor Beckham to re-election and by Committeeman Meacham to restrain the holding of the recent state primary election were overruled by the court of appeals. This finally disposes of the cases.

A traction car on the Wildering branch of the Pittsburg Railway company jumped the track Friday night near the Glenwood bridge and all of the sixteen passengers aboard were hurt. None of them were injured seriously. The car landed within three feet of the Monongahela river.

The laundry strike, which was begun on May 1 in Chicago, was settled Friday night and the strikers will return to work on Monday. All grievances are to be submitted to a board of arbitration, consisting of three representatives of the employes and a like number of the owners. These six are to choose a seventh member. Both sides have signed the agreement and the decision of the board is to be final.

The appelate division of the supreme court of New York handed down a decision affirming an order of the lower court, denying a motion for a peremptory writ of mandamus to compel the reinstation of Camille Weidenfeld as a member of the New York stock exchange. Weidenfeld was suspended for a year because of his connection with the Peter Power Northern Securities case.

Accurate Treatment Of Men's Diseases

I guess at nothing. My understanding of men's diseases is so sufficient that I have no need to resort to guess work. To men's diseases alone I have devoted my entire attention for many years. I have closely studied them in every possible phase and complication. I believe there is no case that I cannot accurately diagnose. My diagnosis is the foundation of my treatment. It determines the course to pursue. As the cure progresses I carefully note developments and vary the remedies accordingly. I employ original and distinctive methods of treatment, but they are not set methods. They are pliable to meet the conditions in individual cases, and their use calls for the most delicate prescribing. That they are correct, scientific and rational methods is conclusively proven by the cures they produce.

The longest established, most successful and reliable specialist in diseases of men, as medical diplomas, licenses and newspaper records will show.

"WEAKNESS"

That disorder commonly known as "weakness," has for years and generations baffled the efforts of physicians, yet to this very day a majority of doctors are attempting to overcome it by methods that have been in constant use and that have constantly failed for half a century. They dose the system with powerful stimulants and tonics calculated to restore nervous forces or strength that is not and never has been lacking, with a result that the functions are temporarily excited to the positive detriment of the patient. Weakness, we will call it such for convenience just now, is only a symptom resulting from a chronically swollen and inflamed prostate gland, and is curable by local treatment only. Either early dissipation or some improperly treated contracted disease is responsible for the inflammation in most instances, though accidental injury, strain, etc., may produce the same result. I have permanently cured thousands of cases of prematureness, loss of power, which demonstrates the absolute accuracy of my understanding and treatment of the disorder. In years i have not met with a single failure, and I have entire confidence in my ability to cure all cases that come to me for treatment other than that which I have perfected can completely and permanently restore strength and vigor.

CONTRACTED DISORDERS

To but partially cure a contracted disease is almost as dangerous as to allow it to go untreated. Unless every particle of infection and inflammation is removed, the probability exists that the disease will gradually work its way into the general system. .ill greater is the danger of the prostate gland becoming chronically inflammed, which always brings partial or complete loss of power. Perhaps 25 per cent of the cases of so-called "weakness" are a direct result of some improperly treated disease. During the past five years I have treated over 6500 cases of contracted disorders and have effected an absolutely thorough and safe cure in each instance. There have been no relapses or undesirable developments whatever and my patients have been cured in less time than other and less thorough forms of treatment require in producing even doubtful results.

VARICOCELE

Many men afflicted with varicocele are endangering their general health, their manly power and even life itself by allowing the disorder to remain uncured. Varicocele results from partial paralysis of the delicate nerve fibres that have a part in controlling local circulation of the blood. The muscular coating of the veins being deprived of nervous communication and control, become inactive, weaken and relax. The blood vessels expand from the pressure within, the circulation in the parts become sluggish, and frequently stagnant pools form in little nooks and pockets that constantly enlarge as the relaxation continues. The possibility exists that clots may form in these stagnant pools and then pass out into the general circulation. Should one find lodgment in the valve of the heart the result might be instant death, or should it be carried to the brain, general paralysis will follow.

I guarantee to cure varicocele in one week by a method that involves no cutting or ligature, or caustic. No other physician employs a like method, and so thorough is my work that there need not be the slightest fear of a relapse into the old condition. Those who have been long afflicted with varicocele will never realize the injury it has caused until they feel the vim, energy and buoyancy of spirits that a complete cure will bring.

STRICTURE

My treatment for stricture removes the necessity for surgical operations, even in severe cases of long stanuing. I do no cutting or dilating. No other physician employs my methods of overcoming this disorder, so the service I offer you is original and distinctive. Do not give up hope because others have failed. I will cure you and the cure will be a prompt and painless one. My treatment dissolves the stricture and permanently removes every obstruction from the urinary passage, subdues all inflammation, relieves all irritation or congestion that may exist in the kidneys or bladder, reduces enlargement of the prostate gland and restores to health and tone all organs affected by the disease.

SPECIFIC BLOOD POISON

I permanently cure this most hideous of all blood diseases. I employ harmless, blood cleansing remedies that positively drive the very last taint of virus from the system, and every symptom vanishes to appear no more.

DUN'S WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW

Elements Provided Most Favorable Developments of Week.

New York, June 6.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says: The elements provided the only unfavorable developments of the week and while these many not prove far reaching in thir effect, their first result is seen in greater conservatism. Dispaches regarding trade conditions at the leading cities are generally encouraging. Railway earnings in May were 12.7 per cent larger than last year and 25.4 per cent greater than in 1901. There is still an inclination to defer the placing of contracts for iron and steel. The United States Steel corporation has bought 105,000 tons of pig iron, chiefly for delivery during the third quarter, but the recent readjustment of quotations has not stimulated general activity in the industry. On the contrary, there is still hope of further concessions and buyers are disposed to get the full benefit.

Importations are no longer encouraging and domestic producers are prepared to accept more export orders than was possible when home markets were under great pressure.

Railway improvements and extensions are again under consideration and much more work will be done when confidence is restored regarding the labor situation.

Textile industries show no material improvement. Sellers of cotton goods are unwilling to accept contracts for distant delivery and for immediate business there is little disposition to accept the prices offered. Interior trade reports are less favorable. Western business being affected by floods, while droughts at the East and numerous strikes restrict consumption. Conditions as to woolen goods are practically unchanged. Prospects continue bright in the footwear industry. The average of domestic hides is again higher and Colorados sold on a par with native steers.

Failures this week in the United States, 182 against 206 last week, 119 the preceding week and 218 the corresponding week last year and in Canada 24, against 7 last week, 14 the preceding week and 16 last year.

Stop Taking Drugs.

Why should you take them when they are not doing you any good? Stop and think for yourself. In what way can a strong, corrosive drug impart health and strength?

Have the cause of the trouble removed and you will find that the effect will stop in short order. Dr. Riesland, at 206 East First street, does that by replacing the misplaced vertebrae in your spine, and in that way relieves the pressure that is on the nerves through which nature runs the human mills.

TO CHANGE PLANS

Bids on Stiff Truss and Suspension Aerial Bridge to Be Asked.

Chicago Concern Expected to Bid on the Turner Plans.

At a meeting of the municipal bridge commission today City Engineer Patton was instructed to make such changes in the original plans and specifications of the aerial ferry bridge as will admit bidding on structures or stiff truss and steel cable suspension designs.

The original plan under which the contract was awarded the Duluth Canal Bridge company was only for a bridge of stiff truss construction, and the change authorized by the bridge commission will undoubtedly result in a wider range of bids.

As soon as Mr. Patton's new plans and specifications are submitted the bridge commission will advertise for new bids, and it is said that a large concern near Chicago will submit a bid on plans prepared by C. A. P. Turner, of Minneapolis.

In general appearance the plans of Mr. Turner are somewhat similar to the contract drawings of the Duluth Canal Bridge company, and, like it, the structure is of the stiff riveted type. The trusses are of the double system Warren type with sub-verticals, a better and more economic arrangement than that presented in the contract plan of the Duluth Canal Bridge company. The capacity of the car is sixty-two and one-half tons live load, and the traveler is designed to withstand wind pressure of fifty pounds per square foot, or the wind blowing at 100 miles per hour.

The car, which would have an 18-foot roadway for teams and electric cars and a cabin 50 by 7 feet for passengers, is propelled horizontally by a wire rope drive operated by electric motors of the street railway type on the car. The cost of the proposed bridge is within the amount authorized, $100,000.

Bank Robbers Sentenced to Four Years In Prison

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Sioux Falls—John Abbott and James Burus, who were sentenced at Gann valley, to terms of four years each in the penitentiary, were convicted of attempting to rob the Bank of Buffalo county, at Gann Valley, on Oct. 9 last. A Minneapolis safe expert was afterwards called to open the money chest and everything was found intact and unharmed.

Salem—Omega council of Royal and Select Masters was instituted by Park of Sioux Falls, and the following officers elected: Thrice Illustrious master, A. C. Biernatzki; deputy, W. W. T. Ellis; principal conductor of work, W. E. Lang; recorder, W. A. Nye; treasurer, C. M. Serles; captain of the guard, J. E. Patten; conductor of the council, E. H. Wilson; steward, J. C. Schmidt; sentinel, N. Krebs. There are seventeen members.

Canistota being unable to maintain a company of the national guard, Company F, of the Second regiment, formerly located there, has been transferred here. There was a pretty fight between Madison and Salm for the company, but the boys here won out. The following officers have been appointed: Captain, Arthur Lange; first lieutenant, W. C. Sweinhart; second lieutenant, D. Pearce; first sergeant, J. H. Muhl; quartermaster sergeant, F. H. Putnam; sergeants, F. Austin, Adolph Erlesun, J. Idlcup, A. Smith; corporals, F. H. Padget, W. R. Holly, J. Frick, W. Marslin, F. Heisz; musicians, G. Mosier, B. C. Brodcrock.

Chamberlain—As a result of the bitter controversy that resulted from a change made in the running rules of the state firemen's tournament by the board of control, to bring about rival parades of uniformed firemen, Yankton, the largest team on the ground, took the train for home.

There were four entries for the hose race, Mitchell, Canton, Chamberlain and Parkston. The last named won in thirty seconds, with Chamberlain second. There were two entries in the championship hook and ladder contest, Mitchell and Chamberlain. Chamberlain won in 30 3-5 seconds. Rogers, of Chamberlain, won the championship ladder contest in three straight heats over Knoff, of Mitchell.

The chiefs' four race was won by Rogers, of Chamberlain, in eleven seconds, while the firemen's foot race was won by Latty, of Pierre, in 10 2-5 seconds. Mitchell won the wet test in 56 1-5 seconds, with Canton second. Greenaugh, of Pierre, won the assistant chief contest in 11 2-5 seconds.

Rapid City.—Measuring gauges have been placed on Rapid creek, Elk creek, Boxelder creek and the Belle Fourche river by Raymond F. Walter, of the United States geological survey, for the purpose of determining the amount of water available in these streams for irrigation under the national plan of irrigation. Two or three more gauges are to be placed in streams south of here.

A public meeting of citizens was held for the purpose of conferring with Mr. Walter as to the best means to proceed. A committee consisting of Zach Holmes, Henry Behrens and Thomas H. Daley was appointed, and has set from town in quest of the most advantageous natural reservoir sites. The people are taking a great interest in the national irrigation scheme. Mr. Walter has gone to Denver, to meet Chief Newel of the department, from Washington, and will be back in the Hills in a few days to spend the summer in his work.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Fargo—Judge Amidon has returned from St. Louis, where he has been holding a term of the United States court, and will be here for the remainder of the year. The appointment of another judge for Minnesota will release him from several weeks' work in that territory, where he has assisted Judge Lochren. The United States court will convene here June 8.

Several bankrupt cases were discharged by the judge. Among them were John H. Wynes, Wimbledon; W. E. Perkins, Deehr; P. J. Eye, Grand Forks; L. M. Comstock, Wahpeton; L. J. Bussler, Ellison; C. H. Hagert, Northwood; A. G. Prieve, Amenia; P. T. Sande, Wyndmere; J. Cook, Gratton; Martin Gorman, P. Quady, J. R. Moore, William Moore, Bowbells.

General Manager Kimberley, of the Northern Pacific, will be here next Monday to confer with the Fargo city officials regarding the water contract. For years the company had a contract with the city, and then for some time it pumped its own water. Some months ago a new contract was made with the city. It has been discovered that it costs the city more to pump the water than it receives from the company, and a notice of the termination of the contract was given. The general manager will endeavor to reach a satisfactory agreement.

The official program for the old settlers' meeting and the park dedication at Abercrombie June 17 has been issued. Many prominent speakers will be present and the occasion will be a memorable one.

Devils Lake—The announcement of the program of the Chautauqua assembly contains the names of several Minneapolis people. The musical talent is largely drawn from Minneapolis and includes the Minneapolis Ladies' quartet, made up of Miss Edna H. Hall, Mrs. T. D. Bell, Miss Mable Otis and Mrs. B. F. Pinkney. Miss Frances Bendeke, violinist, and Miss Helen Hall and Esther Osborn, vocalists.

Rev. G. L. Morrill will deliver several addresses and Governor Robert La Follette and Congressman J. Adam Bede will be speakers. Mrs. Carrie Nation will deliver the chief address at the opening June 22. Professor O. G. Libby of the University of North Dakota will give a series of talks on birds, extending over a week, several being illustrated by means of the stereopticon.

There will be a W. C. T. U. institute July 7-17, conducted by Mrs. Elizabeth Preston Anderson and Mrs. Callie M. Howe. The meetings will be in the Baldwin cottage that was a gift to the state union. A kindergarten will be conducted every morning by Misses Maude and Beulla Stevens.

There will be several dramatic performances and an interesting event will be the presentation of the famous old morality play, "Everyman," by Miss Mabelle Church as a reading.

Valley City—Charles Kernkamp, a farmer residing near Oriska, took a dose of carbolic acid by accident for castor oil. Antidotes were promptly administered and he will recover.

INTEREST HAS BEEN AWAKENED

In Canadian Reciprocity By Mr. Chamberlain's Big Scheme.

Chicago, June 6.—Walter Wellman, in a Washington special to the Record-Herald, says:

Mr. Chamberlain's big scheme for reciprocity within the British empire is acting as an impetus to those Republicans in the Northwest who have been ardently advocating reciprocity with Canada. "If Canadian trade is worth such an extreme measure in order that it shall be bound more closely by England, why is it not worth as much to us?" these men are asking. It is not only Canadian industries as they now exist that is producing that feeling, but Canadian industries as they are bound to develop in the opinion of some Republicans that cause them to desire to take time by the forelock and enact a reciprocity treaty that the Canadians would welcome and which in their judgment would be beneficial to this country as well.

The Minnesota branch of the National Reciprocity league has taken the lead in advocating such a reciprocity largely for the reason that men in that state are perhaps more interested in such a policy than any other section of the country.

"We should jump in as soon as possible and complete a reciprocity arrangement with Canada," said Mint Director Roberts. "While the British are talking about it we should act. Canada is ready to make a fair deal with us and our statesmen should improve the opportunity before it is too late."

In wheat alone the Minneapolis advocates of reciprocity believe they have sufficient argument to control the situation if there were no other reason for such action. There is now a tariff of 25 cents a bushel on wheat entering this country from Canada. That is sufficient to send the wheat in grains to England. There is no reason, it is claimed by the Minnesota people, why this wheat should not come to this country, be milled in Minnesota and then sent abroad in the form of flour. It is also claimed that if Canadian wheat were to come to the United States to be ground into flour, the result would be, with an elimination of Canadian duties on imports into that country from America that the equivalent of the wheat coming into this country from Canada would go back in the form of manufactured articles.

Eugene G. Hay, of Minneapolis, counsel of the Minneapolis league, was recently in this city charged with making a study of the past and present commercial relations of Canada and the United States. He has since submitted his report.

"I believe," says Mr. Hay in this report, "that if the business interests that are in favor of and will be benefited by Canadian reciprocity will use in the full measure the influence which they have in intelligently directed effort we will be operating under a satisfactory treaty before the beginning of the year 1905, and Minnesota will have etered upon an era of prosperity unequaled in its history."

But Hay recognizes that reciprocity has a hard road to travel in the senate. He believes, however, with the campaign that is being carried on in the states along the Canadian border, and especially in the West by those who favor reciprocity with Canada, that when the next congress meets the conditions will be more favorable for affirmative action in this respect than ever before. It is believed by those who argue for reciprocity with Canada that the more Mr. Chamberlain pushes his tariff ideas in England the more favor will that policy receive at the hands of the American congress.

BEDE PUSHING HENRY F. GREENE

For the Position on the Civil Service Commission.

Washington, June 6.—It is expected that President Roosevelt will make several appointments soon, some of them from Minnesota. Congressman J. Adam Bede, has remained until the president's return for the purpose of pressing Henry F. Greene, of Duluth, as a suitable man for civil service commissioner. It has been the president's intention to give this place to a Minnesota man. But he wants to know the man personally. However, Mr. Bede is willing to introduce his candidate to the president. Mr. Bede says that Greene is of the right color to win out in this case.

The new register and receiver at the Cass Lake land office will also be announced by the president. They have been agreed on as heretofore announced, being J. B. Jones, of Long Prairie, and Bert Oakley, of Buffalo.

Notwithstanding the efforts of Tams Bixby and Congressman Steenerson to delay matters, the general land office has made every preparation to have the Cass Lake branch opened upon the first of July.

There is still a first-class appointment in department of commerce, and it is understood that it will go to a Minnesota man.

Several members of the Minnesota delegation will confer with President Roosevelt next week. Congressman Bede and Steenerson are here now. Mr. Tawney will return soon and Fred C. Stevens, of St. Paul, is expected in Washington early next week.

THE LAKE COMMERCE.

Another illustration of the great prosperity of the country and the unprecedented growth of commerce is found in the immense volume of traffic that passed through the Sault canals during the month of May just ended. The total freight tonnage to and from Lake Superior during the month is the greatest in the history of the canal, not only the record for May being broken, but the traffic exceeding that for any single month since the canals came into existence. The freight carried in May through the canals reached the enormous total of 5,188,017 tons, which is more than the total for the whole season of navigation in 1886, and more than three times the total for the whole of 1881. The traffic last month was 762,358 tons in excess of the corresponding month last year, and, with the April traffic included, the season to date shows 74,963 tons in excess of the same period last year.

Should this increase in the volume of traffic continue at the same rate during the succeeding months of the present season of navigation, 1903 will be the greatest year known in the canal's history. The total freight traffic of 35,961,146 net tons for the navigational season of 1902 is the maximum for any one year, exceeding the traffic of the preceding year by 7,558,081 tons, or 27 per cent. If there should be a similar gain in percentage this year, 1903 will show a total traffic of about 45,000,000 tons. It is doubtful, however, whether this total will be reached, as the rate of increase in May is unlikely to be maintained in the coming months, and the season of navigation in 1902 was the longest yet on record, continuing for a period of eight months and twenty days.

Phenomenal has been the growth of the Lake Superior commerce during the past half century. The estimated amount and value of articles which crossed the portage at Sault Marie in 1851, to and from Lake Superior, was 12,600 net tons, valued at $1,675,000. In 1861, a decade later, the traffic through the state locks was 88,000 net tons, valued at $6,060,000; in 1871, 585,000 net tons, valued at $13,000,000; in 1881, through the state and Weitzel locks, 1,567,741 net tons, valued at $30,000,000; in 1891, through the Weitzel lock, 8,888,759 net tons, valued at $128,178,208; in 1901, through the Weitzel, Poe and Canadian locks, 28,403,965 net tons, valued at $289,906,865; in 1902, through the same three locks, 35,961,146 net tons, valued at $358,306,300. The average value per ton of freight carried last season was $9.96. The total amount of freight transportation was $25,566,189, and the average cost per mile per ton was .89 mills, which shows of what great value the great lake waterway is in cheaply transporting freight between the East and the West. This low cost does not altogether represent the effect of the waterway on transportation rates. It must be also remembered that the competition of the water route has had a powerful influence in reducing railroad freight rates between the East and the West. It has been estimated that the waterway of the great lakes effected a saving last year between producers and consumers of $143,500,000 on the freight transported by water. How much more it was instrumental in saving to the people by the competitive effect on railroad rates it is impossible to estimate, but it must have amounted to many millions of dollars. The total expenditures of the government on the waterways and harbors on the great lakes have not exceeded $40,000,000, so that it has certainly been a paying investment. With the great increase in the volume of traffic there must be further widening and deepening of channels and harbors, and congress cannot make any other appropriation that will be of as much benefit to as large a section of the country. The growth of this traffic and the saving in the cost of transportation effected should be and is a powerful argument in favor of the federal government undertaking the creation of a deep waterway from the great lakes to the Atlantic which would permit ocean-going vesels to load grain at the elevators in Duluth and other lake ports and carry it direct to Liverpool without breaking bulk.

BONDS AGAINST LOSSES.

While in the case of the heads of departments like Machen's it is doubtful whether the government can recover the amounts devoted to the benefit of those accepting bribes, in the case of postmasters, carriers and rural delivery men, there is little chance of fraud by reason of the bonds required. Something like 40,000 letter carriers are called upon to provide bonds for the faithful performance of their duties every year, and all these securities are passed upon by the officers in the rural free delivery division. The practice of bonding letter carriers in cities was established only a few years ago, and together with the recent development of the rural free delivery system, has given rise to a new industry—that of providing bonds for this class of public servants. Dozens of bonding and security companies from all over the United States have established agencies at Washington for the purpose of securing inside information about the appointment of letter carriers on the city and rural routes in order that the favored company may get on the ground early and obtain the commission for furnishing the bond. The fee for such commissions is not large, but the business is considered sufficiently remunerative to induce many companies to employ agents to look after this work and nothing else.

The size of the bonds that postmasters are called upon to furnish varies with the amount of business transacted in the office. The postmaster who conducts a modest office at the crossroads and sells candy, shoe strings and overcoats, puts up security to the amount of $500. Postmaster Van Cott of New York, who is responsible for the handling of business worth millions, furnishes a bond of $500,000. The bond of Postmaster Roberts of Brooklyn is $240,000. That of the postmaster of Chicago is $500,000, and that of the postmaster of Cincinnati is $400,000. These bonds are of two classes, or rather, to cover two classes of business. One is furnished to indemnify the government against loss of stamps and other supplies, and the other is to cover possible losses in the money order accounts. So thoroughly protected is Uncle Sam against theft on the part of dishonest postmasters, letter carriers and other bonded employes, as well as against the ravages of fire and the elements, that he could stand losses in the postal service well up to $125,000,000 and still recover every penny of it.

It would also seem that some bond should be required as a guarantee against loss through bribes. In Machen's case letter box fasteners, used of late, could have been bought for at least $20,000 less than what was paid. The company would have got as much out of it and the country saved as much as went into the pocket of Machen. There should be a provision to guard against bribery.

MR. MOREY'S PHILOSOPHY.

There was a lot of good, sound, homely philosophy in the little talk given the graduates of the Duluth normal school Wednesday morning by C. A. Morey, of Winona, president of the normal board. There is a lot in life for anybody that can heed the few little precepts he laid down, and live up to them.

Be serene, be cheerful, be direct, be unaffected, were his simple rules for a happy life.

Serenity is a state of mind to be envied and to be sought. The serene mind does not go after things in a hurry, does not jump at conclusions, does not leap before it looks, does not wear out nerves and health of body and soul in a neck-breaking and ill-directed dash. Mr. Morey told the embryo teachers to look out for the boy that can go to sleep in school, for he is blessed with a sound constitution and a set of healthy nerves, and when he gets into the struggle of life he will be able to stand more buffeting and accomplish more work than the more wide-awake fellow that hurries himself into an early decline and a speedy grave.

Cheerfulness is a blessing to the dispenser of it and to those with whom he associates. Mr. Morey said that the life of the one that tried to keep on the sunny side of the way was worth while, even if he never accomplished another blessed thing in his existence. A ray of cheerfulness has often lighted up a dark and gloomy situation and shown a quick way out, while despondency would close down the curtains and keep the weary soul wandering in a circle of darkness. The sunny soul makes life better worth living, and the best part of it is that the spirit is contagious, and it is impossible to be downcast and solemn in the presence of the man with the smile that won't come off. So it is worth while cultivating cheerfulness.

Directness is simply elimination of waste. Orderly minds abhor waste of whatever sort, and it is such minds as these, that can recognize waste and figure how to avoid it, that are the great organizers of the commercial world. Redundancy, verbosity and discursiveness of speech are parallels to antiquated business methods. The successful man does away with them. The unsuccessful man winds himself up in a coil of them and drowsily drifts down the road to ruin. If one has something to say, the quickest way is the best, the simplest is the comeliest, the most direct is the most effective. Waste is a crime and a sin, and wasted words are the most foolish form of waste.

To be natural one needs only to be himself. When Dr. Holmes' little conceit about there being six people where two men meet is remembered, this may seem a little difficult. He said that when John and James met there were John as John saw himself, John as James saw him, James as John saw him, James as James saw himself, James as James thought John saw him, and John as John thought James saw him. But it is not difficult, after all, to avoid trying to put on, trying to appear to be what one is not. Affectations of speech, dress or manner are evidence of an unsound mind, and those who indulge in them must not expect others to trust them quite as they would people that were wholly sound of mind.

FAVORITISM IN CONTRACTS.

The investigations into the postoffice department may lead to a probing of irregularities which are alleged to exist in several other departments of the national government, which have hitherto been kept quiet from one reason and another. The general approbation with which the public has greeted the investigations already made has led manufacturers who have felt that they have not been treated right, but still have kept quiet in hope of future contracts, to make public what they consider to be gross violations of the spirit and intent of laws governing competition in furnishing supplies for the government. Formal complaint has been made to the war department about the manner in which important contracts for supplies have been let. This was made by Representative-elect Scudder of Long Island. He was accompanied by his brother, L. K. Scudder, who recently submitted a bid for furnishing a large quantity of army stockings and who brought to the attention of the member of congress the alleged questionable methods of the department. The quartermaster general buys something like 600,000 pairs of stockings every year, and it is said that one firm has had a monopoly of selling them to the government for many years past. L. K. Scudder is a member of one of the biggest stocking manufacturing firms in the country and he believes that the wording of the specifications under which proposals are submitted is such as to shut out practically every firm but the one which, it is alleged, enjoys a monopoly on this business. Representative-elect Scudder explained the matter to the Brooklyn Eagle correspondent as follows:

"The specifications governing bids for furnishing stockings to the army, through some oversight or error, have been drawn in such a way that reasonable bids cannot be put in by any concern except one which has a monopoly on the whole business. As the department is seeking competition in business of this sort, I propose to call the attention of the authorities to this condition, so that the error may be corrected. These specifications are seemingly drawn to preclude all bidders but the one firm in question. The condition is something like this: Suppose every sawmill in the country, save one, was equipped with machinery that limited the length of planks to 13 feet. Now, the government agent comes along and calls for bids for furnishing a large quantity of planks 13 feet and 2 inches in length, although there was no necessity for having the planks longer than 13 feet. Of course there would be only one firm in the country that could bid on such a specification. That represents the facts in regard to the furnishing stockings for the army. My brother's firm filed a bid merely to have a standing before the department on which to make complaint. We wish to see that the monopoly is broken up and the matter thrown open to free competition."

There is no question that many such schemes as this exist in the disposal of public patronage and the time has come when they must cease. Favoritism has long played a prominent part in all government business and many persons have been made rich thereby. The people are getting their eyes opened to these frauds and it will not be long before some radical changes are made.

PASSING OF A PLAYHOUSE.

The final ringing down of the curtain of the old Boston museum on last Monday night, will cause a pang of regret to many in the West who in their younger days were at some time patrons of that historic playhouse. As the curtain slowly descended for the last time there were tears in the eyes of many of the spectators who fully realized that the end had come. And so it had, for the next morning the ruthless hands of the workmen began demolishing the ancient and much-loved structure to make room for the advancement of modern enterprise.

When Moses Kimball founded the Museum, theatricals in Boston were not flourishing. On special occasions a great actor could draw a house, but the theater itself was under a ban, and there were many estimable Bostonians who would neither attend themselves nor allow any members of their households to do so. Here was Mr. Kimball's opportunity. He knew the latent desire for amusement which lurked even in the minds of his sedate fellow-townsmen and resolved to gratify it. Barnum admitted humbugging the people, for he said that they liked to be humbugged. Mr. Kimball recognized this principle, but preferred to let the people deceive themselves. So he discarded as far as possible the nomenclature of the theater and gave his patrons "moral entertainments" in a "picture gallery," or a "gallery of fine arts," which afterwards, in the building now pased away, became the "exhibition room." His moral dramas were divided into "parts" instead of acts, and his visitors allowed themselves to believe that attendance at the "Deacons' Theater," as the museum was called, was quite different from going to any other playhouse.

Meanwhile the shrewd manager kept abreast of the times and presented as many novelties as his competitors. He collected curiosities by the thousand, hired dwarfs and giants and bands of real Indians to keep up the reputation of the house as a museum, while on the stage he gave new plays and farces by a stock company that was unexcelled in this country. For many years a fairy spectacle was brought out each season that never failed to attract the children, while the brightest stars in the theatrical firmament shone for their elders. The name of the Boston museum became a household word throughout New England, and a stranger in the city visited the great house on Tremont street as conscientiously as he went to Bunker Hill monument.

Many of the most famous actors and actresses of the country were drawn to the stage of the Museum at one time or another, and many spent their lives within its walls. The Boston Transcript truly says: "Bostonians, both old and young, for all true Bostonians were carried beyond its portals to see their first play as soon as they could be trusted to sit out a performance, will recall many of these players with pleasure and feel that in losing the playhouse, which represents so many happy hours to them, a bit of the city itself seems taken out of their lives. The Museum has stood for all that was best in dramatic art in America, and now, on the final ringing down of the curtain, leaves behind it only pleasant memories."

PUBLIC HOUSE TRUST.

In England the public house trust has been making satisfactory advancement. Its object is to conduct places where liquors may be obtained at a reasonable price to the consumer and not provide an enormous profit to the vender. The first public house trust was organized two years ago; there are now thirty-nine such companies, covering all but six counties in England. One hundred and three houses are already under the management of trust companies; and 100 additional houses are to be taken over upon the termination of existing tendencies.

This plan promises to eliminate the worst features of the saloon, by doing away with private profit. The public house trust movement has had to contend against opposition from two different sources; from the liquor interests and from the extreme temperance party. In this country, doubtless, opposition from the latter source would be even more violent than in England. Many active workers for temperance reform would antagonize bitterly any project that involved recognition and continuation of the liquor traffic. Nevertheless, the English plan will appeal strongly to all who are not blindly committed to the prohibition-or-nothing policy.

Such a plan is needed badly in this country. Whether it can be perfected or not is yet a question, but it is to be hoped that it may be.

SMILING LINES.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: "Did he really say he loved you?"

"Well, you know he doesn't speak our language very well, but he made out to ask me how much papa is worth."

Washington Star: "Does your wife object to your smoking in the house?"

"Certainly not," answered Mr. Meekton, "I know she doesn't like it, so I never give her a chance to object."

Detroit Free Press: Husband—She is by all odds the worst cook we ever had.

Wife—I know it. But she is going to stay until we get something else.

"That's good. I didn't know but you would have to cook the meals."

Philadelphia Press: Citiman—I hear that friend of yours from Brooklyn has moved out to your town.

Cubbubs—Yes, and he's a genius. He wasn't with us a week before he had invented a combination baby carriage and lawn mower.

New York Sun: Tommy—An unmarried man leads a single life, doesn't he, pa?

Father—Yes.

Tommy—Well, then, does a married man lead a double one?

Chicago Post: "Don't you think you'd better speak to papa tonight, George," the girl suggested.

"He's just come in, hasn't he?" asked George.

"Yes."

"Well, I think I'll give him time to get his slippers on."

Washington Post: "Whatever success I have achieved," said Mr. Meekin, "I must give Henrietta credit for."

"Yes, but what have you accomplished?"

"Well," he answered after some thought "I am a pretty good hand at building a fire in the morning and seeing that the basement door is locked at night."

Thirst of Knowledge.

Illustrated Bits: "Henry," said Uncle John, who was visiting his city nephew, "who's that man in the house on the other side of the street. Every morning he stands in front of a window and shaves himself. He's done it now for three days runnin'."

"I suppose he has done it every morning for the last ten years, uncle," replied Henry.

"Has he lived there all that time?"

"Yes; and longer than that, for all I know. I've been her only ten years myself."

"Who is he?"

"I don't know."

"What does he do?"

"I haven't the slightest idea, uncle."

Uncle John put on his hat and went out. In an hour he returned.

"Henry," he said, "that chap's name is Horton. He runs an insurance office. He's worth about $700, owns that house, belongs to the Presbyterian church, has three boys an' one girl, an' he's 46 years an hour than you have in ten years. Hanged if I don't believe livin' in the city makes people stupid."

Steak All Right For One.

New York Weekly: Wife (late to breakfast)—Mercy! That cook has ruined this steak! one end is burned black and the other end is raw.

Husband (who came down early)—Tisn't burned at all—just nice and brown, that's all. The other end is a little rare, but I like it that way.

"Nonsense! "I'll ring for the cook at once."

"Cook's sick."

"Then who broiled the steak?"

"I did."

The Color Line.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

"My, but it feels good to get away from that town," said Arthur Goetz, a Minneapolis man, who travels out of Chicago, and has been in at the house for a couple of weeks.

He stepped off the Chicago train and into the Spalding hotel, yesterday afternoon, and heaved a big, big sigh, as he did so.

"That is the most inconsistent place I have been in for many moons," he said, "and I'll get an awful bump when I get some laundry work done that must be done soon, up here. I have a trunk full, and there was about as much chance of having it cared for in Chicago, as there is a chance to do beach bathing in the other place.

"The city is dirtier and sootier than it was ever before in my remembrance, and you can't get a stitch of laundry done for love or money.

"Yesterday the waiters started to go out and they lit on the place I have been going to. That shut me out, and the others in the neighborhood were so full that I decided to go without anything to eat until I got on the train. I managed to preserve life, but it was late and unsatisfactory, though better than none at all.

"All there needs to be done now, is to have the barber shops close and the shoe shiners go on a strike, and the town will be a fine place to spend a summer. You might get through the winter—but not the summer.

"I will have a laundry bill of about $35 from the looks of the amount of dress goods accummulated. And I'm not the only one. I saw a half dozen men on the train who were being charged excess baggage to get their stuff out of the town, and they said the only reason on earth they were moving was to get to some place where they could get the work done.

"I have been through several kinds of strikes, but I never struck anything just like this before, and I don't want to again. If you have enough supplies to carry you through, you keep worrying about it all along, and then after the sentence has expired it takes a few months to recover from the financial shock. This country is good enough for me, at present."

Edward F. Bishop, of Port Arthur, who is stopping at the Spalding, says that the Port Arthur and Fort Williams people are much disappointed because of the receipt of the news that the Ogilvie company, of Winnipeg, will not put up the elevator and mills this year, as had been expected.

"The trouble is," said Mr. Bishop, "that the Gamey investigation put a block in the way of all legislation at Toronto to confirm an abatement of taxes which the local municipality of Fort William had granted as a bonus to the new enterprise. It is regarded merely as a postponement, however, and it is sure to come next season."

Mr. Bishop is $5 ahead because of the modesty of the man that lost a bill of that value in the Spalding buffet. He picked it up on the floor, and whether it is because the owner objects to admitting his presence in the bar room or for some other reason, nobody has claimed it.

E. F. Krelwitz, of Aitkin, county attorney of Aitkin county, was in the city today for a short visit. In the St. Louis lobby this morning he was proclaiming the merits of Aitkin and vicinity as a fishing resort, and told a little fish story that made his hearers want to pack up and head for Aitkin at once.

"Three men went out the other morning for a half-day's fish on a little lake near Aitkin, not more than half a dozen miles away. They returned shortly after noon with sixty pickerel and forty-one black bass. The bass weighed 150 pounds, which made them average well over three pounds apiece."

After a long delay, the Spalding cafe will open for business Tuesday morning. Monday afternoon the public will be invited to look over the place, and they will find something worth looking at. Rich and handsome furniture and china have been secured, and it is said that the cafe will be the finest west of Chicago, with no rivals in the Twin Cities. The massive tables and chairs are of the famous Arts and Crafts make, and there are such features as individual candelabras, speaking tubes and telephones to the kitchen eight floors up, and a dumb waiter that makes the trip down in fourteen seconds.

Papa's Part In the Play.

Atchison Globe: In this country it is not respectable for a man's wife and daughters to work, but the harder the old man works the more he is admired. They tell cheerful stories about the old man; his little children say, "Papa is too busy to die," but that is about all he gets out of life in the way of distinction.

Dark Ages In Spots.

Baltimore American: With the German officer who assassinated a comrade for not saluting properly sentenced only to four years' simple imprisonment, and the Russian authorities undecided whether to proceed against the Kishineff rioters, civilly or criminally, the dark ages are not so far away from the Twentieth century as the number of years between the periods would lead one to infer.

MINT-JULEP TIME.

There is joy in old Kentucky,
And in other states, likewise,
There's a thirst throughout the nation,
Gigantic in its size.
We wet our lips, and smile and smile
That goes from ear to ear,
Because the good time's coming—
Mint-julep
Time
Is here!

It's growing by the brooklets,
So tender, fresh and green.
The cleanest, sweetest, useful herb
That man has ever seen.
Its tantilizing odor
Is wafted far and near,
And we're happy as the day is long,
Mint-julep
Time
Is here!

Oh, the pungent, keen aroma
Of the leaves so lightly bruised,
And the tinkle of the broken ice,
With joy our soul's infused;
And the brown and oily liquor
So old—so old and dear—
All prove the season's on again—
Mint-julep
Time
Is here!

You may talk about your cocktails,
And your other mixed drinks, new,
They're good, but they're not in it
With this delicious "brew."
For when the day is sultry,
And summer time is near,
It hits the spot! Hooray, hooray,
Mint-julep
Time
Is here!

Going After It Personally.

Philadelphia Record: Notwithstanding Mr. Roosevelt is an accidental president, he doesn't intend to take risks of accident to secure another term.

Rich Men In Public Service.

Cleveland Leader: There is a field in every city in which rich men who have retired from business or the practice of the professions can give valuable and useful service to the public. Many men are lost when they give up the pursuit they have followed while accumulating a competence. Some of them cannot contend themselves in lives of idleness; often they sicken and decline under the influences of changed conditions. All such men should offer their services to the people. There are public enterprises aside from the active administration of municipal affairs which would derive benefit from the business shrewdness and experience of such men.

Prosecuting Postoffice Crooks.

St. Louis Globe-Democrat: As a rule since its foundation the postoffice department of the United States has been honestly and ably managed. But it is evident that there are weak spots, and that abuses have crept in. A shaking up has been begun and should be pursued vigorously until a scrupulously upright administration is re-established. The persons in the department who are guilty of crookedness are not likely to appeal to President Roosevelt for indulgence. He is about the last man they would choose to deal with their cases. He is not easily deceived and his views of public duty are positive. A thorough job should be made of the postal investigation. The penitentiary is the proper place for all kinds and degree.

Out of the Mouth of a Babe.

New York Times: John J. Iris, the theatrical agent, relates this instance of juvenile precocity:

"A proud father of a young hopeful of 5 was in the habit of going out every evening after a glass of beer. The youngster soon grew inquisitive about these nightly outings, and his father used to tell him in baby talk:

"'Papa doin' out for his walkie-walkie.'

"The kid had a habit of looking out of the window to follow his father with his eyes as far as he could see. He didn't have far to look, for the man always made a bee line for the corner saloon.

"Now, this young hopeful knew more about the saloon than would naturally be expected, and one evening when company was present, one of the visitors asked him where his father was. To the great amusement of all, he replied:

"'Papa's gone out for his Milwaukee.'"

"What tide was that?"

"It was eventide, and we were sitting in the garden."

FOR CONSUMPTIVES.

Free Hospital Will Be Established In Arizona.

Denver, June 6.—The News today says plans are now on foot for the establishment of a hospital for consumptives which will be located on a site on the boundary of Arizona and New Mexico. The hospital will care for those who are unable to pay their own expenses and no charge will be made for service of any kind. Dr. Bancroft, formerly of Kansas City, is now at work on the plans for the hospital. The home will be incorporated under the national government. The present plans include the making of the president of the United States honorary president, with a board of directors comprised of the governors of all the states.

URGES FOREIGN TREATIES.

Berlin, June 6.—Fraulein Anita Augspudg, the agitator of women's rights, speaking at a public meeting in Berlin, has urged women to go electioneering in favor of treaties with foreign countries which would cheapen flour and meat. Their small household allowances she said, do not permit of higher taxes being placed on foodstuffs.

Charles Howard Could Not Save His Pal, Martin Moore.

Jury Returns Verdict of Guilty---Joined In Swindling Benning.

"Cheerful Charley" Howard's efforts to save his pal, Martin Moore, of the "big mitt" gang, from paying the penalty for his share in the fleecing of the farmer boy, Benning, was all in vain.

Yesterday afternoon the jury returned a verdict of guilty of swindling against Moore, and he will appear later to receive sentence that will place him in the same institution with his former partner in crime. The maximum penalty for the crime is five and the minimum two years' imprisonment. Howard was last evening returned to the state penitentiary to finish serving his sentence of two years and four months for forgery in the second degree.

This case disposes of two of the alleged "big mitt" gang of three Minneapolis men who are said to have successfully escaped arrest or conviction in their own city, but who came to grief in Duluth while fleecing an innocent country boy out of but $8 in a fake poker game. One of the grafters, Billy Edwards, or Edward Moore, as his name is claimed to be, is still at large with a swindling charge hanging over his head. He is compelled to keep to cover for fear of arrest for his connection with the same case.

On the recommendation of County Attorney McClintock, Judge Dibell has dismissed the cases against Gust Homming, John Saloin and Andrew Matson, who were charged with grand larceny in the first degree. It was alleged that they held up and robbed Matt Ark of about $70, but the county attorney held that the evidence against the men was hardly strong enough to warrant a conviction.

Matt Allatalla, who was indicted for carrying concealed weapons and who pleaded not guilty, yesterday changed his plea to guilty.

Judge Dibell will impose sentences some time next week.

Following are the civil cases on call for Monday: 5, 6, 7, 10, 15, 18, 22, 25, 26, 30, 32, 36, 38, 41 and 42.

The delegates from the Woman's council and Commercial club met this week in the Commercial club rooms to discuss the conditions and provisions on which shall depend the awarding of prizes in the several districts to those who have kept the most attractive lawns and yards. All agreed that something must be done to make Duluth more beautiful and beautiful.

It was decided that there should be no restriction in regard to size of lawn or premises, but that the same must be cared for by members of the household and without hired assistance; that the lawn and yard shall consist of the entire grounds, back, sides and front of the dwelling, and that originality of arrangement and ingenuity in adapting the natural conditions to enhance the beauty of the premises would be taken into consideration.

All competitors are requested to hand in their names before July 1, to Mr. H. V. Eva, secretary of the Commercial club.

The time during which lawns and yards must be kept up shall be from July 1 to August 22 inclusive. The names of successful competitors shall be announced and prizes awarded on Aug. 22, at the St. Louis county fair.

Mr. Cleveland, representing the Jewel nursery, of Lake City, Minn., announced that he would add to the prize already offered by the Commercial club, an award of $8) ($10 for each district or ward) which would consist of plants, shrubs, etc. This was accepted and decided to be given as second prize in each ward.

It was decided to ask Mr. Denfeld, superintendent of city schools, to bring the matter before his principals and teachers and the pupils in the schools.

The first inspection for the prizes to be awarded will take place during the first two weeks of July and the second during August.

AT WEST DULUTH

The Northern Pacific railway service to West Duluth was again under discussion at the meeting of the West Duluth Commercial club last evening.

A resolution was drawn up to be forwarded to the state railroad and warehouse commission at St. Paul. The resolution asks that the commission abide by its original order. It reads in part as follows:

"Not having seen the full text of the recent decision of the supreme court in the case of the state against the Northern Pacific Railway company, your petitioners do not know exactly what the court held, but it is currently reported here in Duluth that the order of the court is that the whole matter of how trains shall be run shall be left with your honorable board, and that according to this decision it is wholly within your power to determine the question as to whether the trains shall run as they do now or over the old line of the St. Paul & Duluth, as they formerly did.

"Your honorable board having originally, as a basis for the action that has been decided, made an order, as we understand, that the train service over this road should be restored to the Minnesota side of the bay, it is undoubtedly unnecessary to make any requests in the matter, as nothing has occurred that we are aware of to suggest to the commission any change from its former action, but lest pressure should be brought to bear upon your honorable board to change its former ruling, we wish to call your attention to the situation of West Duluth in regard to the matter as set forth in a petition unanimously signed by residens in this part of the city and filed with your honorable board in January last.

"The facts set forth in the petition referred to and the facts as to how West Duluth is affected by the system of train service inaugurated by the Northern Pacific company on the old St. Paul & Duluth line were not before your honorable board when you made the order restoring the service to the Minnesota side of the bay, and these facts, together with those you then had, ought surely to be sufficient to warrant the giving of our people the train service they are entitled to, and we would most respectfully pray that your honorable board adhere to the former order made against the Northern Pacific company."

W. H. Green, superintendent of the Duluth Crushed Stone works, was present at the meeting and gave a very interesting and instrutive talk on the uses of crushed rock in connection with street paving.

IRVING ALUMNI.

Banquet Is Held at the School Building.

The tenth annual banquet of the alumni of the Irving school, given last evening in the assembly hall of the school building, was a notable success. The largest attendance at any banquet given by the society is reported. The decorations were very pretty and the menu all that could be desired.

Preceding the banquet officers for the ensuing year were elected, and in this the young gentlemen of the society showed their gallantry by chosing ladies for the more important offices. The following names were chosen: President, Miss Grace Keeler; vice president, Miss Gertrude Mallory; treasurer, Reginald Graham; secretary, Miss Marie Timms.

After a sumptuous repast, toasts were offered. Miss Laumann acted as toastmistress and fulfilled the duties of the office in a very gracious manner. Alderman Barnes offered the toast to the teachers of the school, and the subject was evidently an inspiring one, judging from the flow of wit and eloquence which it called forth.

Miss Lelia Sparks proposed the toast to the gentlemen of the alumni in a brief, witty and appropriate speech. Ray Abbott had charge of the toast to the ladies of the alumni, and his speech was worthy of the subject. Harry Smith, in proposing the toast to the alumni, gave a brief sketch of the organization, and called upon the members to drink to its future prosperity. Miss Mabel de Hore delivered a stirring speech in proposing the toast to "The School," and a round of applause greeted her effort. "The Eighth Grade" was proposed by Miss Dwyer, and the future alumni were toasted in an enthusiastic manner.

After the banquet dancing was indulged in.

The committee in charge of the banquet and to whom its success is largely due was composed of the following members: Misses Gertrude Mallory, Lottie Mallory, Marie Timms, Messrs. E. G. Kreidler, Saben Forbes, R. Graham.

BURGLARS ROB SAFE.

A. H. Donald's Store on Sixty-Third Avenue Entered.

The grocery store of A. H. Donald on Sixty-third avenue was broken into by burglars last evening and the safe robbed of about $100 in cash.

The men made their entrance through a window at the rear of the store. The large outer door of the safe had been left open and the inner door was broken with a blow of some heavy instrument. The goods in the store were found to be untouched this morning, and it is believed that the robbers simply took what ready money there was in the safe and left.

Two West Duluth men have been arrested by the West Duluth police and are being held on suspicion. They were thought to have more money in their possession than they were licensed to carry. Their names are Otto Spitz and Ernest Coughlan.

CLASS ENTERTAINED.

The Graduates of Longfellow School Have Happy Time.

The graduating class of the Longfellow school was entertained last evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. N. C. Hendricks, whose son, Adelbert, is a member of the class.

The principal of the school, Miss Albright, and Miss Shield, the teacher of the eighth grade, were also present.

The house was very prettily decorated with orange and black, the class colors.

The evening was spent in music and games. One game, invented by the hostess, caused no little merriment. Sheets of orange and black tissue paper were given each guest and a prize offered to the one making the most unique article out of them. The prize was won by William Gilmore. Musical selections were rendered by William Little, Allan Scott and Adelbert Hendricks during the course of the evening. Refreshments were served and a most enjoyable evening was brought to a close by the singing of the class song.

UMPIRE WAS WRONG.

Player Batting Out of Turn, Not Out.

New York, June 6.—There will be no formal protest by Princeton, arising out of the decision by Umpire Holliday in the matter of a Princeton player batting out of turn in the game of baseball with Yale last Saturday. Capt. Winslow of Yale raised the point of the proper batsman having failed to take possession at bat, and called for a ruling by the umpire, under the National league rules. President Pulliam, to whom the matter was referred for construction of an official nature on the rule, declares that Umpire Holliday erred when he called Davis, of Princeton, out in the sixth inning for batting out of turn in the fifth. He should have called Wells, the proper batsman, out for not taking his turn at bat in the fifth inning, and should have announced this fact to the official scorer.

Houghton—Young men who are ambitious to become mining engineers will find abundant opportunity in the Michigan college of mines to win prizes and scholarships and to work their way through.

Students this year will compete for six prizes established by J. M. Longyear, of Marquette, in 1887. There are three first prizes of $75 each and three second prizes of $50 for the best treaties on "Field Geology, Its Methods and Their Application," "The Dial and the Dip Compass and Their Uses" and "The Diamond Drill and Its Uses." The papers are to be presented on Aug. 15 and the competition is open to any student, special or regular, or graduate, in any year of his study.

Besides these prizes, there are several scholarships. In memory of her husband, Mrs. Carrie A. Wright, of Ann Arbor, founded the Charles E. Wright scholarship. This consists of a fund of $1000, the income of which is used in aiding indigent students by loans.

In 1890, A. Lanfear Norrie, of New York, founded the Norrie scholarship, consisting of a fund of $10,000, one-half of the income of which yearly is paid to the support of some student whose father has worked in or been connected with some mine in the Upper Peninsula. The other half is allowed to accumulate until it amounts to $100,000, with other contributions, when it is to be used to build a dormitory under the control of the college.

The Longyear fund consists of $2500, to be loaned to the worthy students of one year's standing to enable them to complete their course of study when they are without adequate means.

TWO MORE TAKEN

Postoffice Department Clerks Are Arrested Charged With Fraud.

Got a Big Rake-Off on Contract For Mail Pouches.

Washington, June 6.—As a result of the sweeping investigation of affairs at the postoffice department, Thomas W. McGregor, clerk in charge of the supplies for the rural free delivery service, and C. Ellsworth Upton, of Baltimore, one of McGregor's assistants, were arrested yesterday on the charge of conspiracy with Charles E. Smith, of Baltimore, to defraud the government in the purchase of the leather pouches furnished the rural carriers throughout the country. Their cases make seven arrests in all since the investigation began. Other arrests are expected later.

The story of yesterday's arrests is best told in the following official statement given out by Fourth Assistant Postmaster General Bristow last evening:

"Thomas W. McGregor and C. Ellsworth Upton were arrested this afternoon upon warrants sworn out in Baltimore by Inspectors J. D. Sullivan and R. D. Simons, charged with a conspiracy with Charles E. Smith and others to defraud the United States government in the purchase of pouches from C. E. Smith, of Baltimore. The complaint sets forth that McGregor and Upton agreed with Smith to obtain for him orders for many thousands of leather pouches, such as are used by rural letter carriers. The price agreed upon was 90 cents per pouch, the actual value was less than 50 cents. Smith was to pay to them the difference between 90 and 50 cents per pouch. It is stated at the department that the actual number of pouches which were purchased exceeded 20,000, for which the government paid 90 cents each, or $18,000 in all. Smith received and retained of this for his own use $10,000. The remaining $8000 was paid to McGregor and Upton. The government could have bought the entire number of pouches from the manufacturers for $8000. McGregor was the clerk in charge of rural free delivery supplies and Upton was one of his assistants."

Inspector Sullivan is from the St. Louis division and Simmons from the Kansas City division of postoffice inspectors. McGregor has been in the postal service since 1891. He came here from Nebraska as a messenger, and subsequently was promoted to a clerkship, and finally was appointed by Mr. Machen in charge of the supply work of the rural free delivery service. Mr. Upton is a Baltimorein and has been in the postal service for thirteen years. Both the men arrested are married. They were taken in custody at the postoffice department shortly before the close of office hours. Upton asked to be taken before a commissioner at Baltimore, instead of in this city, because of his wider acquaintance there and better opportunity for securing bail. Accordingly he was taken to that city by two postoffice inspectors shortly before 6 o'clock yesterday afternoon. McGregor was taken to the office of United States Commissioner Taylor. The arrests were not made public until 6:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon owing to the time required at the district attorney's office in his city to make out the warrants, based on the Baltimore papers. United States District Attorney John C. Rose, of Baltimore, arrived here late last evening and was in close consultation in an advisory way with Fourth Assistant Postmaster General Bristow for a considerable time over the arrest.

McGregor has been under close surveillance of the inspectors for weeks, and has been subjected to a close examination for several hours a day during a part of that time. The inspectors say that yesterday they completed the evidence they wanted before taking action. Postmaster General Payne was notified of the arrival by Mr. Bristow last evening, and they had a short conference on the subject. The postmaster general was indisposed yesterday and did not reach the department until 2 o'clock. He omitted the usual 4 o'clock interview with the newspaper men, which has become his daily custom since the inception of the postoffice investigation, and sent word that there was nothing to give out, but when interrogated as to future developments, merrily responded: "One could never tell what the morrow would bring forth."

Postal officials, after the arrest, would not say whether their investigations in any way implicated Mr. Machen, who was general superintendent of the system while the alleged transactions occurred in the present matter. Fourth Assistant Postmaster General Bristow, when asked a question on this point, declined to answer, saying that the statements made in the afternoon compromises all the department cared to give out on the subject at this time.

Mr. Bristow also declined to say what action was likely to be taken in the case of C. E. Smith, the Baltimore contractor, who is named in connection with the case. Mr. Smith has not been arrested. Mr. Bristow said in reply to all inquiries. "And I cannot say anything as to whether he will or will not be taken into custody." Mr. Bristow said, however, that the two arrests close the case for the present.

BASEBALL AND OTHER SPORTS

BRILLIANT GAME

Duluth Defeats Grand Forks, Two to 1, In Pretty Contest.

McCoy's Great Throw to Home Plate Feature of the Game.

NORTHERN LEAGUE.

	Won.	Lost.	Pct.
Winnipeg	13	3	.813
Grand Forks	12	3	.800
Crookston	11	6	.647
Fargo	6	10	.375
Duluth	5	11	.313
Superior	2	13	.133

Fast playing and brilliant pitching won a sensational, sizzling, hot game for Duluth yesterday.

It was up and tuck all the way, and about 800 people that gave up the affairs of state and a little money were exceedingly glad they were there.

McCoy saved the game for Duluth by a phenomenal throw from right field, catching Brown at the plate in the third. Nothing compared with this feat has ever been seen on a local diamond. Brown had been passed to first by Gehring and advanced to second by Scharnweber's single. Cameron drove a hard one to right and Brown was coming home on the hit. McCoy fielded the ball in deep right and flashed it home. A more perfect throw can scarcely be imagined, the sphere beating the speedy Grand Forks third baseman by about four feet and retiring the side in what appeared to be the beginning of a batting rally.

On another occasion McCoy demonstrated that all good Indians are not dead yet. Mullane telegraphed a single to right—that is, it was labeled for a single when he touched it off, but McCoy came in from deep right on a dead run, catching the ball with one hand when it was scarcely six inches off the ground.

Gehring pitched a fine game for Duluth, keeping hits well scattered by superb head work, and in the ninth inning scored the winning run after driving a nice double to left. Shepard followed him to the bat and drove a hot one to Scharnweber, who fielded the ball nicely, but some old enemy of his seemed to loom up back of first base and he tried to knock his block off. Gehring scored on that throw.

In the ninth, when things were looking decidedly gloomy for Duluth, Shepard, Quillan and Kennally figured in a double play that was quicker than a streak of lightning and ended the game.

It was in this final inning that Kennally and Umpire Cusack had a hot dispute at first. McCarthy hit one hot one that could not have been fielded properly nine times out of ten, but Quillan got the ball and shot it over to first. Mr. Cusack called the runner safe. Kennally wanted to fight and the crowd was merciless in roasting the decision, but nevertheless the umpire was right. The ball beat McCarthy to the base by at least two feet, but it was a low throw, and in fielding it Kennally lifted his foot clear off the base. All of which goes to show that the umpire is better able to judge close decisions on the spot than people that are about 100 feet away. The score was:

Umpire Cusack is a man that makes a more favorable impression the more you see of him. He may have been off on some of his decisions in Thursday's game, but it is safe to say that he was nearer being right than the fans that are roasting him. Speaking of that protested game, Mr. Cusack says:

"I cannot see why the fans here imagine I am prejudiced against Duluth. As a matter of fact I admire the splendid uphill fight Duluth has been making and want to see them win, but I cannot help them any, and all my decisions are made in a spirit of absolute fairness.

"There seems to be a general misunderstanding in regard to the play in the eighth inning of Thursday's game, which the Duluth management has protested. Let me explain it. Chandler was on second and Mullane on first. Sessions hit, an infield fly, does not run and is out. Chandler on second sees Pfischer muff that fly and runs to third. There is no rule against a man's advancing a base on that sort of play, but the Duluth captain wanted him declared out. Instead of being out he was entitled to credit for a stolen base. During the dispute Mullane ran down to second from first, and I ordered him back because time had been called."

Manager Scott Karns, of Grand Forks, who has played with and managed baseball teams for thirty years, says the Duluth team is stronger than the local fans think. He cites the fact that the men have scarcely played together, while the other teams of the league, with the exception of Superior, have been at it steadily for a couple of months with very little change in the make-up.

* * *

Capt. Cole, of the Grand Forks team, made a record playing first yesterday. He had twenty put outs.

* * *

Harris proved to about the fastest fielding pitcher seen at Athletic park this year. His ten assists and five of his stops were far out of the ordinary.

* * *

Scharnweber's one handed catch of Gehring's drive in the seven was a beauty, but even at that the hard-hitting short-stop of the visitors had one of those off days that happen to the best of them.

* * *

Duluth loses a game and then Superior loses a game. Duluth protests a game and Superior protests one simultaneously. Duluth wins and Superior wins. Speaking of coincidences, there is a string for your life!

Yesterday the regenerated Superior team walloped Winnipeg in a thoroughly masterly manner. Cassibon pitched for the Superiors and held Winnipeg down to three safe hits. On the other hand, Bartos, who let Duluth down with but two hits on Tuesday, was hit for seven safe ones.

Lagger seems to be getting a fast team together, and strange as it may seem two out of the three games that Winnipeg has lost have been won by the tail-enders. Yesterday's score:

Crookston beat Fargo again yesterday in a bum bugiefest consisting of thirty safe drives for a total of thirty-nine bases. Superior and Duluth will play an exhibition game at West Superior tomorrow afternoon. It is likely that the Cardinals will try out a new left hand twirler named Morrison.

Lyons, another fast new infielder that will be given a trial, wired yesterday that the floods were delaying him but he would get here just as soon as train service out of Nebraska was established again.

ACTIVE IN TENNIS

Courts on East Superior Street Are Drawing Many Players.

Tournament For First Week In July Is Being Arranged.

Tennis has taken a firm hold on the affections of Duluth athletes and the interest in the game never was higher. The courts on East Superior street are crowded on every fine afternoon, and a number of good players are developing.

Ladies are active participants in the games and several are proving worthy opponents of their brothers of the stronger sex.

Preparations are being made for a grand tournament for the first week in July and a list of events is being drawn up by the committee in charge. The list will include open singles for ladies and gentlemen, handicap singles for ladies and gentlemen, and open doubles. The admission fee charged to the tournament will be devoted to the purchase of prizes for the various events.

The majority of the old players have been out this year and are training hard for the tournament. Carrol Graff is picked as a favorite for the winner in the open singles, although several other players are pushing him hard in practice games. Rev. Harry White has developed a whirlwind service which is dazzling opponents, while L. J. Hopkins is out after the scalps of all comers. Among the other players who are mentioned as probabilities for the winner of the men's singles are A. S. Ames, E. B. Gridley and A. L. Agatin.

The above is the standing of the clubs in the wholesale league, but it is safe to predict many changes before evening. Today is the critical date in the league, three games being scheduled to take place. The strong drygoods men will meet the Kelley-How-Thomson nine. The wholesale grocers will come together and it is certain to be no pink tea event. The druggists will meet the Marshall-Wells nine, as yet an unknown quantity and said to be a dark horse.

Interest centers in the contest between the Gowan-Peyton-Twohy nine and the Stone-Ordean-Wells team. The keenest of rivalry exists between the two teams and both are practicing at every spare moment. The Stone-Ordean-Wells team holds the first place in the league, but a win from Gowan-Peyton-Twohy would bring them tumbling down several notches in the standing. The Gowan-Peyton-Twohy team will spring a new "phenom" on the league. He is a catcher, Gardner, and comes from Ashland, where he was a tower of strength to amateur teams. He is claimed to be one of the best in the amateur business in this section of the country. At tomorrow's game, however, he will occupy the other end of the battery, Kelly catching. The line-up of the two teams will be as follows:

Stone-Ordean-Wells—	Gowan-Peyton Twohy—
Bouska	catcher Kelly
Rueck	pitcher Gardner
Langevin	first base Morgan
Harris	second base O'Rourke
Johns	short stop Sears
Ketchum	third base McCullan
Marlow	right field Gowan
Highmark	centre field Moore

* * *

The druggists will line up against the Marshall-Wells nine. The former team has lost one game while the latter has yet to make its initial appearance. There is a wealth of good material among the Lake avenue hardware men and the team which will put up in the field tomorrow is said to be a strong one. The druggists have also been strengthened since last Saturday and the contest should be a pretty one. The following will be the line-up of the two teams:

Marshall-Wells—	Leithhead Drug Co.—
Jones	catcher Hall
Trevillon	pitcher Brocklin
Berlin	first base Kerwin
McDonald	second base Schulz
Van Bleak	short stop E. Carlson
McCabe	third base Kalkbremer
Wold	right field Lilliquist
Murtinger	center field Ericsson

* * *

The F. A. Patrick team will line up against the Fifth avenue hardware men. The latter team is, like the confrere on Lake avenue, an unknown quantity, having not yet played a game in the league schedule this season. The team looks good on paper, however, and it will likely give the strong dry goods team a run for the money. The latter team occupies second place with a record of two games won out of three, having defeated Gowan-Peyton-Twohy and the druggists, but falling before Stone-Ordean-Wells. The line-up of the two teams will be as follows:

F. A. Patrick & Co.—	Kelley-How Thomson—
Cooley	catcher Campbell
Moe	pitcher Menice
Schulte	first base Davis
Larson	second base Berlin
O'Gorman	short stop O'Gorman
Feaman	third base Bennett
Tschirgi	right field Dane
Welmess	center field Eveland

Dane, of the hardware men is also a pitcher and may be worked in the box for a part of the game.

* * *

The Big Duluth and West Duluth teams will come together for the second time this season on the grounds of the latter at Fifty-second avenue west. The first game was won by the Big Duluth team and the West Duluth boys are eager for revenge. Both teams have been strengthened since their first appearance and a fast contest is assured.

* * *

The Eagles and Duluth Heights teams will also meet tomorrow afternoon at Duluth. Following is the line-up of the Eagles: Schafer, catcher; Summer, pitcher; Shear, first base; Winters, second base; Gebeau, third base; Blasing, short stop; Berlin, richt field; O'Brien, center field; Bennett, left field.

PERPETUAL INJUNCTION

Chicago, June 6.—A perpetual injunction preventing any combination of certain coal operators in Illinois and Indiana to sell their wares through one distributing agency and regulate the prices was issued by Judge Kohlsaat yesterday. This was the end of the coal case which attracted much attention last winter, when the operators were indicted. The indictments were quashed and action later begun by District Attorney Bethea in the United States court. The companies included in the case, and mentioned in the injunction, are: Crescent Coal and Mining company, Brullette Creek Coal company, Wabash Valley Coal company, Oak Hill Coal and Mining company, Coal Bluff Mining company, Glen Oak Coal and Mining company, Nevin's Coal company, Parke Coal company, Indiana Fuel company and McClellan, Sons & Co.

The settlement case was agreed on a conference in the judge's chambers. The operators had been bound by a temporary injunction since March 19 last. The order of Judge Kohlsaat sets forth tht the defendants entered into a contract to fix prices and sell, through one distributing agency, as the operators themselves admitted. The court finds that the defendants had ceased to operate under this agreement prior to the filing of the government's bill. Then, declaring that it is not the desire of the defendants to carry out the contract in future, the court orders that a perpetual injunction issue against a continuance of the agreement.

A POPULAR GAME

Lacrosse Bids Fair to Come Into Great Favor In Duluth.

Something of This Famous National Game of the Dominion.

During the past few weeks a new game has been added to the list of Duluth sports.

Lacrosse is a game but little known in Duluth and one that for years has been entirely neglected in this city. About six weeks ago a little band of lovers of he noble Canadian game got together and decided to make an effort to introduce lacrosse to Duluth. They have succeeded and the game has taken a firm hold on the true lovers of sport in the city.

Of all the games that are known to this country lacrosse is probably one of the finest from the standpoint of the spectator. The play consists entirely of open work. There is no scrimmaging during which the ball is lost from view for minutes at a time. The action is rapid, clean and exceedingly spectacular from the time the whistle blows until the game is ended.

There is probably no game which can be more dangerous to the life and limb of the player than lacrosse roughly played, and probably no game where there are fewer accidents when there exists no ill-feeling between the opposing teams. A lacrosse stick in the hands of a skilfull player may be a very deadly instrument or a very harmless one, depending solely upon the will of the player.

The game is not one suited to weaklings. Rugby football, rowing and other sports may require a greater amount of actual brawn than lacrosse, but no game tests the endurance of the player more than the Canadian national game. In fact, so trying is it upon the wind and staying powers that the time is divided into four quarters, with a rest between each instead of into halves, as is the case with most games.

As probably the majority of people know, lacrosse is handed down from the North American Indians, and is at present looked upon as the national game of the Dominion to the North.

Among the Indians the number of players was unlimited, as was the size of the field. Whole tribes joined in the game, and the fatalities of a battle between two rival tribes used to look like a list of casualties in a modern battle with Gatling guns. The goals were placed sometimes as far as half a mile apart, and a game was made the occasion for a general feast on the part of both tribes engaging in it. The stick was entirely different from the one now in use. It consisted of a wooden club, with a round and somewhat bowl-shaped end, in which the ball was carried.

The wooden club has disappeared since the game was taken up by the Canadians, and out of it has evolved a stick, between four and five feet long with a crook about eight inches long on the end. From the end of the crook to the handle is strung a network of gut, forming a triangular-shaped net. The ball used is of rather soft India rubber and very elastic.

The distance between the goals is reduced to about 200 yards and the number of players is limited to 12.

With the exception of the goal tenders the players are paired off against each other, the "home" men on the one side opposing the "defense" men on the other. There is no such thing as an off-side play in lacrosse, and the ball is thrown up and down the field at will.

Although a skilfull player can easily throw the ball down the greater part of the field, the long throws are seldom used unless by the defense, when hard pressed. The long throwing game has been replaced by the short, sharp passing game, in which no player carries the ball far or throws it any great distance. It is a much prettier game to watch, and more effective. This style of game is seen to its best advantage in the far western cities of Canada, Winnipeg, Vancouver and Victoria, also some of the eastern cities, such as Toronto and Montreal.

The game, of course, is seen at its best in Canada, where it originated. All of the largest cities boast of crack teams, Montreal, Toronto and Ottawa probaby being the greatest strongholds of the game. There, during the summer months, the lacrosse league games attract crowds of from 10,000 to 20,000 people. The games are no less society events than sporting events, and just as at the American rugby football games, the wealth and fashion of the city turn out to watch the contests.

Some of the smaller towns are no less staunch in their support of the national game. The little city of Cornwall, on the St. Lawrence river, has for years put a team in the field that has tested the powers of the fastest teams in the country.

As a college game it is less popular than hockey and football, on account of the time of year in which it is played, the spring being examination time, when studies occupy the mind of the student. Toronto university, however, has for many years supported a strong team. This team aroused considerable interest in the game among the Eastern cities of this country last year by making a tour through the Eastern states and meeting all comers. While victorious in every game, much interest was aroused, especially in Cornell university, which has since the visit of the Canadians, been endeavoring to get together a team that would compete with the men from the North, with some degree of success.

The game was introduced about ten years ago in England, where it is now thriving. Different Canadian teams toured England during the past few years and showed the Englishmen how the game should be played, and to good advantage, for several counties in England have now teams that compare favorably with the best.

In Duluth the game has a good start, thanks to the enthusiasm of the devoted few who have taken it up.

The game against St. Paul last Saturday was a brilliant exhibition for a team that had had as little practice as the Duluth men. Great things are expected of them today when they meet St. Paul in the Saintly City. The team will be practically the same as that of last Saturday, and will be chosen from the following men: Fauble, Proulx, Grant, Grimes, Wink, Sanders, Towers, Frank, Gilson, McDonald, Penfound, McMillan, Foraman, Filshie, Kennedy, Whitehead, Cargill.

These are some of the symptoms of chronic Disease of the Kidneys and Bladder: A Lame Back, Sharp or Dull Pain in the Loins, a Ropy, Milky or Brick Dust Sediment, Hot Scalding or Bloody Urine, Dribbling or inability to retain, Difficulty in starting or Pain and distress after; Dizziness, Spots before the Eyes, Palpitation of the Heart, Shortness of Breath, Puffiness of the Face or Eyelids, Swelling of the Limbs or Abdomen.

If you are suffering from any of these symtoms don't hesitate to consult a physician at once. Remember that Kidney Trouble is a fatal disease. It carries off thousands every year. This disease is little understood for the reason that few physicians will take the time to make a careful chemical analysis of the urine, and without this it is impossible to reach a correct diagnosis and without a correct diagnosis the case cannot be treated successfully. The careful manner in which I examine each case has enabled me to cure

MUST NOT INTERFERE

Federal Injunction Against Freight Handlers.

Conspiracy Against Interstate Commerce.

Knudsen & Eden, the Northern Pacific freight handling contractors, who have been having trouble with their union longshoremen, have appealed their case to the United States courts.

Judge Lochren, in St. Paul, Thursday, signed a temporary order requiring the strikers to cease interfering with the work and to appear June 15 and show cause why the injunction should not be made permanent.

The ground of the proceeding is that the longshoremen are engaged in a conspiracy in restraint of interstate commerce. The proceedings are directed against the officers and members of local lodge No. 64, of the International Longshoremen's union, and a large number of the defendants have been served.

The complaint and temporary restraining order are against Burt Benn, E. Wright, Louis Bye, David Wright, James Doyle, Frank Callahan, Thomas Doran, H. E. Pomeroy, Frank Bodine, Michael Morrison, John Burke, Fred Bixby, Harry Raymond, Frank Brandon, Ole Ness, Andrew Sheehan, William Cook, Frank Brown, William Brown, Frank Cook, Michael McDonald, Andrew Sheer, Miller, Vail, the local lodge and all its members.

The defendants are ordered to appear before Judge Lochren in St. Paul at 10 o'clock on the morning of June 15, and show cause why the preliminary injunction prayed for should not issue, and it appearing, according to the order, that there is danger of irreparable injury being caused to the complainants before the hearing of the application, the defendants are restrained from hindering the work of the complainants, which consists of handling freight from cars in the yards and at the docks of the Northern Pacific and reloading it upon vessels, and of handling freight from vessels to cars; from trespassing upon the yards and docks of the road for the purpose of compelling or inducing, by threats, force, intimidation, violence, violent or abusive language or persuasion, any employes of the complainants to refuse or fail to perform their duties as such employes; also from compelling or attempting to compel or induce any employes from leaving the service of the complainant, by any means whatever, and from compelling or attempting to compel or induce persons seeking employment to refrain from accepting employment with the complainants; also from establishing spies and pickets near the yards and docks or in the streets leading to them for these purposes; also from congregating at or near the place of work for any of these purposes and from interfering with the non-union workmen in any manner while going to and from their work, also from going to the homes and boarding houses or places of residence of the non-union men for the purpose of intimidating or coercing any or all of them to leave the employment of complainants.

The order is binding upon each and every member of the lodge who is not specifically named as defendant from the time of the actual service of a copy thereof upon Burt Benn, president, and E. Wright, secretary of said lodge. A copy, however, is to be served upon each of the parties to be restrained.

This injunction is sweeping and prohibits all forms of interference with the contractors or their non-union employes.

The complaint upon which this order is based is a long document, and sets up a long list of allegations of interference. The following is a general synopsis:

The complaint states that the plaintiff entered into a contract April 4 with the Northern Pacific for the handling of its freight from vessels to cars and from cars to vessels during 1903. The railroad connects with steamboat lines and ships large quantities of freight both ways through the port of Duluth, for which purpose it has established and still maintains extensive yards and docks.

Under the contract the plaintiffs have to furnish a sufficient number of men for the proper conduct of their work both by day and by night, as vessels arrives and depart at all hours, at night as well as by day, and the custom of the port of Duluth requires the loading and unloading of vessels at docks during the night as well as during the day in order to facilitate the prompt handling of freight. The railroad owns six docks in Duluth at which freight arrives in cars and is transferred to vessels, and vice versa. In order to properly handle the freight and comply with their contract the plaintiffs are required to load and unload the freight from vessels at night and to have men in readiness to perform that work when required.

The quantity of freight transferred at the docks of the road during the last season was about 400,000 tons, and more than 95 per cent of this amount was Interstate commerce. The plaintiffs have already handled under the contract about 50,000 tons of freight, for which they have earned more than $2000, and if they are permitted to carry out their contract they believe they will handle as much as 400,000 tons in the entire season, for which they will earn and be entitled to receive more than $2000. In order to carry out their contract and handle the interstate and foreign commerce to be carried in through the port of Duluth, they are required to employ from 100 to 500 men per day.

For more than a year last past there has existed and now exists in the city of Duluth a labor union known as local lodge No. 64 of the International Longshoremen's association, holding regular meetings, keeping a record of membership, and one of the conditions of membership is the payment of specified dues and assessments. The records of the lodge show, as the plaintiffs are informed and believe, that there has been a total membership of 400, and that there are now about seventy-five active members in good standing by reason of present residence at Duluth and payment of dues.

The members of the lodge, including the defendants, have heretofore been employed upon the docks in handling freight of the character handled by the Northern Pacific. No freight of that character was handled for the road in Duluth during this season prior to the date of the contract with the plaintiffs, and none of the defendants have ever been employed or worked for the plaintiffs. Prior to the making of the contract the plaintiffs had not been engaged in handling freight, and have not had occasion to employ longshoremen in any capacity, and have had no prior difficulty with longshoremen or union labor.

A short time after the contract was made, and before the plaintiffs had done any work under it, they were waited upon by deelgates from the lodge, and advised that the conditions of employment of members of the union by the plaintiffs would be the payment of 40 cents an hour for all labor performed by them, the employment by plaintiffs of union labor exclusively, if sufficient union labor were obtainable, and if non-union men should be employed they should be discharged as soon as a sufficient number of union men could be had; and that the work should none of it be done at night, by either union or non-union labor. It is alleged by the plaintiffs that the wages paid longshoremen during 1902 was 30 cents for similar work, which is claimed to be the rate generally paid at this time for work of a similar character, and a higher rate than is paid at West Superior, on the same harbor.

To have acceded to the demands of the union would have made it impossible for the plaintiffs to do the work required by their contract and to handle the interstate and foreign business at hand. In order to handle this business and comply with the contract, the plaintiffs thereupon proceeded to hire laborers other than the members fo the union, and they would have had no difficulty in employing a sufficient number of men who are ready and willing to work at the rate of 30 cents an hour, and to do night work when required, if unhampered and unmolested by the interference, threats, acts of violence, intimidation and conspiracy of the defendants and their associates.

Upon the refusal of complainants to employ the defendants upon the terms and conditions demanded by them, the union men, both as individuals and as members of the lodge, conspired and combined to prevent the plaintiffs from carrying out their contract and from handling said interstate and foreign commerce, and to prevent the freight carried by the road from being handled by the plaintiffs. One of the purposes of the conspiracy and combination is to force complainants to employ the defendants upon terms dictated by themselves, and in order to coerce the plaintiffs into compliance, the defendants, singly and collectively, conspire, design and threaten to prevent the plaintiffs from doing the work required by their cotract, and from handling such interstate and foreign commerce, by the employment of laborers other than the defendants upon such terms and the plaintiffs may be able to make.

In order to accomplish said purposes, the defendants are trying to prevent their hiring and keeping other laborers, and are seeking by means of physical violence, threats, intimidation and insults and persistent interview to prevent the men employed from doing their work, and by the same means have sought and are seeking to induce the plaintiffs' employes to abandon their employment. They have established a system of espionage or picketing of the place of work of the non-union men, the defendants constituting the pickets. They are accustomed to post themselves in the streets and avenues through which the workmen are required to go to get to and from their work, and whenever opportunity is offered, the defendants have tried by interviews, threats and intimidation to induce the men to leave, and have in this manner succeeded in persuading large numbers of the men to quit. On occasions when the employes have refused to comply with the demands of the defendants to leave the employment of the plaintiffs, the men have been assaulted and beaten, and their lives have been endangered by the defendants. On other occasions the men in going to and from their work in a peaceable and orderly manner, have been and are threatened with physical violence by the defendants, are addressed as scabs and called by opprobrious and vile names. Because of these acts, the plaintiffs have been compelled, at great expense, to hire men at outside points in order to get enough men to carry out their contract and bring them to Duluth. The defendants and their confederates have on different occasions waylaid the men so hired when they arrived and persuaded them by threats and intimidation to leave the plaintiffs' employment in large numbers.

Some of the defendants uncoupled a box car upon which they knew were loaded a number of non-union men, and attempted forcibly and with violence to overturn the car, but were driven off after partly having accomplished their purpose. This act was undertaken and carried out for the purpose of injuring and intimidating the men, and if successfully executed would have resulted in serious personal injury to the men in the car. For this act David Wright, Frank Callahan, Thomas Doran, H. E. Pomeroy, Frank Bodine, and Michael Morrison were indicted for riotously assembling, and by force and violence committing these acts. After pleading not guilty they withdrew their plea and pleaded guilty of the crime of unlawful assembly.

As the result of such espionage, picketing, intimidation, violence, threats, insults and interference, the plaintiffs have been compelled to establish and maintain in the private yards of the road boarding cars in which to feed and lodge their men, in order that they need not be required to pass to and from their work upon the public streets of the city, and that they may be protected and guarded from the defendants and by them induced to quit the service of the plaintiffs. To protect them they have been compelled to employ guards for the boarding houses, yards and docks. These things subject the plaintiffs to great expense, and all were caused by the conspiracy of the defendants. This expense up to this time has exceeded $2000, and if the defendants are allowed to continue in their actions the expense will be more than $3000 more.

The defendants have gone so far as to place a boycott upon the business of the Knudsen-Fergenson Fruit company, of which plaintiff Hans B. Knudsen is president, but which is not in any manner connected with the firm of Knudsen & Eden, and has no interest in the contract. They are now endeavoring to induce other labor organizations to assist them in carrying out their conspiracy.

The defendants and their confederates are now conspiring and combining and threaten to prevent complainants from carrying out their contract, and to restrain and interfere with commerce between different states and with foreign nations, and to prevent such commerce from being exchanged by the road with connecting carriers at the port of Duluth; in furtherance of said conspiracy the defendants will, unless restrained by the order of the court, continue their acts of restraint and interference with such commerce, and the acts of the defendants done and threatened have caused them great and irreparable injury, and will, unless enjoined cause the plaintiffs and the public further great and irreparable injury. The repeated trespass and acts of violence of the defendants will, if continued, lead to a multiplicity of suits. The defendants and each of them are insolvent, and unable to respond in damages to the claims which plaintiffs have against them.

Therefore the plaintiffs ask that the defendants be compelled to answer these charges, but not under oath, an answer under oath being expressly waived. The plaintiffs also asked for the injunction which has been temporarily granted.

H. J. Grannis and Frank Hicks are solicitors and of counsel for the plaintiffs.

CHARGES ASSAULT.

John H. Brigham Arrested on Complaint of J. Quackenbush.

John H. Brigham was arrested yesterday charged with assaulting John Quackenbush, a teamster living at 731 East Superior street.

It is claimed that the assault occurred Tuesday afternoon near the Catholic cemetery while the attorney was seizing the teamster's personal property to satisfy a mortgage.

Mr. Quackenbush objected to losing a wagon box which he said was not in the mortgage, and got on a wagon to pull it off. Mr. Brigham is said to have committed the assault at that time by pulling the teamster off the load.

A streak of ill-luck seems to be following Mr. Quackenbush with great persistency. Within two years he has lost ten head of horses and last fall sustained a broken leg.

Mr. Brigham entered a plea of not guilty, and the hearing will be held in the municipal court Monday morning.

PATHETIC DEATH

Child of Immigrants Dies On the South Shore Train.

Journeying From Russia To Make Their Home In America.

In a strange land, among strange people, of whose language she is entirely ignorant, Mrs. Peter Miller, the wife of a Russian immigrant, sobbed piteously this morning over the body of her little daughter Katrina, 4-years-old, who died last night on the South Shore train which reached here at 8 o'clock this morning.

Her husband and the five little brothers and sisters of the little girl refused to be consoled.

The Miller family was of a crowd of about fifty Russians who arrived here this morning. None of them can speak a word of English. A Russian interpreter was not available. Peter Miller could speak a little German, but it was hard for the railway employe who tried to make him understand when the county health officers came and took the little body of his baby off to the morgue, why it was done.

Weeks ago the Miller family, happy in the hope of what they should find in far away America, left their home in Libeau, Russia, where they had lived on a farm for years.

About two years ago, one of his sons left the old home and came to America. He settled in Richardson, N. D., and was so successful there that he kept writing home and urging the family to follow him.

The Atlantic was crossed in the steerage of a great passenger ship and the family was happy in the thought that only one day remained before they should be with their son and brother in the new home which he had prepared for them.

Little Katrina suddenly became ill and the scant conveniences of the emigrant car were not sufficient to relieve her suffering, although everything possible was done by the trainmen to ease the suffering of the little one and soothe the troubled mother.

When little Katrina died nothing could stop the pitiful sobbing of the mother or assuage the grief of the brothers and sisters.

The little body was taken care of in one of the local undertaking establishments and the party will leave at 7:30 this eevning for their son's home in North Dakota. They will arrive in Richardson about 10 o'clock tomorrow with the sad burden to spoil the joy of the meeting, which they have so long anticipated.

SUIT BROUGHT AGAINST CITY

Bridge Company Claims Balance on Tenth Avenue West Viaduct.

The American Bridge company, of New York, has entered suit against the city of Duluth for the sum of $3175.33 and interest, alleged to be due on the bridge at the foot of Tenth avenue west.

According to the bill of complaint, the company signed a contract with the city for the construction of a foot-bridge connecting Michigan street and Railroad street at Tenth avenue west. Eighty-five per cent of the cost was to be paid in monthly installments and the remainder when the bridge had been completed and accepted by the city engineer.

The company claims that the bridge was completed on June 28 and accepted by the city engineer who placed an estimate of the cost at $7657.14.

Of this only $4758.81 has been paid over by the city, according to the claim of the plaintiffs, who now ask for a judgment for the remaining $3175.33 with interest from the time it was due. Koon, Whalen & Bennet represent the plaintiffs.

The money was held back by the city because the bridge was not completed within the time fixed by the contract.

THE GRAIN MARKETS

Wheat Started Out Lower and Continued at Decline.

Flax Trading Was Slow and the Market Steady.

Duluth Board of Trade, June 6.—The bullish sentiment was less vigorous today and a flood of selling orders at the opening and a decline of 3/4@1d in Liverpool, caused a decline at the opening that continued to the close, although shortly before the close there was a rally which brought prices closer to the closing of yesterday. The weather was considerably improved in the districts that have been suffering from rains and floods and the sentiment was general that conditions are on the mind. Even St. Louis which has led the advance was less strenuous and closed with a decline of 1/2c, which almost as much as in other markets. Some Canadian wheat was worked by Duluth exporters for shipment but not because the markets were in line but because they were able to shade the market somewhat.

Receipts of wheat at Duluth and Minneapolis, 217 cars, and at Chicago 28, a total of 245 cars, against 251 last year.

In the Liverpool market corn closed 3/4 to 1/2d lower and in Chicago July was a shade lower. July oats in Chicago advanced 1/8@1/4c.

Trading in wheat in the Duluth market was slow. The opening of July was 3/8c off at 78¾c, it sold at 79⅞c at 9:32 and held steady there until shortly before the close when it moved upward and closed at 80¾c. This was a decline from yesterday of 1/2c and September had the same loss. In Chicago July was off 1¼@1⅜c and September 1/2c. In Minneapolis July fell 1¼@1⅜c and September 1/2c. New York July was 3/4c lower and September 1/2c lower.

Cash sales were 15,000 bushels and there was an advance of 1/2c in cash prices, to reflect No. 1 northern selling at 3/4c over July and No. 2 at 1¼c under.

Flax trading was slow and the market steady. July held all morning unchanged at $1.13¾ and closed there. Other options were unchanged.

There was an advance in rye of 1/2c.

Following are the closing prices on the Duluth board:

Wheat to arrive, No. 1 hard, 82¾c; No. 1 northern, 80¾c; No. 2 northern, 78½c; July, 80¾c; September, 79¾c. Flax in store, $1.13; on track, $1.13; to arrive, $1.13; July, $1.13½; September, $1.15; October, $1.15; November, $1.14½. Oats to arrive, 29@29½c. Rye to arrive, 51c; cash, 51c. Barley, 35@51c.

Cars inspected: Wheat, 34; last year, 9; oats, 2; flax, 25, last year, 0.

Receipts: Wheat, 25,147; barley, 374; flax 2856.

Shipments: Wheat, 71,156; oats, 24,987; flax, 10,750.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Weather Conditions Caused Active Selling In Wheat.

Chicago, June 6.—Everyone had selling orders in wheat at the opening today, influenced by the improvement in the weather conditions and by the lower cables. Commission houses were active sellers and longs also disposed of much of their holdings. July was off 1⅛@⅜c to 7⅝@⅝c at 75¾c to 75⅝c at the start, but after the first half hour the pressure to sell became less and the market became steadier around 75½@75⅝c. Duluth and Minneapolis reported receipts of 217 cars, which nearly local receipts of 28 cars, one of contract grade, made total receipts for the three points of 245 cars, against 251 cars a year ago.

Trading was only moderate the latter half of the session and prices were steady. July closed 1⅛@⅜c lower at 75⅝c, after touching 75¾c.

Lower cables, the better weather prospects together with the weakness in wheat caused a lower opening in corn, July being down 1⅛@⅜c to 50@50¼c, at 48¾c to 48⅝c. There was heavy selling by commission houses and the demand was small and scattered. The market became fairly steady after the first few minutes of trading and the price remained within the opening range. Local receipts were 402 cars, with 25 cars of contract grade.

There was a firmer tone in corn late in the day and most of the early loss was regained, July closing a shade lower at 48¾c.

Oats opened weak in sympathy with wheat and corn and the trading was not as heavy as of late. July was off 1⅜@⅜c to 30@30¼c, at 30¼c to 30⅝c, but later in the day a rally occurred on buying by local bulls and July advanced to 30⅞c. Local receipts were 185 cars.

Provisions opened steady along with the better tone in the hog market. The early trading was rather light and the only feature was a fair demand for ribs from brokers. There was little change in prices the first hour. September pork opened 7½ lower at $16.87½, September lard was a shade higher to 2½@5c lower, at $8.90 to $8.95, while ribs were up 2½c, at $8.22½.

GRAIN GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—The market dull and easier. The action of Liverpool and more favorable weather through the West were the causes. Snow's estimates continue quite bearish. There has been quite a deal of profit-taking the past two days. The estimates of the European crop situation indicate that their wants will be large and the movement of the crop in this country will be late. With these conditions we think it safest to buy wheat after reasonable breaks. Estimated cars, 45.

Corn—There was some early weakness, but the large corn operators who sold on the rally yesterday were evidently replacing their line. The improvement in the weather in the West is still counteracted by the dry weather in the middle and Eastern states. The cash situation at the moment is not much of a factor. Possibly some increase in country offerings. Estimated cars, 434.

Oats—The tone of the market continues strong. Dry weather in the East is the principal bullish factor. There is an increase in country offerings. Most of the buying is for local speculative account. Our own feeling is that oats are pretty high and that a good deal of damage has been discounted in the price. The East has been without rain for a long time and they are due. We certainly advise taking profits on long oats and don't believe short sales at these prices will hurt much. Estimated cars, 381.

Chicago Record-Herald: The St. Louis party headed by Spencer has apparently been taking profits in wheat for two days. This is the most influential element, and the one which saw the Southwestern wheat trouble early and which was first on the buying side in an important way. There is another St. Louis element headed by Chicago, the blind pool ganius who has been right in his wheat theory and who has been very active on the bull side both at St. Louis and Chicago, the Cleague party. It is still energetically bulling wheat at home, and presumably to some extent at Chicago. St. Louis messages yesterday said Cleage had called a good deal of wheat there and the very strong July closing at St. Louis was supposed to be his handiwork.

The official French report on the wheat crop is expected today or Monday. The expectation it will show some improvement.

"Cool wet weather is just what we would all be asking for the benefit of the wheat crop is what we are not getting it," says L. J. Lamses, "but it appears to be popular now to buy wheat because we are getting warm weather and are being spared very high temperatures."

Alexander Berger wired Clifford from Omaha: "As I came through California Junction this morning I saw a farmer cultivating his corn. He had started yesterday morning, so it looked as though he must have cultivated his corn under water. It is a remarkable country."

A dealer at Charles City, Iowa, writes Wetmore: "I see you have plenty of crop damage reports. The Eastern fillers of countries in Iowa have very little to complain of. Corn has mostly been planted in time and is up with the weather as we have had the last few days we will raise a big crop. Oats and corn are not cut down in the lower sand loam acreage, but we must understand that during the dry season every water pond has been plowed up."

W. H. Laidley & Co., Chicago: Wheat—Better weather and lower Liverpool brought somewhat lower wheat market and up to 11 o'clock prices remained under yesterday. Receipts small; exporters report no business whatever at present figures and news from Northwest is rather bearish. As we stated yesterday any change in weather would bring lower prices and we believe the market is high enough for the present.

Corn opened somewhat lower in sympathy with wheat and lower foreign markets, but continued firm, although dull. Receipts little more liberal and show somewhat larger proportion of contract grade. Favorable weather would doubtless bring somewhat lower prices, but upon breaks would buy corn.

Oats were weak and lower during early part of session, but upon extremely good buying advanced quite sharply. There is no doubt as to damage to crop, but market has had an excellent advance and would advise caution to make purchase only on the breaks.

• • •

Snows crop report: The winter wheat prospect can hardly be placed less than 450,000,000 bushels. Crop is moderately less promising, but decline not nearly so great as the week's alarming reports would indicate. The spring wheat is little short of perfect, with a possibility of 225,000,000 bushels. Corn situation is distinctly bad and planting further delayed. It is too early for definite estimates, but promise is less than usual. Oats do not show improvement, are spotted thin on the ground and lack of vigor. General condition below normal.

WEAKNESS IN STOCKS

Due to Unfavorable Character of the Bank Statement.

Market Was Nervous and Closed Dull and Heavy.

New York, June 6.—The opening of the stock market today was feverish and fluctuated uncertainly. First prices showed gains and losses much mixed. Amalgamated opened up ¾ and ran off a point. Atchison rose ⅜ and lost ¼ and Sugar after advancing 1¼ reacted ¾. St. Paul opened down 1⅛, rallied ¼ and then fluctuated. Hocking Valley advanced 2.

There was large selling of Atchison, Amalgamated and the Pacifics. Amalgamated reacted to 53¼ and the Atchisons sold a point below yesterday's closing. Losses in other active stocks were slight, supporting orders soon checking the decline. After 10:30 the tendency upwards became pronounced, Amalgamated, Missouri Pacific and Atchison rallying a point or more. St. Paul, Canadian Pacific and Twin City Rapid Transit rose a point over last night. Dormant stocks continued to move widely, Westinghouse Electric breaking 11 and Pacific Coast rising 5, Lackawanna 4, and Jersey Central 3.

The market hardened further before coming to a stop to await the appearance of the bank statement. Central of New Jersey advanced 5% Westinghouse Electric rallied 4. The heavy decline in cash in the banks prompted selling which carried Union Pacific, Missouri Pacific, Kansas & Texas preferred and Tennessee Coal a point or more under last night. There were signs of supporting orders and prices generally did not get back to the low level of the morning. The closing was dull and heavy.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market is still nervous and closed weak. The weakness was on the bank statement which was unfavorable. Nothing new in the way of gossip. We think stocks have had break enough and should be bought. High rates for money are not at this time likely. In the general situation there are a lot of standard stocks and many industrials selling on a very attractive basis. These stocks are being better bought than for a long time past. A great part of the pressure at this time comes from the bear element, which was not in existence a few months ago. The market is therefore likely to be oversold. We do not believe good stocks bought on the soft spots will hurt.

• • •

Dick to B. E. Baker: It looks to us as though the stock market was sold to a standstill and good paying stocks should be bought. While we may not get a bull market, I look for an advance of several points.

• • •

Walker Brothers to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market today was without a great deal of change. In the early trading there was some liquidation and prices eased off. Bank statement about as expected but caused further selling. The buying power of the market seems to be very limited, and on every rally a good deal of long stock comes on the market. We look for a rather dull market for some time to come, but it looks as if the low level for some of the good stocks had been nearly reached.

• • •

Ridgley to W. H. Laidley & Co.: From what I can learn it looks like the various labor disputes will be satisfactorily adjusted. Recent crop news is not encouraging though yesterday's reports are not to be taken by any means as conclusive. Missouri is not a pivot state from which to estimate the yield of winter wheat. The more important centres remain to be heard from. Still there's nothing to tempt one buy stocks. The situation as a whole looks about as bad as well can and it is hard to remember the fact that when things look worst it is usually time to buy stocks. Stock market, like a singed cat, usually looks one way and jumps another. If the crop damage proves as serious as stated there will likely be quite a bull speculation in corn and wheat, not much danger is incurred by buying either on a scale. But even assuming severe crop damage it is question if stock market has not discounted it all. I believe the man who can buy St. Paul, Southern Pacific, Tennessee Coal & Iron, will do well.

• • •

J. S. Bache to Paine, Webber & Co.: Considering the strong tone for American stocks in London the New York did fairly well, and after a slight hesitation at the opening with small declines recorded in Canadian Pacific, Baltimore & Ohio, Union Pacific and others, a good rally set in under the leadership of St. Paul. Purchases of room traders and covering of the bears together with rumors of large purchases of St. Paul for investment by insurance companies gave the market a more confident tone and advanced active stocks. Canadian Pacific developed marked strength on foreign buying. No doubt from this on we will see large shipments of gold from the Yukon which will tend to increase the reserves and make good the losses caused by gold exports.

• • •

F. M. Dick to Paine, Webber & Co.: Although heavy in tone, stocks did not yield much today. The early trading showed a rally on shorts covering, but bearish traders opposed any advance and were aggressive sellers of a few leading stocks like Atchison, Union Pacific, etc. The bank statement proved very unfavorable, Pennsylvania and St. Paul were very well supported. Copper held fairly well. There was no important news. There is likely to be considerable bear news in the papers over Sunday and we will probably have a lower opening Monday morning.

• • •

Waldorf to Coe Commission Co.: Market observers who have contended that the liquidation was concluded with the urgent selling, frankly admitted last night that they underestimated the men who have been forced to liquidate. Commission people of high standing, however, feel that the selling of this sort must be nearly completed. They take the position that stocks are down to a 5 per cent basis against 3½ per cent last fall and are constantly passing into the hands of powerful interests, financial institutions and individual investors who pay for them outright and take them out of the street. This is regarded as one of the signs that the market is now on the bottom. Other indications of the same significance is described thus by one of the most prominent men in the street. "The public is not disposed to increase its margins. It is more inclined to sell than to put up more money. In an experience of 25 years I have almost invariably found this condition when prevailing after a great fall to mean that the lowest prices had been made or were not far off. Brokers active in the leading railroads say that the buying of them yesterday was of the best. This applies especially to Pennsylvania, New York Central, Illinois Central, Union Pacific and Baltimore & Ohio. The bear party under the lead of H. G. Weil made a determined effort to break the general market by a drive at Atchison but covered shorts on discovering the nature of the support. The rumor that Atchison will cut its dividend, the directors will not meet for the dividend till next October was the principal motive of traders who will argue that a decrease in net earnings of $800,000 in ten months and an increase in fixed charges of $1,000,000 point to a reduction of dividend.

New York to Coe Commission Co.: When Mr. Hill predicted last summer that for the present year the Northern Securities roads would show gross earnings of $150,000,000, Wall street regarded his estimate as visionary and figured that final results would fall short by considerable millions. Now estimates give every indication of justifying Mr. Hill's optimism. Regarding the Burlington, Mr. Hill's estimate of $60,000,000 gross will probably be considerably exceeded and it is unlikely the showing may be as high as $63,000,000.

New York to Paine, Webber & Co.: Cornelius Shields, president of the Consolidated Lake Superior company says: "It has been decided to do away with a number of the subsidiary companies and to incorporate them as departments of two principal companies. The two principal companies will be the Lake Superior Power company and under it will be included all companies that have received charters from the Dominion government and the Consolidated Lake Superior company, in which will be all the companies that were granted charters from the governments of different states."

W. H. Laidley & Co.: Stocks were favorably influenced by the London market which was higher. The market opened somewhat over yesterday and during early session remained strong. The appearance of bank statement, however, which was even worse than expected brought about a selling movement and prices all closed off closing lower than yesterday. It would see mas if the market had had a tremendous break and that those stocks which have proportionately gone lowest could be bought for a turn, but would advice selling on all rallies.

COPPER GOSSIP.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: Coppers had a rally in market soon after the opening and showed more strength than any other group of stocks on the list. The whole market declined after the publication of the bank statement. On the last decline good support was encountered. We think the railroad market will be uncertain for some time but that good coppers are a buy on weak spots.

NEW YORK MONEY.

New York, June 6.—Close: Time money firm, 60 and 90 days 4¼@5; 6 months 5@5½. Money on call nominal. Prime mercantile paper 4¾@5¼. Sterling exchange a whade looks about as bad as well can and it is hard to remember the fact that when things look worst it is usually time to buy stocks. Stock market, like a singed cat, usually looks one way and jumps another. If the crop damage proves as serios as stated there will likely be quite a bull speculation in corn and wheat, not much danger is incurred by buying either on a scale. But even assuming severe crop damage it is question if stock market has not discounted it all. I believe the man who can buy St. Paul, Southern Pacific, Tennessee Coal & Iron, will do well.

J. S. Bache to Paine, Webber & Co.: Considering the strong tone for American stocks in London the New York did fairly well, and after a slight hesitation at the opening with small declines recorded in Canadian Pacific, Baltimore & Ohio, Union Pacific and others, a good rally set in under the leadership of St. Paul. Purchases of room traders and covering of the bears together with rumore of large purchases of St. Paul for investment by insurance companies gave the market a more confident tone and advanced active stocks. Canadian Pacific developed marked strength on foreign buying. No doubt from this on we will see large shipments of gold from the Yukon which will tend to increase the reserves and make good the losses caused by gold exports.

F. M. Dick to Paine, Webber & Co.: Although heavy in tone, stocks did not yield much today. The early trading showed a rally on shorts covering, but bearish traders opposed any advance and were aggressive sellers of a few leading stocks like Atchison, Union Pacific, etc. The bank statement proved very unfavorable, Pennsylvania and St. Paul were very well supported. Copper held fairly well. There was no important news. There is likely to be considerable bear news in the papers over Sunday and we will probably have a lower opening Monday morning.

• • •

Waldorf to Coe Commission Co.: Market observers who have contended that the liquidation was concluded with the urgent selling, frankly admitted last night that they underestimated the men who have been forced to liquidate. Commission people of high standing, however, feel that the selling of this sort must be nearly completed. They take the position that stocks are down to a 5 per cent basis against 3½ per cent last fall and are constantly passing into the hands of powerful interests, financial institutions and individual investors who pay for them outright and take them out of the street. This is regarded as one of the signs that the market is now on the bottom. Other indications of the same significance is described thus by one of the most prominent men in the street. "The public is not disposed to increase its margins. It is more inclined to sell than to put up more money. In an experience of 25 years I have almost invariably found this condition when prevailing after a great fall to mean that the lowest prices had been made or were not far off. Brokers active in the leading railroads say that the buying of them yesterday was of the best. This applies especially to Pennsylvania, New York Central, Illinois Central, Union Pacific and Baltimore & Ohio. The bear party under the lead of H. G. Weil made a determined effort to break the general market by a drive at Atchison but covered shorts on discovering the nature of the support. The rumor that Atchison will cut its dividend, the directors will not meet for the dividend till next October was the principal motive of traders who will argue that a decrease in net earnings of $800,000 in ten months and an increase in fixed charges of $1,000,000 point to a reduction of dividend.

New York to Coe Commission Co.: When Mr. Hill predicted last summer that for the present year the Northern Securities roads would show gross earnings of $150,000,000, Wall street regarded his estimate as visionary and figured that final results would fall short by considerable millions. Now estimates give every indication of justifying Mr. Hill's optimism. Regarding the Burlington, Mr. Hill's estimate of $60,000,000 gross will probably be considerably exceeded and it is unlikely the showing may be as high as $63,000,000.

New York to Paine, Webber & Co.: Cornelius Shields, president of the Consolidated Lake Superior company says: "It has been decided to do away with a number of the subsidiary companies and to incorporate them as departments of two principal companies. The two principal companies will be the Lake Superior Power company and under it will be included all companies that have received charters from the Dominion government and the Consolidated Lake Superior company, in which will be all the companies that were granted charters from the governments of different states."

W. H. Laidley & Co.: Stocks were favorably influenced by the London market which was higher. The market opened somewhat over yesterday and during early session remained strong. The appearance of bank statement, however, which was even worse than expected brought about a selling movement and prices all closed off closing lower than yesterday. It would see mas if the market had had a tremendous break and that those stocks which have proportionately gone lowest could be bought for a turn, but would advice selling on all rallies.

JUNE QUIET IS ON IN REALTY MARKET

The Usual Dullness of That Month Seems to Have Settled Upon the Trade—Many Flats Building But Rental Situation Is No Less Congested.

The June quiet is affecting the local realty market, and nearly all the brokers are feeling it. One real estate man, long in the business here in Duluth, says that the month of June for the past twenty years has always been a quiet month in the realty business, though there is no reason why it should be.

Property values are holding up well and a good inquiry is noted for residence properties, but few deals of a large size are being closed. It might well be said that farming lands in the vicinity of the city are showing a little more activity than local property just at present. The outlook is a long way from being discouraging, however, for some of the local agencies are looking advantage of the lull to get their lists ready for a better movement expected to start up a little later.

No new contracts for building have been noted within the past week, and the local architects are mainly concerned now in getting out the plans for work had under contemplation for some time past. Two of the largest new buildings to go up this year have already been announced. The parochial school for the Sacred Heart parish on Fourth street, and more recently the new St. James Catholic church at West Duluth, which will cost in the neighborhood of $18,000 or $20,000. Aside from these public buildings plans are underway, or already in the hands of contractors, for some expensive private residences.

It is claimed that when the present season closes and a review is had of the building operations since last winter, the number of flat buildings that will have gone up in the city will be surprisingly large, and yet not large enough to meet the demand.

With the midsummer season close at hand the rental situation cannot be said to be improved in any appreciable degree. There is still a great lack of houses and flats for rent. The summer season permits, of course, of a lessening of the degree of severity of discomfort in the house hunter, for the reason that many of those who could not find houses or flats have settled down to a camp life for the summer, but it is realized that only temporary relief is afforded and the situation will be as bad or even worse next fall than have been accustomed to giving up their it was this spring. Some of those who houses or flats for the summer and camping out with the expectation of finding another house or flat in the fall, have postponed any summer home business this year. The prospect of finding another home in the fall is too risky.

A fairly good loan business is reported at the local offices doing that class of business.

• • •

Stryker, Manley & Buck report a fair week's business in smaller properties this week, none of which are yet ready to announce in detail.

• • •

Little & Nolte have noted a fair demand for property during the week and have closed several sales, including that of the residence property described as lots 7 and 8 East Fourth street, Duluth proper, Second division, from Lida Stewart to Joseph Chrudinsky, for $8500.

• • •

Mr. Lyons, of William Prindle & Co., reports among the sales of the week the residence property with 50 feet frontage at 1413 East First street, from O. K. Weinman to George W. Martin. The consideration was $5500. Mr Weinman bought 125 feet at that location about two months ago from the Minnesota Loan and Trust company for $7000. The sale leaves him with possession of the remaining 27 feet.

Another sale was made through this firm of the residence property at 2703 West Second street from Thomas H. Miller to John Sundeen, for $3200.

The deed has been filed this week marking the consumation of the sale made nearly two years ago of the Sherwood home at 1127 East Superior street to George A. St. Clair. The property sold for $1,500.

• • •

Henry G. Apfel has sold to Fannie E. Sanders the residence property at 481 Mesaba avenue. The property sold for $3000.

• • •

J. H. Whitely, the lawyer, has been helping boost the real estate market in Duluth the past week. Mr. Whitely passed the earnest money on his own account on two sales and four purchases which are now being closed up, and which range in price from $900 to $3500. For the latter figure he has sold the residence property at 2609 West Third street. The purchases are for investment, and include two lots adjoining Mr. Whitely's cottage on Park Point, a house near the canal on Lake avenue, an improved 25-foot lot on Michigan street and 75 feet on West Superior street.

• • •

Bids are to be opened Monday on the P. J. McGraw flat building at Fourth avenue east and Fifth street, Young & Nystrom, architects.

• • •

The Interstate Land company reports a number of small sales for the week, including two lots in West Duluth, one for $500 and the other for $700.

WALKING SKIRTS ARE MUCH LONGER

Are Cut and Trimmed Very Much As Is Any Other Nice Tailored Garment—Flare Gradually Toward the Foot.

New York, June 6.—You would never recognize the new pedestrian skirts by name. You imagine something short, rather bobby, tight fitting and angular.

You think of the pedestrian as something for the petite woman only, a thing to make the stout sisterhood shudder, and a garment not to be tolerated by a woman past middle years.

Such was the old pedestrian skirt, the original, the first of its kind, and until recently the only one of its family.

But the new pedestrian skirt is something entirely different. In fact, it scarcely looks like a pedestrian at all, for it is long, is made of nice material and is trimmed always, and sometimes quite modishly.

Its only concession to popular prejudice is that it is not trimmed with lace nor with insertion, and rarely does it show embroideries. But it has its little ruffllings, its bands of braid, its neat little bolero and its natty sailor collar and vest.

More than that, it has its long skirt, which is cut and trimmed very much as is any other nice tailored garment.

When you see one of the old short skirts you may know at once that it is a rainy-day skirt. If not meant for rainy days, it is for mountain-climbing. If not meant for either one, it is intended for the woman who is going to spend the summer tramping, and who would not for the world be bothered with a conventional skirt.

This old-fashioned, short, rainy-day skirt comes anywhere between the shoe tops and the ankles, and it is as scant as a riding habit and as plain as it can be made. It has its use and is likely in every wardrobe. But the up-to-date walking woman, the woman pedestrian, the woman who takes a walk on the avenue daily, the woman who likes to get out into the street, does not wear it for her everyday occasions.

Instead, she selects a gown of tweed, maybe, with a tiny white speck in it, with here and there a snowflake. Or she may like those Scottish goods, with a sprinkling of red, the color of red flannel, here and there in the cloth. Or she may, yet, prefer the mixed blues and yellows upon a ground of black.

Any and all these things are modish for the walking skirt.

If you make up such a skirt you can do so very plainly by cutting the skirt snug on the hips and letting it flare very gradually toward the foot. In the middle of the back you can stitch a wide slat, which extends downward from the belt to the hem of the dress, and under which the invisible hooks and eyes do their work so well.

Down the middle of the front you can set several narrow rows of braid, and you can trim the bottom of the skirts with three narrow flounces, with scarcely any fullness in them. Each flounce can have its little narrow edge of braid. This makes a pretty suit.

The coat—for there must be a jacket—is single breasted, tight fitting and provided with three little collars that overlay each other, not quite coming to the shoulder. There are wide cuffs and a final collar and cuff of velvet, put on very narrowly.

And, speaking of skirts, there are three kinds of walking skirts, so the modistes say. The first is the skirt of the rainy daisy, the skirt that comes of to the ankles and a little higher. The second is the skirt which escapes the ground, but does not show the feet, and which need not be lifted, as it is supposed to swing clear of the sidewalk. The third, and by far the most popular style of walking skirt, is the one that touches, actually touches all the way round, and which must be held up as one walks.

To lighten the long style of walking skirt there is a silk drop skirt. But as this is not very durable, it is cut away as soon as it begins to fray around the feet, and a pretty black lawn petticoat is worn instead.

To keep the walking skirt from fraying around the foot there is a binding of braid. If one does not want to braid the skirt, it is finished in a very pretty fashion by the application of a band of black cloth to the foot in such a way that the band of cloth is flush with the bottom of the skirt. The cloth is unhemmed and the raw edge catches the brunt of the wear and tear as the skirt accidentally touches the sidewalk.

The traveling skirt and the pedestrian skirt have been merged into one. Few persons travel sufficiently to have a traveling dress made for this exclusive purpose and kept for this purpose alone. On the contrary, any nice street skirt is worn for traveling or any pretty tailor-made dress.

And in traveling, one notices that the style here, too, has changed, and that, where severity and simplicity reigned, a smart effect is now sought.

Who is there who does not recall the days of the linen duster and the days of the enveloping cloak of almost any material that could be found, including the ulster stuffs and their bulky cousins.

Nowadays few women wear a traveling cloak, preferring not to be bothered with it. But those who do so select a cloak of taffeta, or one of mohair, or a cloak of dark blue brilliantine, made up very nobbily with sailor collar, appliqued with a few lace medallions, and with a semi-fitted back which sets off the figure very nicely.

The traveling cloaks, except those for yachting and the sea, are almost universally made of silk, and to their credit be it said that they wear well and look pretty as long as a shred remains.

And, speaking of the utility of taffeta, it may be told that a change is taking place in this material also. In place of cracking early in life, the new taffeta is quite durable and will wear usually as long as you wish it to wear.

There is a way of reinforcing taffeta which is practiced by the thrifty French modistes who do not relish the idea of losing the patient work of days in so short a time.

As soon as the taffeta shirt waist begins to show signs of giving way, they take pieces of the same taffeta and lay them underneath the goods, where they do not show. Now, with the diligence which is so commendable in the French, they go to work and embroider designs upon the waist or they applique small lace medallions upon it, or otherwise treat it so that the fact that there is a patch underneath is never suspected.

Of course the embroidery threads hold the patch in place.

There is still another way of renewing the life of a taffeta waist, and this is by waiting until there are actual holes in the waist. Now, over these holes there is laid a lace medallion and the edges of the lace are sewed fast. The material is now cut out underneath and the waist presents every appearance of being as fine a French waist as you could want to see.

It takes the French for ingenuity, though you can scarcely beat a good Yankee dressmaker at that game, but the trouble with the Yankee dressmaker is that she is less daring than the French woman and will shrink from color combinations which the French woman would at once attempt.

But, speaking again of the traveling dress, one should not ignore the fact that women travel in much better clothing than formerly, and that they wear gowns that are almost dainty in finish and design for their journeys by rail.

In the swell yachting dress this is to be expected, for here one goes to a garden party, all in delicately chosen colors, all made with an accuracy of detail and an intricacy of design that it is almost splendid in its beauty.

For water wear one must look out for the chiffons and for all things that wilt and slink at the sea, and one must be careful of those fabrics that shrink and spot, though in these days there are very few that do this, for materials grow better and better every year, and for a material to "fail" or shrink speaks very badly for its maker.

Satin-faced cloth, heavy enough to hold its own, ladies' cloth, cashmere and etamine, are all favorites in yachting gowns, and the way to make them is as elaborate as possible. A yachting gown that is plain is not considered pretty, for it should have upon it trimmings which, while not strictly nautical, bear the stamp of the sea.

Shamrock green will be very popular in yachting fashions this season, and the color with which it is trimmed is clear blue, not a royal blue, but a blue that is a trifle lighter in tone. Then there will be dark green yachting dresses, trimmed with lighter green; there will be light green dresses, with bands of white.

The idea of trimming the yachting dresses with embroidered anchors is quite gone out, but one may wear the emblems of the yacht clubs, all cunningly mingled in some pretty way. Or one can have shamrocks embroidered upon the gowns if one is going in for green as a compliment to Sir Thomas.

Sea green, olive green, water green, which is a very pale green; deep sea green, and the green of the shamrock will all be much worn on sea and shore. And so also will all the American blues, for there are half a dozen blues which had their vogue here and which are generally recognized as American colors, among them being navy blue, army blue, grayish blue, new blue and ultramarine and sapphire blue. Bluette and royal are different shades, but are found in the season's colors, along with a dozen other blues, all too pretty to be forgotten.

If you want a dress for very nice wear, one that will do for walking, if you want to walk, and for calling if you must call, and for traveling, if such be your privilege, is made of very brilliant cigar-brown cloth, so brilliant that it has a luster like satin. Though not a cheap cloth, it is not an extra fine one, for it is neither a novelty goods nor a figured goods, but one of the standards.

Unless you are of absolutely perfect figure you will make this gown up with a sweep skirt, quite touching in the front and slightly sweeping in the back. The front must be cut straight, so that it hangs in that pretty, straight-front fashion from the belt down.

You will need, of course, a little jacket, which is an Eton that is cut rounding in the front and rounding in the back, something like a bolero.

This Eton is tied on the bust with a bow of ribbon and it is trimmed with a deep rounding collar, which would be a sailor collar if its edges were not cut rounding. The sleeves show a tendency to bag somewhere, and there is a snug little cuff. The whole is trimmed with silvery white braid.

And, while on the subject of walking skirts, or traveling skirts, for the two are allied this year, do not forget that such a skirt is necessary to your summer wardrobe. You can call it a jogging suit, if you care to do so, or you can call it a Don Carlos suit, which is one made of cloth trimmed with bands of silk; or, if you make a little silk coat with it, you can call it a Monte Carlo suit.

The rough cloths, the cheviots and those that have a distinct nap, are coming into more wear this summer than last. Though they never look very dressy, they wear well and they hold their own long after other and more genteel materials have gone the way of all dress goods.

Paris, May 25.—The greatly admired paillette has not been abandoned for the new chiffon flower decoration, but it has been modified in effect by being placed beneath the net or lace gown, which it formerly enhanced. Evening gowns made of lace show bouquets and wreaths of the most delicate and natural appearing blooms and foliage of chiffon. Should I be called upon to express the prevailing modes in one word, I would say "drooping," for verily hats, gowns and decorations all show the graceful drooping effect.

One of the prettiest hats I have seen this week had for its principal elaboration two shaded plumes fastened at the back and falligh their entire length over the hair, and touching the neck, being held together by two silver clasps at intervals.

Flat hats are growing in popularity, and these droop slightly all round and sometimes more in the back than in the front, if more becoming.

The reversal of the order of wearing sleeves in the daytime and no sleeves in the evening has gained more favor than I thought possible, but, after all, it is a very pretty fashion, since the sleeve for evening wear does not interfere with the turn of the shoulder, and very delicately veils, but does not hide, the beauty of the arm, while the short sleeve for day wear is invariably met with a close-fitting glove of net or lace, and these pretty sleeves are growing in size as well as in popular favor. The bell sleeve, which our grandmother so much admired and which we have for a long time been gathering into a band or cuff, is now being left free in its own natural and artistic manner, showing many frills of lace or chiffon upon its lining. I cannot say that this is always a comfortable or convenient style, but it is decidedly pretty, and what is comfort compared with the satisfaction of knowing that we are looking our best?

Hand embroideries are to be seen upon the best linen and cotton goods, as well as upon the separate waist, which garment, by the way, is not so well favored as it has been, the glaring difference between skirt and bodice being no longer admissible. While several colors may be utilized in gown and headgear, they must be harmoniously blended throughout the entire costume. Foulard and cloth is the newest combination of materials, and one of these in red and white had the skirt portion formed of four kilted flounces composed of red-spotted white foulard, each flounce hemmed with red cloth stitched with white silk. The kilted blouse bodice of material formed a quaintly shaped hood of red cloth at the back, continuing to form a pleated basque held in at the waistline by half a dozen pearl buttons. The double sleeve of material was hemmed with graduated bands of red cloth, stitched with white, while the bolero-shaped front of cream-colored lace formed stole ends, finishing in tassels of cream-colored silk, similar tassels of white silk finishing the hood of red cloth at the back.

Buttons of different sizes are made to match, an arrangement wonderfully convenient for decorative purposes. A handsome gown in red canvas displayed this style of trimming, having four large buttons equa-distant from one another upon the lower part of the double box-plaited sleeve of material, the new shape of sleeve which, instead of having the inside cut shorter than the outside, has the extra fullness caught up in a group of small tucks just inside the elbow. It really gives something of a washerwoman effect, but makes a wonderfully graceful drooping to the lower part of the sleeve for a' that. The bodice portion of this pretty canvas gown formed a wide original-shaped box-plait in the front, slightly bloused and outlined by a band of red and white embroidery, and further enhanced by eight white and red buttons matching those upon the sleeve, but smaller in size. The triple skirt portion of material former a straight, narrow breadth in front, bordered either side with a band of red and white embroidery.

Free Medical Advice to Women.

Every sick and ailing woman,
Every young girl who suffers monthly,
Every woman who is approaching maternity,
Every woman who feels that life is a burden,
Every woman who has tried all other means to regain health without success,
Every woman who is going through that critical time — the change of life — is invited to write to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., in regard to her trouble, and the most expert advice telling exactly how to obtain a CURE will be sent absolutely free of cost.

The one thing that qualifies a person to give advice on any subject is experience — experience creates knowledge.

No other person has so wide an experience with female ills nor such a record of success as Mrs. Pinkham has had.

Over a hundred thousand cases come before her each year. Some personally, others by mail. And this has been going on for twenty years, day after day, and day after day.

Twenty years of constant success — think of the knowledge thus gained! Surely women are wise in seeking advice from a woman with such an experience, especially when it is free.

Mrs. Hayes, of Boston, wrote to Mrs. Pinkham when she was in great trouble. Her letter shows the result. There are actually thousands of such letters in Mrs. Pinkham's possession.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM: — I have been under doctors' treatment for female troubles for some time, but without any relief. They now tell me I have a fibroid tumor. I cannot sit down without great pain, and the soreness extends up my spine. I have bearing down pains both back and front. My abdomen is swollen, I cannot wear my clothes with any comfort. Womb is dreadfully swollen, and I have had flowing spells for three years. My appetite is not good. I cannot walk or be on my feet for any length of time.

"The symptoms of Fibroid Tumor, given in your little book, accurately describe my case, so I write to you for advice." — MRS. E. F. HAYES, 252 Dudley St. (Boston), Roxbury, Mass.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM: — I wrote to you describing my symptoms, and asked your advice. You replied, and I followed all your directions carefully for several months, and to-day I am a well woman.

"The use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, together with your advice, carefully followed, entirely expelled the tumor, and strengthened the whole system. I can walk miles now.

"Your Vegetable Compound is worth five dollars a drop. I advise all women who are afflicted with tumors, or any female trouble, to write you for advice, and give it a faithful trial." — MRS. E. F. HAYES, 252 Dudley St. (Boston), Roxbury, Mass.

Mrs. Hayes will gladly answer any and all letters that may be addressed to her asking about her illness, and how Mrs. Pinkham helped her.

$5000 FORFEIT if we cannot forthwith produce the original letter and signature of above testimonial, which will prove its absolute genuineness.

The Latest Fashion Fancies

PARIS FASHIONS: SIMPLE FROCKS FOR SUMMER WEAR

Under the head of "simple frocks" are included many of the most costly gowns in the fashionable woman's wardrobe, the term of simple being apparently only used because the gowns are not quite so elaborate in effect and the material of which they are composed is of a more inexpensive quality, but the wary woman always avoids the "simple little frock" when there is any necessity for economy, no matter how simple it may seem to be.

This season there is a craze for shepherd plaid checks and plaids in all colors, but especially black and white of wash material, cloth or silk foulard or taffeta, and many simple frocks are made in the shepherd's plaid, and really are what they pretend to be, for there is no over elaboration of trimming, and the design is always on as plain lines as possible. Gowns with waists, instead of skirts and coats, to be worn with shirt waists, are most charming in their black and white check patterns. A dainty little frock has the skirt with many lines of narrow tucks around the sides and back, but the front breadth is left plain. The waist is in fine tucks to match the skirt, but with a broad, plain band down the front. Bias bands of pale blue taffeta trim the waist, each band finished at either edge with narrow white and black braid, and the bands so put on as to give almost the appearance of a pointed yoke, or cape collar.

In black and white check wool material is a costume, as shown in illustration, which has many novel features about it and which can be copied in silk or linen to look well. Arranging the material so that some of the checks or plaids give the effect of being on the bias often makes a gown look much smarter than when an elaborate pattern or braiding is used. Another simple or effective trimming is very narrow pipings of white or black to outline the plaits, whether side or box plaits are chosen as being smartest.

Another odd style of trimming is seen in the straps of black and white silk or satin, very narrow and on the bias, so arranged as to look like loops for the fancy black and white buttons that hold down the plaits at the top of the skirt. Still another design is the one which is in bias tucks over the entire gown, both waist and skirt, and with only deep lace collar and cuffs to break the monotony of the black and white. Such gowns as these are to be had at a wide range of prices, but none of them can be called really cheap unless they can be found ready made.

All black gowns made up over white linings form an excellent opportunity to show off fine lace or openwork embroidery, for the fad is to have the embroidery put on the white linings; panels of white are seen around the foot of the skirt, the skirt slashed to show the white, but the edges held together by a band of lace or ornaments of black passementerie or ornaments on the lace. Made on simple lines, in so far that the lines are long and unbroken, is a most costly gown of embroidered crepe de chine, the embroidery done in heaviest silk, with large eyelet holes, through which shows the white lining. Large flowers of embroidered chiffon are also appliqued on the crepe de chine, which is then cut away underneath, again showing the lining through the chiffon flower. Bands of jet embroidered lace are also used in this style of gown, and openwork jet ornaments are often put on instead of lace. Fringe is also used with this style of trimming, and in different widths. If the skirt is cut in overskirt design, as are so many, then there is a deep silk fringe which falls over the ruffles of point d'esprit or embroidered crepe de chine that finish the white silk underskirt. It is not usual to have any contrasts of color on such a gown, but if the all black and white are unbecoming, then some curious and striking contrast of orange, shaded green, pink or mauve in changeable taffeta is to be seen in the belt or some odd-shaped bow is in the front of the waist, never on the skirt. That is allowed to remain all black or black and white.

There is nothing more charming for summer than full white gowns, no matter what may be the material, and yet the thin transparent fabrics seem the most suitable for warm weather. White muslin frocks trimmed with lace are this season the daintiest things imaginable, and under the head of muslin are many materials in the batiste and grass cloth order. Silk mull is also dainty and looks well trimmed with lace; indeed, there seems to be no end to the amount of lace that can be used on a white muslin frock made in the present styles. All the new waists are made without collars, but rather low in the neck, but apart from that, and the difference in sleeves, are quite on the lines of last year's fashions. But, then, a white muslin frock is supposed to remain in style for two or three seasons at least. All lace-trimmed frocks have the material cut away underneath, and this necessitates a dainty underskirt, but lawn is quite as smart as silk for this purpose and really looks lighter and cooler, but there must be many flounces or ruffles edged with lace on the underskirt to hold out the gown.

Weddings Without Caterer Or Florist.

Not every prospective bride is born with a Fortunatus purse that she can draw upon at will. In default of that, the efficient services of caterer and florist, accompanied as they are by an aftermath of redundant bills, become a serious feature to be taken into account when the details of the wedding are under discussion.

Many a practical bride would infinitely prefer to have the lump sum that usually goes to these functionaries to add to her housefurnishing, if she felt quite sure that she could achieve a chic and pretty wedding without them.

For the June wedding all things are possible. Out in the country, acres and acres of star-eyed daisies and crimson clover are nid-nodding with every passing breeze and to be had for the picking. On all the roadsides are the sweet-brier roses, while in every country and village garden, cultivated roses, red, pink and white, just clamor to be cut.

Never mind "Jacks" and "American Beauties;" the old moss roses, the Baltimore Belle, the cinnamon, the musk and the damask are just as sweet and more "old timey," therefore to be desired.

Write to all your friends and your foes "up the state," and ask them to express you boxes and baskets full of flowers and feathery asparagus. They will love to do it. Everyone likes to have a hand in a wedding, whether they are invited or not. Then ask your girl friends to arrange them. If the wedding is to be a morning affair, the flowers can be arranged over night, then sprinkled. Bank the mantels, garland the pictures, the stair railing, the chandeliers. Fill in the grill work between the rooms with vines and blossoms, borrow all the kitchen jars of blue gray stone ware and fill them full of daisies and clover. Make a large mound of blossoms for the center of the buffet and tiny ones for each small table. Have plenty of fine wire and a stepladder ready for this part of the program, and the actual work is only a labor of love.

The refreshments must be planned for ahead and most of the actual work done a day or two beforehand. If a fruit cake is on the program it should be baked at least ten days ahead, and longer is better; then left "to ripen." The mayonnaise can be made two or three days in advance and kept on the ice, the chicken cooked, the nuts blanched and salted and the orders for essentials placed with the grocer and baker. Get a good supply of dainty Japanese napkins; they will not come higher than thirty or thirty-five cents a hundred. "Count the noses" of expected guests, and make sure you have two sets of spoons and plates, with forks, cups and sherbet glasses to go around and one or two to spare. Not so many water glasses will be needed. If the guests are not so numerous but that they can all be seated for refreshments, have the small tables with lunch cloths. If you do not care to borrow, all these things can be hired for a small sum.

In setting the long table which serves as a buffet have a low mound of flowers, with vines or feather foliage leading out from it. On either side place candles or candelabra with pink shades, for pink is the true June wedding color. On each end have piles of plates, with napkins between, and orderly rows of spoons and forks. Have two kinds of sandwiches and a plate of each at each end of the table, with plenty more in reserve. If the salad is to be served on the plates have it in two large platters or salad bowls. It is easier, however, to have it all dished individually in the pretty salad cases, with their lining of lettuce leaves, then these grouped to make a decorative showing when the guests first come out. Coffee and chocolate are poured in the kitchen or butler's pantry. The cakes are placed on a side table and the punch bowl stands on another table near the hall, where anyone can help himself at any time. The small tables may be brought in after the ceremony, each one having its complement of forks, spoons and napkins, with a dish of olives and another of salted nuts.

In catering for fifty guests, it is safe to assume that a pound and a half of coffee will be required, three pounds of cut loaf sugar, three pints of cream, ten loaves of bread, two and a half pounds of butter, eight pounds of boiled ham, three moulds of jelly, five loaves of cake, two quarts of olives, three pounds of nuts before salting, four medium-sized chickens and ten heads of celery if chicken salad is on the menu, a quart of mayonnaise and two gallons of ice cream. One quart of chopped meat will make fifty sandwiches, and one pint stone pot of caviare will do the same. For your bread buy the corrugated loaves. Make your own salad and loaf cake, but buy the small assorted cakes. The ice cream is easily made at home, but will save trouble if obtained from the caterer. Fruit jelly and salpicons of fruit are but little trouble. Blanche and salt your own nuts, using the Jordan almonds or peanuts. The Arabian nuts come already salted, and merely are to be picked out of their cracked shells. Buy your olive oil in tins, by the gallon, and put your coffee in bags, so that it will not require straining. In making your sandwiches do not try to butter on the loaf, as is often advised, for the butter is bound to get on the edges and soil one's fingers. Have a very sharp bread knife, slice thin but evenly, spread lightly with butter that has been softened by beating with a fork (not melting in the oven), put the crispy lettuce or other filling between slices that match, trim off the crusts and press together. The sandwiches may be made several hours before they will be needed, but must be covered with a damp napkin to keep moist.

Cherry Punch.

Stem and pit five pounds of rich cherries and put pits and all into a preserving kettle. Pour five quarts of boiling water over the fruit and let them stand on the back of the stove, where they will keep just below the boiling point for two or three hours. Strain through a jelly bag, but do not squeeze, as that would make the liquid cloudy. Make a rich syrup of five cups of sugar to five cups of water, boil 10 minutes, skim, add the cherry juice and cook 10 or 15 minutes longer, then set away to cool. When ready to serve add a little maraschino and turn into the punchbowl over a block of ice. Throw in a quart of fresh, perfect cherries cut in two and pitted, and a little grated pineapple.

In making the caviare sandwiches mix one-half can of caviare with one teaspoonful of onion juice and a little lemon juice and paprika. Mix well, cut out rounds of bread, butter and spread with the caviare; add a little finely chopped olive and celery, put two slices together and press gently together.

For the nasturtium sandwiches use both the leaves and the blossoms, putting them in ice water a half-hour before making them up. Cut the bread in thin slices, butter, then lay on one of them a medium-sized nasturtium leaf or several of the bright-colored petals. Sprinkle lightly with salt, or spread with the thinnest bit of mayonnaise, as the nasturtium has a delightful pungency of its own that needs little additional seasoning, and put together.

Another good sandwich filling is made of grated cheese, whipped cream and crispy celery minced and chilled on the ice. For the frozen cheese salad beat four cream cheeses to smooth paste, with one cupful of cream. Season with paprika, salt, a little lemon juice and a few drops of tabasco sauce. Freeze slightly, turn out into a brick mould and pack in ice and salt.

Clams and Their Uses.

Of course, it was a city woman who, on going to Long Island for her summer vacation, saw softshell clams as they are dug for the first time, and exclaimed, innocently: "Do soft clams have shells? I always thought they grew on strings."

Few people outside the regions to which it is native know the clam as it really is. The soft clams which go to market "on strings" are the real thing when they are first dug, but they undergo many changes before they actually appear on the table, and not, in any case, for the better.

In the first place, the people who open clams for market are not always so particular as those who open them for their own use. The clams must "look well," no matter how, and so after they are opened they are soaked in fresh water to whiten and make them plump. The desired appearance is thus gained, but it is at the cost of flavor and excellence of taste, for the fresh water robs the clam of its chief charm, and it is a very insipid article which is usually sold in the market.

With the hard clam it is different. This variety goes to market in his own shell, as does the oyster, and he remains on the shell until he reaches the customer, even though he is opened by the marketman, for convenience sake. He retains the "seawatery" flavor in a more marked degree than the soft clam, and for this reason he is more popular in the city.

But the two varieties of clams have their different uses, and one is rarely substituted for the other. Sometimes a clam chowder, which is usually made from hard clams, has the necks of the soft clams used instead, and some people declare that soft clams minus their stomachs make a more delicious chowder than the hard variety. The soft clam has a monopoly of the soup industry, the other kind being too strong in flavor to make a good clam soup, or "stew," as most people call it. The hard clam makes fritters, the soft clam goes to clam pie, and so on through all the list of clam dishes.

Clam Soup or Stew.—This calls for soft clams, which have been carefully opened and washed in the liquor which dripped from them till free from grit. Boil a quart of milk with a tablespoonful of butter. When it reaches boiling point take from the fire for a minute and add the clams prepared as directed and two or three tablespoonfuls of the clam juice which came from them. Return to the fire, where it will get thoroughly heated, but will not actually boil. Serve as soon as possible, with soda crackers. A little pepper may be added, but salt is rarely needed. Two dozen fair sized clams are sufficient for a quart of soup.

Long Island Clam Chowder.—Chop two ounces of soft pork fine. Fry it a delicate brown in the bottom of an iron kettle. Open a dozen and a half large or two dozen medium sized clams, wash them well and chop fine. Add to the fried pork the clams and about a cupful of their liquor, with water enough to keep them from burning. Peel and chop fine six medium sized potatoes, one small onion and two small carrots. Add these to the clams and pork. Lastly open a can of tomatoes, chop a little to break up the pulp and pour over the rest of the things in the kettle. Let it boil up, taste it, add salt if needed and pepper to taste. More water may be added and as the chowder boils away a little boiling water may be added from time to time. This chowder should cook at least two hours—three is better. Care must be taken to stir it often, so that it will not stick to the bottom of the pot. There should be about four quarts of chowder when it has finished boiling. Serve very hot, with soda crackers. Some people put thyme and sage in chowder, but the very best chowder, and that which brings out the flavor of the clams, has no seasoning but salt and pepper and the little onion flavor.

Clam Broth for Invalids.—Wash rather small clams (hard) perfectly clean. Put them in a clean saucepan with a cup of cold water. Cover closely and bring to a boil. Let them cook gently till all the clams are open. Remove the shells and clams and let the liquor stand a minute or two until all sediment has settled. Pour the clear liquid off from the top, flavor very delicately and serve hot. A tiny bit of butter may be added, but for a delicate stomach this is better omitted.

Clam Fritters.—To one dozen hard clams open, washed in their own liquor and chopped, add two cupfuls of flour, two well beaten eggs, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, half a cup of the clam liquor and milk enough to make a thin batter, about a cup and a half being generally needed. Stir well and fry in plenty of hot fat. Serve very hot with butter.

Clam Pie.—Fry in a saucepan one ounce of salt pork as for chowder. Peel and slice eight potatoes and add with sufficient water to cover them to the pork. Cook till the potatoes are nearly done. Turn the pork and potatoes with the liquid into a deep pie or pudding dish. Over the top place a dozen and a half of soft clams opened and washed. Add a few spoonfuls of the clam juice. Cover with a good short crust, putting a narrow rim around the edge of the dish before the top cover is put on. Bake in a hot oven till the crust is done and serve very hot. The pie will need no seasoning but a little pepper.

Scalloped Clams.—Line a buttered pie dish with cracker crumbs moistened with milk. Put a layer of small hard clams over the crackers, then more crackers and more clams till the dish is full, dotting each layer of cracker crumbs with small pieces of butter. When filled pour into the dish enough milk to thoroughly moisten the whole. Cover closely and bake half an hour. Remove the cover and brown. Serve hot.

He Didn't Forget.

Recently a well-known English actor was making a tour through Scotland and arrived one evening at a country inn, where he ordered dinner. After he had dined (the innkeeper asked him if he had enjoyed the meal, and he replied:—"Yes, thoroughly. Indeed, I have dined as well as anyone in England could dine."

"Except the Lord Mayor," remarked the innkeeper.

"I do not except anyone," replied the actor.

"But you must except the Lord Mayor," insisted the innkeeper, for he is never to be placed in the same rank with anyone else."

His guest refused to comply and a quarrel actually ensued, which ended in the arrest of the actor. A few hours later he was brought before a magistrate, who said to him:—"You ought to know, sir, that from time immemorial we have been accustomed to make an exception in favor of the Lord Mayor, and in order that you may not forget us and our customs a second time I order you either to pay a fine of 25 shillings or to spend 12 hours in prison."

The actor paid the fine without a murmur, and then surprised the magistrate by quietly remarking:—"I honestly believe that this innkeeper is the biggest fool in all Christendom—except the Lord Mayor."

When Peas Are Ripe.

There is scarcely another vegetable that loses so much of flavor in not being fresh as green peas. If possible they should be eaten the same day as picked—at all events they should not be shelled until shortly before cooking. In buying, plump, green pods should be selected, those that are limp and yellow being old. It is a good idea to soak peas bought in the market or from the huckster in cold water for an hour before shelling. In this case the peas themselves will need no washing. Boil the pods 10 minutes, using only enough water to cover skim them out, put in the peas and boil until tender. If young this will require but 15 minutes. If old, longer.

The French method of cooking peas is also to be commended. In this case lettuce leaves, well washed, are laid in the bottom of the saucepan and the shelled peas laid over them. Water to barely cover is then added, as the juice of the lettuce will suffice. When the peas are tender remove the lettuce, saving all the juice, and season with cream, butter, salt and pepper.

The Alsatians make a delicious pea soup from the pods alone or with the addition of a little meat.

The pods are carefully washed, but not allowed to soak, then put over the fire in just enough water to cover. Simmer until tender. If a clear soup is wished strain, season and serve with croutons, but if a puree is desired press through a sieve.

The English declare that mint should always be cooked with peas, and epicures affirm their opinion as to the affinity between peas and mint. Green pea salads, made in various ways, are among the delightful possibilities of the season.

Here are directions for an English green pea salad: Boil a quart of peas, measured after shelling, in water to cover, well seasoned with mint, pepper and salt. Drain thoroughly, pour into a salad bowl, melt half an ounce of butter and turn over the peas while still hot. Set in the ice box to chill while the dressing is being prepared. Rub smooth in a basin the yolks of three hard boiled eggs, add a half teaspoonful of salt, the same quantity of white pepper and a dessert spoonful of made mustard. Blend carefully, then beat in little by little four tablespoonfuls of olive oil. When thick add gradually a teaspoonful of tarragon vinegar and a tablespoonful and a half of ordinary vinegar and pour over the peas.

Green Pea Salad No. 2—Cut a cupful of cold veal or chicken into dice and place in lettuce cups. Cover with a layer of cooked peas, well drained from their liquor, and pour over all a French dressing seasoned with mustard and mint.

Green Peas and Beef Salad—Mince rare roast beef fine, sprinkle over a bed of lettuce, add a layer of diced boiled potatoes and cooked peas, season well with salt and pepper and dress with a boiled or French dressing. Serve very cold, with a garnish of hard boiled eggs sliced.

Green peas served in carrot cups make a pretty entree; boil the carrots, which must be short and plump, in salted water until tender. Cut in two, cut a slice from the bottom, so it will stand, and scoop out the center, leaving a little basin for the peas. Young turnips may be used in the same way.

As a garnish and accompaniment for sweetbreads, lamb chops, shad and fillet of beef or chicken, peas stand approved.

A Modern Colossus.

Living in Dover, England, is a man who is an amazing sight, and for the reason that he weighs not less than 733 pounds. Moreover, his relatives say that his weight increases every year. He has not been able to walk for the last eight years, and he passes his days in an immense chair, which is on wheels, and, therefore, can be rolled from place to place.

At night the giant is wheeled to his bed, into which he hoists himself by means of a trapeze.

A traveling showman recently offered this fat man $300 a day if he would exhibit himself, but the offer was declined. "I don't need money," said the fat man, "and I'm too fond of my family to leave them."

The high school folks will have a busy week this coming one with class night, the junior-senior reception and the commencement exercises. The order of events has been changed this week and the reception will come on Tuesday evening and class night on Thursday, an order of events never heard of before.

The normal exercises this week were enjoyed by many people and were fine, though necessarily simple. The baccalaureate sermon was listened to Sunday by a large number and will be long remembered by those who heard it. The reception on Tuesday evening, extended by the junior class to the graduating seven, was a jolly informal affair as all the social functions of the school have been during the year, for who could imagine a formal affair with simply a lot of girls. The seniors contributed to the enjoyment of the evening by a little play. It was written by Miss Prendergast, of the faculty, and was clever and greatly apreciated by all acquainted in any way with the school. The commencement occurred Wednesday morning.

A notable wedding was celebrated Wednesday evening at Merriam Park, near St. Paul, at which a number of Duluthians were guests and Miss Edith Davidson, of this city, was bridesmaid. The Pioneer Press thus reports it:

Miss Douglass McRae and Lyle Kirkwood McConnell were married last evening at the Presbyterian church, Merriam Park. The bride wore a white mousseline de sole with three accordion plaited flounces and a waist of the same with yoke and bertha of point lace; she wore a tulle veil fastened with lilies of the valley and carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley and white roses. Her only ornament was a diamond and pearl star, the gift of the bridegroom.

Miss Adeline J. McRae, of Glencoe, Ont., was maid of honor and wore a pink organdie with pink sash and bouquet of white carnations and ferns. Miss Edith Valentine Davidson, of Duluth, the bridesmaid, was dressed in white organdie with white sash and bouquet of pink carnations. The groomsman was J. A. McRae and the ushers were G. F. Phileo and R. D. Rovig. A. A. McRae gave away the bride. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Clark, father-in-law of the pastor of the church. The chancel was decorated with white flowers, ferns and palms. On leaving the church the men formed in two lines and the bridal party passed between, the little flower girl, Adair McRae, niece of the bride, strewing the path with rose petals.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's mother Mrs. Flora McRae, who was assisted by Mr. and Mrs. A. A. McRae, of Minneapolis, and Miss McConnell, sister of the groom. The decorations were of sweet peas, carnations with smilax, and asparagus fern festooned and fastened everywhere. The dining room was decorated with marguerites and asparagus, while festoons of smilax fell from the ceiling to the edges of the table.

The out-of-town guests attending were Col. and Mrs. Davidson, of Duluth; Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Davidson, of Little Falls; Mr. and Mrs. Will Davidson, of Hutchinson; Mr. and Mrs. A. D. McRae, of Duluth; Miss Grace Clough, of Milwaukee, and Mrs. Watson, of Fairwater, Wis.

The bride's going away dress was of mignonette green over the same shade of taffeta, with an ecru lace collar.

Mrs. E. P. Dufresne, of Merriam Park, gave a dinner last night for Miss McRae. There were sixteen guests. The bride's seat was tied with white satin ribbon, while a floral horseshoe encircled her plate, where a small souvenir was set, also tied with ribbon.

The party given Monday evening by the Young Ladies' club for the benefit of St. Luke's hospital was one of the delightful affairs of the week. This party was the third annual affair given by the club, and the worthiness of the charity and delight of the party have made them most popular affairs, and the third in the series added to the reputation the young women have made for themselves. The hall was prettily decorated and the orchestra was stationed behind a bank of palms and potted plants at the end of the hall. A large number danced and the galleries were filled with those watching the pretty scene below. Flaaten played a fine program of fifteen numbers. Much of the credit of the affair is due to Misses Jones, Everington, Bastable, Stoughton, Pearce and Reinhart.

Lat week quite a flutter of teas disturbed the week, but this week has settled into comparative quiet again. The opera companies promised for the whole summer season are creating much talk and interest is added as one of Duluth's most charming singers is to sing in one opera during the summer when ever it is put on. Commencement exercises in the different schools have attracted much attention this week and will continue next week to attract the amount of attention due them.

crime than the murder of this great and high-minded man. It was a crushing blow to those around him, a shock to the nation and a loss to the whole world. Never was a death more widely or sincerely lamented. On that solemn Thursday, when his body was being laid to rest, it seemed as though the whole universe had come to a standstill. Not a sound could be heard but the tolling of the church bells and the sounding of the minute guns, and perhaps the most thronged of all the services held in his honor was that in London's ancient cathedral of St. Paul, nearly 4000 miles from the spot where he was being laid to rest among his own people.

"And now that the great man himself is gone, we listen again to his last and greatest words; we listen while he tells men that peace is greater than war, and love better than hate, little thinking that at this very moment a foul assassin is hatefully planning to end his great and useful life. But so it has been in all history, those who do most for the people are those who suffer at their hands. Though duty's was his only crown, yet duty's path is glory's way."

PIANO HISTORY!

As seen and experienced by shrewd buyers and honest dealers, centers strictly around the two only—absolutely artistic pianos in the world—

STEINWAY & KNABE

For more than sixty years they have held the center of the stage.

They have a safe, secure hold on the affections of the artist and the music loving public of the whole world.

STEINWAY PIANOS have been sold for as much as $60,000.00 for one single instrument. KNABE PIANOS have sold for as high as $25,000.00 for one single instrument. There never has been another piano manufacturer who ever attempted to build a strictly art piano—yet we know of unscrupulous dealers who will attempt to get an artistic price for even a poor, very poor imitation.

Many people think the case makes the artistic piano, and are led to believe this to their sad disappointment after they have parted with their money.

How seldom you find these two noted historic world-wide reputable pianos—the Steinway & Knabe—handed by one dealer.

THE DULUTH MUSIC CO. carries thousands of dollars yearly wrapped up in these two noble instruments, and how little is this appreciated! How little do Duluth people realize what we have done, and are still doing for lovers of high art in pianos at an enormous expense.

Every one cannot afford the luxury of a Steinway or Knabe, yet they pay the price for a much inferior instrument that has never been countenanced by an artist, except when paid to do so.

Special sales, advertising bargains, is business and all right—but this does not appeal to artistic high-grade buyers.

Why pay an unreasonable price for a piano that has never attracted the attention of the musical world, when just a few more dollars will secure you a Steinway or a Knabe—the pride of two great continents as the only artistic piano ever built.

There are 200 piano manufacturers in the United States—only 10 per cent of this number are of high grade or standard.

Now we kindly ask those who anticipate the purchase of a piano to investigate what we have laid down for their own benefit.

Don't let the unscrupulous dealer lead you to believe that their instruments are as good, or as expensive to produce as a Steinway or Knabe. There are none built that cost anywhere near their value—but some dealers will ask as much for them.

STEINWAY & KNABE Pianos involve many vast improvements and important patents little appreciated by the public which other manufacturers have not completed, hence the extra cost of production.

Therefore, above all, in choosing an instrument, the necessity of knowing that the maker is faithful and honest to the demands of his calling should be clear to all buyers to avoid deception.

THE DULUTH MUSIC COMPANY is a valuable factor to Piano Purchasers.

Other good Pianos which our vast and untiring experience have proven above reproach are:—the IVERS & POND, noted for its popularity in large musical conservatories of the East.

EMERSON—a Piano of National Reputation — over 80,000 now in use in as many satisfied homes—the best piano on earth for a moderate price.

MASON & HAMLIN—another pride of the artist and teacher, noted for its sympathetic tone qualities, and perfect action—a perfect instrument in every respect.

KRANICH & BACH—an old time-tried favorite, built by men of artistic experience and noted for superior qualities as scale drawers.

We also have a large and well selected stock of LUDWIG, SMITH & BARNES, RICHMOND, WILLARD, LELAND, REMINGTON, DYER BROS. and others at prices according to the their standing.

Bargain Pianos A large list of bargains in Pianos returned from rent now on our floor at ridiculously low prices. These can be exchanged for better ones at any time you so desire, allowing you what you have paid to apply on the better one.

The Pianola The wonder of the 20th Century, the most perfect, simple, complete and less complicated of any player on the market. Endorsed by all leading musicians of the country.

PRESIDENT HOME AGAIN

Given a Warm Welcome on Return to the Capital.

Washington, June 6.—President Roosevelt returned to Washington from his memorable trip over two months throughout the West. He was given a hearty reception by the people of the capital. The president cordially responded to the greetings given him and on the drive from the Pennsylvania station to the White House repeatedly stood up in his carriage and waved his hat and bowed his acknowledgments to the people that lined the street. He looked the picture of health.

Many government officers met the president at the station. Secretary Payne threw his arms about Mr. Roosevelt and whispered to him. When the president reached home he received the high school cadets who had formed his escort from the railway station to the White House. The Marine band played in the back yard and there many gathered to welcome the traveler home. The president went to the back porch and said:

"My friends and neighbors, I thank you very much for coming here to greet me this afternoon, and I have appreciated more than I can say the welcome back home that I have received today. I have been absent over two months, and I have traveled many miles. During that time one thing has struck me, and that is, the substantialness of the American people. One can travel from ocean to ocean and from Canada to the gulf and always be at home among one's fellow Americans. I thank you again, my friends, and I am now going in to my own folks."

DIED IN BLIZZARD.

Two Small Boys Were Lost In Montana.

Great Falls, Mont., June 6.—Word has been received from Lethbridge of the loss in the recent blizzard of two small sons of J. Derrick, a sheep herder. The father was six days in finding the bodies of the lads, and they had been dead eight days before he could get them into town to bury. Derrick was living with his children in a tent when the blizzard broke.

SPEAKER AND JUDGE CLASH

Trouble Grows Out of New Law In Hawaii.

Honolulu, June 6.—A clash has developed between the speaker of the house of representatives and Circuit Judge Sear growing out of the case instituted recently to test the constitutionality of the county government act passed by the last legislature. The only journal records of the house were introduced in the circuit court and Clerk Mehula, of the house, acting under the instructions of Speaker Beckley, made a demand for the immediate return of the books. Judge Sear informed the sergeant-at-arms who brought Mehula's letter that he would heed the communication as discourteous and that the records would remain in the custody of the court.

DANGER PASSED.

Mob That Would Lynch Montgomery Has Dispersed.

La Crosse, Wis., June 6.—Telephone reports received from Sparta this morning stated that danger of Montgomery being lynched has passed for the time being. During the night the mob thinned out and finally dispersed. Montgomery is well guarded by a squad of deputies, and Sheriff Cussels said, at 8:20 this morning, that he did not anticipate any further trouble.

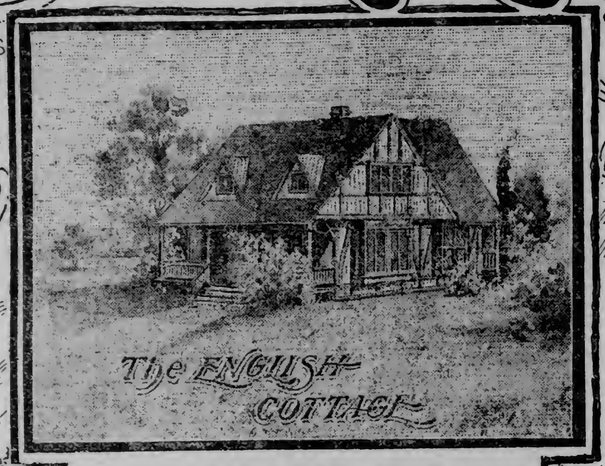
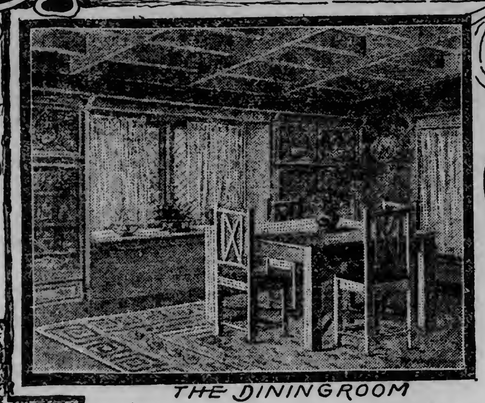
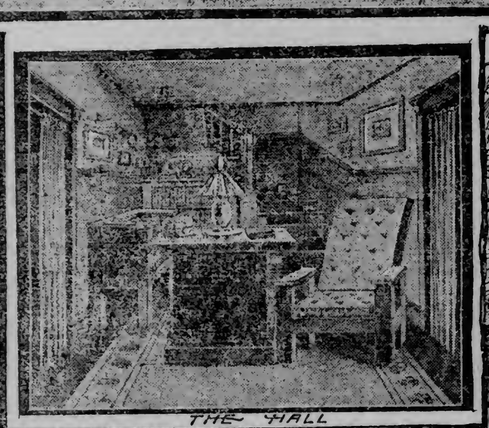
SUMMER HOMES

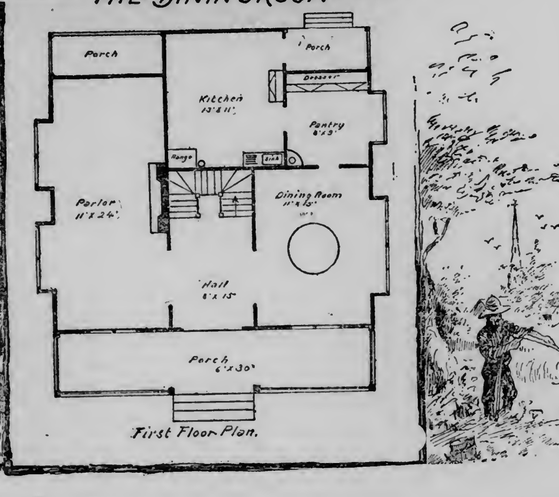




THE DININGROOM



THE HALL



1.—AN ENGLISH COTTAGE.

(Copyright, 1903, by W. M. Butterfield.)

The discussion over the summer home, which always opened with the first appearance of warm weather, only to be closed when the leaves sifted to earth in the fall, commenced early this year in consequence of the warm weather in March. The Browns had long wanted a home in the country, where the summer months could be spent in ease and comfort, but pater familias had never been in a financial position to listen to these discussions with that degree of interest which would warrant their coming to a substantial and satisfying conclusion. This year, however, he displayed rather a surprising desire to enter with the family into these "house talks." With this show of interest sundry envelope backs were brought into requisition, and after numerous columns of figures were added and readded, to the discomfiture of the surprised and expectant household, it was announced that if the family were willing to locate upon a half acre in Westchester county he could spare $2,500 for the house and the furniture.

Assured that at last the summer home was to be theirs pandemonium reigned. Instantly each member of the family discovered latent abilities in house engineering and decoration undreamed of before. Originality, or, rather, unconscious imitation, was a demon of the air filling each head with suggestions that must be heard and considered. All must be embodied in the new house. Tom is an architect, and before the summer home loomed a surety on the horizon was looked upon as an authority in house construction; yet, as is usual in the experience of all architects at this stage of house building, any suggestion which he advanced was received coldly.

Mabel, who is an artist, buys all sorts of odd and curious things, with the result that her room looks like a junk shop. She pleaded earnestly that each room of the new house should represent a distinct period, citing the Newrich house as an example. And besides this remark was intended for Tom—these people have lots and lots of money and should know how to build and furnish a house. You see, Tom and nothing to do with the Newrich house. Cora, who is older than Mabel, indicated that a person who made an English hall his every theme took after a curiosity shop was not one who should be taken as an authority on house furnishing. Why, there were a Persian dining room, Turkish corners, a Louis XVI drawing room, a Japanese hall, a Colonial bedroom, and goodness knows what else in that Newrich basement!

NO BRACKETS OR FRILLS.

Tom, finding an opportunity cannot to the astonishment of this onlyarst, said that constructive conservation was freely expressed concerning all of the lawlessness of our suburban houses. The architects deplored the mixed ideas upon standing effects as proof of a lack of ability in house construction. Several styles of architecture were often used in the same building, while in other cases no style of any sort could be traced at all. Individuality, gingerbready stuff, Tom knew was not always the fault of the architect, but, although the latter might occasionally be with the patron, it was in most instances a lack of good judgment and tasteful feeling in the professional builders themselves. Hybridism has been carried to such an extent that the architect must from sheer weight of his own folly return to pure period lines in construction. Of course it is not generally supposed that the furnishings of a house come within the province of the architect, yet this is so truly a part of his profession that the success or failure of the completed house can be with justice laid at his door. Tom believes that styles of architecture that time had proved useful as well as beautiful should be used as surely as certain standard styles of furniture or other materials of tasteful house furnishing, but he was strenuously opposed to mixing period styles in the house. Furthermore, the best artists there he looked at Mabel as well as municipal art leagues are working toward this end. The family, overcome by so much eloquence backed by such a wealth of technical knowledge, without a single protest decided that Tom should draw up the plans for the new house.

TAWARY SUBURBAN HOME.

As soon as the household architect really got to work upon the house, plans and definite information were forthcoming. A perspective elevation was placed before the family the following evening, representing an English cottage. It was pointed out by the father of this creation that when the cost of a building was limited to $2,000 great care must be exercised in the choice of materials and in putting them together. In the case of the plan shown no turned work could be used and mouldings could not be thought of. The only extravagance which Tom insisted upon was in the use of rustic or latticed windows in the front and upon the sides of the building. It was necessary, he explained, that these should be used, else the house would be commonplace and cheap in appearance; they should be hinged, and not hung upon sash cords, and therefore be more like glass doors than the window commonly in use. The exterior walls were to be half timber work of two-inch stuff, securely spiked to the sheathing. The plastering or pebble dashing, whichever was decided upon, was to be done upon grooved plaster board or strong metal laths. Brackets and "frills," common in cheap construction, were not to be tolerated. The country cottage should have a low, nestling look, which had been considered in arranging the plan. The main roof was carried down to cover the porch, and the second story extended 18 inches on each side, which was in style of the plan used. Bay windows would also help to preserve the period lines of this structure. The roof should be covered with cedar shingles, unstained. As the elevation pleased the family an approximate estimate of cost was next shown, for the actual cost, as was explained by the expert, would depend upon the location of the building, its nearness to materials, labor, and the time of year in which it was built.

Lumber, carpentry and millwork	$800 to $1,000
Excavating, foundation and masonry	500 to 610
Plumbing, heating and range	150 to 220
Painting, glazing and hardware	200 to 270
Totals	$1,650 to $2,100

A first-floor plan was next made, showing the sizes of rooms, the position of windows and doors, the dressers, stairs, range, sink, etc. Mr. Brown was of the opinion that it would not be necessary to have a cellar—that that expense could be used in some other part of the house—but Mrs. Brown protested, and, although she admitted that she was not an expert builder, and perhaps not a practical furnisher, yet she had had practical experience in housekeeping, and she was sure that a large, dry cellar kept a house in good condition. It was therefore decided that a cellar should extend under all of the rooms, but not under the porches. The stairway would be under the main stairway in the hall, with an entrance in the kitchen, between the sink and range.

When the drawing for the dining-room was shown the girls became rapturously enthusiastic and all former differences of opinion were forgotten. Although it could not be said that any period had been represented, there was a quiet harmony in room and furnishings which indicated a judicious adaptation of style to conditions and purpose.

The severe plainness of the mission furniture is in perfect keeping with this style of house, and as the family was to buy, it was advised that it be used. Chestnut or red oak was to be used, if not too expensive, otherwise white pine should be used in this room and throughout the house. All of the woodwork—floor, ceiling, beams and all—should be stained to match the furniture in color and finish, in the dull or wax finish. The color in this instance should be weathered oak. The walls and ceiling should be rough sand finished, the ceiling white, the side walls a robin's egg blue—both the upper and lower walls, although divided with a plain strip of wood, should be all of a color. Tom suggested that if the girls would devote some care in the selection of the furnishings and decorations, with the idea of having the same blue throughout, the effect would be more pleasing. All of the porcelain used should be blue and white, the rug as well as the hangings at the doors of that combination, with the blue predominating. Soft-textured materials should not be used, nor bold, strong figures. Glass should be used in preference to silver; in short, overloading or overdecorating must be avoided.

The design for the hall received favorable comment and Mr. Brown admitted that Tom showed more sense than he ever gave him credit for possessing, which made that young gentleman hold forth at some length upon the importance of the hall and its modern use. He said that it is being used more and more as an auxiliary room, for in size and purpose the hall, as now used, is a room. In the country house it is made a general utility apartment, a library, living room or some such feature.

He then pointed out that the hall should indicate by its arrangement and furnishing as well as by its use the character, habits and social tendencies of the inhabitants. Knowing the family, he had tried to make the apartment indicative of it. This remark was, of course, purely professional flattery and served to show that he had advanced in his profession.

The side walls and ceilling are treated as in the dining-room, for, as the rooms of the house are necessarily small, it will be wise to decorate them in the same manner as far as possible upon this floor. This will help to increase their apparent size. The furniture could, however, be lighter in color; for instance, it could have the drab finish which is often given to the mission furniture. If the upholstering is in keeping with this finish the effect will be very pleasing. The rug and the door hangings will, of course, be blue and white, while the picture frames should be of weathered oak, to match the woodwork. A bit of color could be pleasantly introduced in the form of the colored facsimile prints to be found in antique shops.

The second floor plan and the furnishing of the parlor and two of the bedrooms will be described in next Sunday's issue.

The Summer Girl Makes Rafia Hats.

Girls who last year sat on the plazzas of summer hotels embroidering collars or knitting sweaters are enthusiastic over rafia hats this year. Only a few rafia lace hats are to be found in the shops and the prices of those are so high that the girl with a moderate allowance can do no more than gaze upon them covetously. To make one of these hats costs a great deal of labor and care, but not much money, so if a girl has more time than funds she can well afford to make her own hat.

The rafia hat-making is a development of the rafia basketry, which has been a popular fad for the last season or two. Rafia work, whether for baskets or hats, is not trying upon the eyes, and the fibre, which is from a palm that grows in Madagascar, is pleasant to handle.

A great charm of rafia hats is their lightness. A pound of the fibre will make four or five braid hats and at least half a dozen lace ones. The fine braid hats, woven in four or six strand braids, are satisfactory either for shopping or traveling or for shade hats, while the lace ones are smart and elegant or picturesque, according to their pattern, shape, style of trimming and also—an important factor—the amount of labor put into their making, for there are exquisitely fine lace hats, and—others.

Any one who has ever made the macreme lace that prevailed in the days of mill'nery house decoration can easily master the art of rafia lace hat-making, for the patterns are adapted from it, and the knots and network are copied. The hat is begun in the center of the crown. Eight long strands of rafia are doubled and tied by drawing the ends through the loop around a stout bit of rafia. This foundation bit is then tied into as small a ring as possible. The eight strands form the midribs of the pattern, and upon every one holding the doubled strands together seven long fibres are tied in a double Solomon's knot. With these strands the whole pattern is developed.

Beyond the star of the crown the patterns are varied according to the taste and ingenuity of the worker, and to harmonize with the shape. The illustrations show what variety can be achieved in them by different workers, every hat being stamped somewhat with the individuality of its maker. Even the crown centres are not alike in any two hats, although the pattern is really the same. But no two girls tie the knots with the same firmness or possess equal knack in holding the strands evenly. Deftness of touch and manipulation, together with a natural love for painstaking, imparts a beauty to each hat that distinguishes it from others.

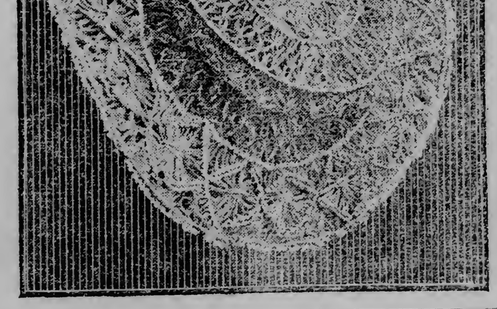
The double-brimmed flat hat illustrated was made by a girl in a large college, where dozens of girls have made hats this season, and some of them are already wearing the products of their labor.

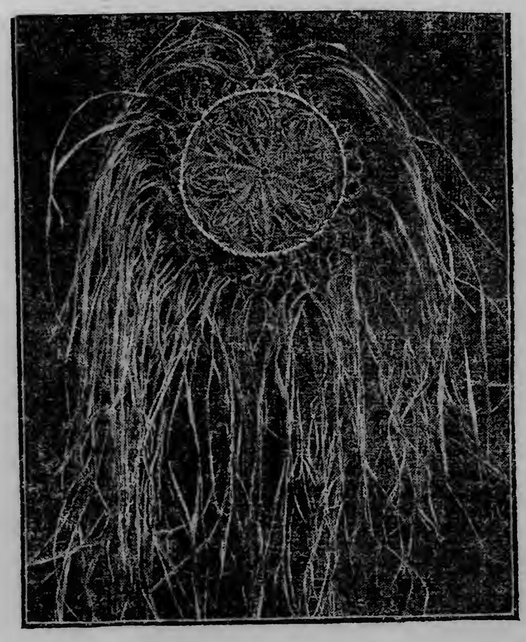
Fine, even strands were selected for this hat, which is made upon a wire frame, the pattern being adapted to it. It represents nine days' steady work.

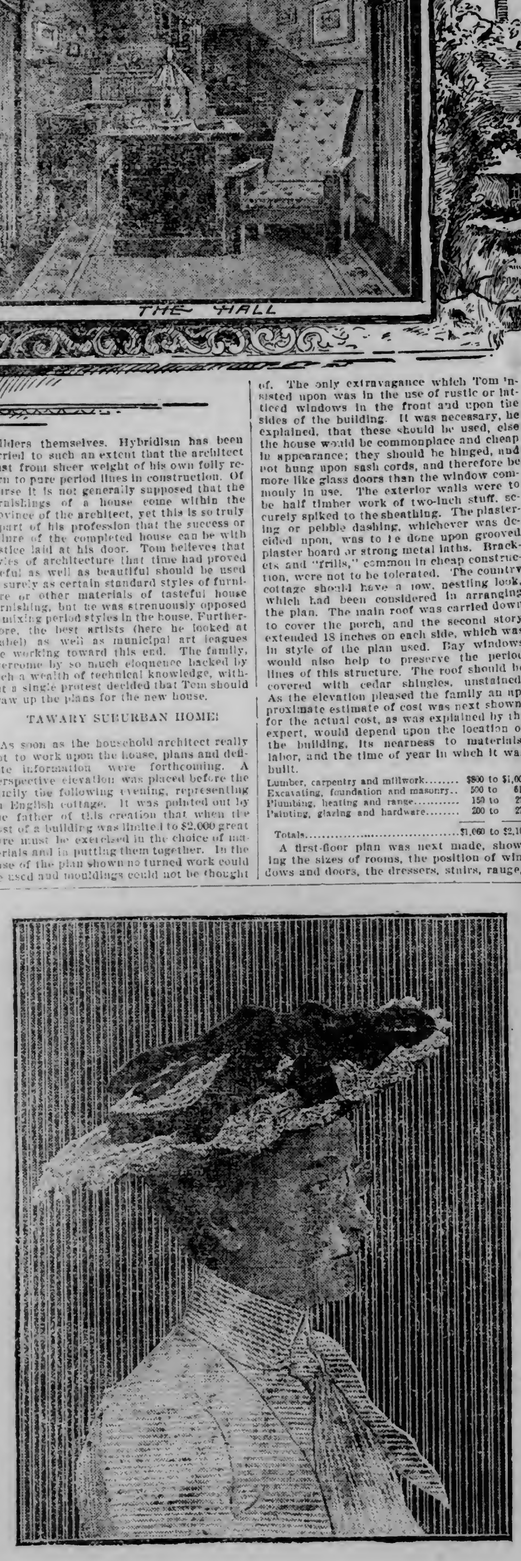
Other handsome hats have been made in 30 hours and some in even less time. But the latter are made of coarser strands and knotted loosely so the pattern fills up rapidly.

Most hats are made without frames and have only the necessary wires to keep them in shape. These are all worked into the hat, the rafia being knotted over them as the pattern is developed.

Handsome hats are being made of black rafia, but it does not show the beauty of the lace as effectively as the natural color.







Eggs for Garnishing.

The French method is to add a tablespoonful of vinegar to a pint of water. Let it come to a hard boil, stir rapidly, then drop one egg in at a time. Use a spoon to keep the eggs turning over and over until the white is wrapped in a circle about the yolk.

While eggs cooked in this way are horny and indigestible, they make a pretty garnish.

Sterling patriotism and unflagging pride in our brave little army are omnipresent in the work of Gen. Charles King. No small debt is due him from the American public as the first writer to portray life in frontier military posts. As a novelist he may not embody the highest acceptation of the term, but he has built up for a wide circle of pleased readers a group of characters that live in affectionate memories despite minor faults of craftsmanship. In plots and inner workings there is much of sameness in his tales of troopers and dough boys. Virtue and bravery always win out, no matter how closely beset by opposing influences, and cads and prigs are absent from his list of heroes. For women he has all the chivalrous respect of the regular soldier, this one quality being sufficient to redeem his work from mediocrity. His new book, "A Daughter of the Sioux" (the Hobart company) resembles many of the people of his earlier writings. Billy Ray, Leggy Blake, Dade, Wilkins, Gregg and others familiar to his admirers are again paraded, now in trip undress and again in business-like campaign rig, and one is glad of the reunion. Beverly Field, of Virginia, fresh from the "Point," is the dashing young hero, flaunting the cavalry yellow in lilts for his heart's entrancing. Billy Ray, sutler, and his interesting family, are new faces in the panorama, while the trader's beautiful niece, Nanette Flower, is the inevitable feminine mischief maker. Casting the spell of her dark beauty over the boyish lieutenant, she entangles him with her Sioux friends, and all the elements of mystery are mingled in devious complications.

Upon the last campaign against the Sioux is built the groundwork of the tale, furnishing ample opportunity for a display of the author's old time skill in describing Indian fights. When Nanette, the beautiful, is metamorphosed into a plain Sioux squaw, snarling and scratching, the strands of the narrative are quickly gathered into compactness, and all ends in accustomed happiness.

Not forgetting his customary fling at the metropolitan press, the general holds aloof from diatribes against pernicious use of political influence in gaining promotion. Frederic Remington and E. W. Deming illustrate the book, which is adorned with a brilliant cover design.

"Love Thrives In War," by Mary Catherine Crowley, published by Little, Brown & Co., of Boston, will add to the reputation of the author of "A Daughter of France" and "The Heroine of the Strait." The reader's interest is at once centered in the heroine, Laurente MacIntosh, a pretty and coquettish Scotch girl, who is beloved by three men, Blue Jacket, a vindictive Indian, Capt. Muir, a noble British officer, and Pierre Labadie, a dashing young American patriot. The many incidents occur during the war of 1812, and the surrender of Gen. Howe and his American army to the British and their Indian allies under Tecumseh, is one of the stirring events which form the historical background of Misss Crowley's latest romance. The book is finely illustrated by Clyde O. Deland.

The J. S. Ogilvie company, New York, are the publishers of "Mr. Claghorn's Daughter," by Hilary Trent. It is a story designed to exhibit the evil consequences of a blind adherence to an impossible religious standard. A woman, trained to be an agnostic, but of strong religious instincts, becomes the wife of a professional theologian and during a fit of remarkable confession of faith which, though held aloft as the standard of a great church, is actually repudiated by many of its professed followers. Natalie Claghorn has no conception of this attitude. She assumes the absolute sincerity of her husband, and, with the humility of a conscientious woman who has found wisdom too late that she is mismated, strives to accept doctrines which he, with partisan ardor declares to be the living truth. To her, conscious of the wrong she does in looking lingeringly back upon memories of a lost and now forbidden love, it becomes a supreme duty to sacrifice, even reasoning powers to loyalty to her husband and her husband's creed. She will believe in eternal damnation if she must, and if she cannot compass that, will at least not doubt her husband's sincerity. But with that resolve, it is borne in upon her that the believer in hell has no right to bring into the world children destined to possible eternal misery. Hence, marital complications with tragic results. It is a daring book with no glozing of hard facts, but with reverential treatment of religion as distinguished from dogma, and skillful handling of matters which relieve it of the taint of "suggestiveness."

The first volume of the Macmillan Little Novels by Favorite Authors issue is Owen Wister's "Philosophy Four." Mr. Wister obtained the material for this story while studying at Harvard, where the scene is laid. The volume is bound in artistically decorated covers, and contains a photogravure frontispiece of Mr. Wister, with a few other illustrations. The volume also contains a biographical sketch of the author.

"A Prince of Sinners," by E. Phillips Oppenheim, is an engrossing story of English social life told by a skilled hand. Lord Arranmore—the Prince of Sinners—returning to England after an absence of twenty misspent years, finds his manly son, Kingston Brooks, unforgiving, and determined to work out his own career, instead of assuming his title and taking his seat in the house of lords. Brooks establishes a social settlement in the worst part of London, and is assisted by Mary Scott, a self-sacrificing and lovable young woman, while Lady Sybil, the accomplished daughter of the aristocratic Lady Carcoon, manifests no little interest in his work and in himself. The difficulties with which Brooks meets in carrying out his purpose, the attempts of Lord Arranmore to assail him, together with the divided love interest, make up an ingenious present-day romance which possesses an extraordinary fascination. Mr. Oppenheimer's story displays a deep insight into human character. Published by Little, Brown & Co., Boston, Mass.

The editor of a New York newspaper makes the prediction that "Reciprocity," by Professors J. Laurence Laughlin and H. Parker Willis, which the Baker & Taylor company has just issued, will sell 50,000 copies in the coming campaign. The happy union of the authoritative and the popular in the book makes it an especially valuable work, since it serves all the needs of the student and yet is lightened and made interesting by a vigorous style and a thorough acquaintance with all political phases of this great question.

One of the new spring novels said to contain unusual entertaining qualities is Helen Milecete's "A Detached Pirate," which Little, Brown & Co. have published. The heroine of the story is Gay Vandeleur, the divorced wife of an English army officer, and after her arrival at Halifax from London she becomes a great social favorite. The heroine tells the story herself in a bright, frank manner, and as the military set in which she moves is a lively one, the reader's interest is never permitted to wane. Anticipating a wide demand for this clever society novel, the publishers have illustrated it with five plates in color, by I. H. Caliga, the frontispiece of the heroine being a particularly striking and artistic picture. The author of "A Detached Pirate," Helen Milecete, is the author of "A Girl of the North." She is a Canadian by birth and a resident of Halifax. She has written for Lippincott's, the Smart Set, and other magazines, but this novel marks a distinct advance in comparison with her previous work.

Thomaxs Dixon, Jr., has finished his new novel, "The One Woman," and Doubleday, Page & Co. will publish it this summer. It is significant that some of our publishers no longer seek to issue their best novels in the months preceding Christmas. Perhaps 5000 or 4000 new books are published in September, October and November, and practically none in January and February, summer. Doubleday, Page & Co. issued "The Pit" on Jan. 15, and the "closed season" did not hurt the sale, rather, they believe, the reveres, since "The Pit" was the best-selling book in the United States almost from the day of publication. The new novel by the author of "The Leopard's Spots," now selling in its second hundred thousand, they consider quite as important, and they have selected Aug. 1 for the day of publication.

Marion Crawford proved that he was a born story teller with his first book, and time and his succeeding volumes have strengthened the impression. His gift of story telling appeared very nearly at its best in "The Upper Berth," a brief and thrilling sea story and ghost story combined. "Man Overboard" is another story closely similar in character to "The Upper Berth." It is the second issue in the Macmillan Series of Little Novels by Favorite Authors. It is about two brothers, Jim and Jack Benton, whose resemblance is so close that even the girl whom both love cannot always distinguish between them at first sight. Jack is lost overboard in a storm. It would be unfair to tell the rest of the story. It is very much in the vein of "The Upper Berth," and is told with all the nerve and spirit and fascination of that strange and absorbing story. Mr. Crawford's power to clutch and compel your undivided earnest attention has never been shown more happily than in these two brief tales.

George Harvey, president of Harper & Brothers, has just returned from London, where, as stated in a cable dispatch, he "acquired practically all the literary products of England that an American publisher would consider worth having." He has secured for Harper & Brothers, for their periodicals and for books, the entire and exclusive future work of Maurice Hewlett, author of "The Forest Lovers;" Sir Gilbert Parker, author of "The Right of Way;" Mrs. Humphrey Ward, author of "Lady Rose's Daughter;" Joseph Conrad, author of "Typhoon;" A. E. W. Mason, author of "The Four Feathers;" Anthony Hope, author of "The Intrusions of Peggy;" J. J. Bell, author of "Wee Macgreegor," and E. F. Benson, author of "Dodo," with the exception of books which had already been contracted for by two of these authors.

"God's Children" is the title of "a modern allegory," by James Allman, of which Charles H. Kerr & Co., Chicago, are the publishers. According to this book, God sends Mercury to investigate the condition of His children, and his stirring experiences and surprises form the contents of the book, which is of a socialistic nature.

A new Russian story published by the J. S. Ogilvie company, New York, bears the title of "One For Many, Confessions of a Young Girl." This story has been translated from the original Russian by Henry Britoff, and has had a sale in Russia alone of over 150,000 copies. "Vera," the author of this remarkable book in diary form which is now the literary sensation of Europe, more than 1,000,000 copies having been sold, was the daughter of a prominent lawyer in Vienna. The tragedy of the book, and of her actual life, of which this book is a faithful record, is based upon her discovery of the fact that the man she loved had been guilty of an intrigue with an adventuress. The destruction of her ideal—the impossibility of marrying a man incapable of responding to her innate purity of soul—drove her to desperation, and she destroyed herself the day before her wedding.

George Gibbs, whose new novel, "The Love of Monsieur," has just been published by Harper & Bros., was born in Louisiana, although he is now a resident of Philadelphia. Mr. Gibbs was trained for a naval career, his father having been a distinguished naval officer and many of his family in the service. At the age of fifteen he went to sea. For three years he studied at the naval academy, but the impulse toward art and literature was too strong and he left Annapolis to devote himself to the work of an illustrator. At the same time he wrote "In Search of Mademoiselle," which, although his first novel, attained a rather remarkable success. His new story, "The Love of Monsieur," although its scenes are laid in the time of Louis XIV and Charles II, is not an historical novel like its predecessor, but is purely a romance. The situations are evolved chiefly on a pirate ship at sea. The author has drawn the frontispiece for his novel. Mr. Gibbs is exceremely fond of outdoor life, and after his morning's work tramps or rides for miles daily. He has traveled considerably abroad, and brings to his work the all-round culture of a varied experience.

Dr. J. R. Bailey has written and published a book that is designed to fill a long-felt though recently expressed want. The medical journals have been publishing requests from members of the profession desiring some means of reaching patients who needed instruction on sexual matters for the beset welfare of themselves and families, but who could not be reached by ordinary means, as the subject was too delicate for mention even between physician and patient, inasmuch as it involved the inner relations existing between man and wife rather than the direct ills of the patient in the case. To the end of meeting this want, Dr. Bailey has placed before the public "More Light on a Dark Subject." It is a compilation of the demonstrated facts concerning the subject, almost inaccessible to the layman, and is written in simple language without technical terms or reference. In the education of the next generation the book opens a ready means of enlightenment, either directly or by meanes of advice on the part of parents and teachers, facts stated in terms that can be readily understood. On sale at Albertson's.

to watch them try to talk and act like the people they worked for. Outside of the valley a chorus girl is the funniest thing on earth, and I'd like to play a real high-toned servant role or one of those naughty chorus ladies that Fay Templeton imitates so cleverly." Here Broadhurst broke in with this statement: "I've just thought of a better part for you than either of these, and I will write a play for you in which you can star first as a slavey and then, by a sudden unexpected fortune, as the mistress of the house. The fun will come in your trying to cover your slavey sins with a multitude of second-hand dresses and manners." "It's a go," quickly replied Miss Yokes, and apparently her immediate future is settled.

One of the distinct successes of last week was the appearance at the American theater of Jacob P. Adler, the Hebrew tragedian. He has been on the stage for thirty years, spending half of that time in this city, absolutely unknown to the general theater going public. Down on the lower Bowery he is all that is highest in histrionic art, but outside of that district no one ever heard of him until George H. Brennan coaxed him to come forth and appear with an English-speaking company. Brennan purchased the scenery and costumes of "The Merchant of Venice" from the Augustin Daly estate, and surrounded Adler with an exceptionally strong cast. The fact that he played the role in Yiddish, while the other members of the company confined themselves to English, detracted nothing from his immediate and overwhelming success. All last week he played to crowded houses of a character far different from those usually seen on Eighth avenue. Adler is part owner of two of the four Hebrew theaters in this city, and it is estimated that his income from this source alone is something like $25,000 a year.

Before the irrepressible "Teddy" Marks sailed for London he confided to several friends that among the novelties he had in store to bring back with him will be a genuine Irish band, the fame of which he says is overwhelming in the Emerald Isle. Miss Viola Allen will not have the field of "Twelfth Night" to herself, for be it understood that Miss Grace George, backed by the enthusiastic William A. Brady, has decided to appear in the role of Viola at the Madison Square Theater in October. She has been booked for a run of 12 weeks there in "Pretty Peggy," the performances of which will be strictly limited to the evening. At the Wednesday and Saturday matinees Miss George will hold forth in her Shakespearean revival.

If ever a mad man was seen on Broadway that person was the aforesaid Mr. Brady, after a local newspaper had printed the story that he had been touched up for $2,000 in a poker game by the buoyant Charles Evans. It did not improve Brady's temper to know that the story, as he is willing to swear, was untrue. He admits that he did play a little game, and that Evans got the most of the small sum which he lost. But, as he added, the total amount involved was a mere bagatelle, not more than some $300. If Brady catches up with the man who told the $2,000 story murder will be done for it, and the ears of Arthur Conrad and Brady's explanations have so far been without avail. Not even the illness of their child tended to straighten matters out, and unless suspicion is removed from the unjustly accused manager he is likely to be in trouble all summer.

William Holcomb has been very happy this week, for his comis opera "The wood Witch," has been tried on New York, and he survives. Holcomb wrote the book, Albert Mildenberg the music, and Helena Frederick played the leading role. The audience was sufficiently pleased to call upon the authors for speeches.

One of the lightning dramatists is at work on a play, the feature of which is Mrs. Colgate Hoyt's $20,000 pearl necklace. A real $100 bill, an exact counterpart of the one the young working girl received from Mr. Hoyt in place of the $5000 she had expected, will be on exhibition at every performance, under a safe guard, of course. The $5000 reward will also be exposed to public view, and, true to life, only a stage money. It was too bad that the title, "A Working Girl's Wrongs," is already in use.

Senior Class Social.

The last senior class social affair was held yesterday at Oatka beach, when the fourth year students sat down to a very fine repast furnished by the girls. After the spread they attended the dance in the auditorium given by the sophomore class. The large crowd of friends that attended the latter thoroughly enjoyed the fine program. The seniors particularly enjoyed the outing.

New Things Strange and Curious

ROMANCE OF A HEART SHAPED PURSE.

A relic of more than ordinary interest is in the possession of Mr. Samuel S. Hefley, who lives near Bardstown, Ky. It is a pocketbook of unique design and pretty workmanship, and has a notable history. It was once the property of a young British soldier who was killed in the battle of New Orleans.

Mr. Hefley's father, Samuel Hefley, a native of Hagerstown, Md., settled in Bardstown at the beginning of the last century. At the outbreak of the war with England in 1812 he entered the American service and made a good soldier to the end of the hostilities. At the battle of New Orleans a young British officer, Lovel Marsh, of the Royal Fusileers, was found in the American lines mortally wounded. Mr. Hefley cared for him, and just before his death he gave the former his pocketbook.

When peace was declared Mr. Hefley returned to Bardstown, bringing with him the memento of the battlefield of New Orleans, and it has been treasured in the family as an heirloom ever since.

The pocketbook is heart shaped and is three inches in length and two and a half inches in width. It is made of stiff red morocco leather, lined with yellow material. In the centre is a circular piece of glass about one and a half inches in diameter. Beneath this glass is the gilt monogram "L. M.," surrounded by gilt filigree work, hexagon shaped. The book contains two compartments, and fastens with a steel shield shaped clasp. The book is wonderfully well preserved and is almost as good as new.

Mr. Hefley died in 1865 at the age of seventy-four, and often told the story of how he came into possession of the pocketbook, hence its history is well authenticated.

BESS'S SIGNATURE.

Styles of handwriting vary as widely in different centuries as the styles of dress or architecture. The penmanship of a few centuries ago appears as curious to us today as a mediæval suit of clothes. The signature of Queen Elizabeth, for instance, which is reproduced herewith, is a fair sample of the handwriting of her period.

Unless one had been told that this remarkable line of hieroglyphics was intended for a signature it would be difficult to guess its import. Even with this clew there is likely to be considerable difference of opinion as to the spelling.

The business handwriting of today marks an important evolution from this early period of meaningless flourishes. Even compared with the so-called fancy penmanship of the present, the signature of Elizabeth seems formless and meaningless. The letters themselves seem unformed, like the earlier attempts of a school girl, while the flourishes serve to obscure the meaning without adding any particular beauty.

The modern handwriting expert who adduces pages of evidence from a single line should be able to compile a whole library from such a signature alone.

HOW A RAT STOLE BULBS.

M. de Parville, a well-known French naturalist, tells a remarkable story about a rat in the Journal des Debats. A gardener planted one afternoon two hundred and fifty tulip bulbs on a terrace, and next morning he noticed that the ground had been disturbed and that they had all been taken away. He was confident that rats had done the work, and, taking a spade, he began to dig, in the hope of discovering their nest. Soon he unearthed a large female rat, which he killed, and after digging a few more minutes he discovered an underground chamber, lined with hay and leaves and connected by a corridor with two holes, which were evidently used as storehouses, for in them he found the two hundred and fifty tulip bulbs. This was remarkable, but more remarkable was the fact that they were neatly ranged in two rows and that not one of them had been gnawed or otherwise injured.

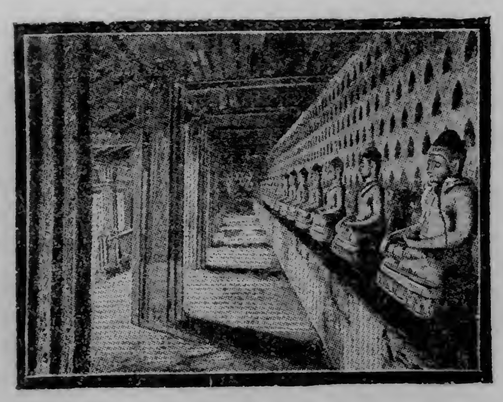
Matches are now made largely of aspen wood, imported from Finland and Russia.

BEAUTIFUL TOMB IN INDO-CHINA.

Many wondrous sights there are in Indo-China, and among them is the beautiful building which is shown in the accompanying picture. A Laotian pagoda it is, and it is situated not far from Hue, the capital of Annam.

The interior is shown in the picture, and the statues therein are those of deceased chiefs and kings. Long before the dawn of modern civilization the people of Indo-China had learned to reverence their ancestors and notable men, and of such reverence this Laotian pagoda is a striking proof. M. Jean Star, in his recent book, entitled "Les Tonkinades," dwells at length on the significance of the pagoda, pointing out that it has ever been regarded as a place in which the souls of deceased persons love to linger. A portion of the splendid imperial tomb of Annam is constructed in the form of a pagoda, and in many other parts of the country similar proofs of the survival of Buddhist symbolism may be seen.

From an artistic point of view these ancient tombs are well worthy of study, and fortunately the opportunity for such study is much better now than it ever was before.



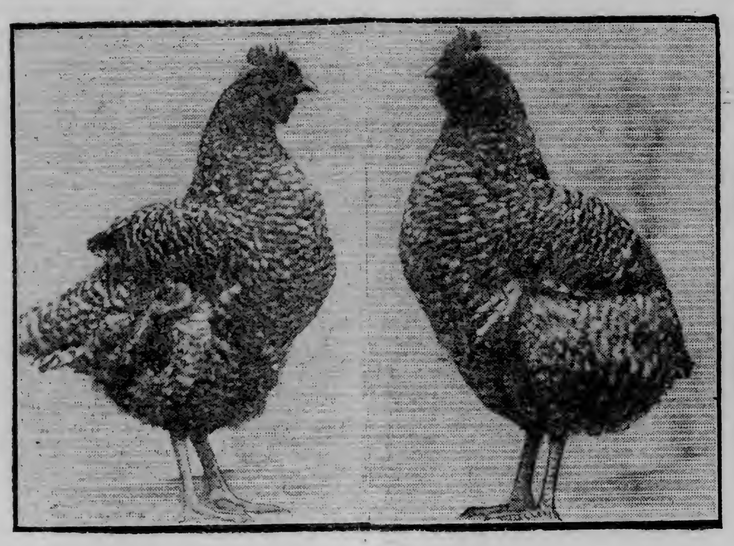
"BETSY PLYMOUTH," THE FOUR FOOTED HEN.

A three-legged chicken with four feet is the latest freak of nature in the realm of the barnyard. Contradictory as the statement may appear, it is nevertheless true, as a glance at the accompanying illustrations will assist in showing.

The subject gave the photographer no little trouble in securing negatives, as she seemed to care, or know, little about artistic poses; but he finally succeeded, after many futile attempts, in "snapping" her ladyship to his liking.

The face or front view of the chicken will convince the reader that she is an unusually fine specimen of a year-old Plymouth, while the two side views show the extra leg and the two extra feet which have enabled her to queen it over her feathered sisters in the farmyard near Scranton, Pa., where she first saw the light and puzzled her anxious mother by her surplus equipment. The leg on the left side, which shows beneath the wing, is almost full length, and the foot has three well-formed spurs; but on the right side the leg is so short it may be correctly said that there is only a foot. The latter is formed by two spurs only, with just the vestige of another where the stump connects with the bony frame of the back.

Betsy, as the chicken has been named, has no desire to pose as a freak, for, like an ordinary good chicken, she lays a fresh egg every day, and at the present writing seems very anxious to hatch a brood of her own. The advent of Betsy's chicks will be awaited with considerable interest, as certain of her admirers have predicted that some one of the brood will go the mother one better and raise the limit to four legs and five feet.



Odd African Mask.

From time immemorial masks have been worn in Africa, and not such masks as are familiar to those who live in civilized countries, but most extraordinary and grotesque masks, all of which, meaningless and ugly though they seem to Americans, have a deep significance for those who wear them.

In Africa there is a widespread belief that masks, if properly fashioned, possess the power of repelling evil spirits, and, as many demons are supposed to shun certain animals, no masks are more popular than those which resemble the countenance of such animals. Other masks are worn at religious dances and other religious ceremonies, and there are few among them which have not been handed down from father to son for several generations. Being fashioned of wood, as a rule, they last for a long time, and even when they begin to wear out they can easily be renovated, since in every village there are artisans who are skilled in this kind of work.

The mask shown in the illustration is worn only at religious dances, and is supposed to be a perfect safeguard against evil spirits.

Curious Plague Dress.

Apropos of the rumors of plague extant in South America, here is a curious "plague costume" worn by the medical men of Venice during the frequent visitations of plague to that city in the olden times. The hat, mantle, breeches, gauntlets and boots were made from morocco leather. The most extraordinary part of the costume, however, is the beak built into the mantle, which closely resembles that of a bird. This was filled with aromatic drugs, over which air passed during respiration, and this was supposed to protect the wearer from infection when visiting his patients.

In 1868 Hungary's forests returned little more than a million florins a year. Today, owing to careful administration, the yield is more than 3,000,000 florins yearly.

In the electrical furnaces now in use quartz is volatilized at relatively low temperature, and lime and magnesia become vapor before the highest temperature possible is reached.

"Angels"

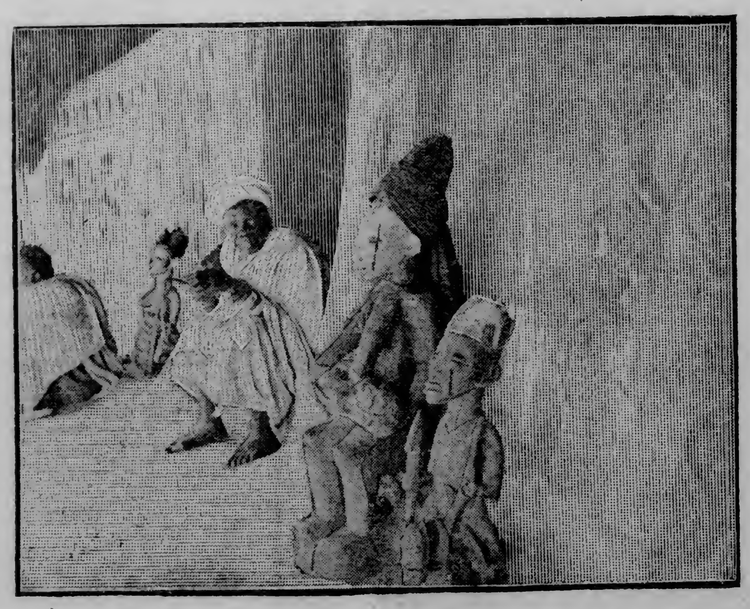
Here are some "winged angels" from the Nicobar Islands, in the Bay of Bengal. They are carved from wood, are from three to six feet in height and are certainly unique. These examples are elaborately painted and are not, as they might seem at a casual glance, mere dolls. They are votive offerings made by the Nicobar savages to ward off disease and ill luck. For this purpose they are kept in the houses of the natives, and it is not uncommon to see three or four such images suspended, from the ceiling of a hut.

If a gentleman of Nicobar is seriously ill, the most important measure he adopts, with a view to speedy recovery, is to make an effigy of some sort.

The Grand Trunk Road, in India, is the longest macadamized road in the world. It begins at Lahore and is eighteen hundred miles in length.

Among civilized nations four per cent. of the men and one per cent. of the women are color blind. The Chinese are the only people free from color blindness.

WEST AFRICAN PRIEST AND HIS DEVIL GODS.

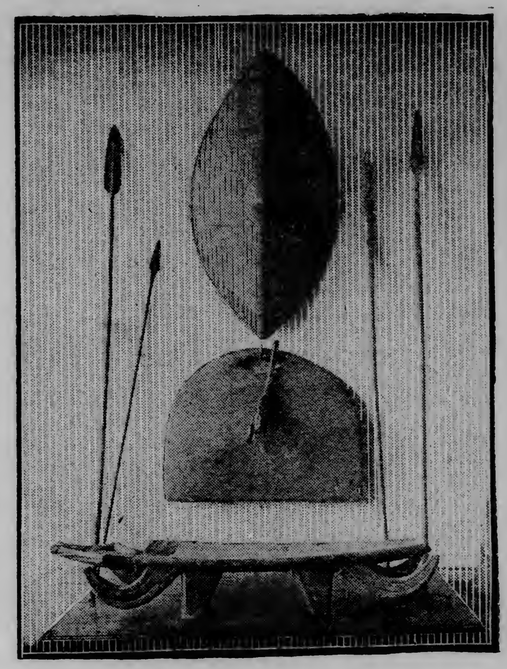


There has been much improvement brought about by mission societies and others in the condition of the natives back of Lagos, West Africa, but they are still very uncivilized and are the crudest of idolators. They worship the devil to keep him from harming them, and their other idols to keep them from doing harm to them and to gain good from them. They are kept in constant fear by their idol priests.

One of their gods is a man dressed up in a fantastic dress which covers all his body, so that no part can be seen. He is sacred from the touch of any one, sacrifices of food and money must be made to him, and he may lash his worshippers as he pleases without fear. He is called egungun, and is said to be one returned from the dead. Any one who can afford the dress may come out as this god.

Worship is by prostration, offering of food and money, and sometimes by petition to the god.

AFRICAN WAR GIFTS OF "CHINESE" GORDON.



This shield was presented to General Chas. Stone, U. S. A., by General Gordon, in Egypt, when General Stone was second in command to General Gordon in the Egyptian campaign. Underneath the shield is an African drum and below it is a sacred dish, upon which is placed food for the gods used in their religious worship. This dish is held so sacred by the negroes that they will not part with it unless forced to give it up. The spears and bow are also used by them. The tribe is the Mium-Miamo and its members are cannibals.

General Stone spent the last days of his life in Flushing, L. I., and when he died this valuable collection was bought by J. S. Boardman, of that place.

Briquettes For Fuel.

The recent coal strike has hurried America into following the example of continental Europe in the manufacture and sale of briquettes as a substitute for coal. In the older country these little bricks are made of coal dust, lignite or peat, mixed with a cohesive substance, such as pitch, which is combustible; the American product is made from culm, the fine coal which surrounds every breaker in mountainous heaps. This culm has been considered valueless because it packs too tightly to be used as fuel—it will not burn. But it has been rendered combustible by being combined with a liquid substance made by a secret process and called "binder."

These culm briquettes are said to be smokeless, burning with very little waste and possessing greater heat power than the best anthracite. Besides, a still greater consideration is that of this culm's cheapness. It can be manufactured for a dollar a ton and sold cheaper than any coal. It also is a new use of waste material.

The albatross varies from 12 to 28 pounds in weight. The largest ever shot was 17½ feet between the tips of its outstretched wings.

Pota-Tomato Plant.

The accompanying photographs furnish an anomaly in grafting, being a plant which is growing first class potatoes at the roots and bearing fully developed tomatoes at the stalk. It was brought about by Professor Green, of the Minnesota State School of Agriculture, when he cut off the young shoots of a potato vine, making a V-shaped slit in the top, into which he inserted a freshly clipped young tomato plant, bound the joint with straw and supported it by long rods. Nature did the rest.

The tomato drew sustenance from the earth through the roots of the potato, and in return furnished what was required in the way of the action of light and air upon its own leaves to its adopted roots.

The plant was presented by Professor Green to Attorney General W. B. Douglas, who has turned it over to Miss Minnie Heilwig, stenographer to Governor S. R. Van Sant. It is now making good progress in the Governor's reception room.

The plant is now three months old. On pushing aside the earth several fairly developed potatoes are shown, each a trifle larger than a large hen's egg. From the vines a half dozen tomatoes are hanging, in different stages of maturity. Several have ripened, and the others promise to do as well. The tomato vine loses its identity at the place where the graft was made. There are no leaves at all suggestive of the potato. The vine is fully three feet high.

A BABY CONDOR.

This is only a little bird, but that is because it is young, being only recently hatched at the Zoo in Washington. It is a baby condor, and its parents came from the Andes, in South America. As most people know, the condor, which is a species of vulture, is the largest bird that flies and has the greatest wing spread.

The Indians of Ecuador catch it by driving an old and worthless mule to a great height in the mountains, shooting it and digging a hole for the concealment of the hunter close by. By and by comes a condor, and when the bird has gorged itself to helplessness it is easily seized.

Cadet Stories—The Boy Tar

BY W. W. WHITELOCK.

Professor Bryan was the butt of the boys he undertook to teach. To look at him was to experience a mixture of pity and contempt for the long, lanky, serious, unpractical creature, who at 50 years of age was happy to secure a position suitable for a beginner.

As the initiator of the third class into the mysteries of geometry, he suffered the extremes of which the human heart is capable.

"Mr. Carson! Mr. Carson!" he would cry in weak protest, "do you realize, sir, that you are behaving in a manner unsuitable to the classroom? Get down off the back of that bench immediately, or I shall be forced to report you!"

"Skip ahor'" cried "Shorty," shading his eyes with his hand and fixing them on the horizon.

"Where away?" inquired Lovejoy, as though from the hills.

"Two points off the starboard bow, sir!"

"Mr. Carson, you are forgetting yourself, sir! If this occurs again I shall really have to report you."

Under the circumstances it was hardly to be expected that great progress would be made in the science of Euclid. Each day the leaders in the mischief would hatch out some fresh scheme for making poor Professor Bryan miserable. Finally, the mere thought of the geometry class was enough to cause him to break into a cold perspiration.

Unknown to "Shorty" and his friends, however, a whisper of the nesseuly proceedings had reached the ear of Lieutenant Deagan, the United States military detail, and he determined to investigate matters for himself. By an unfortunate fatality he chose for his visit the occasion of the worst demonstration of insubordination of which the class had yet been guilty. "Monkey" Sams and other choice spirits had oiled the blackboards in Professor Bryan's room, so that writing on them was impossible, and had placed a mouse in his desk, and had even gone so far as to put a piece of soft tar on his chair. The ringleaders had further agreed to applaud him vociferously upon his entrance. "Shorty" knew nothing of these plans beforehand, as he was on regular guard duty, but his innocence was purely accidental.

When the class assembled all these to the secret—and this comprised all but Mechesney and one or two other "good" boys—were in a tense state of excitement. Five minutes passed, but the victim did not put in an appearance. Ten minutes, but no teacher. Suddenly, however, the familiar, slow step was heard approaching, and the boys prepared to receive him. A hesitating hand was placed on the door knob and then it turned.

"Now!" cried "Monkey" Sims, and the class burst into vociferous applause. The next moment Lieutenant Deagan stood before them, and in frightened silence fell as the room. For a terrible half minute he stood motionless, while his eyes roved from one guilty face to the other.

"Well!" he said at last, in quiet, sarcastic manner, "you seem glad to see me at all events. I shall try to deserve my welcome."

Stepping quickly to the teacher's chair, he was about to seat himself, when his sharp eye caught the ineffable piece of tar.

"Oh!" "Monkey" Sams cried out, half rising and stretching out his hand as though to prevent the catastrophe.

Lieutenant Deagan raised his eyes and fixed them with ominous portent on "Shorty," but he made no direct reference to his discovery.

"Mr. Carson," he said slowly and in his politest tones: "I understand that you are quite an expert at geometry. I should be glad to have you take the chair today and conduct the class."

"Shorty" gazed at him, at a loss for a reply.

"Lieutenant Deagan," he said at last, feebly, "Greek is my strong point, not geometry. I'm afraid I shouldn't do credit to Professor Bryan's teaching."

"You must not be so modest, Mr. Carson," was the reply. "It's a great mistake. I really must insist upon your taking the direction of the class today."

"Shorty" knew this tone, and he realized the folly of resistance. With a resigned sigh, therefore, he walked to the seat intended for Professor Bryan. Then he hesitated.

"Sit down, Mr. Carson, sit down," urged Lieutenant Deagan, and "Shorty" sank into the chair with the feeling that he was sitting on an oyster. A titter went up from the onlookers, but Lieutenant Deagan took no notice of it.

"Now, Mr. Carson," he said, walking over and laying his hand on the desk, in which was the unfortunate mouse, "I shall be obliged if you will give out the problems for the day."

By this time "Shorty" had somewhat regained his composure and firmly planting his elbows on the desk lid, to prevent the rodent's escape, he opened the book and gave out the theorems to various members of the class. Accordingly they took positions at the blackboards and made pretense of trying to construct the figures. But, of course, they could not make a stroke on the greasy boards.

"My, my!" said Lieutenant Deagan, seizing a piece of chalk and trying to make a mark with it, "there seems to be something the matter with these boards. I am afraid we shall have to order new ones for you, at your expense. It's too bad, but I see we shall have to give up these lessons for today. Take your seats, gentlemen. I am extremely sorry that you should be disappointed of your lesson. However, I shall do my best to recompense you. You may, therefore, all bring me by this time next week the solution of all the extra problems in the second book.

Again the tormentor laid his hand suggestively on the desk lid. The boys' hearts stood still. Did he intend to open it? For a moment he regarded "Shorty" quizzically, as though enjoying his uneasiness. Then he turned away from the desk.

"I shall not keep you longer, gentlemen; the class is dismissed. Do not forget the problems."

Half an hour later the former sailor appeared on the drill ground, with a much turned up pair of his room mate's trousers, to the amusement of the corps.

"Step out of ranks, Mr. Carson!" commanded the relentless military detail, on catching sight of the unfortunate boy. "Sergeant, report Mr. Carson for appearing on parade in his grandfather's trousers. Silence! Stop that laughing! Resume your position, sir! By column of fours forward, march!"

Flour of England, fruit of Spain, met together in a shower of rain;—Put in a bag, steamed in a pot and eaten on Christmas Day while it is hot.

The answer to this Riddle is hidden in six places in the picture. Can you find the six answers?

Name The Indian Chief.

My first is in tea, but not in coffee:
My second is in cat, but not in drink;
My third is in cat, but not in dog;
My fourth is in latitude, also in longitude;
My fifth is in charm, also in harm;
My sixth is in sad, but not in happy;
My seventh is in read, also in write;
My eighth is in hat, but not in coat;
My whole is the name of an Indian chief.

A Finland Boy's Bath.

When the boys of Finland want to take a bath this is the way they do it.

In the first place, it is very, very cold in Finland—and the bathroom is not in the house at all, but is a building quite separate.

It is a round building, about the size of an ordinary room. There are no windows, so light and air can only come in when the door is open.

Inside benches are built all along the wall, and in the center is a great pile of loose stones. Early on Saturday morning word is brought in and a great vessel standing near the stones is filled with water.

Then someone cuts ever so many birch switches, and these are placed on the floor of the bathhouse. Next, the fire is made under the stones, and it burns all morning. In the afternoon, when the stones are very hot, the fire is put out, the place is swept clean and all is ready.

The boys undress in their homes and run to the bathhouse. As it is generally 30 below zero, you may be sure they do it in double quick time.

As soon as they are in the bathhouse they shut the door tight and begin to throw water on the hot stones. This, of course, makes the steam rise. More water is thrown on, and there is more steam, until the place is quite full of it.

And now comes the part that I think you American boys would not like at all. Each boy takes a birch switch and falls to whipping his companions. This is to make the blood circulate, and though it is real hard whipping, no one objects, but all think it great fun. At last, looking like a lot of boiled lobsters, they all rush out, have a roll in the snow and make for home.

Annie's First Trout.

BY MINNA C. SMITH.

Little Annie was wading in the shallow ripples of the Laramie River out of sight of the ranch house. She had on her blue denim apron, overalls, her old shoes and a pair of black knit woollen stockings. Her father always wore rubber boots when he was fishing for trout, and Annie was a papa's girl. She was out by the first bridge over the irrigating ditch when her sister Dora had come out to call her in to supper, and she started for the house at once.

Annie did not mean to run away, but she went round to the woodshed a minute to look at a sick lamb which had eaten too much alfalfa. She saw hanging on the woodshed wall a small new fishing rod and line that belonged to a Denver boy, Jimmy Vaughn, who was spending two weeks at the ranch. He had only caught three trout since he came. Annie thought that she better show Jimmy what she could catch if she had a rod like that. So she took it down, slipped out of the woodshed through the back fence, across the river on the big bridge of cottonwood poles and disappeared in a little thicket of cottonwoods opposite the big corral. She felt the old familiar joy in running away when she found herself on the meadow bank above the thicket out of sight of the house. She wanted to wade and fish in the next ripples, but she remembered that her father had told her they were so swift that they would pick up a little girl and run her down stream into the deep pool by the thicket and drown her before she could say Jack Robinson. So she went on up stream until she came to a broad, shallow place, where the ripples danced slowly in the sunset lights and the water was not over the tops of her shoes. It was there she stood and began whipping the stream for trout with a fair imitation of her father's fashion. Annie had often gone trout fishing with him when he caught his twenty pounds in an hour, and once she caught a catfish. But now the grasshopper on her hook danced excitedly over the water for a trout.

"There has to be a first time for everything," said Annie to herself, quoting her father, "and this is the time I'm going to catch a trout."

Valor, the big shepherd dog, who had followed her from the woodshed, came and stood on the bank.

"You're an awful tag tail, Val. You'll scare the fish," said Annie.

Suddenly a big dark thing came dapping and splashing down the Laramie from the bend above, gliding by Annie in the shallows so near that it almost pushed against her leg.

A beaver! Annie knew. She had seen one once up above the Pioneer Dam with her father. Her heart thumped wildly. Valor ran excitedly along the bank opposite. Annie reeled in, snatched the rod over her shoulder and running rapidly down out of the water and down the bank pursued the beaver. Valor at her heels. She caught up with the beaver first by the deep hole at the thicket. Valor barked, and the Denver boy's bulldog, Paddy, came rushing from the corral to see what was going on. He led the chase down stream on the bank opposite Annie and the shepherd dog. Away went all three through cottonwoods and alders, across open meadow spaces, past the old log-house where Annie's papa used to "hack it" in the early days, until they stopped at last by a deep, wide, dark river pool, just below two fallen cottonwoods that nearly spanned the stream, their green boughs rustling above the singing water.

The beaver plunged deep into the pool and all was still. She was a mother beaver, and her young ones were down there under the water in their bank house. After she had seen them a minute she came to the surface as if to tell her enemies to go away.

"Go it, Paddy!" called Annie. Then as Paddy bit and yelped, "Oh, stop, stop! you'll hurt the poor beaver!" Then "Good dog! Good dog!" for the spirit of her father, a mighty hunter, was strong within her. But when Paddy swam at the beaver as she came up, biting her violently, Annie's tender heart broke with pity, and she sobbed. There was a swirl and a splash, and now the beaver's teeth were in Paddy's flesh, and he was yelping with pain, while Valor barked loudly on the bank.

Out of the trees on the home side of the river came a man. He was in his brown denims and rubber boots. Annie heard her father cry:

"Come out of there, Paddy! What are you at? Paddy!" then as he saw the beaver, "Thunder!"

The bulldog obeyed and swam bleeding to the shore. The beaver dived, the water grew quiet. Annie saw her father examining Paddy's torn and wounded skin, while Valor smelled anxiously and came toward the place of the little girl's concealment.

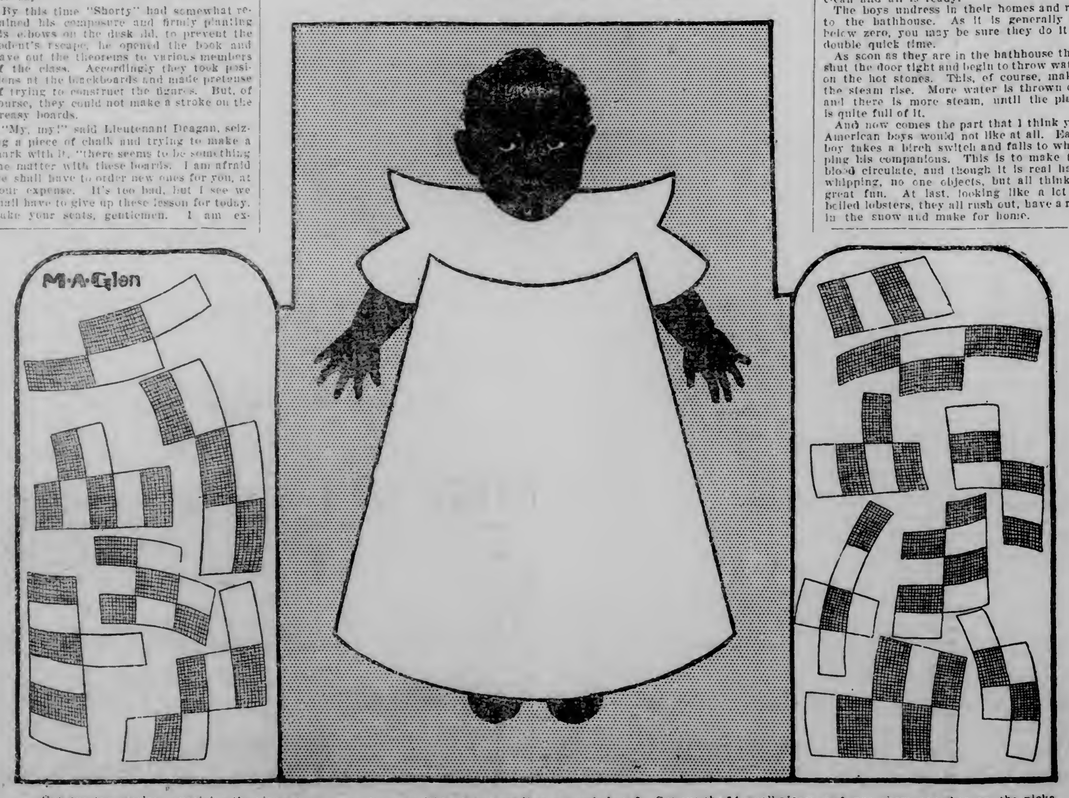
"Poor dog! poor dog!" said Mr. Anderson, patting Paddy, then to Valor, "What are you here for? Where's Annie, Val? In there?" Mr. Anderson came toward the cottonwoods, Annie turned her rod over and her line dropped on the surface of the dark pool. Mr. Anderson parted the boughs and came scrambling out on the trunk. He looked at his little girl posed out there above the deep water, and if he did not speak at first Annie did not know that it was because his heart caught with a queer movement and his throat was dry.

"Hello, papa! S-sh! don't scare the trout!" she whispered, as he had so often whispered to her when she had followed him to the river. Mr. Anderson's lips twitched. He reached forward and took his little daughter, rod and all, in his arms. At that instant came the tug of a trout at the grasshopper she had floated on the troubled waters, and he forgot all else. He seized the rod and began to reel in. "Let go, papa! That is my trout," said Annie, with dignity, erect in his arms.

"So it is, daughter." The sportsman held his child, and she brought her first trout up among the boughs, a big, beautiful four-pound rainbow trout. They saw him glistening in the dim light, and they held him somehow until Mr. Anderson got ashore with Annie in his arms, and she landed her trout, her round little face all broad sunshine.

"I'm going to teach you to swim before you're a week older, young lady," said her father. Annie was greatly excited and fairly danced back to the ranchhouse with

THE PICKANINNY PUZZLE.



Cut out the section containing the pickaninny, paste it on a stiff back and use it as a puzzle board. Cut out the 14 small pieces and put them together on the pickaninny's white dress in such a way as to make a perfectly fitting checked dress. Then paste them fast. Do not paste anything on the collar and sleeves, but leave them white.

MODERN FABLES BY GEORGE ADE

The Modern Fable of the Cub Lover, the Superior Dad and the Lady Who Told the Truth.

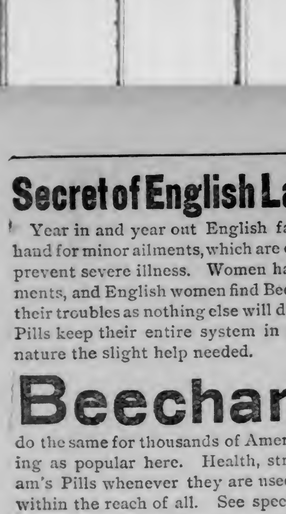
(Copyright, 1903, by R. H. Russell.)

Once there was a seventeen-year-old Lambkin with long legs and his Hair parted in the Middle, who was taken down with a severe case of Love-Gripes, known in the Books as the Spooney Infantum.

He cut off on his Eating and became white around the Gills. Most of the Time he sat around looking at the Rugs and feeling sorry for himself.

The Object of his lungering Affection was a 90-pound Gum-Chewer who lived next Door. She was a fresh and merry little Sunbeam, half way between Long Dresses and Short Dresses. She was very Flippy and talked back to her Folks and made Sassy cracks at the Old Ladies Who came along, and was a Champion Giggler.

Most people regarded her as the Neighborhood Pest and suggested that it would be a Grand Idea to turn back the Calendar about two Years and go at her with a Slipper.



WHITE AROUND THE GILLS.

She was just at the Perky-Age. She had her first Cart-Wheel Hat and a little First-Rag and she was experimenting with the Powder Puff and putting in considerable Time on her Shape.

She thought she was the Works and so did little Willie. He wanted to marry her, but he had only 50 cents in his Tin Bank and a License cost $2.

So all he could do was worship her with yearning and hopeless Love and write seven or eight mushy little Notes every day. Although she was shy on Experience, she had the Feminine Instinct, for she would carry on with two or three Other grammar-school Tadpoles all the time, just to keep Willie heaved up and miserable.

Willie's Mother had seen a good many Children and was familiar with the Symptoms of the Veal Period so she was treating in the Front Row and weeping copiously. He saw no other Way of getting back at his Cruel Parent.

Willie's Papa, in trying to hammer the Divine Sentiment out of his Idiotic Offspring, made a Specialty of the familiar Song-and-Dance beginning, "When I was at your Age."

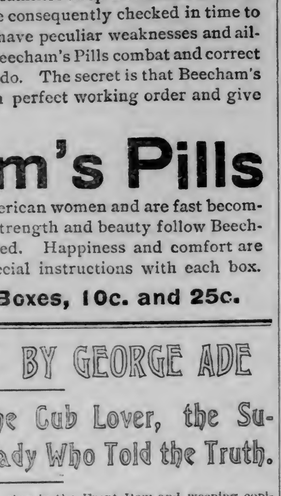
So far as Willie could gather from the rough Line of Conversation handed to him about three times per Day, Papa had always been cold-blooded and sensible, even in his earlier Youth. Papa never had been so weak and foolish as to fall in Love. Sometimes Willie wanted to ask him if he had married Mamma on a Bet, but he was afraid to start anything.

As for Mamma, she sat back with her Lips closed tightly and listened while the theoretical Head of the Family joshed poor Willie and bragged about himself and told what a bright, industrious, level-headed Boy he had been, along about 1876.

She stood it for a long time and then she decided to take charge of Willie's Case and put him Wise. Papa's Scheme for breaking up the Affair with the Bantam next door was to threaten to send Willie to a Military School if he ever spoke to her again. Papa knew a lot about the Insurance Business, but he was a Shine when it came to pulling off a piece of Fine Work in which tender young Affections were all snarled up.

It happened that Papa had to go East for a Month and no sooner had he jumped the Town than Mamma took Willie into her Room and flashed a Bundle of Letters on him.

"There are a few Samples of the Juju Paste that your Father used to send to me back in 1880," she said. "I hate to Call him, but I want you to know that no matter what you do, it runs in the Family. Glance over this one, for Instance. He calls me Honey seven times in three Lines, with a couple of Sweeties thrown in to make it good and strong. As a Juvenile Gush your Pa was the Human Limit. Of course, that was long before the Rheumatism caught him and he began to see the Doctor about his Liver. You must always respect your Father, but you needn't believe anything he says. In regard to your deep and steadfast Love for the Beautiful Creature just over the Fence, I will say that I have framed it up with her Mother to have the two of you Married just as soon as you are old enough, which will be in about Five Years. In the meantime you are at liberty to put in all of your Time with her. I suggest that you go over to her House immediately and Converse with her for several Hours concerning Art, Literature, History or whatever is uppermost in her Mind. When you get tired of calling on her, she can come over and see you. It is customary for an Engaged Couple to be Inseparable."



PAPA WAS NEVER SO WEAK.

When Papa came back from the East he found that Willie had gained 8 pounds and was very busy, organizing a Junior Ball Team to do up the West Side Gang. Every time that little Sweetheart came through the Side Gate to play with him, he gathered up his Mask and the Big Glove and made a quiet Sneak for the Alley.

Papa saw that the Affair was busted and he told his Business Partner that he had reasoned with the Kid and brought him to his Senses.

MORAL: In case of Neighborhood Complications, send Papa on a Business Trip.

NINETY-POUND GUM CHEWER.

ing him gently and trying to nurse him through the Attack. Not so with the Old Gentleman. It made him wrathy to see a Hulk of a Boy make such a Blithering Imbecile of himself. Like nearly all Papas, he believed that Puppy Love should be cured with a Piece of Scantling.

The more he roasted Willie and poked fun at the gabby little Tid-Bit next door, the more deep-seated and inflammatory became the Fever that Willie mistook for True Love. The poor Kid fell behind in his Classes and moped around the House, trying on different Cravats.

Sarsaparilla did not seem to help him and when any of the Callers told his Mamma that he was looking Thin and Pale, he put on a wan Smile and felt encouraged, for Willie had it all fixed up that he was to die of a Broken Heart and have a Swell Funeral at the First Presbyterian Church, with his Beloved sitting in the Front Row and weeping copiously.

ENTIRE BUILDING FOR THE JUNIORS

Young Men's Christian Association Has Deal Practically Closed For Sixth Avenue Theater Building —Will Transfer Junior Department With Norman D. MacLeod In Charge.

The Young Men's Christian association of Duluth, ever progressive, has a new and most important project which has almost become an actuality and will within a very short time. This is the establishment of a separate institution for the juvenile department, a building devoted entirely to the junior members of the association.

An option for a lease of the Sixth avenue theater building on Sixth avenue east, a little above Third street, was secured some time ago, and a deal has practically been closed.

The building is to be under the immediate charge of Norman D. McLeod as secretary, with such other supplementary officers in the way of physical director, etc., as may be deemed necessary.

The project is the result of two years' careful consideration of the boy problem in Duluth, and while primarily the subject of investigation by Secretary Phil Bevis of the association, has been actively pushed by President John Miller and the board of directors.

When Mr. Bevis assumed the secretaryship of the local association two years ago, the boy problem was a serious one to the local branch. At that time there were about 175 boys connected with the juvenile department of the Y. M. C. A., and the management has not cared to push the development of the department too hard for the reason that the local association building could not accommodate all the boys that might easily be brought to it.

Since Mr. Bevis has joined forces with the local association a number of the problems confronting the organization have worked themselves out successfully, leaving it now in splendid condition to cope with the boy problem, which it is now about to do. The membership of the juvenile department of the local branch is now about 250, and it is hoped and expected that under more favorable conditions this may be increased to double that, and even more.

The Sixth avenue theater building, if leased, is to be thoroughly fitted out into a complete juvenile department of the Y. M. C. A. The building will be leased with its complete equipment, comprising an ample gymnasium, good bath facilities, satisfactory lockers, two complete bowling alleys for the amusement line, a theater room on the first floor that will be fitted out into a reading room, with tables for games and amusements. The stage will permit of entertainments and gospel meetings for the boys.

The leasing of the Sixth avenue property will give the local association the opportunity of doing a fourfold work for the boys of Duluth. It will have ample facilities for attending to the physical and social features, the intellectual or educational side, and the religious training of juveniles.

While the project or a separate building has been under consideration for some time, it was not until the incorporation in this year's budget of a boys' secretary in the person of Norman D. McLeod that the officers of the local association saw their way clear to take a decisive step. Mr. McLeod, who comes from Ottawa, Canada, has had sufficient experience in the handling of a juvenile department to warrant the confidence of the management placing him in charge of the department here, in a separate building.

NORMAN D. McLEOD,
Junior Secretary of Y. M. C. A.

The move will place Duluth in the front rank with a few other cities in the country that have progressed so far as to establish a separate building for a juvenile department. There is no other city with such a feature in Minnesota or the Northwest.

The local directorate of the Y. M. C. A. in leasing the property for two years does so in the hope that the association will be so situated financially that it may erect a structure of its own at the expiration of the time.

A board of managers for the department will be appointed shortly, consisting of three of the prominent members of the local association, and a number of the older boys. This board will act as a a governing board under the direction of the board of directors of the association.

Relative to the meaning of the juvenile movement to the city, Secretary Bevis, of the association, says:

"The biggest problem of any city is the boy problem. It is an interesting and helpful thing to save a man, but it must bere remembered that a man has reached the years of judgment and of usefulness, and, perhaps, passed many of the years of his influence.

"By reaching the boy we reach more than the individual. Between the ages of 12 and 16 years the boy is in the formative years of his life. He finds his companions, goes away from home nights and forms habits of honesty and sobriety or others, which will make him an undesirable citizen. No agency today is in a large way grappling with the boy problem. When a boy reaches the age of 12 or 14 years he begins to drift out of the reach of the home, which is really the largest factor dealing with boys. It is felt that some supplementary influence is necessary besides the home, and right here the juvenile department of the Y. M. C. A. come in as the middle ground, the social center, the central force or influence will mean more to the city than any other factor, because of the influence it will have over the boys.

"The new departure will mean the combining of the local churches in work for the boys.

"The result on the work here at the association building of the removal of the boys will be that the noise and inconvenience to the men will be done away with. During the summer season ew expect to renovate the building, add some furniture, and put it in the best possible condition. A new gymnasium classes will be added this fall, and other features to make it the most attractive place in the city, but details of which cannot now be announced.

"Under the proposed plans we will also be enabled, if found a proper move, to establish a night school for boys in the juvenile department building."

INTO ONE UNION.

Efforts Being Made to Organize Hotel Employes.

New York, June 6.—Efforts are being made to organize into one union employes in this city of hotels and restaurants. An organizer who recently formed the unions of Omaha and Chicago is heading the movement, but declares no strike is contemplated. Proprietors of the leading places declare that a strike here is out of the bounds of possibility, owing to the favorable conditions under which the employes are now engaged.

MACHEN'S CASE

Before United States Commissioner Taylor Dismissed.

Washington, June 6.—United States Commissioner Taylor today dismissed the case against A. W. Machen, former superintendent of the free delivery service of the postoffice department, which was pending before him. The dismissal is due to the fact that the grand jury indicted Machen yesterday, thus rendering further action before the court unnecessary. Mr. Mache was present with an attorney.

LABORED YEARS IN FAR LABRADOR

Father Z. LaCasse, Pastor of St. Jean Baptiste Church, A Missionary For Nine Years In That Land — Country Has Great Wealth and Possibilities.

Duluth has among its citizens one of those heroes of the missionary field whose lives have made one of the brightest pages of the history of the Roman Catholic church. Father LaCasse, pastor of the Church of St. Jean de Baptiste, at Eleventh avenue west, has settled down as the shepherd of the French Catholic flock, including nine years spent in the wilds of Labrador, which an eminent geographer has referred to as follows: "Language fails to paint the awful desolation of the table land of the Labrador peninsula."

Working for his Master among the inhabitants of this sterile and forbidding land, scarcely ever seeing a white man, undergoing infinite toil and hardship, Father LaCasse spent nine of the best years of his life, beginning thirty years ago. Yet in his talk of the country, with a Herald reporter in his study the other evening, he spoke modestly of his own experiences, and enthusiastically of the country. He made no references whatever to the hardships that must have necessarily attended his labors, leaving entirely to the imagination the experiences included in the bare statement that he had often traveled 1200 miles in a canoe, with only a couple of Indian guides for his companions.

Father LaCasse was in Labrador first for several years, and then a little later for two years more, his successor having died. Then he was in the missionary field in Montreal and later in the Canadian Northwest. Last fall he came to Duluth.

"And now," he said, "I am an American. I expect to remain in this country for the rest of my days, and I like Duluth. True, it has some little eccentricities of climate, but so have most regions, and I have noticed an admirable absence of cyclones, floods, tornadoes and plagues about which we are constantly reading while we are here safe and comfortable.

"I was much interested in an editorial published in The Herald on Wednesday evening. Every word of it is true. Labrador is an immensely rich country. It is not much for agriculture, it is true, for the glorious summer is brief, lasting but two months. The soil in most places is thin and the country very rocky, but there is no difficulty in raising all the vegetables that are needed. Wheat, of course, like other grains, would scarcely be practicable, because of the short summer.

"I fully believe that it is the greatest sportsman's paradise in the world. here is a marvelous wealth of game and fish. It has a myriad of lakes and rivers, some of them immense affairs. One lake, Lake Michigammeo, is fully seventy miles in length. These lakes and rivers are full of fish, including salmon and trout in profusion. There is one big fish, belonging to the salmon family, which is not known elsewhere, and the white fishermen call it the 'unknown fish,' while the Indians name it kokomesho.' Speckled trout are exceedingly plentiful. Deer, caribou and a large species of deer they call moose-deer, abound, and so do all sorts of game birds. I have no idea how many lakes there are, but I have passed through fully seventy in canoes. The interior is a plateau, from which flow rivers toward all the coasts of the peninsula, reaching Hudson bay, Hudson strait and the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

"An idea of the amount of game there is can be gained from what one told me, a man whose stories were likely to be true. He said that he killed 144 deer in one day, standing upon a hilltop and shooting them as they passed. The Indians are not in large numbers, and while they are hunters they are not numerous enough to make much impression on the game supply.

"The idea of building a railroad over the peninsula is practicable, and I fully believe that it will come, and at no very distant time. While it would be rather expensive to build near the coast, among the hills and slopes, a road could be built along the level plateau very cheaply. Running to the northern end, and reaching Hudson strati, a distance of about 1000 miles, three days could be cut from the trip to Europe. While the straits are blocked with floating ice in winter, in summer there is a clear sea and passengers bound for Europe could avoid the fogs and storms and rocks of the Labrador coast by taking a train up the peninsula, and then the trip to Europe could be made in three days by ocean steamer.

"While nobody has a very definite idea of the mineral wealth of the country, there is no doubt that it is immense. There are mountains that seem to be practically all iron ore, and some of the specimens that I have shown have been pronounced very rich in iron. Gold is there, too. I saw two large nuggets that had been picked up out of the sands of one of the rivers. There are other minerals also, and explorations, I am sure, will show up immense wealth.

"The fisheries are very rich, also. All of the fur-bearing animals of land and sea are there in large numbers. Labrador sealskins rank very high, being quoted as first quality in London. They are purchased largely by Russian noblemen. The Hudson Bay company has a great many posts there for the collection of furs and fish. The Esquimaux wear clothes of sealskin and live in sealskin tents, which looks a little extravagant from this standpoint. Many a Duluth girl might envy the luxurious attire of the average Esquimau maiden.

"The scenery is often beautiful, though wild, of course. One river, the Mestshibo, has some or the grandest falls in the world. One has a straight drop of 600 feet. There is not a great deal of timber, the trees being mostly birch, fir and spruce of small size.

"Those familiar with the Chippewa language will recognize a similarity in some of the Indian names of Labrador. The Indians are of the Cree tribe, a branch of the great Algonquin stock, and are first cousins of your Chippewas. They call themselves 'Nasscopie.' The difference in tongue is not great and merely amounts to a dialect. There are about 4000 Indians living in the interior and about 2000 Esquimaux, living on the coasts. Practically all of them are Christianized and most of them are Roman Catholics. The Moravian brothers have established a number of missions on the coast among the Esquimaux, and have converted some of them. They are not readily susceptible to Christianity, however, for they are polygamists, and are averse to giving up that custom. There is very little polygamy among the Indians, who are a virtuous people devoted entirely to hunting and with few ideas outside of that. They readily embrace Christianity.

"The marriages among the Indians are invariably arranged by the fathers of the contracting couple, and often the bride and groom have never exchanged a word prior to their betrothal. I married probably 300 couples, and in only two instances did the parties accede to the wishes of their parents. One young man refused to marry the girl of his father's choice, and one young woman showed the same reluctance. When they were brought up for the ceremony and I asked them if they would have the other party in marriage, they entered most decided negatives, so, of course, I could not marry them.

"The Moravian missions are commercial and religious communities combined. Each mission has a minister, a trader and a carpenter. The Moravians have taught many of the Esquimaux to read and write."

DULUTH'S NEIGHBORS

Fosston.

Fosston, June 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Hans C. Sampson, village assessor, has started on his annual pilgrimage, and is making quick work of ascertaining the valuation of personal property in the village. This year the real estate will not be assessed, simply the personal property and structures erected on real estate since the assessment of last year.

W. E. Black and H. P. Rassmusson returned on Monday evening from a trip to the new townsite of Itasca, in Beltrami county. They are thoroughly imbued with the belief that Itasca is destined to become the chief summer resort of the state, as it is located but eighty rods from the Itasca park, the only state park in Minnesota.

Mesdames C. S. and F. M. Hume went to Cass Lake Saturday and visited over Sunday with Mrs. L. Swarton, who is a sister of Mrs. F. M Hume. The ladies returned home on Monday evening.

Miss Helen Lidenberg is able to be about again, after having been very ill for ten days.

Martin Bergom and Paul Olson, prominent farmers residing near Winsor, were transacting business in Fosston on Monday.

A very enjoyable picnic was held at the picnic grounds on the east side of Sandy Lake, Sunday, the affair being under the auspices of a temperance society which has been recently organized from among the farmers residing in that vicinity. Mr. E. Welte delivered a speech in the forenoon, and at 1 o'clock a sumptuous repast was spread under the trees. Then was more speechmaking, among the rest being an able address, in the Scandinavian language, delivered by J. P. Holland. Mr. Rude also made a very good speech. Boatrides on the lake, and the grand march were also features of the afternoon, and a baseball game wound up the events of the day.

Emi Grothe and Miss Sfilma Hawkins, of the town of Eddy, were united in marriage at the office of W. E. Black, Monday afternoon, Judge Sampson tied the knot. J. P. Holland and Peter Njaa acting as witnesses.

L. O. Brandt returned on Saturday night from his trip through the western part of the state and into North Dakota, in search of wool for the use of the woolen mill. He was successful in securing some large consignments to be shipped to the Fosston mills, and as a result of his trip the supply of wool on hand will be increased by at least 50,000 pounds.

Decoration day passed very quietly in Fosston. There were a number of flags displayed at half mast, and the banks and the woolen mill were closed for the day. Otherwise, the day was not generally observed here, there being no old soldiers' organization of any kind in Fosston.

The funeral of Mrs. L. J. Omland, who died Friday of last week, was held at the Kings church last Saturday afternoon, at 2 o'clock. Rev. Refsdal officiated, and delivered the sermon. There were but few outside points to attend the funeral. A. R. Amber, son-in-law of the deceased, and his daughter Nellie, who came from Blackduck, and Mrs. Burke, of Park River, N. D.

The next meeting of the board of county commissioners will be held on the 15th inst.

Mrs. L. J. Jensen was the guest of relatives at Bemidji on Monday, whither she went to spend the day.

"Cub," the Shetland pony belonging to Roscoe Mark Kaiser, was sold the first of the week to C. E. Aitkin, cashier of the First National bank of Grand Rapids, for the use of the latter's children.

A happy event of the week was the wedding on Tuesday afternoon, at the Synod church, of Oliver Barness to Miss Dora Hanson. Rev. Sather, pastor of the church, performed the ceremony, and the church was filled with friends of the contracting parties, who had been invited to be present. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Louise Hanson, and Miss Annie Frydlund, while Oscar Barness, brother of the groom, and Hardin Helland acted as best men.

A. Kaiser was transacting business at Bagley on Tuesday. While he was at the new county seat of Clearwater county, a telegram was received from the comptroller of the currency at Washington, informing the officials of the bank of Bagley that their application for a change of that institution into a national bank, under the name of the First National bank of Bagley, had been granted, and authorizing them to proceed to do business under the new regime at once, the charter to follow by first mail. Mr. Kaiser is vice president of the bank, the number of which is 6813.

The fire department held a special meeting on Monday evening, at which it was decided to purchase new uniforms for the use of the department on the Fourth of July and at other times subsequent to that date. The uniform selected is white duck, and the suits will be ordered at once.

Robert Newing, a prominent lumberman from Clearwater Lake, in the new county of Clearwater was in Fosston Tuesday evening transacting business at the Bank of Fosston.

Dr. Warninger and daughter went to Crookston Tuesday evening for a visit with friends.

O. N. Hem returned on Monday night from Portland, N. D., where he went for a visit with his family. While away he disposed of the residence which he has owned for several years at Portland, and intends to move his family to Fosston, the latter part of this month, when they will make their permanent home here. Mr. Hem is the local representative of the St. Anthony & Dakota Lumber company.

Lauritz Jensen was at Red Lake Falls, his old stamping ground, the first of the week, looking after some business interests which he still has at that place.

Chris Haugen, a prominent farmer of this community, and Ole Rasmusson, a tiller of the soil, who resides near Olga, left on Tuesday evening for the state of Washington.

B. S. Bennett was at Crookston on Tuesday attending the funeral of the late DeForest Bucklin, who was a close personal friend of Mr. Bennett, in addition to being a brother practitioner.

L. S. Johnson has commence the erection of a new business block on Harrison strett, on the property which he owns, adjoining the Fogelberg building. The new building will be 24x100 feet, two-story frame, t obe covered with iron.

Many will regret to learn that the annual excursion given by the Order of Railway Conductors, to Cass Lake and Bemidji has been abandoned.

H. J. Hanson left on Monday morning for a business trip to Red Lake Falls and other points.

Ben Tyndall was a visitor at McIntosh on Sunday forenoon.

Knowledge of What Is Best More Important Than Wealth Without It.

It must be apparent to every one that qualities of the highest order are necessary to enable the best of the products of modern commerce to attain permanently to universal acceptance. However loudly heralded, they may not hope for world-wide preeminence unless they meet with the general approval, not of individuals only, but of the many who have the happy faculty of selecting, enjoying and learning the real worth of the choicest products. Their commendation, consequently, becomes important to others, since to meet the requirements of the well informed of all countries the method of manufacture must be of the most perfect order and the combination the most excellent of its kind. The above is true not of food products only, but is especially applicable to medicinal agents and after nearly a quarter of a century of growth and general use the excellent remedy, Syrup of Figs, is everywhere accepted, throughout the world, as the best of family laxatives. Its quality is due not only to the excellence of the combination of the laxative and carminative principles of plants known to act most beneficially on the system and presented in the form of a pleasant and refreshing liquid, but also to the method of manufacture of the California Fig Syrup Co., which ensures that uniformity and purity essential in a remedy intended for family use. Why Pay as Much for an inferior beer?

Schlitz beer costs twice what common beer costs in the brewing. One-half pays for the product; the other half for its purity.

One-half is spent in cleanliness, in filtering even the air that touches it, in filtering the beer, in sterilizing every bottle. And it pays the cost of aging the beer for months before we deliver it.

If you ask for Schlitz you get purity and age, you pay no more than beer costs without them.

EVENTS OF THE DAY IN THE MIMIC WORLD.

OPERA AT LYCEUM AND METROPOLITAN

Northwestern Opera Company Will Open at Lyceum Monday In "The Black Hussar"—Wilburs Will Present "Fra Diavolo" at the Metropolitan.

The Northwestern Opera company will open the summer opera season at the Lyceum theater, under the management of Al. W. Walle, Monday night, presenting a complete and competent performance of Millecker's "The Black Hussar."

The Lyceum theater orchestra will be augmented to fifteen pieces, and, with the company, will be under the direction of Musical Director Henry Hoffman. The staging of the opera by Director Drew and Manager Walle has been done with extreme care and great expense, and the character of the performance will be first class.

With a company made up of singers of high standing in the profession, a chorus which local and professional musical people here say has not been surpassed in Duluth, and the latest things in costumes and scenic efforts, Manager Walle feels he is in a position to offer an article of entertainment that will reach the ideal of any patron of the summer opera season.

Fifty people, altogether, will be required to sing and play the music of the opera, as large an aggregation as the heaviest of the companies playing here last winter.

The box office sale has been a large one, and the first night of the Northwestern's season promises to be an event of no ordinary importance. The company will play "The Black Hussar" four nights and a Wednesday matinee at bargain prices, and will play in Superior Friday and Saturday nights and Saturday matinee.

The principals have been cast for characters as follows, Mr. Drew, who has staged the opera many times, being more than satisfied with the material:

Helbert, captain in Black Hussars, disguised as an army chaplain.. ....George Lyding
Waldermann, his companion..... ....Sylvian Langlois
Hackenback, magistrate of Trautenfeld .....Stanley Felch
Piffkow, his man-of-all-work..... ....Charles H. Drew Therilliere, major in Napoleon's army..... ....Dan Young
Hetman, captain of the Cossacks.. ....Harry N. Keough
Mirlin, a bit actor..... .....Dan Young
Minna, Hackenback's daughter..... ....Eleanore Jenkins
Rosetta, Hackenback's daughter.. ....Bertha Hayden
Barbara ....Sylvester Cornish
Rice..... ....Loulda Hilliard

Every one of the principals is a singer of ability that is recognized by managers throughout the country, and the cast is as strong as the large majority of heavy traveling companies seen at advanced prices during the season. The chorus now numbers thirty-two voices, the volume of which will be surprising and the tone and execution of which will equal about anything seen in Duluth for a long time.

"The Black Hussar," though an old opera, is a lively entertainer, and still probably the most popular of the standard operas with both singer and audience, though somewhat difficult in producing properly. The piece, in its sumptuous form at the Lyceum Monday, will communicate the following argument:

The action takes place in 1812-13, and is developed through the efforts of Von Helbert, a young German patriot and colonel in the Black Hussars, to incite an insurrection in the German town of Trautenfeld, having disguised himself as an army chaplain to further his ends.

Hackenback, the town magistrate, has had such an influence with the Russians and French, by his politic avoidance of rupture, they alternately overrunning the town, that the inhabitants are not easily aroused to the necessity of asserting their freedom from Napoleon's control. So Helbert's mission is not easy.

The French forces are hunting Helbert, and he succeeds in having a description of the magistrate inserted for that of himself in the police notice. To be ready for all political emergencies Hackenback has caused a reversable panel to be placed upon his house, one side bearing a portrait of the czar and the other that of Napoleon. Unfortunately he has the czar's portrait exposed at the time he calls the attention of the French forces as an evidence of loyalty to their cause, and this attracts attention to his identity and brings about his arrest.

The climax is brought about by the throwing off of all disguises by Helbert and his fellow-conspirators as the Black Hussar regiment arrives in town and captures the French forces, who have been previously in possession. The comedy element of the story results from the lovemaking between Minna and Rosetta and Helbert and Walderman. The magistrate, in seeking to protect his daughters from the soldiers, has clothed them as old hags, a disguise which the girls threw off in the evening while the magistrate and his housekeeper slumber, and their real characters are discovered by Helbert and Walderman.

THE WILBUR COMPANY.

Opening Week at Metropolitan a Great Success.

That summer opera pleases Duluth theater-goers and is bound to increase in popularity as the season advances has been evidenced this week by the auspicious opening at the Metropolitan, when the Wilbur company, a favorite with local music-lovers, began a ten-weeks' engagement at the popular playhouse. Crowded houses have been the rule, audiences have been enthusiastic and liberal in their applause, and the members of the cast, appreciating the reception accorded them, have sung and acted to the best advantage.

The repertoire of the Wilbur company contains more than twenty of the most popular operas that appear on the American stage today, including among others "Fra Diavolo," "The Two Vagabonds," "Said Pasha," "The Bohemian Girl," "Chimes of Normandy," "Nell Gwynne," "Rip Van Winkle," "Mascotte," "Pianofore," "Mikado," "Black Hussar," "Martha," "Girofle Girolla," "Boccaccio," "Grand Duchess" and "Olivette," and all will be presented during the season, with a change of bill twice each week and matinees each Wednesday and Saturday afternoon.

Prominent among the members of the cast are Miss Hattie Richardson, the prima donna; Miss Clara Wisdom, character artist, and Gus Vaughan, baritone, all of whom have played before in Duluth and will be remembered by many local theater-goers. Others of the cast are Miss Marion Langdon, who has a rich mezzo-soprano voice of high range; Martin Pache, tenor; Henry Peaks, basso, and W. A. McCraw and Charles Van Dyne, comedians. A large chorus of capable people and trained vaudeville artists makes the cast an excellent one.

Among the vaudeville features none is more pleasing than the act of the Gardner children, who this week captivated audiences with their songs and cakewalks. A feature of next Wednesday's matinee performance will be a reception held by these little ones on the stage at the completion of the afternoon's performance. The management of the company has announced that it will admit all children under 12 years of age free to the entertainment, whether they come alone or are accompanied by parents or friends. It will give the little folks of Duluth an opportunity to meet and become acquainted with these infantile actors, who make their living before the footlights. The Amazon march, led by Miss Ethel Hunt, an Australian girl of much beauty, and the acts of Katherine Goodrich and Reick & Lamar, are especially pleasing features. Next week Miss Hunt will appear in a series of recitations, in which she is said to be particularly clever.

Beginning Monday night the company will present "Fra Diavolo," the sweet music and romantic story of which have charmed theater-goers for over seventy years. The opera will be sung for three nights and on the Wednesday matinee. Gus Vaughan will appear as Fra Diavolo, Miss Richardson as Zerlina, Martin Pache as Lorenzo, Henry Peaks as Beppo, W. A. McGraw as Giacomo, and Charles Vaughan and Marion Langdon as Lord and Lady Allcash respectively.

The last half of the week and the Saturday matinee an old-time favorite, "The Two Vagabonds," will be presented and there will also be another pronounced change in the vaudeville acts.

Arthur C. Pell, who has been with Mrs. Leslie Carter during the season just closing as musical director, will take charge of the music for the Wilbur company beginning Monday night. Mr. Pell, who is considered one of the best musical directors in the country, closes his engagement with Mrs. Carter at Minneapolis tonight.

"The Bohemian Girl" will be presented tonight for the last time.

"OLE OLSON."

Tonight at the Lyceum "Ole Olson" will be presented. This pleasing Swedish play seems to have no end to its life and it draws as well as ever. The story it tells is a wholesome and refreshing one and is always popular. Ben Hendricks is playing the leading role and is a favorite with local theater-goers, having been here before.

With the company, and one of the delightful features, is the Swedish Ladies' quartet, which sings during the performance.

MOON BROS.' COMPANY.

Moon Bros., whose pavilion theater occupied a prominent position in Duluth amusement enterprises last summer, will open for business at the same place, Fourth avenue west and First street, next Monday. A clever acting company and novel vaudeville features have been secured, and the plays selected from among the best obtainable. The casts will include such well known stock people as Charles T. Hart and Gertrude Gilbert, late of the Dearborn Stock company, Chicago; L. Rufus Hill and Fannie Louise Carter, late of the Russell and Drew Stock company, Seattle; W. M. Sheldon, Edwin Barrie, Ed H. Mickle, Willie Spencer and others. The famous Eldons, a special vaudeville feature, will appear at the opening, Monday evening. This company is owned and controlled by Duluth men. The opening bill, "The Little Duchess."

HERD OF BUFFALO

With the Luella Forepaugh-Fish Wild West Shows.

Several magnificent specimens to be seen with the Historical Wild West of the now almost extinct American bison. Only a few years ago countless millions of these animals roamed over the plains of North America. They had an absolute title to and possession of as many thousands of miles as the Indians had to their hunting grounds. They were the invincible monarchs of the plains and prairies and a veritable storehouse for the Indian. The buffalo supplied him with almost all the necessaries of life; from the lighter hides, when tanned, he got his leggings, shirts and lighter garments; from the heavy tanned hides he made his wigwam and moccasins, also his blankets; from the sinews of the back he made his thread and bow strings; from the horns, his spoons and many small vessels. The bones furnished his tanning instruments, and from the various parts of his flesh almost his entire sustenance. But with the destruction of the buffalo the Indian's independence left him, and he is now a ward of our government.

The buffalo never could have been subdued but for the extension of the railroads across the continent. Their territory had been well nigh inaccessible, but railroads made transportation cheap and immediately followed a demand from all over the world for the beautiful, soft and warm robes of the buffalo.

The supply had to equal the demand. Millions of hides annually were sent abroad, and other millions were used in our country. The slaughter became so widespread and of such proportions that almost utter annihilation became simply a question of a brief period of time. Consequently, the American bison is now one of the rarest and most expensive of animals, and of the few now in existence Luella Forepaugh-Fish exhibition owns the choicest specimens, and at each and every performance of the Wild West a genuine Indian buffalo hunt will be given.

The show will exhibit at Duluth Saturday, June 13.

GOSSIP OF THE RIALTO.

Eleanor Robson Scores a Success In "Juliet."

New York, June 6.—New York has accepted Mis Eleanor Robson as a star. It is worthy of comment that the reception given her was one of almost unanimous approval, the only critics who were not enthusiastic being William Winter, whose ideal Juliet is Miss Ada Rehan, and the young dramatic editor of an evening paper, who compared Miss Robson unfavorably with stars who reigned several years before he was born. The fact remains that Miss Robson created an impression far more favorable than her managers had expected. She was the first Juliet who had played the part here as Shakespeare wrote it, portraying a heroine of 14 rather than the mature woman of strength similar to Lady Macbeth. Nor was Kyrle Bellew less favored. With one bound he stepped into his old place as a favorite and his absence of years has been completely forgotten. If the all-star production of "Romeo and Juliet" did nothing else, it has certainly paved the way to a profitable starring tour for each of these artists next season.

Dan Daly was by no means as fortunate. The Herald Square Theater was crowded with an audience so kindly disposed to him that this fact alone saved "John Henry" from being a flat and utter failure. The play itself amounts to nothing, and lacks besides every element that would give Daly a chance to show himself at his best. In addition, Daly's health was so poor on the opening night that he was hardly able to drag himself from the Vendome to the theater. The general result was a great disappointment to him and probably a prompt search for a new play in which to star him in the autumn.

Rumor has it that Francis Wilson has determined to abandon comic opera and the stage entirely. He has made much money in the past and is in the comfortable position of being able to live in luxury for the rest of his life. The impossibility of getting a suitable production for next season is, it is said, to a large degree responsible for his decision. This same fact has handicapped him during the past year, and he wishes to leave the footlights without being credited with a failure. Mr. Wilson is silent upon the subject for publication, but to many of his intimate friends he has expressed himself as determined never to act again.

Miss Virginia Earl has a very uncomfortable summer ahead of her. Inactivity for a year has resulted in much flesh—so much, in fact, that she is unbecomingly stout. It is part of the contract which she has signed with the Shuberts that in their new production she must appear as a boy, and in her present condition this is absolutely impossible. Miss Earl has made arrangements for daily lessons and private practice in a gymnasium, and with careful attention to an anti-fat diet, she hopes to become sylphlike before the fall. Her agreement with Shubert does not call for her appearance as a star at once. She will have the leading roll in a musical comedy, and if all goes well will be put at the head of a company next year under the same manager.

Another complete upset in summer plans has been handed to Sam Bernard and Miss Hattie Williams, both of whom were ordered to report to Charles Frohman in London as soon as possible. Neither knows the reason, but both suspect that Mr. Frohman has a play in London which he is anxious for them to see before producing it on this side. They sailed on the steamer Philadelphia on June 3.

The six little Sire brothers modestly announce that they will invade St. Louis if the managers of the exposition will agree to allow them to put up a theater within the grounds. The cause of this determination is not that New York has grown too small for them, but that they have a new comic opera, the book of which was written by a St. Louis newspaper man.

Robert B. Mantell has decided to go abroad, and with that end in view has terminated his contract between himself and his manager, M. W. Hanley. They have been together for several years, but Mr. Mantell believes that there is a greater fortune awaiting him on the other side, and the parting was most friendly.

An old clothes dealer in New York admitted in court the other day that last January he found $15.00 in a suit of clothes that he had picked up. Paul Nicholson, the Wakeful Jones of "The Sultan of Sulu" company at Wallack's Theater, has been very much concerned about this report, as he missed an old suit of clothes with some money in the pockets about that time. He has written to the dealer.

An outdoor smoking room something of a novelty, has been provided at the Broadway theater, where "The Prince of Pilsen" is continuing its prosperous run. Of course, it is not a novelty to go out on the sidewalk and smoke, but the management of the Broadway have an inclosed space immediately south of the theater building, with the sky for canopy and four walls for privacy. Palm trees and flowers have been set out here and the smokers can step out between the acts of "The Prince of Pilsen" and enjoy their smoke in the open.

"The Candy Man," a musical comedy in three acts, by Randolph Hartley, a critic and librettist, and Arthur Nevin, composer, has been delivered to R. L. Giffen, the manager, for whom it was written and who will produce it out of town in July. Next season the piece will be presented in New York. The book and score are said to be widely different from the majority of musical comedies of the day.

"I wish people would not be always asking me whether I am a canny Scot," said J. H. Stoddart, the veteran actor, rather testily the other day. "Why should they always use that word 'canny' when there are so many other Scottish words that have not been worked to death? Why not, once in a while, substitute that good old Gaelic term, pawky' or 'pawkily,' when it is desired to express the native shrewdness of the Caledonian? Burns used the word 'pawky' at least as often as 'canny,' and Hogg, the Ettrick shepherd, liked 'pawky' because, as he said, it always brought before his intellectual vision a sturdy Highlander, in all the glory of his kilt and bare knees, with his skene dhu in his stockings and his philibeg hanging down in front in the good old Scottish way. Because I am playing in 'The Bonnie Brier Bush' every one that meets me in private life seems to feel justified in saluting me with: 'Hello, Stoddart; still playing a canny Scot, I see.' I believe I shall have to hit the next man that says that to me."

When Willie Collier turned down the manuscript of "A Fool and His Money" he made one of the serious mistakes of his theatrical career. The play was written for him by George H. Broadhurst, but Collier could not be brought to see its possibilities. During the run at the Madison Square theater it wa sa constant source of regret to his friends that they could not see him in the leading role, which was played by Jameson Lee Finney in a most exaggerated manner. His burlesque of the role was the only blot on the production, for the rest of the cast, especially Arnold Daly, as a Frenchman, and May Vokes as a slovey, were exceptionally good. The play, however, scored enough of a success to be continued on tour for some months in the autumn.

John Harrington, a New York newspaper man, who has written some very clever children's books, has tried his hand at comic opera with so much success that William G. Stewart is to produce his "The Golf Girl" at the Grand Opera house early in July. The principal scene is laid in Cuba, and touches in a satirical way upon the invasion of that island by American tourists.

May Vokes and George Broadhurst met at a luncheon the other day and engaged in earnest conversation about the possibilities of a servant girl as the star of a comedy. Miss Vokes was enthusiastic on the subject, and said: "It's not only in the home that these girls are humorous, for only today in a car across the way from me sat two types of the servant girl, each evidently enjoying her day off. Their clothes were much better than mine—one of them had on a swell tailor-made suit and the other a covert coat that made me wish I owned it. But their hats gave them away, and it was a circus

FEDERAL GRAND JURY CONTINUES GOOD WORK

True Bills Found Against the Groff Brothers.

Case of Former Attorney Tyner Now Before It.

Washington, June 8.—The federal grand jury has found true bills against the Groff Bros. in connection with the alleged offerings of bribes to A. W. Machen, former superintendent of free delivery of the postoffice department. This action was taken, it is learned, on the same day that Mr. Machen was indicted. The delay in presenting the indictments has been due to the fact that they could not be prepared for presentation before today.

The Groff Bros. will be tried under section 5451 of the revised statutes, which makes it an offense to promise money to any government officer with a view to influence his action or decision on any question or matter which may be pending before him. By bringing in the indictments today, the hearing before the United States commissioner, which was set for tomorrow, will be abandoned.

The jury will at once take up the case of James N. Tyner, former assistant attorney general for the postoffice department, who was dismissed from office, as a result of the rifling of the safe in his office. Although the opening of the safe was not done by Mr. Tyner personally, it is said that he was connected with the act in such a way as to compel the laying of the case before the grand jury for its action.

FRENCH TROOPS BOMBARD REBELLIOUS FIGUI NATIVES

Rebellious Tribesmen Are Being Punished For Their Recent Attack Made Upon Governor General Jonnart—Not a Conquest of Moroccan Territory.

Beni-Ounif, Algeria, June 8.—The French artillery opened a preliminary fire at 5:30 this morning on the rebellious Figui tribesmen. Gen. O'Connor commands the punitive expedition, consisting of 4000 men of the foreign legion and a strong force of artillery armed with guns firing melinite shells. Details of the engagements have not yet been received. It was Gen. O'Connor's plans to advance on Figui in three columns, and post his artillery on commanding hills surrounding the rebel stronghold.

The actual bombardment began at 7:30 and lasted until 9:30, when the French troops occupied two strategic hills, gaining these positions by surprise.

It is believed the native loss was heavy, but no definite details of the casualties will be obtainable until the French enter Figui. There was no loss on the French side.

The bulk of the population of Figui is expected to be friendly to the French, as neighboring tribes are assisting in the operations of the punitive expedition.

France has formally notified the powers that she has no intention of taking Moroccan territory, and will only punish the Arab brigands who were responsible for the recent attack on the escort of Governor General Jonnart.

Gen. O'Conner was instructed to give the women and children of Figui an opportunity to leave the town before the bombardment. A friendly Arab courier bearing a notification to this effect to the women and children was killed while carrying the message.

AMERICAN ZIONISTS RECEIVE GREETINGS FROM EMINENT JEWS

Hertz, Nordan and Zangwell Cable Their Views as to the Necessity of Action For Their Race, Following Kishineff Massacre.

Pittsburg, June 8.—The consideration of the amended constitution of the Federation of American Zionists occupied nearly all of today's first session. Greetings from eminent Jews of the world were received and read at the convention. This telegram from Vienna was sent by Dr. Herz:

"To the Zionist Convention, Pittsburg: The situation of our Russian brethren is very serious and calls for our most earnest attention. A great emigration movement from Russia is to be expected. We shall bring to the Beasle congress a program which, we believe, will help our people. With Zion's greetings, HERZ."

From Barritz came these words of Dr. Max Nordau: "I trust you will continue to develop into a power to the honor of American Jewhy and to the benefit of the Jewish people, whose position in the world is more appalling than it has been at any time in the last century. The name of Kishinev, written with letters of blood and fire in the other and ever new martyrology of Israel, is sufficient by itself to bear out this statement. It shows that for our people there is no such thing as progress. For us history has not moved onward by one step for the last 800 years. We are still in the fearful period of the crusades, when the pious warriors of the cross trained themselves to their heroic work by the wholesale slaughter of Jews and the looting of defenseless ghettoes. It shows also that Zionism is the only way to lead our miserable brethren in Russia and elsewhere out of their present hell. I would despair of Judaism and of humanity as well, if the free and happy Jews of America were to turn a deaf ear to the blood-curdling tale of Kishinev."

Israel Zangwill sent the following message: "Greetings to the Pittsburg convention. The Kishinev massacre has brought home to the blindest the need of a publicly and legally safeguarded home for our unhappy race. When you come to consider where this centralized home should be, you will find no place as practicable as Palestine, or, at least for a start, its neighborhood. May the strenuous town of fire and steel in which you meet inspire you to build a great bridge over which Israel shall pass to his ancient home and his glorious future."

LIGHTNING'S DEADLY WORK AT ORIN

St. Paul, June 8.—A Rochester, Minn., special to the Dispatch says: During a thunder storm in Orin township, twelve miles from Rochester, Albert Best and two sons who were working in a field sought shelter under a cluster of large trees, when lightning struck the trees instantly killing the younger boy, 12 years old. The father cannot live and the elder son has entirely lost the hearing. The dead boy did not fall, but remained standing against the tree. The storm lasted but for a few moments and but a small amount of rain fell.

HOT IN PURSUIT OF MURDERERS

Glasgow, Mont., June 8.—Jack Williams, the deputy sheriff, shot by Geore Pierce, one of the escaped prisoners on Saturday night, is dead. The posse has not yet found any of the four men. They stole two horses when they crossed the river and at least two of the men are making for the Bad Lands.

Sheriff Cosner is of the opinion that one of them is still in the brush near the town and does not think the fourth man crossed the river as they could only find where but three men came across the river on the south side. It may be that one of them was drowned. A report just received from Milk river says that two men supposed to have been Hardee and Brown, were seen on horseback near Stephens ranch, just across the river. They will probably remain together, the general opinion being that Brown got into jail to liberate Hardee as this is the second attempt. All available men in the vicinity are well armed and Sheriff Cosner expects to have a large posse out to go with the determination to capture the escaped prisoners. It is not thought they will be taken alive. Sheriff Buckley, of Chinook, came to town today and will assist in the hunt.

CONDUCTED STUPIDLY

Has the Coal Business Been, Says President Oliphant.

Says Company Has Not Made Over 7 Per Cent.

New York, June 8.—The interstate commerce commission returned to New York to continue the investigation into the complaint of W. R. Hearst that the coal carrying railroads have violated and are violating the anti-pooling clause of the Sherman anti-trust law. The commission delayed the hearing until the United States circuit court had passed upon the right of the coal road presidents to refuse to answer questions as to contracts between the coal companies and the railroads.

Robert M. Oliphant, former president of the Delaware & Hudson, one of the respondent railroads, was the first witness. He corroborated the statements of the other coal men who have testified that the price of coal to the public is to be raised ten cents a ton a month until a maximum increase of 50 cents a ton is reached. He was not prepared to say that the increased cost of production would not exceed thirty cents. In fixing the increase the company takes everything into consideration. In the whole history of commerce there never was anything as ignorant and stupid as the way the coal business has been conducted, considering the usefulness and necessity of coal and its limited supply. Mr. Oliphant said he doubted if his company made any money when coal was sold at New York at $4 or less. For the last ten years the profit of the company has been about seven per cent.

His company increased the price, he said, because exigencies of the trade justified the demand.

"We could get a higher price if we asked for it," he said. It was out of deference to the needs of the public, witness said, that the price of coal was kept at $5 just after the strike when the independent operators were getting $8 to $10.

Adelbert Moot of counsel for the Erie system protested that the commission has no jurisdiction in any matter that concerns the price of coal. The commission decided it could consider the price realized for a product to arrive at the reasonableness or unreasonableness of the freight rates. Judge Campbell, the legal representative of the Reading system, declared his clients ready to concede that the price of coal is about $5 a ton and that price will increase until $5.50 is reached.

TRAIN RAN OVER HOBO

Dolph Bonner Loses Both His Feet at Houghton.

Houghton, Mich., June 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—While trying to board the bumpers on a South Shore train at Lake Gogebic, Dolph Bonner, aged 23 years, who said he lives at Bay City, Mich., slipped and fell under the tender of the engine. His right foot was severed and his left foot so badly crushed that amputation was necessary. Bonner and a companion were bound for Duluth and had been put off by the train crew.

TO INVESTIGATE OUTRAGES.

Peoria, Ills., June 8.—Joseph B. Greenhut, former president of the Whisky Trust and wife left for Europe this morning. He will make an official investigation in the recent outrages of the Russians on the Jews for the committee on national and civil rights of the union of Jewish congregations of America, of which he is a member from Illinois. He will return in September and report to the committee.

The convention will be in session all week. The object of the association is to have all dances taught uniformly throughout the United States and Canada.

RESTRICTING FRANCHISE.

Pretoria, June 8.—In consequence of the opposition to the municipal enfranchisement of colored men, the government has decided to amend the municipal ordinance so as to exclude aliens as well as colored men, thus restricting the franchise to white British subjects.

LOHS NYKOLIOJ

New York, June 8.—Fireman John McGovern has been shot twice and dangerously wounded while attempting to arrest a man who acted suspiciously in the street. When McGovern called upon the man to halt he ran, pursued by the policeman, and finding himself being overtaken, turned and fired three shots, one of which passed through McGovern's lungs and the other shattered his left hand. The man succeeded in making his escape. McGovern's condition is critical. The shooting was reported at a nearby police station by a woman giving the name of Earl. Several hours later she was found in a vacant lot, suffering from laudanum poisoning, and was taken to the hospital where McGovern lay. The doctors succeeded in saving her life. She declared the shooting had nothing to do with her attempt at suicide.

ARCHBISHOP OF MANILA.

Rome, June 8.—The vatican today officially announced that the Rev. J. J. Harty, pastor of St. Leo's church, of St. Louis, has been appointed archbishop of Manila.

CHANCE OF GREENE

To Become Civil Service Commissioner Is Considered Good.

Ex-Governor Merriam to Be Banqueted By Census Employes.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, June 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—There is a growing impression among Minnesotans that President Roosevelt will very seriously consider the candidacy of Henry F. Greene, of Duluth, for the position of civil service commissioner. On Saturday Congressman J. Adam Bede called at the White House, but the president was so very busy with his cabinet that Mr. Bede failed to secure a personal interview to lay before President Roosevelt the claims of his constituent. Mr. Bede, however, placed the papers in Mr. Greene's case in the hands of Secretary Loeb, and will have a personal interview with the president today, if possible.

Warren B. Dunnell, of Owatonna, is a candidate for the vacant civil commissionership, but he does not appear to have very strong backing at present.

* * *

It was expected that Congressmen Stevens, Bede, Tawney, Buckman and ex-Representatives Fletcher and Eddy would hold conferences here this week to consult upon various pending matters interesting to Minnesota, the civil service commissionership and land mat-

DRENCHED TO SKIN

Passengers on Rockaway Beach Train Have Wet Experience.

Waterspout Rushed In From Sea and Engulfed Cars.

New York, June 8.—Rushing in from the sea, a waterspout traveling at great speed struck a train on the Brooklyn Elevated road, bound cityward from Rockaway Beach. The motorman saw the spout just as the train had reached a trestle over Broad channel, Jamaica Bay. He threw on full power in an effort to get past, but the flood of water struck between the third and fourth cars. The platforms were crowded with passengers unable to get inside the cars. These were almost swept off into the bay, but managed to hold fast to the railings. The flood rushed down the aisles and caused wild scrambles. Hundreds of pleasure-seekers were drenched to the skin. No one was seriously injured. The cars did not leave the rails.

CHICAGO WOMAN LURED FROM HOME, ROBBED AND MURDERED

The Body of Mrs. Danilovski Found In a Lonely Spot and Police Think She Was the Victim of Her Fellow Countrymen.

Chicago, June 8.—Lured from home by fellow-countrymen, who believed she carried a large amount of money, robbed of $60 and then murdered, is believed by the police to have been the fate of Mrs. Marie Danilovski, whose body has been found in a lonely spot on the Illinois and Michigan canal.

When the body was discovered there was a bullet hole in the woman's left temple, and her clothing was in disorder. Her money and three gold rings were gone.

Mrs. Danilovski was last seen by her friends near her home in Eighteenth place Thursday morning. She was with a strange woman who had visited her a week before and whose husband is known to have sought her to lend him money. It is this strange woman and her husband who the police are seeking.

The police also are hunting for Edward Danilovski, nephew of the murdered woman, who is believed to know something about her disappearance. An expressman also is being sought.

Mrs. Danilovski was 57 years old and had lived happily with her husband, James Danilovski, an employe in a furniture factory. She came to America from Austria last fall, six months after her husband. On the voyage she became acquainted with an Austrian, who assisted her in various ways on the trip.

By the theory the police are working on, it was this man's wife who induced Mrs. Danilovski to go to their residence on Thursday. She was supposed by these people to have considerable money, and when she refused to make them a loan, the police believe, she was shot and her money taken. In the night following the murder the body was placed in a wagon, it is thought, and hidden at the spot where it was found by three hunters.

WILL COMMIT NO MORE MURDERS

Ossining, N. Y., June 8.—After having been twice reprieved by the governor, Arthur Flanigan, a negro, was put to death today in the electric chair in Sing Sing. After the current had been turned on twice Flanigan was pronounced dead. Arthur Flanigan killed Keeper Hugh McGovern in the prison attached to the West Fifty-fourth street police court, New York city. He and another negro, Frank Emerson, in escaping from the prison Oct. 29, 1900, killed McGovern with an iron bar which they had sawed from a window. Emerson was letting himself down from the window by a rope when the rope broke and he fell to the ground and was killed. Flanigan, who had preceded Emerson, got away, but was recaptured several months afterward.

New York, June 8.—George D. Widener, prominent in financial circles in Philadelphia and a son of the traction magnate, has just returned from Europe with his family. When he reached the pier an official of the treasury department asked him the meaning of a cablegram from the other side which stated that the financier had purchased a considerable number of diamonds of value. The interrogation was made because no purchases of diamonds were mentioned in the declaration of baggage made by M. Widener to the customs officials who boarded the ship at quarantine.

A consultation over the matter resulted in the discovery that Mr. Widener had left a valuable lot of jewels in the rooms of a London hotel. They had been forgotten in he haste of packing. Cable messages were hurriedly sent to the management of the hotel in an effort to recover the valuables.

VANDALISM BY GRAVE DIGGERS

Chicago, June 8.—A dispatch to the Tribune from San Francisco says: Two acts of vandalism have been committed by the striking grave diggers at Cypress Lawn cemetery, near this city. A grave which had been dug by the assistant superintendent and one workmen for a funeral was filled with water. The result was that the funeral party had to wait while the grave was bailed out. A more serious outrage was perpetrated at the crematory. There a body was to be incinerated, but when the furnace was lighted it blew up, seriously injuring two men and wrecking a part of the plant. It was found that crude oil had been spilled over the furnace so as to cause an explosion.

AUTO SCARED HORSE; WOMAN DEAD

Greenlawn, R. I., June 8.—Frightened by the approach of a big automobile, a horse driven by John D. Langes, a wealthy resident of this place, swerved from the road, upsetting the cart and Mrs. Langes was thrown into a ditch receiveing a fracture of the skull, from which she died about twenty minutes later.

Mr. Langes and his wife were in a dog cart and were on their way home from Hutington. When they reached the fork of two roads, their horse became startled by the tooting of the horn of an approaching automobile, which was coming down a hill. When the driver of the machine saw the antics of the horse, he brought it to a full stop. But even the sight of the machine was too much for the frightened animal which, despite the efforts of Mr. Langes, swerved from the road and upset the cart in a ditch. Mrs. Langes fell out head first into a pile of stones, fracturing her skull. Mr. Langes hung onto the horse and escaped with severe bruises.

RAGING FLOODS CLAIM NINE MORE VICTIMS

Were Seen to Drown at Town of Madison.

Railroad Business Is Paralyzed at St. Louis.

St. Louis, June 8.—All the whistles in Madison were blown early today to arouse citizens for rescue work as soon as the fact becamek nown that a colony of persons were at the mercy of the flood. J. R. Elder, superintendent of the American car and foundry works, said at 3 o'clock that he personally saw nine of the men plunge into the water and drown.

Just where these men are situated cannot be refinitely learned, as reports received in St. Louis vary. Some reports say they are imprisoned on a crumbling levee, and others are that they are imprisoned in a tottering building at the car works, where they fled from the breaking levee. Every effort is being put forth to rescue them.

Madison is about four miles north of St. Louis. The steam yacht Annie Russell cannot breast the current, and after trying for an hour, she put back into port and the harbor boat, Mark Twain, will attempt to go to the rescue.

St. Louis, June 8.—According to the local weather bureau relief seems in sight for the flooded districts in the vicinity of St. Louis. This morning the stage recorded by the government gauge is 37.5 feet, a rise during the past twenty-four hours of 2.3 feet. This breaks all records but that of 1844. It is expected that the river will rise very slowly from mnow on until tonight or tomorrow morning, and that the predicted stage of thirty-eight feet, if at all, will be barely attained. Then, after remaining stationary for a short time, the government officials say, the river will begin falling Tuesday evening or Wednesday.

Inability to secure communication with Madison and Granite City, Ill., lying a few miles north of St. Louis, where a number of people were late last night reported in danger of losing their lives from the encroaching flood, caused great anxiety here. At Madison, nine persons are reported drowned and others either in a crumbling levee or in unsafe buildings, are in peril. From Fedinand Cole, president of the board of levee commissioners of Madison county, living at Venice, comes a report of lives lost through the collapse of a brick hotel at North Venice or Newport. Communication between Granite City and Venice is impossible. Two men are said to have braved the flood by swimming from Venice to Madison, being forced by water from the roof of the house they were living in. Six feet of water is reported sweeping through the offices of Hedges hotel, Madison, with guests imprisoned in the upper stories.

Residents of Granite City are in great peril from several breaks in the levees protecting that manufacturing town. Persons living about the manufacturing plants in which they are employes, are reported fleeing from the flood that comes from the north and a fresh break in the abutment to the west. Adjacent farm lands are being flooded and the residents of the lowlands are seeking safety with those of the city.

Efforts are being made in various ways to reach these places by water and land and afford help, but it may be several hours before anything definite can be learned.

The conditions in East St. Louis continue the same as last night. All the available police were sent over today to aid in keeping order and to save lives.

John Buehrar, who lives on Chouteau island, twelve miles north of St. Louis, reports that eighteen people on the island cannot get away. He wanted assistance, but was unable to secure aid, as all the boats are at present busy and cannot reach the island.

With all east side terminal points between Alton and St. Louis in the embrace of the flood and the Merchants and Eads bridges accessible to only a few lines, St. Louis passenger and freight traffic, both incoming and outgoing, is temporarily paralyzed.

No attempt has been made to transport freight between this city and East St. Louis and relief from this critical situation is not expected within the next twenty-four hours. It is estimated that the flood disaster has already cost the railroads $2,000,000. All incoming passenger trains are marooned in St. Louis.

The Vandalia was the only line which started a train to the East today, but this was two hours late leaving the Union station and there is no assurance that it will make anything like schedule time, even if it succeeded in getting through East St. Louis.

The Wabash, the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, the Big Four, Louisville & Nashville, the Chicago & Alton and the Toledo, St. Louis & Kansas City are suffering heavily. All trains on the Clover Leaf have been annulled.

The Big Four and Chicago & Alton are carrying passengers to Alton by boat, where connection is made for northern and Eastern points.

The Burlington will not accept passenger business south of Alton and the Wabash is completely checked on the outskirts of East St. Louis. Information is not available as to the St. Louis Valley road, as all wires along that line are down. None of the trains can be operated between St. Louis and Cairo. The Illinois Central was the only Chicago train to make St. Louis today. It arrived at Union station three hours late.

The Southern railway managed to hold its own pretty well until Sunday night, when it encountered difficulties at East St. Louis, where a number of its cars are now tied up.

The B. & O. Southwestern, whose depot is situated on high ground across the river, held out better than the other roads, but as a precaution are stopping all trains at East St. Louis. The Mobille & Ohio has taken a brief respite from work, its East Side terminals being under water and some 300 freight cars awaiting delivery. Its passenger trains are running into East St. Louis from the south, connecting at Sparta, over the tracks of the Illinois Central.

The Western roads are experiencing similar hardships. The Wabash Chicago & Alton and Burlington have practically ceased operating between the two cities.

The Missouri Pacific and the Frisco are the only lines actively operating between here and Kansas City. The Missouri Pacific is handling westbound business for its crippled competitors. Freight tonnage has been reduced to a minimum and only the most imperative shipments are made. That travel is prostrated was clearly manifest at union station today. Under ordinary circumstances at this time of the year between 25,000 and 45,000 persons pass in and out of St. Louis daily on the 500 trains arriving at and leaving the station. Excursions bring this total on Sundays to 50,000.

At 3 o'clock Monday morning the combined forces of the Missouri river and Cahokia creek broke the barriers at the Relay depot, East St. Louis. The Relay depot was surrounded with water but the embankment of clay and sand made by the workers Sunday saved the city from the rush of water. Trains continued to pass on the tracks around the depot, but at 8:45 the eastbound Southern train was stopped on the bridge incline. The water had risen so high that the engine could not pass without "dying." East St. Louis city authorities expect to hold their embankments until Monday night, hoping by that time the crest of the flood will have passed. In order to do so the different plants of East St. Louis have sent their men to work for the city. Elliot s frog shops have been converted into a commissary department. East St. Louis women, under the direction of Dr. J. L. Wiggins, have worked in the commissary night and day giving food to the workers on the levees. Deep water has entered the cellars and basements in the central portion of the town, and the men not at work on the levees are removing goods to higher places.

After daylight this morning water began to break through at Cohn station in the yards west of Summit avenue.

The several breaks were stopped before the water gained any great headway.

Just back of Elliet's frog shops, three blocks south of Broadway, is three feet higher than Main street, the first street east of the tracks. It is kept back by an embankment of clay, with sand banks. It seeps through constantly, but does not break the bank, because it has little current and is not beaten by the wind. Rush City, and the portion of the town east of the southern tracks and south of Broadway, are under water. Residents of that part of town have left their homes and gone to the northern part of the city. Owners of different halls and large buildings in East St. Louis have proferred them for the use of the sufferers.

Guards are on duty at the canal bridge, on the Illinois Central tracks, at Centerville station, seven miles south of town. The authorities have closed the space beneath the trestle.

Backwater from the river has flooded farms to the southeast, and the farmers in that section of the country threaten to cut the timbers blocking the water. Should this be done the waters would back up Pittsburg lake, which at present reaches to the city limits of East St. Louis, and gain another point of attack on the city. The Associated Press received the following from the National stock yards at East St. Louis this morning: "No market here today on account of high water."

This indicates that the meat supply of St. Louis, which mostly comes through these yards, will be cut off until the river falls considerably.

This afternoon the viaduct connecting East St. Louis with the Eads bridge was condemned as unsafe.

The street cars were stopped and not allowed to cross the bridge.

The water of the Capokia creek has been washing against the viaduct for several days, and it has been strained to its utmost by sightseers, who used it as a vantage point to view the flood.

BAND OF WORSHIPERS ARRESTED

Chicago, June 8.—While holding a religious meeting at Monroe and State streets, yesterday afternoon, jumping up and down in their excitement and blockading the sidewalks, eleven disciples of Duke Farson's Metropolitan Holiness church, on the West Side, were arrested. All offers to release them on bonds were rejected as the enthusiasts believed they were acting under the direction of a higher power. Six of the prisoners are women, one of them being a negress.

In spite of the protests and commands of the police and lock-up keepers, the band continued its services far into the night, when, seemingly, exhausted from their exertions, the members became quiet and fell asleep.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

REQUIRED BY LAW

Automobilists Must Get Licenses From the State Boiler Inspector.

Eight Miles an Hour Maximum Speed In Populous Districts.

Have you a tag for your automobile?

City officers are becoming interested in the speed with which some chauffeurs run the cars, and in making an investigation as to the best way of discouraging scorching they have found a new state law.

This statute will be applied in Duluth. It prohibits a speed of over eight miles an hour within any thickly settled or business district, with a four-mile limit for crossings. Away from the thickly settled and busy district the machine may be driven at a rate of 20 miles an hour.

The new law further says chauffeurs shall stop their automobiles when the driver of any horse or team signals him to do so, and the auto is to remain at a standstill until the team has passed.

Before any automobile shall be driven upon the public streets the owner must take out a license from the state boiler inspector, paying $2.50 it. The number of each license is to be painted in plain figures four and one-half inches high on the rear of the machine.

Any person violating these sections shall be considered guilty of a misdemeanor and liable to quite a heavy fine.

According to current reports automobiling is to be popular in Duluth this summer. Several orders have been placed by local parties for machines ranging from a $600 pair-about to a $2500 touring car.

Beyond an occasional run away there have been no accidents from the sport in this city, and it is largely as a matter of precaution that the local authorities are preparing to enforce the new state law.

THE FREIGHT HANDLERS

Reply to the Claims of Knudsen & Eden.

To the Editor of The Herald:

We do not wish the public to be led to believe any of the erroneous reports concerning the situation of the freight handlers of Duluth.

Contrary to the report of the claims of Knudsen & Eden contained in your issue of Saturday, which said we had about 75 members, we have 250 experienced men, citizens of Duluth, and the majority with families to support, and who have performed their line of work from five to twenty years. We claim we are right in our demands, and are and always have been willing to leave our grievances to a board of arbitration composed of the leading merchants of our city.

The contractors require us to start working a boat and continue until said boat is finished, whether it lasts ten hours or forty hours, as to which we leave the public to judge. This is the point on which our trouble hinges. We have always been willing to make a 13-hour day, namely, from 7 a. m. until 10 p. m., and, if possible to finish a boat, until midnight. The contractors have made us no proposition of settlement in reply to that which we submitted to them, so what are we to do?

Now, said contractors have obtained an injunction which prohibits us from living in the city, practically, while they import a class of men which it is a misfortune for any city to be burdened with. In conclusion, I wish to let it be distinctly understood that any acts of violence are not sanctioned by the local, and we are prepared to prove that such action is contrary to the rulings of our local union.

BLIND PIGS DO IT

Range Man Says They Are Responsible For Murders.

They Sell Bad Whisky Without Any Police Restrictions.

"People are amazed at the number of killings and assaults that take place on the ranges," said Jacob Zimmerman, an old-time Duluth resident, now living at Chisholm, this morning, "but they are not particularly surprising to me. They can almost invariably be traced to the blind pigs.

"There are at least fifty blind pigs in the Hibbing district alone. There is one at almost every mine, and in many cases several. They are located so that police regulation is out of the question, nd they sell liquor that is so bad that it brings all that is evil in its consumers to the top. I venture to say that almost every killing that has been reported on the ranges during the past two or three years could be traced back to blind pigs. The men from the mines go to the blind pigs and get crazy and then they go to town and something happens.

"In most saloons that are licensed and under police supervision they do not let men get to such a stage, because they cannot afford to do it. The blind pigkeepers are outlaws from the very start, are thoroughly irresponsible, and one blind pig does more harm than a dozen saloons. A big reform could be brought about by a systematic campaign against the blind pigs."

Mr. Zimmerman said that recently a couple of Austrians at Chisholm had a row, in which one of them hit the other in the head with a brick. The injured man died, but nothing was done with his assailant.

BASE BALL

DULUTH vs. FARGO TOMORROW.

Athletic Park. Game called 4 p. m.

THEY WOULD PLAY BALL.

Employes of County Treasurer's Office Organize a Team.

The employes of the county treasurer's office have organized a ball team and are very anxious to cross bats for the first game with the sheriff's office team. A very pertinent challenge has been issued to Capt. S. L. Pierce, of the sheriff's team, but thus far no answer has been made.

The members of the sheriff's office team are inclined to regard the challenge as a huge joke. They claim that the county treasurer's colts must first go and defeat some other team, make for themselves a record and then their challenge will be considered. Sheriff Butchart says that the newly-organized team is in the position of the fellow who went to the bank to borrow money, whose note was worthless and who could get no endorsement.

The county treasurer's office team believes that it has a big advantage in that it has two pitchers and two catchers. C. L. Wedan is manager of the aggregation and F. S. Brown is the captain of the team. The line-up is as follows: Pitchers, Paul and Perry; first base, Kohagen; catcher, Nelson; second base, Hjillis; third base, Whipple; short stop, Wedan; left field, Miller; right field, Brown; center field, Williamson.

The challenge which the men, who handle the county's money, handed to the sheiff's team, read as follows:

"Having heard that the farmers in the sheriff's office have sundry aspirations as baseball players, and knowing, as we do, that they are sadly lacking in proficiency, we, the county treasurer's office, have talked the matter over and have decided to play a game for the benefit of the said sheriff's office, feeling confident that the said sheriff's office will grasp this opportunity to learn the game. We therefore challenge said employes of the sheriff's office to a game at any time and place they might select."

LIMIT TOO LOW.

Commissioner Patterson Says Fifty Trout Too Few.

"I am beginning to think the game laws should be amended, at least that part which limits the number of trout a fellow catches at fifty per day."

This remark was made reflectively, this morning, by County Commissioner Patterson as he leaned back in his chair at the court house and counted the mosquito bites on the back of his hand.

Mr. Patterson was up on the upper French river for two days trout fishing, and to keep the letter of the trout law, he had to stop fishing early each day. He says the fishing was never better, but that the mosquitoes are very thick, settling down in a cloud on a man in the woods. The commissioner declares that it is almost impossible to do any fishing without the proper "mosquito dope."

Many Visit Park Point.

Between 4000 and 5000 people attended the free concert at Oatka beach yesterday afternoon. The warm weather and delightful climatic conditions on the point drew a large crowd that was early in the day. The Park Point street railway handled one of the largest crowds in the record of its service, and did so very satisfactorily. The concert by Flaaten's Third Regiment bnd was an excellent one and drew many marks of appreciation.

Washing Machine In Arcturus Mine Now Entirely Complete.

Members of the Cleveland Cliffs Mining company from Michigan are in the city and will go up on the range today or tomorrow to look over the work the Great Northern Railroad company is doing in the track extensions to the Crosby mine near Nashwauk.

The line is a mile or more in length, and Porter Bros., contractors, have been working on it for the past month. The grade is all finished, and the steel is said to be partly down. It is expected that the spur will be finished in two or three weeks. The mining men will also visit the site of the mine to ascertain the amount of work completed on the stripping contract.

The last of the parts of the experimental washing station at the Arcturus mine are coming in, and the plant will be in shape for a thorough test in a few days. Part of the material has been on the ground for weeks, but the complete machine was not brought in until a day or two ago.

It is likely that a party of Great Northern officials will visit the plant and inspect the work of the plant when it gtes running.

There will be no lines built to the Diamond and the Arcturus by the Great Northern this summer, but if the plant is considered practical, the lines will be put in this winter.

William Duncan, of Ishpeming, one of the Cleveland Cliffs party, arrived here this morning and Mr. Minnie is expected. J. E. Jopling will pilot the officials, having just returned from a trip over the property.

Neither of the Minnesota senators, it is understood, have as yet expressed their wishes as to the appointment of a civil service commissioner.

Congressman Steenerson has left Washington for home. It is not thought that there will be any change in the location of the new land office which through an executive order, was placed at Cass Lake and to open for business July 1. Congressman Steenerson, Tams W. Bixby and others have had conferences with Secretary Hitchcock to urge the transfer of the new land office from Cass Lake to Bemidji.

Governor Merriam, late director of the census, called upon the president this morning and formally tendered his resignation as census director and it was accepted by Mr. Roosevelt. In accepting the resignation the president took occasion to compliment Mr. Merriam on the good work accomplished by the census office under his administration. The chiefs and employes of the census bureau will tonight tender ex-Governor Merriam a banquet, which will take place in the banquet hall of the new Willard hotel. As a mark of the esteem and appreciation in which Mr. Merriam is held by his former employes in the census bureau, a handsome solid silver service has been especially manufactured and will be be presented to the ex-governor at the banquet tonight.

One of the peculiarities of official life is the apparent inability of officers of the government outside of the treasury department to understand the difference between the comptroller of the currency and the controller of the treasury. The former official has control of all matters pertaining to national banks. He has absolutely no other duties to perform. The comptroller, or controller of the treasury is the official who passes upon all questions arising over the expenditure of public moneys. His power in this respect is absolute and he is able to veto the payment of any claim against the government no matter how just, if in his wisdom he decides that the payment is not warranted by law. In several recent interviews with Postmaster General Payne concerning the postoffice investigation—and the postmaster general is interviewed every day—he has repeatedly referred to the action or the opinion of the controller of the currency. That gentleman is naturally annoyed that his name should be dragged into the controversy for the reason that he has had absolutely nothing to do with it or with any of the affairs of the postoffice department at any time. While it is surprising that a cabinet officer should make this mistake the title of the two officials is so similar that the general public can be excused from such errors which, by the way, are constant. To-day, for instance, upwards of twenty letters were received from national banks addressed to the controller of the treasury which should have gone to the controller of the currency. On the other hand, the chief assistant of that official said that during the past week upwards of 100 letters had been received in his office which should have been addressed the controller of the treasury.

The North and South are working together in absolute harmony. Gen. Fred C. Ainsworth, chief of the record and pension office of the war department, undertook a year or two ago to prepare a roster of the Union and Confederate armies. The magnitude of a work of this character cannot be appreciated by the layman, but when it is recalled that there are on the pension rolls of the United States today nearly 1,000,000 survivors and dependents of the civil war and that only one side of the controversy is represented on the pension rolls, some idea may be had of the scope of the work which contemplates preparing a complete list of all the men who fought on both sides. The work of tabulating the names and service of the Union army was comparatively easy, because Gen. Ainsworth in the past twenty years has so perfected the records that he can tell in a moment the military history of any man who was mustered into the service of the Union. But the Southern people were, during the latter days of the war at least, too busy "dodging and shooting Yankees" to pay much attention to literary work. Then, too, the supply of stationery in the Southern states was exceedingly slim during the latter days of the war and besides muster rolls were scattered, burned and destroyed in many instances, so that absolutely accurate records are impossible to obtain.

The South, however, has taken hold of this subject with enthusiasm. Governors and state officers are doing everything within their power to gather the necessary data and at the recent reunion of the Confederate veterans at New Orleans resolutions were passed urging the commandants of each individual camp of Confederate veterans to co-operate with the federal authorities so that those who gave their service and their lives to the lost cause may have their names enrolled upon this great roster soon to be sent to the printer. Gen. Ainsworth estimates that the work, when complete, will fill thirty volumes uniform in size and appearance with the publications known as war records of the rebellion, which comprises 130 volumes and are to be found in every library within the United States.

Securities Rapidly Reaching a Basis of Intrinsic Value.

New York, June 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Henry Clews says in his weekly financial review: Last week seems to have witnessed a perfect outbreak of adverse factors against Wall street. Extensive labor troubles, a big failure in Canada, unexpectedly large gold shipments and extraordinary meteorological conditions all combined to exert a depressing influence upon security values. The climax seems to have been capped today, for instance, upwards of twenty letters were received from national banks addressed to the controller of the treasury which should have gone to the controller of the currency. On the other hand, the chief assistant of that official said that during the past week upwards of 100 letters had been received in his office which should have been addressed the controller of the treasury.

Of the crop situation it is much too early for anything like final or reliable conclusions. The condition of wheat has undoubtedly been injured by unfavorable weather; yet the outlook remains for a big crop. For corn the prospect is less promising. This crop is exceedingly late, increasing the chance of injury to frost, and floods have done considerable damage. Cotton is also very late and exposed to danger by frost, while condition is exceptionally low and acreage but slightly larger than last year in spite of high prices. Nevertheless it is much too early to form any reliable estimates about the harvests, because reasonably fair weather for the next three months would give ample time for recovery. The South seems assured of good prices for its next crop of cotton, and this will add materially to the prosperity of that section. Wheat and corn are also likely to bring good prices this year. Hay and fodder seem likely to be scarce; so high prices for meats and provisions are probable; so the agricultural classes, like the laboring classes, have a promising season before them. It is in financial quarters where the greatest drawbacks exist, and these have been largely if not amply discounted by the late declines.

The monetary situation calls for some attention. Since the beginning of May we have exported over $18,000,000 gold; the bulk going to Paris and considerable to Argentina, the latter also for settlement of our European indebtedness. This movement, however, need cause no alarm. We usually ship gold at this season; besides we are large producers of the precious metal and the Klondike is said to have accumulated $18,000,000 of gold this winter, which will come forward with the early removal of the ice blockade. As bearing upon money supplies it should be borne in mind that Secretary Shaw's refunding scheme has been a brilliant success, the evidence of which is that $70,000,000 old bonds have been converted into two per cents, which will admit of a corresponding amount of bank bills being issued by the banks. According to official statements the banks have increased their circulation nearly $59,000,000 since June 1, 1902, which makes the national bank issue now about $400,000,000, the largest on record. The total supply of currency in the United States on June 1st was $2,382,000,000, against $2,254,000,000 the same date last year, an increase of $128,000,000 in twelve months. This should do much to offset the fear of monetary stringency this fall. In view of the withdrawal of trust companies from the clearing house agreement the locking up of funds for their proposed reserves will be avoided. At the same tim speculation has been sharply contracted, values are on a much lower plane, and our foreign indebtedness greatly reduced. Our financial condition is therefore much improved. The process of readjustment has been going steadily along, somewhat painfully to some, but for the betterment of all. After such a prolonged period of depression immediate recovery cannot be expected, and further declines are not impossible; yet the market has certainly reached a safe trading basis, where good stocks can be advantageously bought on the weak periods and sold out again on the good rallies, which will be frequent the coming week. Securities are rapidly reaching a basis of intrinsic merit.

RACES TO SELECT DEFENDER POSTPONED ON ACCOUNT FOG

First Formal Contest Between the Reliance, Columbia and Constitution Was Declared Off Owing to a Dense Fog Which Prevailed.

Highlands, N. J., June 8.—Fog hung heavily over the Sandy Hook course this morning, where the yachts Reliance, Constitution and Columbia were to meet today in further contest for the honor of defending the America's cup. Rain had fallen all night and the prospects were not bright for a decisive race. Today's contest was awaited with more than the usual interest because if the Reliance again defeats her opponents there will be few who will not conceive that she will be the cup's defender. Her superiority in the quieter waters of the sound and the lighter airs has been established. Today's event is in the same waters in which the itnernational races will be held and whether the Reliance will act as well in the rougher waters is the interesting question. From the shore scarcely a ripple seaward was visible, but later the sun began to make headway against the rain and mist, the former stopping and the latter becoming lighter. The wind was variable and shifting from south to southeast. It was blowing from ten to twelve miles with now and then a squall, which sent the clouds soaring only to return at periods. At 9 o'clock the Reliance and the Constitution were still at their moorings inside Sandy Hook, but the crews were busily making ready to slip the yachts' cables. The Columbia, which had passed the night at Bayride, was early in movement and arrived at Sandy Hook bay at 8:30 o'clock and made fast to one of the Shamrock's old moorings.

At 11 o'clock the wind still held at about twelve miles, but the fog hung heavily over the sea, preventing a view of even the lightship.

Sandy Hook, June 8, 12:25 p. m.—The yachts have lowered club topsails and mainsails and have put them in stops. The probability is that the race will be declared off on account of dense fog.

12:50 p. m.—The race is officially declared off for today.

A MERRY-GO-ROUND RUNS AWAY

Chicago, June 8.—A dispatch to the Chronicle from Evansville, Ind., says. A merry-go-round in a park near the city ran away with itself last night. There were thirteen children on the swing at the time. The conductor grabbed up the children one by one and threw them from the swing. One child, the 6-year-old daughter of John Caney, was thrown against a post and her skull was fractured. She is not expected to survive. One child had its jaw broken, another had an arm broken and several were badly bruised. Just as the conductor jumped from the swing, it broke in pieces and the wooden horses were thrown in all directions.

ASSASSINATION OF EWEN FOILED

Jackson, Ky., June 8.—It is believed that the soldiers guarding the house of B. L. Ewen, the principal witness against Jett and White, prevented his assassination last night. Ewen keeps a hotel. Parties claiming to be man and wife applied last night for lodging and were taken in. Mrs. Ewen was suspicious and asked for additional guards. When the new lodgers were heard moving about in their room, the soldiers made an examination and found both were men. The parties were turned away and no arrests were made.

Judge Redwine came into court at 9 o'clock prepared to call the cases against Curtis Jett and Tom White, charged with the assassination of J. B. Marcum. A large crowd had gathered in anticipation of the trials. The military guard in charge of the courthouse searched spectators for weapons. Owing to the non-arrival of a large portion of the Magoffin county venire of jurymen from whom a jury is to be made up, court was adjourned until 9 o'clock tomorrow.

ROYALTY IS RAISED.

Agreement Modifying Lease of a Mesaba Mine.

An agreement for a modification of a modified mining lease covering the southwest quarter of the northeast quarter and the northwest quarter of the southeast quarter of section 9-58-17, was filed with the register of deeds today. The agreement is made between W. C. Yawkey and the Republic Iron & Steel company, and relates to the royalty, which, under the first modified agreement, was reduced from 35 cents per ton to 2? cents per ton, with a percentage for a higher price on the sales of ore. Under the last agreement the royalty is changed back to 35 cents per ton. The original lease was made February 23, 1892.

TO CLEAR TITLE.

Two Suits of That Nature In District Court.

Two suits to clear title to property were argued and submitted in district court this morning. In Judge Dibell's room action of Anthony Grabarkiewicz against the Western Land association, et al, to quiet title to lot 8, West Seventh street, Duluth proper, First division, and lot 8, block 89, Duluth proper, Third division, was tried by the court.

Argument was made before Judge Cant in a similar action brought by W. C. Ives against Francis Omeis, et al, the property in dispute being lots 9 and 10, block 26, Walbank's addition to Duluth.

The following cases were stricken from the calendar: Nos. 5, 6, 10, 22, 27, 30, 32, 41, and 42. No. 38 was set at the foot of the calendar.

SQUADRON TO CRUISE.

San Francisco, June 8.—The Pacific squadron under command of Admiral Glass, will leave some time this month for a cruise along the coast of South and Central America. This is the newss given out today from the flagship, and unless the plans are altered the vessels will get away for the South Pacific before the end of two weeks.

Car Service Association Reports May Business Very Heavy.

Duluth & Iron Range Gets Last Cars of Large Order.

Chairman Kelly, of the Lake Superior Car Service association, reports that 21,398 cars of freight were handled at the head of the lakes during May.

This is a very large figure for May, which, like April, is one of the light months of the year. The figure is much larger than last month and exceeds all Mays in recent years.

The increase is in spite of the fact that grain and coal are considerably below the normal. The increase is largely on building materials.

The figure for April was 17,797 cars. For May of 1902 the figure was 18,109 cars, for May of 1901 it was 12,073 cars, and for May of 1900 it was 17,626 cars.

Chairman Kelly has not yet made up the detailed statement for the month, showing the number of cars of each commodity.

CARS ARE RECEIVED.

Iron Range Gets Last of Order of 400.

The Iron Range railroad is receiving the last of 500 cars ordered in April. There were 400 ore cars, fifty flats and fifty box cars. This will about complete the equipment necessary for some time to come. At the annual meeting of the railroad company last Friday afternoon, no recommendations were made for ordering more equipment, and all that will be done to the road the coming year, unless some unexpected situation appears, will be some extra tracks and some repairs on tracks and bridges along the line of the road up on the range.

THE TIMEBALL CANNOT FAIL

It Drops Automatically on Solar Observations at Washington.

Capt. Frank Heinrich, the nautical expert in charge of the local hydrographic office, was much amused today by the statement that a local jeweler had said that the time ball dropped twenty seconds late recently.

"I should be interested to know," said Capt. Heinrich, "by what he gauges his time. It is mechanically impossible for the timeball to be more than a tenth of a second out of the way. Its dropping is based on astronomical observations at Washington, and is automatic. A tenth of a second cannot be distinguished by the human eye or ear, and I don't think anybody will suffer much if the time ball drops as far away from the correct time as it possibly can."

"The time ball's movements are directed right from headquarters, where the real and only correct time is to be had, and it is about as clever a proposition to criticise the time ball from the standpoint of a local timepiece as it would from solar observations taken with a stick stuck up in the ground.

WILL SEND HIS BEST.

Ferari Will Give Duluth Carnival His Finest.

The Duluth carnival committee returned this morning from Dixon, Ill., where it went to confer with Ferari Bros., whose shows have been engaged for the carnival here in July. Mr. Ferari has given the committee assurance that his best attractions will be sent here, and he expects that the attendance will be larger than in the towns of the central states.

Over 100,000 general admission tickets and 137,500 tickets to the different shows were ordered today.

Men were sent out to the ranges this afternoon to begin billing them for the big midsummer carnival.

E. M. Fowler, owner of the building occupied by J. Freimuth's dry goods store, took out a building permit today for a brick building on the south side of First street, between First and Second avenues west, the preliminary estimate of the cost being $29,000. It will be a two-story brick on the street and three stories back to the alleyway. It is understood that the first floor will be occupied by a large harness manufacturing concern, and the upper floor will be converted into living apartments.

STATION IS OPENED

Northern Pacific Resumes Service at Twentieth Avenue Depot.

C. M. Phillips Joint Agent For That Road and Milwaukee.

The Northern Pacific depot at Twentieth avenue west was reopened for business this morning after being closed for more than a year. C. M. Phillips has been appointed joint agent of the Northern Pacific and the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul road and will have charge of all freight and passenger business at this point.

No change has yet been made in the running schedules of either the freight or passenger trains on the road, pending the decision of the state railroad and warehouse commission, which is expected to meet in St. Paul this week and decide upon the manner in which trains are to run and whether all of the trains must run on this side of the bay.

The opening of the station is the result of the recent decision of the supreme court, which decided that the Northern Pacific company must run its trains so as to maintain the same service to the western portion of the city as was given by the old St. Paul & Duluth road before it was taken over by the Northern Pacific company.

Lengthy litigation preceded the decision of the supreme court. Suit was first brought in the district court through the efforts of C. O. Nelson, a prominent West End merchant. The court decided in his favor and the case was carried to the supreme court, which upheld the district court in its recent decision. The railroad and warehouse commission now has the matter in charge and will decide upon what service must be given the residents of the western portion of the city.

A communication from the West Duluth Commercial club was recently forwarded to St. Paul, asking the railroad and warehouse commission to restore the service of the St. Paul & Duluth road to the Northern Pacific company, when all trains running between Duluth and the Twin Cities had to be run on this side of the bay. This provision was made when the road was built, in order that the road might be entirely within the state and be under state control, rather than federal authority.

The citizens of the West End and West Duluth naturally feel jubilant over their victory, after such lengthy litigation. They feel that the restoration of the freight and passenger service to that end of the city will mean much to them, and it is likely that when the first train is run over the old route, a formal celebration will be held jointly by the two business men's clubs of that portion of the city, the Duluth Business Men's association in the West End and the West Duluth Commercial club.

CONSULAR CHANGES.

Several Are Made By the State Department.

Washington, June 8.—John D. Jackson, at present American minister to Greece, Roumania and Servia, has also been designated American diplomatic agent to Bulgaria. He replaces in that capacity Consul General Dickinson of Constantinople, and the change is made as an outcome of the case of Miss Stone, when the Bulgarian government declined to receive a diplomatic agent who was also minister to Turkey.

Sanford Newell, at present American minister to the Netherlands, has also been made minister to Luxemburg. This is a new post, and Luxemburg asserting its independence of the other German states diplomatically, the American ambassador at Berlin finds it outside of his jurisdiction.

NOT A GOOD HORSE.

Italian Drops Dead Mule Pulling His Wagon.

New York, June 8.—Tugging between the shafts of the wagon from which his horse had been taken because he was beating it, Alfonse De Lucia, an Italian peddler, has fallen dead in a Brooklyn street. He had been beating his horse, and on complaint of a woman member of the S. P. C. A., the animal, scarcely able to draw an empty wagon, was taken from the shafts by a policeman. De Lucia got between the shafts and drew the wagon to the curb. Just as he reached it he fell dead.

OPENS AT GENEVA.

World's W. C. T. U. Begins Its Convention.

Boston, June 8.—The press committee of the National W. C. T. U. has received a copy of the program of the World's W. C. T. U. convention, which was opened at Geneva, Switzerland, today, and which will continue through Thursday. In the absence of Lady Henry Somerset of England, whose health will not permit her to attend the convention, of which she is president, Mrs. Lillian M. Stevens, of Portland, Me., vice president at large, will preside. The business sessions will be interspersed with public meetings, at which a number of speakers, known widely in connection with the temperance movement, will appear.

BOILERMAKERS STRIKE.

Detroit, June 8.—The boilermakers and boilermakers' helpers of the city went on strike today to enforce a demand for recognition of the union and an increase of wages. Over 700 men are out. The strike has compelled a number of other men not boilermakers, but employed in the shops affected by the strike, to quit work.

PROTEST BY CONGER.

Washington, June 8.—Minister Conger's protest against Count Cassini's published interview concerning the Russian occupation of Manchuria, has reached the state department. The department officials suspect that Mr. Conger has perhaps seen a version of the interview so closely abbreviated as to convey an erroneous impression as to what the ambassador really said and they are disposed to move very slowly in forwarding the protest.

ALL UNDER WATER

Cities East of St. Louis Are Deeply Submerged.

Reports of Many Deaths Came From Different Localities.

St. Louis, June 8.—The entire group of east side cities lying north of East St. Louis and including Venice, Madison, West Madison, Newport, Brooklyn and Granite City, are under from ten to eighteen feet of water, which is still rising, and deaths from drowning are estimated at from five to twenty, while 8000 persons were driven from their homes. Very little confirmatory of the reports of drowning can be had, as these places are all cut off from railroad service, and telephone communication is uncertain. The weather bureau promises relief after the river shall have risen to about thirty-eight feet. It is now within a few inches of that mark, but rising slowly. The harbor boat Mark Twain, and the private yacht, Annie Russell, with several tugs, have gone to Madison and Granite City, where the floods have caused a number of deaths and where scores of families cut off from escape, are at the mercy of the waters.

So far as known, the casualties are as follows:

JOHN CRITTENDEN, aged 10, drowned near the Merchants bridge, in Venice.

A woman and seven children, swept from a fence by the flood in sight of the Terminal railway operator at Madison, who was attempting to save them.

A woman drowned in Madison, near the American Car works.

A woman and a baby seen clinging to a telegraph pole in Madison. The pole turned in the water and both disappeared.

Manager Shipley, of the Madison Car works, reports seeing seven employes of the American Car and Foundry works drown.

Henry Edmunds, a farmer, drowned near Granite City. His wife was rescued.

Others are reported.

Dummy trains of the Terminal association, connecting with skiffs, commenced this morning the work of bringing across the river more than 700 persons who spent Sunday afternoon and night on the top of houses and at other points of elevation above the flood in Madison, Venice and Newport. Four drownings were reported by the refugees, but none knew the names of the victims. One said that a father, mother and child had been drowned while trying to reach a point of safety, and another told of the death of a man under like circumstances. In East St. Louis, on proclamation of Mayor Cook, business is suspended, the saloons are closed and everybody is at work on the levees in a desperate effort to save the place, which is from one to four feet below the level of the water that presses up against the embankments. A hastily constructed levee of sand banks and mud is all that stands between the city and almost complete submersion. If the levee gives, all the mains of the city will be quickly flooded and not a street in the business section will be left out of water.

The Relay station is now surrounded by water. Train service in every direction is laid out by the high water, and no freight business is being done at all on the East Side. Two roads, the Missouri Pacific and 'Frisco, are the only ones running trains between here and Kansas City. Passenger traffic and the most urgent freight business is all that the roads will handle west. It is too early to estimate the damage, which will run into the millions, and the loss due to interference with business.

Kansas City, June 8.—The body of J. Ward, an old soldier, was found today at Oakland, a suburb. The water is fast getting back into the old river channel, leaving North Topeka a desolate sea of sloppy, vile smelling mud.

Topeka, June 8.—It is almost certain that a special session of the legislature will be held for the purpose of appropriating money for the suffering caused by the flood.

Charlotte, N. C., June 8.—Reports today increase the death list from the flooded mill districts of South Carolina. Sixty people are also said to be missing. Relief must come directly and must furnish bread and meat to the employes of the three Clifton mills. Estimates today place the total loss at Clifton and at Pacolet at $2,500,000 or $3,000,000. The loss to the country and to private property holders will probably increase this amount to an extra $1,000,000.

PAPERMAKERS STRIKE.

About Four Hundred Out at Holyoke Mills.

Holyoke, Mass., June 8.—The employes in the finishing rooms in all the coarse paper mills here struck today because of dissatisfaction with the schedule presented by the American Writing Paper company. The strike was inaugurated by the cutter girls of the Nonotuck No. 1 division. About 400 are on strike. The cutter girls were granted an advance of 10 cents. They asked for 35 cents. There are about 4000 employes in all the mills.

The strike affects the George R. Dickinson, Nonotuck, Albion, Waureagan, Crocker, George C. Gill and Mt. Tom divisions of the American Writing Paper company and the Chemical Paper company. It is feared the strike will spread.

GERMANY

Will Protect Turkey From Going to Pieces.

New York, June 8.—The Rev. Henry H. Jessup, who for the last forty-seven years has been engaged in Christian missionary work in Beirut, Syria, is here on furlough. In a sermon at the Fifth avenue Presbyterian church he spoke of the customs and social conditions in Turkey and the work missionaries had accomplished in the emancipation of woman, and in conclusion said:

"I do not claim to be versed in the political aspect with regard to this matter, but the German emperor is now throwing a steel band across this country from Constantinople to Bagdad, and in the face of the commercial and industrial opportunities which may be opened, I do not think Turkey will be allowed to go to pieces."

KEENANS HARD LUCK.

Was a Victim of Very Peculiar Circumstances.

"I was in that part of New Jersey again the other day," said John Gilbert, the traveling groceryman, according to the New York Sun, "and they told me John Keenan got seven years. I was kind o' sorry to hear it, for although John Keenan undoubtedly deserved all he got, he was a victim of circumstances and mistaken identity, and I can't help wishing they hadn't soaked it to John quite so hard.

"I must tell you about John Keenan. A year or so before hearing that he had got seven years I was on a business trip in that part of New Jersey, and early one forenoon was standing talking with a storekeeper in the little town. A number of men were lounging about the store door, cold as the weather was.

"Presently a stranger drove up to the store with a fine-looking horse hitched to a light spring wagon. He had scarcely stopped when two or three of the loungers stepped forward and looked closely at the horse and at him.

"This scrutiny the stranger evidently did not fancy, for he gathered up the reins and started his horse. Instantly one of the loungers sprang forward and seized the horse by the bridle. Two or three others jumped to his side.

"Quick as a flash the stranger leveled a revolver at the head of the man who had seized the bridle, and told him to let go or he would blow his brains out.

"The man dropped the bridle like a hot coal and jumped out of the way, as did all the rest, some of them tumbling over one another to get through the store door. The stranger gave whip to his horse and drove away with it on a run.

"'That's Dumond's hoss and Bailey's wagon!' exclaimed half a dozen of the scared natives, after they had got their breath. 'That's Dumond's hoss and Bailey's wagon, and that's the man that stole 'em!'

"As quickly as it could be done two shotguns were obtained at the store by two of the loungers, and the stranger and the rig were still in sight when a crowd of yelling Jerseymen started in chase of them, armed with clubs, axes and any weapons they could lay hold on.

"Curious to see what the result would be, I followed with the crowd. There was a long steep hill an eighth of a mile beyond the store. The hill was icy, and when the pursuers of the alleged horse thief reached the hill the horse was half way up it, but was getting on with difficulty owing to the slippery surface and the grade.

"Then he slipped and fell. The pursuers were pressing close, and the stranger jumped from the wagon, ran into the woods and disappeared. I drove the horse back to the store. The crowd kept on after the stranger.

"The storekeeper told me that a few nights before some one had stolen a horse from Dan Dumond, who lived two or three miles from the village, and a spring wagon from a neighbor of his named Bailey, and nothing had been heard of the property since.

"'That horse the feller just drove up here with is Dumond's, sure enough,' said the storekeeper. 'And that's Bailey's wagon, all right. Funny the thief should be comin' right along by here. He might have known that the horse and wagon would be recognized.'

"Anxious to know how the chase of the horse thief came out, I waited all day at the store, but none of the pursuers came back. The storekeeper sent word down to Dumond that his horse had been recovered, along with Bailey's wagon, and all he had to do was to come up and get it. Along in the afternoon Dumond came up.

"'What's this you're sayin' about my hoss bein' recovered?' said Dumond to the storekeeper.

"'That's all I said about it,' replied the storekeeper. 'He's recovered, and he's out yonder in my barn.'

"'Guess not,' said Dumond. 'I folloered my hoss clean to Peapack, and found it there day before yesterday, where the thief had sold it. But Bailey's wagon wa'n't with it.'

"'This was a puzzler. The storekeeper took Dumond out to the barn to show him that his horse and Bailey's wagon were there, and I went along to see how it came out.

"'Looks like my hoss, that's so,' said Dumond. 'But it ain't. This hoss is younger than mine, and hain't got no tooth knocked out on the left side of its jaw. Mine has. My hoss I got back over to Peapack day before yesterday, and he's home in my barn now. This is Bailey's wagon, all right though.'

"The mystery deepened. None of the horse thief chasers had returned yet. I had to get to the next town that evening, so I drove away, leaving the mystery unsolved.

"A few days afterward, though, I returned to that village, not only curious, but anxious, to know how that thief chase had come out, and whether the mystery of Dumond's horse and Bailey's wagon had been cleared up yet.

"'Yes,' said the storekeeper, 'they ketched the thief, and he's over in the county jail now. They chased him all day through the woods and swamps and then cornered him in a stone quarry not more than two miles from the county seat, and that's more than twenty miles from here. When they got him cornered in the quarry he seemed to just happen to think of somethin'. He whipped out his revolver and p'inted it at 'em and says:

"'Have you men got a warrant for me?'

"'Don't have to have no warrants for takin' hoss thief!' Joe Gravely answered back.

"That seemed to surprise the feller. He put up his pistol, and lookin' as if he was pleased at somethin', he said:

"'Hoss thief! Is that all?'

"And he surrendered and went right along with 'em without another word. They took him to the county seat and handed him over to the sheriff, and the sheriff hadn't no more than seen him when he blurts out:

"'Well, I'll be hanged! John Keenan!'

"At that the feller sort o' wilted, but he didn't say a word, and the fellers started for home, pleased as could be. But, Lord! a madder set o' men than they was you never see when they got back home here, all tattered and torn and dragged out, to find that it wasn't Dumond's hoss at all that the feller had stole.

"'Dumond, you know, had offered a reward of $75 for the capture of the thief that stole his hoss. And that's what them feller-cltizens o' mine was after!

"'And the funniest part of it is,' said the storekeeper, chuckling, 'the feller ain't no hoss thief at all, nor he didn't steal Bailey's wagon! The hoss he has was his own. He traded an old top buggy for Bailey's wagon.'

"'The way it come was, the feller that did steal Dumond's hoss and Bailey's wagon traded the wagon to a farmer back o' Peapack for a buckboard and dove on. A day or two after that this feller, John Keenan, was drivin' by that farmer's in a top buggy that was heavier than he wanted. He seen the light spring wagon at the farmer's and got up a dicker for it. That's how he happened to have Bailey's wagon.

"'So it's a double joke on my feller-citizens. The feller John Keenan ain't a hoss thief. He didn't even steal Bailey's wagon!'

"'Well, what is he, then?' I asked.

"'Nothin' but jest a common tax collector up here in the adjoinin' county. He was on his way for Pennsylvania with a couple or three thousand dollars of the county's tax money,' said the storekeeper. 'That's all John Keenan is.'

"I haven't heard what they did with John Keenan until they told me the other day when I was up there again that he got seven years, and I can't help but say that I was very sorry to hear it—not that he didn't deserve it, mind you—but consider the circumstances he was the victim of!"

NEW TRANSATLANTIC LINER.

While the Cunard line is discussing plans for two new ships that are to win back the laurels of the fastest transatlantic passage to the British flag, a new vessel of entirely different type from these flyers is to make a maiden voyage to our city, says the Boston Herald. This ship is the Carpathia, 560 feet long, 64 feet 3 inches in breadth and measuring 13,555 tons gross and 24,000 tons displacement when fully loaded. She is to be even of more moderate speed than the Ivernia and Saxonia, it will be seen that the new ship is a little smaller than the Ivernia, which has a gross tonnage of 14,058, and she also is to be a little slower than this vessel, as she is expected to make the run across the Atlantic in perhaps half a day more than the big Cunarder we have mentioned. The most important feature in the design of the Carpathia is the wonderfully comfortable quarters that are provided for the third-class passengers, and she can accommodate something like 1700 of them.

In commenting in these quarters, the Glasgow Herald says that they will appeal strongly to the increasing number of passengers aside from emigrants who for a holiday or other purposes travel between Europe and America, and who like to go as cheaply as possible so that their stay at either end may be extended. Ten years ago third-class passengers found their own bedding, dishes and other small articles that they might need on the voyage, but this is now changed. The ordinary rate of fare pays for everything required on the trip, and our Scotch contemporary estimates that the rate of fare works out only about a cent a mile. This, be it remembered, provides abundant board during the voyage, comfortable lodging, reasonable conveniences and a safe and fairly speedy passage across the ocean. Taking everything into consideration, that makes about the cheapest method of traveling that exists.

ALL "DUTCH" TREATS.

The Acorns, a good-government organization in New York, has planned to open a reform saloon on Broadway, between Thirty-fourth and Forty-second streets, says Harper's Weekly. Real drinks are to be sold at this saloon to sober customers, but every man must pay for his own. That is the chief peculiarity of the place; treating will not be allowed there. Another peculiarity is that the barkeepers are all to be total abstainers. That is right; barkeepers ought all, for their own safety, to be total abstainers. They are sure to take in quite as much rum as is good for them through the pores and the lungs. Fulton Cutting, City Chamberlain Gould and Herbert Parsons are named as being among the backers of this enterprise, and Bishop Potter and Parson Rainsford are expected to endorse it. The purpose behind the no-treating saloon is not to make money, nor yet to keep liquor in circulation, but to disassociate liquor selling from private profit, politics, blackmail and immorality, and to decrease the per capita consumption of liquors. Such saloons have been started in England, and are thought to be useful there, and maybe there is a field for them in New York. No one who is not in the habit of drinking in saloons is qualified to say how valuable the no-treating regulation may be. The ability of the average, responsible, well-to-do man to pay for drinks so far exceeds has capacity, or, at any rate, his desire, to consume them, that the question of who pays is of very slight consequence to him. What he is apt to insist upon (to himself) is that his occasional or semi-occasional drink shall not be taken alone. Treating or being treated has very little to do with the number of his potations. But experienced saloon drinkers have reported in intervals of coherency that in saloons the practice obtains of setting up rounds of drinks, each partaker contributing a round in turn, until the social glass had overflowed into the convivial cup, the emotions have been unwarrantably stirred, and proper expenditure and moderate indulgence have both been far exceeded. If the no-treating rule corrects inconsiderate excesses of this sort without encouraging the habit of solitary potations, it may evidently be useful. To drink wisely seems to be so fine an art that the inexperienced may well despair of acquiring it, but it will seem easier if the neophyte will remember that all the serious mistakes are made on the side of over-consumption, and that it is the rarest thing for anyone to find cause for regret in drinking too little. So long as there is such a conspicuously safe side to err on, no observing person need go seriously amiss.

HARMS THE GIRLS

Young Women Just Out Are the Victims of Bridge.

Debutantes Fleeced By Elders When Other Victims Fail.

New York, June 8.—A London cablegram to the Herald says: Reference has been made previously to the ravages which bridge is alleged to be making in the purses of some of the members of society. Truth this week gives what it claims to be a further insight into the evil.

"What should you think of a lady," says a writer in Labouchere's journal, "whose prowess in winning had made all her entourage afraid to play with her, and who fills back on girls to play with. These poor things have to go on with the game or be guilty of rudeness to their hostess. You can imagine then miserable state of mind when they find themselves deeply in debt and are expected to pay up at once.

"I used to be men only who fleeced the tender lambs of society, and in those days the lambs were of a tougher sex, but now nothing is sacred to the bridge player."

Nor is this all. Labouchere's correspondent goes on to relate what purports to be a veracious history, as follows.

"A man who had proposed to a girl and had been refused received a letter from her last week to the effect that she had changed her mind and would now say if he would send her a check for $1000 to pay her losses at bridge, and that he must on no account let her father know about it. The man had in the meanwhile become engaged to another girl, but he sent the check with a note saying he was pleased to be of use to her. In a postscript he added: 'Send me your congratulations. I am the happiest man in Blankshire. Miss Blank has consented to marry me. You know what a charming girl she is.'

"There has been the usual number of political speeches during the week, but notwithstanding much that is new or noteworthy has been added to the controversy over Chamberlain's financial proposals. Sir James Blundell Maple declared that British blood would have its way, if only it had fair play, and generally the subject is being treated from partizan lines.

"Sir Thomas Lipton apparently is not an easy prey to the begging letter nuisance. The Truth tells of a woman who has written him a number of letters threatening him with condign punishment unless he sends her $100 as a subscription for some poor old woman, who, she says, constitute a deserving case of charity, but as to whose identity she is not precise. The writer assured Sir Thomas that she was a bit of a white witch, adding 'You have never sent me a penny during the three years I have been asking you for a subscription, and you have not even had the courtesy to write me a polite refusal. I tell you again that you shall never lift the cup, and nothing but ill luck shall follow Shamrock III until you make a donation for the health and comfort of those who need it and for whom I have so often appealed in vain.'

"In another letter this self-styled 'white witch' pointed out that after one of her futile applications the Shamrock III met with an accident and a man was drowned. If Sir Thomas fails to life the cup it will be held by the 'white witch' that she was responsible.

"During the hot weather Ranelagh and Hurlingham have attracted many in search of shade and fresh air. Polo has been going on briskly, and on Wednesday a team which consisted of three Americans and only one Englishman played against a Rugby four. The Englishman was Peake, who will be seen in the United States later on, while the Americans were Walter Lawrence, McCreery and Foxhall Keene, whose splendid hitting was one of the features of the game.

"Keene's accuracy was all the more noteworthy as it was only the second time he had played since last season. He will not be seen much on the polo field this month, as he is busy practicing with a German automobile which he is going to drive in the international race on July 2.

"Walter Buckmaster so far has recovered from his recent accident that he was able to umpire in the game in which the team captained by Foxhall Keene qualified for the finals in the Hurlingham handicap.

"Miss Ethel Barrymore is not only having an awfully good time here, she says, but she has, for a wonder, not been kept busy denying reports of her engagement to the Toms, Dicks and Harrys of her acquaintance. This really has been a great relief to her. Miss Barrymore didn't want to say anything for publication when interviewed this week, and deprecated particularly talking about herself.

"'It is inconvenient, for instance,' she said, 'when one's friends see when you go to their houses that the fact is immediately chronicled in the newspapers. It must look to them like a species of self-advertising.'

"So Miss Barrymore would say nothing about herself. In the course of a chat on other things she said: 'What do I think of the present season in London? Well, it is delightful; even more so than last year. Of course, the fine weather is to a certain extent responsible. Yes, I believe I do prefer London as a place to live in to New York. It is so delightful here in the season.

"'My opinion of the English girl? Well, she leaves nothing to be desired. Do I think the American girl better looking or better dressed?' Not at all. One finds the same thing here as in America. One sees many well dressed people. Also some who are not so well dressed.

"'And the Englishman? Some American girls think he is better dressed than the American.'

Miss Barrymore was diplomatic. She said: "One meets handsome men on the other side as well as here."

"Do you, like some American girls, find the average Englishman dull to talk to?" was asked.

"Not by any means," was the quick reply. "Quite on the contrary, I assure you."

THEY ARE DONE TO A FAZZLE

Oliver Mining Team Walks All Over the Missabe Road's Nine.

Members of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railroad baseball team are trying to figure out how they got their one run in Saturday's game with the Oliver Iron Mining company team.

This morning members of the former team said they played all around the mining men, outplayed them at every game, but Umpire L. W. Powell, whose loyalty to his own department was great, was biased, unfair, wrong, and could not see any plays excepting those made by the mining men.

The game stood 25 to 1 in the fifth inning, when the game was called, and it was a general opinion that if nine innings had been played the score would have "run up into the thousands" and perhaps the game would have been going yet.

The valiant challenge by the railroad men availed them none. But the game was fun. President T. F. Cole, General Manager Olcott and several dozen of the officials and their wives and friends attended the game at the old driving park, and they made as much noise as they do out at the league grounds when somebody gets to first base.

There was only one person struck by the ball, and that was Joseph Kempton, who was in the right field for the railroad men. He was gazing into space and dreaming of home and friends, when he was rudely awakened from the lulling influences of the June sun and croaking crickets by a swat with a baseball, which dropped from somewhere up in the air. He remembered hearing some cheering, just before, but he never thought of a foul ball coming his way. After the episode he played hot ball.

Parnell Powers, who made the only run of the game for the railroad employes, is still wondering how it came about. He remembered hitting the ball and getting to first, but his faculties left him at that point and his mind for that period is as blank as "Doc" Ames claimed he was during the periods he was taking money from women.

The batteries were Oswald and Kurry for the mining men and Carlson and McLeod for the railroad men. The better battery secured thirteen out of the fifteen put outs for the side, and the thirteen is supposed to be what beat the team.

By eye witneses it was said the Oliver men run and made first on three errors and fouls and the umpire would not take cognizance of it.

However, the Oliver men say, that if the railroad boys do not think they got a square deal, the former will be only too glad to do it over for them for a consideration.

GIRL ELOPES AND GOES HOME

Now Refuses to Return To or See Her Husband.

Chicago, June 8.—When you have eloped and married a girl against parental objection, don't let her go home. You may have to win her over again.

Such is the moral of the romance of Roy E. Watrous, of 329 South Pine avenue, Austin, and Miss Isabelle Davidson. Now the once Miss Davidson is Mrs. Watrous, but she lives with her mother and sister in Winnetka, while the groom of two weeks is at his mother's home in Austin. Watrous has not been able to see his wife since they parted at the station on their return home from Geneva, Ill., where they were married on May 19.

The girl is reported to have said that she will not see him again, and Watrous is wondering what to do about it. Influences brought to bear on the girl, after her mother learned of the marriage, are the cause, members of the Watrous family claim. The story of the marriage and separation coming to Austin people all at once, has caused a sensation in the suburb.

According to a statement of a member of the Watrous family, the couple had been "keeping company," after a boy and girl fashion, for nearly two years, and while they were not enthusiastic over his choice, Watrous' family interposed no serious objection. Not so with the girl's mother, who looked with favor upon another suitor for her daughter's hand. Isabelle liked Watrous the better, and so the elopement was arranged. They planned to keep the marriage a secret, to be sprung upon their relatives at a more auspicious time.

Accordingly when they returned to Chicago immediately after the ceremony, the girl went her way, and the groom went his, with the expectation that there would be a meeting, and an explanation and reconciliation soon. What occurred when the girl got home has not appeared, but Watrous learned soon that his wife was estranged.

Since then there have been meetings between the representatives of the two families in an effort to arrive at some understanding of the case, but little progress has been made.

CANADA IS IN FAVOR

Of the New Tariff Plans of Secretary Chamberlain.

Imperialists Are Astonished at Attitude of His Opponents.

Ottawa, June 8.—Imperialists in parliament are disgusted and astonished at the attitude of Chamberlain's opponents on the interimperial preference issue. Sir Edward Grey, following the lead of Lord Roseberry, for instance, declared a British preference for the colonies with which only one-third of the trade of the United Kingdom was done would dislocate British relations with the United States and other foreign countries representing two-thirds of that trade.

Canadians ridicule this idea as simply childish. There would be no dislocation, they say. Foreign nations trade with Britain not for love but for profit. If Britain should propose to enact a prohibitive tariff on the United States trade there might be reason to look for squalls, but nothing of the kind is talked of. No one has suggested more than a moderate impost on a limited list of foreign products, from which impost only colonial products of a similar class would be exempted to the extent of 5 or 10 per cent at the outside. Such a small discrimination, they claim, could have no effect on foreign trade. Foreign countries are not going to run the risk of losing the big British markets for their products for the sake of a comparative trifle of that nature.

Then there is Lord Rosebery's strange position that anything like an imperial commercial league would weaken the empire internally and excite the permanent hostility of the whole world. Such a decision excites suggestions of stupidity unusual in the land of Pitt and Beaconsfield. Is the union of states under the stars and stripes, it is asked, a cause of the British united states? And, how about the German united states, and the Austro-Hungarian united states? These have free trade internally and a protective tariff for external nations. Rosebery is placed in the position of suggesting that the British empire should avow itself too cowardly to contemplate doing for its own interest, as one critic puts it, what every other great state has been doing and is doing. That sort of thing doesn't chime with Canadian ideas.

Here is one view of the German surtax question, from the Toronto News: "Notice has been served on Germany by Mr. Balfour that Canada is part of the British empire."

Sir Frederick Borden, minister of militia, has definitely dropped his new militia bill. This was the bill which it was expected would amend the existing law which requires the immediate command of the Canadian militia to be an imperial officer by allowing a Canadian officer to be appointed to the post. It was also expected to provide for the reorganization and extension of the defensive forces of Canada, and had been repeatedly referred to in the house as intended to carry these intentions into effect. The explanation is made by supporters of the government that it had become too late in the session to allow the bill to be carried, but friends of the militia are inclined to think there were other reasons.

On the one hand the British war office autorities may have unofficially made it known to the Canadian government that it would be gratified at so great a change as the severance of the imperial tie as embodied in the command of the defensive forces by an imperial officer not being so summarily dealth with. On the other hand, likely enough, the government felt little disposed to proceed further at present with militia plans involving a largely increased expenditure of public money until the imperial government gives some proof of its desire to meet Canadian views on reciprocal preference duties.

Only five men in the federal service order. They were W. G. Parmelee, deputy minister of finance; C. J. Jones, of the governor general's office; Col. D. A. Macdonald, superintendent of militia stores; and Mr. A. Power, K. C., chief clerk of the department of justice.

The imperial service order was instituted by his majesty King Edward VII in June, 1902, for members of the civil service of the empire, with decoration to be conferred after long and meritorious service. It consists of the sovereign, the prince of Wales, and such companions as the sovereign shall appoint. Only members of the administrative or clerical branches of the civil service are eligible as companions, and their number must not exceed 425, of whom 250 are to belong to the home civil service and 175 to civil services of the colonies and protectorates. Appointments to the order are made on the recommendation of a secretary of state after twenty-five (or in the unhealthy colonies sixteen) years' service, or for "eminently meritorious service."

Professor Wiggins is out with a letter accounting for the long drought in this part of the continent. Turtle mountain, under the influence of a conjunction of heavenly bodies similar to that experienced at the disaster o fMont Pelee, attracted a mass of electric force causing disturbances which resulted in the land slide, the Rockies eventually drawing off the electricity. In the case of Mont Pelee, there were no high neighboring mountains to collect the electric accumulations, which turned into fire, produced volcanic action, and were followed by long periods of heavy rain. The opposite conditions in the Turtle mountain occurrence produced opposite results, drought in place of rain.

ROMAN CATHOLICS

Formulating Plans to Insure Their Own Property.

New York, June 8.—Bishop McDonnell of the Roman Catholic diocese of Brooklyn and his consultants are engaged in formulating plans under which will be organized a company to insure buildings belonging to the parishes of the diocese against loss by fire. The movement to organize a company is the direct result of the increase in rates in regular companies which went into effect in Brooklyn in January. If the present plans are carried out the new company will eventually carry insurance of all insurable property in the diocese. The remote cause for the organization is explained by a cleric, who said:

"For forty years we have been paying premiums on diocesan property. In that time we have paid in something over $2,500,000, and we have taken out less than $250,000. A moment's reflection will show that it will pay us to carry our own risks, for our losses never equal in value the vast sums we have been paying in premiums.

"The scope of our insuring capacity will be cumulative. From small beginning it will grow through the accumulation of premiums which would otherwise be paid to outside companies, and the interest on the capital, until from carrying a small percentage of insurance on diocesan property it will be able to carry the whole, or nearly the whole, of it.

"Details of the plan have not yet been thoroughly worked out, but the company is an assured fact. When it is remembered that the insurable property of the diocese, including churches, convents, hospitals, schools, parish houses and other buildings, amounts in value to something over $10,000,000, it will be seen that the plan of the Roman Catholic authorities is a far reaching one."

The law enabling the bishop of the diocese to appoint fifteen incorporators for the new company is a sort of combination of the old insurance law and the law which governs the organization of mutual insurance companies. The clergyman said, in conclusion:

"For instance, if this church were worth $100,000 and we carried $10,000 insurance outside and $90,000 ourselves, and the church burned, the companies would only pay onehalf of what the policies called for if we should insure ourselves without incorporating. After we incorporate they must recognize our policies and pay the full rates."

AT WEST DULUTH

The West Duluth nine succeeded in turning the tables on its old-time rivals, the Big Duluths, yesterday afternoon before a large crowd on the grounds at the head of Fifty-second avenue.

The game was a fast one, and after the first inning closely contested. It was a pitcher's battle, in which Young, the West Duluth twirler, had the best of it, although after the first innings Lowe was equally a mystery to the West Duluth men.

West Duluth put up the snappiest game seen on the home grounds this year. Their fielding was fast and accurate and their hitting opportune. They started after Lowe in the first innings and, by means of several hits and one or two errors, succeeded in rolling up five runs. Lowe steadied down and the home team did not score again until the fifth, when one run was brought in.

The one run scored by the Big Duluth team came in the fourth innings and was due to an excusable error on Coughlan's part, who missed a high throw from the catcher.

West Duluth made a very pretty play in the sixth innings, which very nearly resulted in a triple play. An outfield fly was caught by Carey, who threw to second, putting out the runner. Robinson, at second, threw to first and missed getting the man on first by a few feet.

Young allowed three passes, while Lowe issued transportation to five men.

The win for West Duluth gives each team a victory, and the rubber will likely be played at some future date. The line-up and score by innings is as follows:

West Duluth.	Big Duluth.
Young ..... pitcher	Lowe
T. Robinson .... catcher	Campbell
F. Robinson .. first base	Campbell
E. Robinson .. second base	Palmer
Williams..... third base.....	Summers
Coughlan .... short stop	Winter

SHOULD BE SUPPRESSED.

Members of picnic and fishing parties, which went up the St. Louis river Saturday, complain of a gang of hoodlums who are endangering the life of fishermen and pleasure seekers.

A prominent West Duluth merchant, in speaking of them today, said: "There is a gang of about twenty-five Finlanders who have a small shanty up the river. They go out to it Saturday night, taking with them a liberal supply of liquor, and spend Sunday out there. When they become intoxicated quarrels are frequent, and the revolvers seemed to be used in a very free manner. Early Sunday morning, when our party was passing the shanty, we heard several shots fired. Such a gang is a menace to the safety of all decent people and should not be allowed to exist."

GOOD FISHING.

A large number of West Duluth people took advantage of the fine weather yesterday and spent the day fishing and boating on the river. Among those who spent the day in this manner were: James Gilson, head filler at the Lesure mill, and family; L. Leitinger, Joseph Brotherton, S. C. Murphy, Louis Sliger, A. Page, Louis and Charles La Salle, John Schinlaub, and others.

A party composed of A. Page and Louis and Charles La Salle secured twenty-three speckled trout.

The West Duluth Republican club met Saturday evening. Considerable business of a routine order was transacted.

Ernest Coughlan and Otto Spitz, who were arrested Saturday in connection with the robbery of Donald's grocery store, were released Saturday night, there being no evidence which would warrant holding them.

Archibald Le Voy and family have returned from Texas, where they have been for the past two years. Mr. Le Voy was engaged in the mill business in Texas. He has secured two months' leave of absence on account of ill health and returned with his family to West Duluth, where he intends to spend the summer.

Miss Rose Murphy, of Grand Marais, is visiting friends in West Duluth.

Mrs Louis Halstine and seven children will leave today for Seattle to join Mr. Halstine in that city. Mr. Halstine was the man whose home was destroyed by fire in West Duluth last winter and for whom a subscription was raised by kind-hearted neighbors. He is reported to be prospering in the West and has sent for his family to join him.

J. J. Cullen, of Superior, spent Sunday at the home of John Cashin.

Mrs. Rev. James Saunderson is visiting at the home of Mrs. F. E. Bradley.

Mrs. James MacBeth and family will leave today for Stillwater, where they intend to make their residence in future.

A boat containing two small boys is reported to have tipped over in the bay yesterday afternoon. The accident occurred not far from Little Island, and the lads succeeded in righting the boat and getting away before assistance arrived.

GOVERNMENT FISH CAR WORK

Distributes Millions of Fry From the Hatchery At Lester Park—Has Been Working In This Vicinity For the Past Two Months.

One of the United States fish commissioner's cars has been in Duluth for two months, distributing fry from the Lester Park hatchery, and its work being completed, it is now waiting for orders to the next station. It is in charge of J. W. Johnson.

The work of pisciculture was taken up by the United States government more than two decades ago, and of recent years it has grown to be an immense industry. Many states are also engaged upon it, and Minnesota has a particularly excellent system, with one large hatchery now in operation and one that is about to be built at Glenwood.

Were it not for this work, the supply of food fish would soon vanish, for even the tremendous supply of the ocean would not hold out against the immense drains that the fishing industry puts upon it. What happens in inland waters is known by everybody. The numerous streams about Duluth that used to contain brook trout are evidences enough. In many of the near-by streams the supply has been kept up partially by planting, and in many of them plantings of recent years will yield good fishing in a few years.

This work goes hand in hand with the game laws of the various states in preserving the supply of fish, and without them fishing as a means of livelihood and as a sport would be very short-lived.

The government keeps five of these fish cars in commission. They have no particular territory, but are likely to be sent anywhere in the Union. Mr. Johnson's car has been here for two months, and while it is purely conjecture, it is expected to go to Iowa to handle bass by shortly.

The fry handled by these cars is taken from the nearest fish hatchery, and its work is simply that of distribution. All of the fry distributed during the two months have come from the United States fish hatchery at Lester Park. The eggs are gathered from streams and ponds and carefully taken to the hatchery, where they are hatched out and raised until they are large enough to be sent out to be planted. Then the fish car comes along and distributes them.

During his stay here Mr. Johnson has distributed 15,000,000 whitefish, 10,000,000 lake trout, 4,000,000 pike-perch, as the fish commission designates them, or wall-eye, wall-eyed pike or pike, as the anglers more or less incorrectly term them; 100,000 brook trout and 100,000 steelhead trout.

The brook trout have been mostly issued to applicants, who have done their own planting. They are usually deposited near the headwaters of the streams, where the fish go to spawn. None of these trout fry have gone to the north shore, but all have been planted in Northern Wisconsin and Northern Michigan, as far west as Thief River Falls. At Nickerson, Pine county, a few rainbow trout as well as brook trout were planted.

The large trout and whitefish, of course, went into Lake Superior, about Isle Royale and on the south shore between Ontonagon and Marquette.

Mr. Johnson, while engaged in planting these loke fish, made some inquiries among the fishermen as to the catch, and found that around Isle Royale it was better than it had been for years. On the south shore it is holding its own. A couple of years ago the catch fell off so that there was talk of the fish industry of Lake Superior being on the decline, but the revival this year shows that this is a mistake.

The whitefish and lake trout are taken to the spawning grounds, and there the cans are dumped into the lake. Care has to be taken to get the cans as close to the water as possible, to avoid concussion, which is exceedingly bad for the little fish. In the stage of life in which they are when they are planted, each of them has a little sac under his gills, from which they must get nourishment until they grow big enough to hustle for themselves. If they are dropped into the water from too great a distance the concussion bursts these delicate sacs, and that is the end of young Mr. Fish.

The car can be used as a hatchery as well as for distribution, but this is seldom done. In the center of the car are a number of wide lockers in which the fry are kept. They are put in 10-gallon cans, not unlike a milk can, and fresh water is constantly supplied through a system of rubber tubing. At one end of the car is a little engine room, which works the air pump. When the car is used as a hatchery there is also a water pump, worked by the same engine, which keeps the water in circulation.

The water in the tanks and cans is kept at about the natural temperature; that is, the temperature at which the water ought to be in which the fish expects to live when it leaves this government nursery and starts out in life on its own hook. The temperature is maintained by the use of ice when necessary.

The four other cars are all now engaged in planting shad fry in the East. A little later some of them will go into trout work, and later still probably all five will be engaged in planting black bass. Much important work is done along the sea shore. The government last year planted about 400,000,000 cod fry along the Massachusetts Coast, thus doing a great work in keeping up the fisheries there. The catch of lobsters has fallen off 70 per cent in ten years, but since the government began planting them there has been an increase, and it has been much better during the past two or three years.

A POLITICIAN'S DILEMMA

By Howard Ordway Hilton.

(Copyright, 1903, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

In a room near the roof of the big hotel of the capital city of a prosperous state of the imperial Middle West sat the "Big Four" of the dominant party. Down in the rotunda and headquarters of the candidates the delegates who imagined the destiny of the party rested in their hands jostled one another.

It was the night before the assembled wisdom of the party was to meet in convention, nominate a state ticket and adopt a platform breathing a spirit of exalted civic pride and lofty patriotism.

The "Big Four" had completed the program for the following day with the sole exception of naming the head of the ticket. Trusted lieutenants from every part of the state had reported and the secluded leaders knew they could nominate for governor any one of the half-dozen candidates or could have an apparent stampede for a dark horse. None of the candidates was satisfactory to the "Big Four."

"Why not go outside of them?" said one of the quartette. "We can take Bob Hawley and pass the word quietly for him to be named on the third ballot, say. He's a farmer and a stockman and his section of the state isn't provided for in the makeup of the ticket outside of governor."

"There's only one objection to him that I can see," said another of the quartet. "He's a confirmed bachelor. A lot of people, the women in particular, don't take kindly to bachelors for office. I don't believe it would do to have that fine new executive mansion without a mistress for a whole term. A lot of influential people like to be entertained in the executive mansion and it helps the party to have them entertained there. If Bob would promise to marry before inauguration I would be for him."

"Let's send for him and see what he's got to say," said his advocate, and accordingly the stockman was sent for. He was surprised when told that there was a desire to have him named as a "compromise candidate," but greater still was his surprise when told that the desire was conditional upon his choosing a wife before he would be inaugurated if he were elected, which was considered to be certain. The "Big Four" did not know what recollections the talk of marriage aroused in Hawley. Had anyone told him before he came to the capital that he could be the next guvernor of his state if he would promise to marry he would have scoffed at the proposition, but seated in the early morning hours with the all-powerful leaders dangling the honor before his eyes, Hawley promised that if nominated and elected he would wed before inauguration day. Incidentally, of course, he promised to stand by the "organization" in matters of patronage and legislation.

In the crowded convention hall the next day the chairman sounded what was called "the keynote of the campaign," a preacher who wanted to be chaplain of the state senate prayed with a dash of partisanship which was greeted with applause from the delegates, a platform "pointing with pride" was adopted and then came the nominations. The first and second ballots were taken for Hawley. There was a ripple of applause which increased in volume when another county declared for Hawley. The "organization" delegates fell into line, and many who had not been included in the "organization" column heard the roll of the "band wagon," and there was a scramble for it. Long before the roll-call was concluded Hawley was nominated in what appeared to be a spontaneous rush to recognize a great and good man.

Hawley made a spirited campaign and was elected by what the party organs declared to be "an old-fashioned majority." But there were times during the campaign when he felt that he would find consolation in defeat. Those times were when he thought of his promise to the "Big Four"—not his promise to stand by the "organization," but his promise to marry. He believed he had had his romance ten years before. That was shortly after his college days in the East. After he was graduated he went West and the college engagement ended as nearly all college engagements do by being broken in about the regulation length of time. It was college gossip that she broke the engagement, and this was corroborated in the minds of friends of both when she married, while he retired to a somewhat hermit-like life upon a ranch. He had taken the most solemn vows of bachelorhood and now he found his promise to marry before inauguration day confronting him.

He cursed the night he gave the promise to marry and he cursed the "Big Four" as well. The latter he was compelled to meet quite often, for frequent conferences were necessary to decide upon the patronage, for although not yet governor he was called upon to promise the places so that the "organization" could organize the legislature. One day in a conference one of the "Big Four" said rather carelessly: "By the way, have you selected the mistress of the executive mansion yet, Hawley?"

"No, I haven't," replied Hawley. "Just let the organization pick out some one, and I'll marry her."

The newspapers said that the governor-elect had gone south to be free from the place-hunters while he was preparing his message to the legislature. He had gone to a watering place and he fervently wished that he did not have to go back to his state and to the "organization" and to his promise. Strolling about the grounds of the hotel upon the evening of his arrival he heard a feminine voice behind him call: "Oh, Helen, we can go to take that drive over the hills tomorrow, after all. Some of Mr. Seaman's friends, who have just come from the city, say he intends to surprise us by coming tonight."

"Helen" was the name in Hawley's mind just as the voice called. It had been in his mind a great many times since he had made the promise. And "Seaman." He had hated that name so much that he had sworn he would never go upon a sea-going vessel or even look upon salt water. That was the name which she had taken instead of Hawley. He turned and there stood Helen, the Helen of his thoughts, gazing at him with a surprised stare upon her face. The one who had called to her had disappeared after telling her of the coming of Mr. Seaman.

Tall and willowy, her hair as black and soft as ever, with her Diana-like face, she looked more beautiful to Hawley than she did even in the old college days.

In the rush of emotions long pent-up he forgot her marriage. He had loved her in the old days, but he felt that moment as if he had never known the meaning of love before. And then, thinking of her marriage, he felt like a thief. And she—well, she was so bewildered that while she managed to bow, as did he, too, she hardly knew what to say, and so she said the very thing of all others that Hawley would not have had her say. I congratulate you upon your election as governor," she said. "You see I read the papers," she said, "You see I read the papers." The words made him think of his promise. As she "read the papers" she could not but know of it.

Then they stood there each painfully embarrassed. Hawley perhaps the more so of the two. The thoughts of both went back to that night when the story of their love had been told on the college campus under the trees, while the moonbeams danced with the leaves overhead. The embarrassment of the moment was ended by the voice that had called Helen before, again calling from the hotel that Mr. Seaman had come and so, excusing herself in a confused sort of way, and he mumbling, he hardly knew what, they separated.

That night he walked the floor of his room for several hours and tossed about on his bed for several more. Of course he would leave at once. He arose early in the morning determined upon slipping away unnoticed. Those who were going to go on the drive over the hills were also moving about. Helen was standing on the broad piazza of the hotel when Hawley stepped out to get a breath of the fresh morning air and to see the morning sun gild the hilltops. He felt that it would be ungracious not to say good-by and so stepping to her side he told her of his intention to return to his state at once.

"Why, Mr. Hawley," said she, "we had just arranged to have you go with our party if you would accept the invitation. Mr. Seaman just sent a card up to your room not knowing that you had left it."

"Mr. Seaman." Again that name. "Helen—Mrs. Seaman"—he said, "you must know that it would be painful for me to remain here longer."

"Very well," said she in a voice so low he could barely hear it.

"You must know that I can not bear to see Mr. Seaman," he burst forth almost unconscious of his words.

"I was not aware of there being any without resin's husband," said she coldly.

"Your cousin's husband?" said he inquiringly, and he felt his head swimming in confusion.

"Yes, she spoke of him last night. Don't you remember when you turned around as she called. We married cousins, you know."

"But your husband?" said he, hesitatingly.

"Mr. Seaman died five years ago, said she softly.

LUMBER IS QUIET

Market Experiencing the Slowest Period of Present Season.

Nevertheless Manufacturers Show No Uneasiness Over Price.

The local lumber market is experiencing the quietest period thus far felt this season. Practically no sales have been made during the past few days, outside of the car trade of a few of the manufacturers, and there have been few buyers here from the outside markets. Labor troubles in the building trades of the East still keep the Eastern market very dull, and owners of stocks on the docks here are delaying the shipping as much as possible to keep from overstocking. This has brought about a sluggish movement of lumber down the lakes for the past few weeks, the total amount moved falling several million feet below the total carried down during the same time a year ago.

The slow movement of lumber for the vessel trade has had the tendency to hold the carrying rate down, the vessel owners realizing that the situation does not warrant an advance. At the same time it is conceded that they cannot well afford to carry lumber at a lower rate, considering the higher cost of labor and of the handling of lumber.

In spite of present conditions, manufacturers of Northern white pine lumber are not worrying over the fact that the sales are falling below the average for this time of the season. A strong feeling permeates the whole Northwestern market, and the manufacturers express themselves in a waiting attitude, feeling confident that the scale will turn before many weeks.

The lumbermen have been watching with a great deal of interest the crop reports from the Southwestern and various parts of the Northwestern states, and in case the season is a bad one in general for the farmers, preparations are likely to be made to hold up the market. The reports have shown too much rain in Iowa and South Dakota, and continued wet weather means the partial or entire ruin of the crops there. Heavy floods in Kansas and Nebraskn are expected to cause temporary hard times in those sections.

While sales are slow, there is a good inquiry for the better grades of lumber. The tendency for the past few years, it is said, has been to lower the grade, and now what is termed good lumber has reached a point where the buyers cannot see the value of the stock in the prices asked. This is said to be particularly true of what is termed No. 2 and 3 shop, which grades are a little off in price.

The demand for Norway pine lumber is said to be greater than the supply this season, and its prices are being maintained firmly. The Edward Hines Lumber company is the largest handler of this lumber in the Northwest, but it is claimed that the company could not now supply 200,000 feet of Norway without a long wait.

The demand for lath and shingles is not so attractive as a few weeks ago, but the prices have not been changed. Box lumber prices remain firm.

INVASION OF MOSQUITOES

Little Pests Swoop Down on the City In Swarms.

Duluth experienced another invasion of wild beasts from the forests Saturday and Sunday.

Bears have frequently visited the city of late years, moose and deer have often been seen within the city limits, and a few thick-headed porcupines have blundered into town.

The animals that came in yesterday and the day before were far more fierce and voracious than any of these, and they committed numberless depredations through the city, but particularly in the suburbs and outskirts.

They were mosquitoes, from the hordes that infest the woods just now. In the suburbs they were exceptionally thick, and last night they came into the residence districts of the city proper and spoiled the pleasure of sitting out on the veranda or taking walks in the mild and ineffable evening air.

They searched out the meshes of thin summer wear and open-work stockings and bit viciously. There were enough of them in the East End to make it decidedly unpleasant to be out of doors, or to be indoors if the landlord had been careless and had not yet provided the screens.

Every report from the country is that there has not been in years a mosquito season so fierce as this. Fishing is made almost impossible by the pests, and the man that ventures out on a trout stream now is venturesome indeed and careless of discomforts, for the woods are alive with them.

An unpleasant feature of this is that there has seldom been such good trout fishing as there has been during the past four or five days, just when the first dry weather was bringing out the mosquitoes. Such catches as have been made in the near-by streams have seldom been equalled. Almost every fishing party has been successful, but many of the fishermen on their return have had to run the gauntlet of smallpox quarantines, their faces looking suspiciously as though they were afflicted with that disease.

The pests are bothersome not only on trout streams, but on county roads and lakes. People that have cottages on Pike and other lakes in this vicinity who went out over Sunday say the mosquitoes gave them the time of their lives, and they are not going out again until the mosquito season is over.

It is very seldom that mosquitoes get so bad that they get into town and bother urban residents, but they did it Saturday and Sunday.

What Is a Man to Do?

To the Editor of The Herald:

In your issue of June 2 Mr. Hutchinson informs us that it is a very easy matter to tell what a man is to do. His communication is rather brief, indeed, to cover much ground, but as far as he goes I am happy to be able to agree with him as to some principles he points out, but I must beg to differ with him in regard to some of his statements of fact. I will take up but one of these statements as being the only one of real importance, namely, that it is not necessary for a man to belong to a union or to see a delegate in order to find work in Duluth today. I suppose there are some places where labor is not organized, but the only two places I know of (I do not say there are not others), are the rock pile and city work on the streets. One union man told me that unionism would compel me to wear a "white suit" before long, and I begin to think he was right. Labor in Duluth, generally, is organized. A man who is not a union member may get work occasionally, but as soon as the delegate can find a man to take his place the employer must discharge him. He may be sober and industrious and a man of family, and the other man may happen to be single and a frequenter of saloons, but that makes no difference he has got to go. Now, I do not believe that it is a law of the land that gives a union man more or greater rights than those enjoyed by other men. I do not believe that I have any more right to compel a man to join my union before he can get work than I have to compel him to join my church before he can get a job. A man worships, I suppose, because he wants to save his soul; he works because he must do so in order to keep body and soul together; and seeing that it is work or go hungry it must be unlawful for one man to hinder his fellow man in any way from earning a livelihood. The divine edict reads, work or starve; but this has been twisted into, join my union or starve.

Mr. Hutchinson says he is a law-abiding citizen. Very good. Does he know of a law of this United States, or of any of these states united which requires a man to join anything before he may work? It must be admitted that two men, or two hundred men, or two thousand men may meet and form themselves into a company, co-partnership or corporation, and call themselves a union. After thus giving themselves a legal existence, they may contract through their officers with one or more companies to perform a certain work during a certain time for a certain consideration; and it may be stipulated in the contract that the work is to be done by members of the union only. Then if the employer hires an outside man without the consent of the union his discharge may not only be demanded by the union, but it may sue the employer for breach of contract. Then a man would have a right to tell his neighbor to "keep off" his job, and the courts uphold him.

Or, again, it is admitted that if the two thousand men do not choose to give themselves this legal collective existence, they are still at liberty to use their legal individual existence which each citizen always possesses. They may, each for himself, contract with an employer to do his work as before. In this case also I may tell my neighbor to "keep off my job," and if the employer hires an outsider, his discharge may be demanded, and suit for breach of contract may be begun, but only by the man whose place the outsider has taken. He is the contract that has been violated. The 1999 other men have no voice here, but must keep right on fulfilling their obligation. This is law-abiding unionism.

But for the two thousand men to meet and form an oath-bound league and agree among themselves to compel a certain employer to deal with them exclusively in the hiring of men, taking away from him the right to object to this man or that, or the discharge this man or that, even for cause; to prevent the employer from considering applications for work from men outside of the union; that if a man should offend the union he shall not be permitted to work, but must be discharged even though a legal contract exists, and the offender shall not be permitted to work for any other employer in the same trade; to refuse admission to additional applicants when, or if the union is considered full; or to refuse admission of this or that man without feeling called upon to give a reason; to expel a member because he happens to have a relative who belongs to the state militia; this is not law abiding unionism; it is not charity between man and man. There are many unions throughout the country composed of skilled and intelligent men, whose conduct no one can object to; and there are many men in most other unions who are instinctively opposed to a spirit of violence and selfishness. When these conservative elements come down with both feet unionism will have carried the day.

"But," says the union man, "you are all talking through your hat. We are at war with capital, and everything is fair in war."

This remark brings me to a pause. I have no inclination to discuss this phase of the subject. I will make only one observation. Upon turning towards the capitalist and looking off beyond him, I would not be honest if I did not admit that he has serious shortcomings of his own to answer for, and the politician, the agitator and the yellow journal are taking good care that the working man does not lose sight of these shortcomings.

I therefore acknowledge myself, not conquered, but disarmed. Mr. Union Man, bring on your aloes and the white suit.

THE STAGE

The opening of the summer opera season by the Northwestern Opera company at the Lyceum takes place tonight, when a complete production of Millocker's "The Black Hussar" will be given. It will be a true operatic performance, and the rare vocal selections of the delightful old opera will be rendered to the taste of the most fastidious of the spectators.

The comedians have developed a great deal of fun that is outside the strict version of the piece, and Messrs. Felch, Drew and Dan Young will undoubtedly score a big hit. Miss Hayden, in an especial song number, with some novel effects, will be another feature, aside from the book and score of the opera, though the original is quite as entertaining a selection as there is in modern opera.

The new orchestral pieces, which were brought on to complete the instrumental part of the organization, arrived, completing this branch under the direction of Mr. Hoffman.

A "bargain" matinee will be held Wednesday afternoon, when the prices will be reduced, and this matinee will be made a feature of the opera season.

• • •

At the Metropolitan this evening "Fra Diavolo" will be sung by the Wilburs. Miss Hattie Richardson will sing "Zerlina," and Gus Vaughan will appear in the role of "Fra Diavolo." It will hold the boards for three nights and the Wednesday matinee. Arthru C. Pell, recently released by Mrs. Leslie Carter for the season, will take charge of the orchestra.

• • •

"Ole Olson" has not yet lost its attraction for theater-goers, and Saturday evening at the Lyceum the performance was attended by a large audience. The company was a good one and the play gave satisfaction. The Swedish Ladies' quartet was fine and was freely applauded, and the song and dance by Ben Hendricks, who appeared in the role of Ole, was immense.

SHOT AND KILLED

Marshal McLaughlin of Mountain Iron Murdered By Sam Berg.

Drunken Miner's Yarn Causes Tragedy—Berg Badly Wounded.

Marshal M. J. McLaughlin, of Mountain Iron, killed, and Simon Rappwing, alias Sam Berg, dangerously and perhaps fatally wounded.

Such is the result of a shooting affray at Mountain Iron Saturday evening, when the marshal attempted to place Berg and a Norwegian companion under arrest for the alleged hold-up of an Italian miner. Berg is now lying at St. Luke's hospital, in this city, closely guarded, but his chances of recovery are not very good.

It is claimed that the hold-up story told by the drunken miner was a fake, that he told it to account for sundry bruises he received in a brawl. When he told his story to Marshal McLaughlin, that officer immediately started after suspects whom the miner described. He stopped Berg and Frank Emerson, a companion. Berg claims that the officer took him by the collar and demanded the stolen money, whereupon Emerson started to run, the marshal firing several shots in his direction. Berg claims that one of the shots went close to his head and that he was afraid that he would be killed, so he drew a gun and fired at McLaughlin at close range, the bullet striking the officer in the breast.

McLaughlin turned his revolver on Berg and shot him a little above the heart. A second bullet from Berg's revolver struck the officer in the forehead and he dropped dead. During the shooting Emerson got away, and up to this morning had not been apprehended.

After the shooting Berg crawled on his hands and knees to a nearby swamp and finally reached a spring, where he drank some water. This refreshed him and he managed to make his way into Mountain Iron, where he gave himself up to the night watchman, and was turned over to the authorities, who brought him to Duluth.

Dr. Graham operated on Berg last evening and took the bullet out of his back. At the hospital this morning it was reported that the wounded man was resting quietly, and he seemed a little better than last night. There is said to be serious danger of pneumonia setting in, due to the wound in the lung and the exposure after he was shot.

Excitement ran high in Mountain Iron, directly following the shooting, and there were threats of a lynching if the people caught the murderer of McLaughlin. Public feeling, however, has quited down since Berg has told his story and is so seriously wounded. Efforts are being made to locate Emerson, whom, it is claimed, had no reason for trying to escape from the officer when he had committed no crime.

Berg, the wounded man, is a laborer, about 21 years of age. He claims that he and Emerson were on their way down the Great Northern tracks from Buhl to Mountain Iron when stopped by Marshal McLaughlin.

Berg was in Duluth a short time ago and was employed on the docks by Knudsen & Eden. He claims that Emerson had two revolvers and gave him one of them before they left Hibbing. Berg says he has worked at Stanley, Wis., Chippewa Falls, and the Great Northern docks in Superior, and has never before been arrested. As reason for changing his name from Rappwing to Berg was that the latter name is easier to pronounce.

Marshal McLaughlin, the dead officer, was a member of the Modern Woodmen at Virginia, and was insured for $2000 in the order.

Berg was brought down from Mountain Iron by Sheriff Butchart and Deputy Sheriff Bates. County Attorney McClintock accompanied the officers on their range trip to investigate the facts connected with the shooting.

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

Mrs. Molineux Causes Surprise By Renting Sioux Falls House.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Sioux Falls—Greatly to the surprise of those who have anticipated that Mrs. Roland B. Molineux would depart from Sioux Falls in a few weeks, freed from her matrimonial bonds, she has rented a dwelling house in this city, and apparently intends to continue her residence here for an indefinite period. It is said she paid the rent on the dwelling for two months in advance, and will without delay give up her quarters in the hotel where she has resided since coming to Sioux Falls last November, and remove her effects to the newly rented dwelling, which is situated only three blocks west of the Cataract hotel, near the dividing line between the business and residence sections of the city.

Just what reason actuated Mrs. Molineux to make this move at this particular time is a subject of conjecture, and is interpretated in various ways. One theory is that under recent decisions of the United States supreme court, a mere temporary residence does not give the courts of the state jurisdiction over residents of another, and that she feared her residence here could not be shown to have been established and maintained in good faith.

Vermillion—C. A. Sampson of the Waldorf is indignant at an attempt by temperance people of the city to secure evidence against him for supplying liquor to guests. A Sioux City man was in Vermillion this week as a "spotter," but failed completely. He would not divulge the name or names of those who engaged him to watch the Waldorf.

A telegram from Charles Jordan to his parents states that the flood at Topeka has swept away all his possessions and that the family barely escaped with their lives. Jordan was making money there and had lately purchased a nice home.

Aberdeen—George A. Young of Sisseton has been arrested and taken to Sioux Falls charged with having been a party to a scheme to defraud the government. The offense is said to have been committed at Fifield, Wis., in 1890, and consisted in reporting more stamps cancelled than passed through the postoffice. Young was deputy postmaster and presumably aware of what was being done by the postmaster.

Spearfish—An incident not down on the bills occurred at the normal hall during the class night ceremonies of the state normal school and for a few minutes it looked as if a panic would be precipitated in the closely packed hall. he graduating class presented a play on a stage that had been improvised, and at the close f the performance the juniors, who occupied front seats, near the footlights, according to preconceived plans, started a small fight on the seniors by flaunting a disparaging sign. In an instant that part of the house was in an uproar. The juniors gave the class yell, delivered through a megaphone. There was a lively scramble and a personal encounter between members of the two classes, which was beginning to get serious when it was quelled. The spectators were all on their feet, and it was feared a rush for the doors would take place, which would probably have resulted in injuries to many. The disturbance was allayed without casualty.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Fargo—Jennie Reuter, the 15-year-old girl who jumped her bonds and went to Barnesville to escape testifying against some friends on a burglary charge, is recovering from the injuries she received when she leaped from a train going at the rate of thirty miles an hour to escape from an officer who was returning her to Fargo. She is in Moorhead under treatment and still declines to return to this side. It is probable that requisition papers will have to be secured to get her across.

Adolph Levin has brought a peculiar suit here. He seeks to have his wife punished for malicious mischief. Levin asserts that he and his wife lived happily till it got to be a case of too much mother-in-law. They made it so hot for him he left home and recently his wife went to his store and jumped upon his wares, destroying them. He has had her arrested.

Pembina—Halvor Johnson, J. D. Lanchiler and F. Parault pleaded guilty to violating the prohibition law and were sentenced to ninety days in the county jail and $200 fine. There are three other "pig" cases for trial.

Grand Forks—The M. & N. elevator at Conway was struck by lightning and burned early Saturday morning. A woman standing near was shocked and rendered unconscious. The building had a capacity of 50,000 bushels and was empty and closed for the season. It will be rebuilt in time for the crop this fall.

J. W. Skinner, chemist at the Babcock cement mine, west of Hensel, committed suicide by shooting himself in the head with a revolver. He has been in poor health for some time and has been despondent. On Thursday he left his room and took his revolver with him, stating that he was going to shoot gophers. He failed to return, and the body was found today, half a mile from the mine, with a bullet hole in his head. His home was in Minneapolis.

Soo Contractor Seriously Poisoned Through His Cigar.

Sault Ste. Marie—While working on a sewer contract at a private residence, William Pringle, a well-known Soo contractor, was the victim of a singular occurrence that came near resulting fatally. He was smoking a cigar, and laid it on the line being on a nearby sill. A short time later he picked up the cigar and resumed his smoke. Soon he began to feel dizzy and sick and started for his home, which he just managed to reach before falling over and becoming unconscious. The doctor who responded to the call detected evidence of poisoning, and only after several hours' hard work was he able to save the patient, who was unconscious from 2 in the afternoon until 3 the next morning. Investigation developed that the sill on which the cigar had been laid was strewn with rough-on-rats, and enough of the poison had been swallowed by Pringle to kill him but for the work of the physician.

At the present rate of progress the big carbide plant under construction at the Soo will go into commission about Aug. 1. It will be the largest of its kind in the world, exceeding the monster carbide works at Niagara Falls. It is located on the water power canal, which will use between 20,000 and 30,000-horse power and give employment to 350 skilled workmen. Chicago and New York capitalists are interested in the company, among them C. K. Billings, who recently caused much talk by giving a banquet on horseback to several of his wealthy friends at New York.

Menominee—Henry Beatty, Chester Mapes and Roy Tupper, well-known young fishermen who reside along the bay shore north of Menominee, had a narrow escape from death the other night. They were driving to town, and when near the St. Paul tracks saw a train coming. Whipping up the horse, they attempted to get across in front of the engine and just barely succeeded. The engine struck the rear wheels of the buggy and smashed them. The occupants were thrown out on the ground, but were uninjured.

Herman—That the new settlement of Herman, eight miles south of L'Anse, Baraga county, is composed of thrifty people is attested by the fact that over two tons of fence wire has been shipped to the people of that community this spring. The settlers thereabouts are transforming the wilderness into a fine farming country. A school house will be built shortly, in readiness for occupancy for the fall term of school.

Escanaba—Rev. F. F. W. Greene, of Escanaba, has added a fine sailing yacht to Escanaba's fleet of boats. It is 35 feet long, with 10-foot beam, and will carry 25 persons. Mr. Greene purchased the craft at Manitowoc and sailed it to Escanaba.

Manistique—The business men of Manistique have organized an association with the object of promoting the davancement of the city. A campaign for new industries will be launched, and some attention may be paid to politics from a non-partisan standpoint with a view to electing only good men to office.

DIFFER IN VIEWS

Hard to Get Unanimous Decision From Supreme Court Judges.

Sharp Contrasts of Opinions on the Great Questions.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, June 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The history of the supreme court is a history of strong antagonisms. In the hundred years or more of the supreme court the very great questions which have come before the final tribunal of the people for adjudication sharp contrasts have been drawn by the majority and the minority of that court. Constituted as the present supreme court of the United States is, it is hard to get a unanimous opinion from that august body. The members of the court differ upon the construction of law as lawyers differ. The rule of the majority, however, which is a well-accepted principle in our form of government, obtains in the supreme court, and yet sometimes one is almost led to believe, with Blacsktone, who said "that a united minority very frequently gives voice to the majority of the future." By a vote of five to four the supreme court, in an opinion by Justice Brown, held on last Monday that the resolution of congress of 1898, annexing the Hawaiian islands, did not carry with it the protection of the constitution. This decision, which is on all fours with former decisions of the present supreme court affecting territory recently acquired by purchase or otherwise, grew out of a case brought before that body on appeal from the territory of Hawaii vs. Osaki Mankichi, a Japanese who was convicted of manslaughter and sentenced to twenty years' imprisonment in Hawaii under the laws of the old Hawaiian republic. The conviction of Mankichi took place between the date of the adoption of the congressional resolution of annexation of 1898 and 1900, the date of the act creating the territory of Hawaii, and Mankichi was found guilty without the action of a grand jury, and by a majority vote of the trial jury. The attorneys for the Japanese, after trying the law points of the case through the several courts, came before the supreme court of the United States with one point in view, and that was that Mankichi had not been properly indicted by the grand jury provided under the common law, which the attorneys for the Japanese contended extended over the islands at the time of their being taken in as part of the territory of the United States. The court in its opinion could not agree with the contention set up by the attorneys for Mankichi that the act which made Hawaii a territory of the United States interfered with the practice that existed before the resolution of congress was adopted. The court, in its opinion as pronounced by Justice Brown, held that the first object of the resolution was to accept the cession of the islands; second, to abolish all existing treaties, and third, to continue the existing laws and customs regulations. The court then proceeded to announce afresh that the constitution does not and cannot extend by force and vigor to territory acquired by the United States, but becomes operative in such territory only through the dictum of congress. The decision in so many words means that mere annexation of territory does not clothe the inhabitants of such territory with all the rights and privileges conferred by the constitution on citizens of the United States, and in effect emphasizes the theory of constitutional construction which the supreme court laid down two years ago when the question of whether the constitution follows the flag came before it for final adjudication. It is notable that both the new justices, Justice Holmes and Justice Day, ranged themselves with the majority, while the four dissenters, Justices Fuller, Harlan, Brewer and Peckham, clung tenaciously to the idea that the constitution ex proprio vigore followed the flag. The contrasts, therefore, between the majority and minority members of the court are as sharp today as they were in the very celebrated Downs case, and the American people, which is their prerogative, have a right to choose between the very close questions which the case above referred to has again brought directly to the attention of the republic.

Much complaint has lately been expressed by the grain importers of Havre concerning the condition in which American corn shipped from Galveston and New Orleans has been received at the French port. According to our consul at Havre, A. M. Thackara, in every cargo received since the season opened at that port there has been unusual damage from heating and fermentation. As corn is one of the largest exports of the United States it seems as if serious consideration should be given Mr. Thackaray's report of the state department, which has recently been made public. The American consul at Havre states, in a letter to Secsul at Havre states, in a letter to Secretary Hay, that he has recently received from one of the largest local dealers in American grain a letter indicative of the way in which receivers of American corn generally think about the failure of steamship companies or exporters to protect one of our biggest commodities in transit. Mr. Thackara makes use of the letter above referred to in his communication to the state department, and it is as follows:

"In the United States this year the grain does not appear to have been loaded in as dry a condition as usual, which would explain a slight heating of the corn. Some of the steamers, however, have discharged cargoes which were greatly heated, which, in our opinion, was owing to faulty transportation. Sometimes the corn is loaded in the bottom of the holds, and bales of cotton are stowed immediately on top, thus preventign any aeration. Besides, very often no measures are taken to separate the grain from close contact with the engine and boiler room bulkheads. There should be wooden partitions with sufficient air spaces between to insure ventilation and to prevent the heat of the boiler and engine rooms being communicated to the cargo. In some of the steamers the steam pipes for the steering gear pass through the shaft alleys. On such steamers the corn should not be stowed in the after holds. It has been found, when the same kind of grain has been loaded in the different parts of a steamer, that in the forward holds the grain was sound, or nearly so, while in the afterholds it was very much damaged. We also know that in some instances the corn was loaded in wet weather and cotton that had been country damaged by water, either in transit or on the quays at New Orleans, was stowed on top of the corn without any durnage. This in itself would cause the corn to become greatly heated."

This is a subject of vital interest to the great corn producing states of the Union, and it would seem as if more care should be taken by farmers and warehouse men in protecting their corn from dampness than they have heretofore shown. The average annual importations of foreign corn into France, according to our consul at Havre, for the past three years, were 14,000,000 bushels, of which the Argentine Republic furnished an annual average of 4,250,000 bushels, Roumania 3,000,000 bushels and the United States 2,800,000 bushels. Undoubtedly if American corn could be received in better condition than it is at present received at French ports, the quantity received from the United States would be considerably increased. When one considers that of the enormous crops of grain which are annually harvested in the United States less than 10 per cent is sent abroad, it would seem advisable for our American farmers, grain dealers, grain shippers, etc., to seek other foreign outlets for the sale of their grain, and to materially improve those which already exist. Gradually the use of corn is being extended into foreign lands. Heretofore the people of the old world have looked upon corn as only fit for animal consumption, but with a pertinacity due to our people we have been educating the world to a higher use of this cereal, with the result that there is constantly an enlarging demand for our great American staple. In view of the fact that America is now the creditor nation of the world, so far as finance goes, and is rapidly becoming the great producing nation of the world so far as necessaries go, it would seem to be the part of wisdom on the part of the farmers of the West to see to it that the corn shipped from the Southern ports referred to above should be free of everything that would hurt its acceptance abroad. Considering the shorter ocean voyage that is necessary to land American corn in European ports, as compared with that of its formidable Argentine competitor, there is no doubt but that the foreign sales of American corn could be increased if special attention were paid to the grain being in good shipping condition when loaded, and export companies seeing to it that all necessary precautions were taken by the ocean transportation companies to reduce the damage from heating to a minimum.

PROCLAMATION.

To the Citizens of Duluth:

The 14th day of June, 1777, being the date on which Congress made its first enactment defining the "Flag of our Country," and as after a lapse of one hundred and twenty-six years the changes have added only glory to that symbol of Liberty, Enlightenment and Progress, it is well that we should fitly celebrate the anniversary of its official birth.

As the 14th of June falls on Sunday, Monday the 15th is designated as the date, and all citizens are hereby requested to observe it with such ceremonial as circumstances will suggest and the taste of the communities dictate. Let the homes and the places of business where there are flag staffs be the centers of a gathering of neighbors and friends, or employees, as the case may be, and the Flag of the Free flung out to the breeze, while at each school house a sufficient number may congregate and show to young and old the respect and veneration in which the starry emblem of an united people is held.

It is ordered that on each municipal building the flag be raised at 9:30 a. m. with such appropriate services as the different custodians may agree on.

Given under my hand and the seal of the City of Duluth, at the City Hall, in the City of Duluth, this 6th day of June, 1903.

T. W. HUGO,
Mayor.

THE GROWTH OF RECIPROCITY.

The protective tariff plan proposed by the British colonial secretary, Joseph Chamberlain, according to which free trade would be retained between Great Britain and her colonies while a tariff would be imposed on imports from foreign countries, appears to have created quite a stir in the high-protection camp in this country. It makes quite a difference "whose ox is gored," and if the British and colonial markets should be practically shut to American grain and manufactures, the result might be serious not only for the producers of this country, but in a political sense, for the party now in power. Hence there has been awakened in many quarters heretofore lukewarm or even opposed to reciprocity with Canada an interest in the subject that may hasten negotiations with the Dominion for a reciprocal trade treaty.

The action of the National Millers' association, in convention at Detroit last week, urging a policy of national reciprocity and the negotiation of new treaties with France, Germany, England and other European countries is another indication. Hanna and the other "standpatters" who framed the Ohio platform in opposition to any changes in the tariff and expressing doubt on the advisability of reciprocity do not represent the views of the American people, but only a few beneficiaries of the high tariff, who are enriching themselves at the expense of the consumers in this country. The Ohio platform, however, is not an indication of what the Republican national convention may decide to be the party's policy. In 1896, the Ohio Republican state platform straddled the money question and the Ohio delegation went to St. Louis undecided whether to declare for the single gold standard or for bimetallism. Leaders from other states made the platform, and the Ohio delegation fell in line. History may repeat itself in 1904, and the Ohio platform of this year on the tariff and reciprocity questions may not reflect the tariff plank of the national convention next year.

The sentiment in favor of reciprocity is still growing and if it continues to increase in strength during the coming year as rapidly as during the past twelve months, neither Hanna nor Aldrich nor the other high-tariff priests will be able to prevent congress from bowing to the popular demand for reciprocal treaties.

EXCLUDING IMPURE PRODUCTS.

At last the departments at Washington have acted, and by July many foreign products containing injurious matter will be excluded from the United States. While this is more or less of a retaliatory measure against Germany and other countries for excluding American beef, flour and other products, it will prove of great benefit to the people in preserving health. By July 1 the consular and customs machinery of this government will have been so adjusted as to keep out of the country all German food products that contain coloring material, preservatives and other matter harmful to health.

Of course, the law is not intended to strike back at Germany exclusively, but it will serve as a bar against the flooding of this country with impure food products of all kinds. Germany will be harder hit than any other country, for it is known to our government chemists that great quantities of sausages, wines, beers, dyes and other products containing coloring matter and preservatives deleterious to health have been imported from there into the United States for many years. After July 1 these are all to be excluded, together with other food preparations that may be found to be improperly packed, labeled and marked. The department of agriculture officials have drafted a form of certificate to be filled out by every foreigner sending food imports to the United States. This requires the shipper to swear that his goods contain no added substance injurious to health; that it is not falsely labeled or marked, and that it contains no coloring matter or preservative and is not of a character the sale of which is prohibited or restricted in the country from which it is exported or was grown. A certificate of this kind is to be attached to the invoice that goes to the United States consul, or commercial agent, at the port from which the goods are shipped. Instructions are to be sent at once to each United States consul regarding the methods to be followed in carrying out the new law. In addition, copies of the certificate which shippers are to fill out are to be distributed among the consuls.

This certainly is a move in the right direction. The United States has been imposed upon long and shamefully and the time for retaliation is at hand. Let the law enacted by the last congress be enforced to the letter. It will meet with the approval of the people.

Ex-Secretary of the Navy Long was quoted the other day as thanking God that he was not rich. But what does Mr. Long call rich? It is generally understood that he is in a position to express gratitude that he is not in danger of poverty.

George Gould evidently does not read the New York papers. He told an interviewer a few days ago, that it was news to him that he had made a peace treaty with the Pennsylvania road.

Tulloch returns to the attack with a budget of charges, but Perry Heath will simply smile. His skin is not thin.

With the new army rifle that sends a bullet more than four and one-half feet through white pine at a distance of fifty-three feet, there should be little trouble of getting rid of the Filipinos.

MANY COMMITTEE CHANGES.

It is stated with the assurance of authority that there will be many changes in the make-up of the committees of the house of representatives with the advent of Joseph Cannon as speaker. It is well known that he has no time for the Henderson outfit and proposes to give the younger men a chance to show their mettle in outlining a policy for the party in power. In the first place the committee on rules is to be reorganized. That is the most important committee in the organization of the house. Although the minority is represented on it, this committee is always controlled absolutely by the speaker. His right hand men are on it, and they decide what legislation shall be enacted, what bills shall have precedence on the floor, and, in general, map out the entire plan of legislative campaign. The speaker's direct representative on the floor is the second member of the committee on rules, and is the speaker's mouthpiece while the latter is in the chair.

During the Henderson regime Dalzell of Pennsylvania, and Grosvenor of Ohio, were the Republican representatives on that committee in addition to the speaker. Now the question is whether Cannon will remove these men and appoint members more to his liking. There are those who question the wisdom of getting rid of Dalzell and Grosvenor. While they are not men of the Cannon stripe and would never be picked out voluntarily by the latter as his representatives on the floor, to take them off the committee would be regarded something in the nature of an insult, and it would certainly be more than a slight. The only alternative open to Cannon is to keep Dalzell and Grosvenor on the rules committee and appoint two other Republicans to offset the Pennsylvanian and Ohioan. That would make a total of five Republicans and three Democrats in this committee and would enable Cannon to carry out any legislative policy that he might desire to have adopted.

The young Republican members of the Fifty-eighth congress will have more privileges and influence than kindergarten members have enjoyed in past sessions. This will be because Cannon believes in recognizing the young and well as the old members of the house in shaping legislation. There was intense bitterness against Henderson on the part of the young members of the two past congresses. The Iowa man had a fashion of ignoring the new comers and putting everything in the hands of a small coterie with Grosvenor and Dalzell at the head.

The reorganization of the committees of the house will, it is believed, extend beyond the rules committee, but the changes there are apt to be more sweeping than elsewhere because of the personal nature of these appointments. The ways and means committee will be overhauled more or less, principally because of the numerous vacancies that already exist. Three of the leading members of last year's committee will not be in the house next year. Hopkins of Illinois goes to the senate, as does Long of Kansas. Steele of Indiana was defeated for re-election. That many improvements will be made by Mr. Cannon is expected. A shake-up in the committees is likely to have good results.

LETTER CARRIERS' PAY.

While government employes are now greatly handicapped in securing legislation in their favor, by reason of the presidential order of last year forbidding any soliciting of favors whatever, the letter carriers are making plans to present their bill for an increase of pay to congress at the coming session. They firmly believe that the long deferred bill is worthy of passage and with Chairman Loud out of the way they are more confident of success. An argument will soon be presented to the postoffice department to show why the postmaster general should endorse the measure, something that has been refused for years. If they can get Postmaster General Payne's approval the carriers will go to work with a will to raise public sentiment in favor of the proposition. Petitions will be secured, urging congress to pass the bill. These petitions must, of necessity, be forwarded to Mr. Payne, who in turn will send them to the postoffice committee.

The carriers want the present law amended so as to create two new grades of pay—one of $1200 clerks in the large cities and another of $1000 clerks in cities of less than 75,000 inhabitants. The present maximum pay of carriers in large cities of $1000, and in smaller cities it is $850. The letter carriers are much interested in the subject of who is to succeed Mr. Loud as chairman of the postoffice committee. Were it not for his infirmities Mr. Ketcham of New York would get the place by the rule of seniority. George W. Smith of Illinois has been talked of for the position of chairman, as has also Representative Cromer of Indiana.

The carriers have repeatedly been disappointed when success seemed assured. The retirement of Loud and other changes have greatly encouraged them and they will work hard for success.

Who says that blood does not tell? Douglas MacArthur, who will graduate first in his class at West Point this month, is a son of Gen. Arthur MacArthur, and Ulysses S. Grant 3d, who will graduate second, is the third son of Brig. Gen. Fred Grant and grandson of the president.

I. Townsend Burden, Jr., the young millionaire, who has just got a $1200 position as deputy assistant corporation counsel in New York, says he doesn't want the position for the salary, but for the legal experience. But he will collect his salary every month.

The increased cost of labor and materials has caused many railroads to abandon improvement and new construction. Another case of "killing the goose that lays the golden eggs."

"Michael Finnegan, stand up," said the police magistrate in New York. "What is your real name?" "Ole Olesen of Veeskonsin," said Mike. And then he was promptly sent to the island.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

It would be a shame to tell who told it, because he told it so sincerely, and he was a party to the transaction. Besides none could tell it with the heart interest he had, when he narrated the story about himself, and a former Duluth railroad man, who is today away up, and who would have a stroke of paralysis if anyone mentioned the thing to him again.

But when the railroad men who returned from Houghton were at the hotels here yesterday morning, preparatory to returning to St. Paul, one official told the yarn. He also told it down at Houghton during the banquet, where it was given a big hand, and was figured one of the best things of the evening, excepting, perhaps, the monologue of "Larry" Kitchell's.

"It was when the interstate commerce commission first started in work," he said, "and they had an idea that some of the roads up in this country were not handling the immigration business the way it should be done, and wanted to look into it. So this man, myself and another were sent to Washington to appear and testify. We didn't know what the finish would be, and saw a jail sentence staring us in our faces, so when we got to Chicago we promptly and immediately reduced the visible supply of liquor in the Windy City.

"We should have left in the afternoon but were too busy and missed the train. After considerable searching we found that a train left on the Monon about 2 o'clock in the morning, so we decided to go on that. We still kept up the slaughter till about 11 o'clock, when the third member of the party skipped. We missed him after he had gone. It enraged us to think of his desertion, and when we finally got down to the train, we decided to teach him a lesson on that question. We got the number of his berth, lower 4, and worked up the scheme.

"Back into the smoking room and to the water tank we went, where we got that long, round slab of ice cut of the round water cooler. We got a towel and wrapped it all up in that, and stealthily made our way to lower 4.

"Our friend was asleep—and snoring.

"I believe I held the curtain, while my partner lifted the blankets and gently laid the toweled ice on the chest of the sleeping deserter. We had to hold our mouths shut to keep from explosive laughter, and stood there to watch the results.

"As we stood, with deep grin, there came a screech, a rocket and a bounce, and a man—a big, big man in a pink striped nightgown landed in the aisle.

"'What vor you are toing, it is?' he shouted.

"We took to our heels. It wasn't our man at all. We went up to the smoker in disorder and stayed there till morning.

"About 8 o'clock I was in the wash room, with my face and hands in the soap and water, when a heavy hand was laid on my shoulder.

"'You are dot fellar vot puts ice mit me,' said a cumbersome voice.

"I started to feel shaky, and told him he must be mistaken. He denied that and insisted that I was the man. I said a silent prayer and asked him to wait till I got the soap out of my eyes and I would talk to him. 'Hurry up,' he said.

"I didn't hurry, but I finished eventually. Then I told him I wasn't the man, but I knew something about the affair.

"He said he knew I did, and he did not want any monkey-doodle business.

"When the time came I thought I might as well make a clean breast of it, so I told him about our deserter, and what a reprehensible character he was and such an obnoxious person that he was entitled to such a treatment, and that it was an unfortunate mistake that we missed the berth.

"As I mentioned the name his face cleared. He said he had business with the man once and was treated shabbily, and he finally got to laughing about it.

"After full explanations which received some inspiration from his attitude, he reached over and shook hands and pulled out a flask of a very fine article, insisting that we pledge to friendship. As we left each other, he grasped my hand, almost snapping the bones and said in his good old German way:

"'By gosh, dot was a great choke on you fellers!'"

W. H. Lockwood, a hardware traveling man from New York, is registered at the Spalding. He is attending to business now, though a few years ago he was in the inventing business and gained a national reputation by one of his inventions, which was partly a joke with him and which has never been utilized.

It was about eight years ago, when the newspapers took it up and exploited the idea, and then it dropped. Mr. Lockwood had a scheme to do away with elevators in hotels. He mapped out and detailed a trolley car system for hotels, which would have tracks on the stairs. The idea was for a guest to step into the little car at the office when his room was assigned, and then the clerk would touch a biton or two and set the switches, so he would land at the door of his room.

He had an automatic system which would make it possible for a man assigned to 518 for instance, to get in the car with his baggage. The clerk would set the switch at the fifth floor and turn off the current at 518, as the car would stop in front of the door.

Nobody ever found out what benefits could be derived, and the scheme was never put into use. It gave Mr. Lockwood a great deal of prestige as an inventor, however, and he had a lot of fun out of it, and does still, occasionally.

Chicago News: Miles—How did De Jones get to be such a confirmed woman hater?

Mr. Dick—I saw something today that made my hair stand up on end.

Mrs. Dick—What was it?

Mr. Dick—A comb.

Boston Transcript: Coddles—Whenever I see you you are reading a novel. You don't mean to say you remember all of them?

Short—Dear me, no! It's because I don't remember them I like to read them.

Chicago Tribune: "Great divinities!" exclaimed the shade of Nero, watching the automobile race. "Could I have had a bunch of them what sights of royal carnage the arena would have seen!"

Philadelphia Press: Daughter—I'm so glad you haven't that horrid dyspepsia tonight father, dear.

Father—Yes. So good of you to take such an interest in your poor old father.

Daughter—I do hate to see you in a bad humor. By the way, I think George—er—that is, Mr. Timmid, will speak to you tonight.

Philadelphia Press: Tess—Why didn't you speak to her? She met you with a smile of reconciliation on her face.

Tess—Reconciled?

Washington Star: "So you have decided to get another physician."

"I have," answered Mrs. Cumrox. "The idea of his prescribing flaxseed tea and mustard plasters for people as rich as we are."

Yonkers Statesman: "What kind of breakfast food have you?" inquired the New Yorker in the Boston hotel.

"We have pumpkin, custard, apple and meringue pie," replied the waiter, carefully adjusting his glasses.

Washington Star: "Why don't you make a plain, straightforward statement about whether or not you mean to be a candidate?"

"What's the use?" answered the prudent politician. "Just at present the only thing that's keeping me before the public is the doubt on that question."

The Huckster Man.

At early dawn you wake to hear
The happy-hearted thrushes sing,
And, to the Land of Dreams, still near,
Contented, you lie listening.
But suddenly the startled air
Resounds with this distracting strain:
"Zmainticoj; o|a . cithsna p. *$!a—a pair!"
It is the huckster out again!

You wish that he would quicker pass,
As louder grows his lusty yell;
His wagon's filled with garden "sass,"
That, having bought, he needs must sell.
So, ever and anon, he shrieks:
"Mlanxzingsth! ;man!$3 amnexthzxw,
Zo-e-os!"
And, trained by hearing it for weeks,
You know he's got fresh strawberries.

He stops to greet the milkman, gay,
Who rattles past him, noisily,
Then goes his happy, howling way,
From ordinary troubles free.
His mouth's a megaphone, from which
There issue sounds that make one quail—
"Charriamenaotm. !c!2$$,$,lkaoitysxbzoavitch!"
(Translated: Cherries are for sale.)

Some day—some how—that huckster man
I know will choke or lose his voice,
Or else achieve the given span
Of life—and then I will rejoice!
Some day I'll lay a bunch of beets
Upon his breast, a tag there tied:

"Fighting Joe" Speaks.

Boston Herald: Gen. Joe Wheeler punctures that story about his having got the cold shoulder at the recent reunion of his Confederate comrades in arms down in New Orleans for having worn his blue uniform on that occasion. The fact is that Gen. Wheeler didn't wear his blue uniform, but arrayed himself in the ordinary garments of a civilian. So nobody will be compelled either to criticise Gen. Wheeler for lack of tact in wearing the blue on an occasion when gray was the fashion, or to denounce the Southern veterans for turning up their noses at nothing.

A ROSE OF THE OLD DOMINION

By Beaufort Norvell.

(Copyright, 1903, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

May time in Virginia the year of our Lord, 1776, with George in England ruling the colonies with a tyrant's hand, Fairfax in Virginia, still loyal to the king, and Washington camped just across the river, preparing for war, deadly war.

May-time in Virginia overhead the white moon flung her largess of silver through the newly-budding branches. Somewhere out in the evening stillness, a mocking-bird, drunk with the melody of spring, was singing his heart out. It was truly a white night, a night for love and fair dreams, and it came to the two who lingered 'neath the trees, in the old, dew-drenched, night-scented garden.

"My father gives a ball in honor of the British on the evening of the twentieth. The house will be crowded with them, but as dearly as I love to dance, and dearly as I love the gay music, it will be hard for me to conceal my loathing for these men," and Mistress Polly Wilburton tapped her foot impatiently on the ground, while Warren Hastings hastily wrote in his notebook: "At Meadowbrook evening of Twentieth, John Wilburton gives a ball to the British soldiers."

"I will report that to my colonel," he said to himself, but, turning to Polly, he began in a vehement voice:

"This is not a time for dancing and merry-making. The whole country is seething for war. The king has taxed the people until there is nothing left. There must be war; there will be war, and I, for one, say, let it come." Then changing his tone, he said in a gentler voice:

"But there are sweeter words than talk of war for a maid to hear, and now, here, under God's stars, Mistress Polly Wilburton, daughter of a tory, give me your promise, come weal, come woe, when these troublous times are over, you will be my wife."

"Ah, John, I am glad I am not a British soldier, to have to face you on the battlefield; you take one by storm, even in love. I will give you my promise, and the night of the twentieth, to show you my loyalty, I will place a candle in the window, and when its light shines across the garden, you may know you can safely enter and capture the British in their merrymaking. This is the love of a maid for a man, and she kissed him lightly on the brow.

"You are a brave woman, and I trow you are no laggard in love or war."

Mistress Polly Wilburton's maid laid out her prettiest dress the evening of the twentieth. The shimmering sheen of silvery satin rested like a billowy foam upon the bed; beside the dress lay the white pompadour gloves, stiff and lace-trimmed, and the two white sandals with jewel buckles sat primly by the bed ready for the dainty silk-clad feet.

"Make me look more beautiful tonight than I ever looked in my life, Matilda. There are many hearts to win and many things beside hearts at stake."

A real Romney maid she looked, as she descended the broad stairway in his clinging, short-waisted, satin gown, the click of her high-heeled slippers resounding on the polished stairs, the soft red lips, curving with roguish smiles, and the dimples playing hide and seek in the rose-red cheeks, while in her hand she held a crimson rose.

A crowd of gallant beau stood ready to plead for the honor of the first dance.

"No less a personage than your commander shall have the honor," and she slipped by them and away to where he stood, earnestly talking to some of his men, but a touch on his arm, and the frown was gone, and they were stepping lightly to the tune of a stately minuet.

Flash of jewels, clank of swords, shimmer of satin and lace, and above it all the throbbing, pulsing notes of the violins, the sensuous rhythm of music, the languorous perfume of flowers. Thus did the faithful tory, John Wilburton, entertain the British.

Mistress Polly felt herself a traitor to her father's cause, but loyal to her country, for she knew, 'neath the shadow of the old, old tree, Warren Hastings was waiting impatiently a signal to enter.

Hessians and British swarmed through the halls and room of the old mansion, bright with the blaze of light from the many pronged silver scones on the wall, and the warm glow of the log fire in the broad fireplaces, for the chill of winter still lingered in the spring air.

Officers and soldiers feasted that night, as they had not done since leaving England, and forgot their troubles in looking on the red wine of John Wilburton.

Again the music and the dance began, and again was Mistress Polly besieged with requests for dances.

"Who dances with me pays a forfeit. Stack your swords in the corner and I will scatter the leaves of the rose; whoever returns to me the greatest number shall be rewarded with the next dance." And she held the rose high above her head and shook the petals in her hand.

Clank, clank, clank, and every man laid down his sword, and his majesty's soldiers, in a trice, were scrambling over the floor after the petals of a red, red rose.

It was two by the Grandfather clock on the stairs as Mistress Polly stepped lightly to the window, and the light of a candle flashed out across the night, and she went back to the ballroom with a fast-beating heart and flushed cheeks. Gayest of the gay, she flitted here and there, cheering them in their mad scramble for the scarlet petals. The air was fragrant with the odor of the crushed rose leaves, and the perfume of scented powder on headdress and wigs. The girl grew faint, as she watched the firelight flicker across the highly-polished floor, and counted the moments since she had seen the first rays glimmer across the walk, and caught just one glimpse of a form beneath the trees. "Would he come?" she asked herself, and, with the question, the great doors swung noiselessly open and as noiselessly Washington's men ranged themselves around the room, and a voice rang out triumphantly: "Forsooth! A merry game, and what might it be, gentlemen?"

Instantly every British and Hessian reached for his sword. "We are caught, gentlemen; if we did not know John Wilburton for such a staunch friend of the king, we might say, we are betrayed. But I would stake my honor on John Wilburton's loyalty. We surrender."

Amidst the tumult, terror and din stood Mistress Polly, a roguish, satisfied smile on her lips, and her eyes alight with the gleam of triumph, as she caught the look of approval on Warren Hasting's face. He crossed the room to her side, and they pased out on to the broad portico. As the door closed behind them, he clasped her in his arms, and whispered words of love and praise that were only intended for the ears of Mistress Polly Wilburton.

"Oh! it was a dreadful thing to do," she sobbed. "You need never ask of me again to do that of which my father disapproves.

"I am a traitor to my father, his country and his king, all for you, for you—Now, your country shall be my country, your king my king, even Washington," she said, tearfully.

"And you shall be my queen, and my heart shall be the kingdom over which you shall rule, and my love shall encompass and shield you through all our journey of life."

Caused By a Rabbit.

The following coroner's verdict was recently rendered in one of the counties of Indiana: "After having carefully examined the body, seen, heard and inspected the evidence adduced in the premises, I do find that the true and lawful name of said person is as above given, to-wit: Andrew Mitz, that his age at the time of his death was fifty-three years, five feet and ten inches high, Black hair and dark complexion, and that he came to his death as follows: After having the proper witnesses, which was a son of the deceased, I find that on the 14th day of February, A. D., 1903, and about 3 o'clock, p. m. Mr. Mitz having seen some water in his cellar though he would walk out to the end of the cellar Drean, which was perhaps a hundred yards away. After seeing the water coming out of the tile apparently alright, upon looking around he saw a rabbit sitting and went to the house after his gun, when he returned, the Rabbit had gone. So he went back and just before entering the house thought he would take the loaded shell from the gun, when by some means the gun went off. It kicked back and the stock of the gun hit him near the Groin causing a severe merorage. He managed to get into the house and took his bed and died from the effects about 30 hours later. The accident was peculiar but fatal."

"GIVE ME OLD MUSIC."

Give me old music, for my spirit faints
For some strong spell to touch fond memory's string;
For some sweet song of old, whose magic paints
With brillant hues the shades which sorrows fling.

Give me old music, that which thrilled the heart
When youth's warm hopes and sunny sides are mine,
Ere disappointment pierced me with its dart,
And friendship knew no blight or love decline.

Give me old music, that to which the dead
In years long passed have listened to and praised.
Oh, with their presence can our love have fled,
That memory basks not in the visions raised.

Give me old music, for the world's chill hand
Hath cast its fetters on my drooping soul,
And childhood's freshness flees at its command,
And cold suspicions like a torrent roll.

Forgive me, that I may not love thy lay;
The past with music is so sweetly twined
That round each song of old such raptures play
As touch the heartstrings with a power refined.

Oh, when the world grows dark and hopes expire,
And the heart sickens in the glare of day,
How some old strain wakes up the latent fire
And calls our freshness from its swift decay.

In the far spirit land shall all be new;
No sound, no strain, to whisper of the past,
Must we blest memory's hallowed power subdue?
How tasteless, then, the joys around us cast.

Give me old music, for the cottage door
Round which in thoughtless infancy I strayed
At its command, stands open as before;
Within the lute on which my grandsire played.

And hush that strain that echoes in my heart,
Whence comes it with its mighty power to quell
The fearful thoughts which into being start,
With strength too deep for human words to tell.

Whence comes it on the wild wind's mighty breath?
Both darkness nurse it in its secret bower?
Say, is it mightier than th conqueror death,
Or fragile as the bright, sweet, summer flower?
I know not—ask not—since beneath its wing
My weary spirit finds a calm repose,
To its pure shrine me my lowly gifts I bring,
And court the peace its breath around me throws.

THE COUNTRY EDITOR.

Northport (Mich.) Leader: Don't pity the country editor. He is as contented as a cow puffed up by eating too many rose geraniums. Pray for the spindle-shanked gazaba that is living the strenuous life in the metropolis. He needs it. Don't lose any sleep over the Rube who edits your home paper. He may not know a panegyric from a mash formula for making apple butter, but he knows a hypocrite when he sees one and dare call him so to his face. He probably eats with his knife and wears undershirts with slivers in 'em, but no domineering managing editor can make him eat dirt. He is not to the manor born, neither has he an escutcheon emblazoned on his linen, but he has wiped his aquiline nose on the flour-sack of civilization and kicked his boots loose from the frozen floor of a farmer's kitchen and in the slang of the present "Has been up against it." He learned to edit a newspaper after that. To be poked fun at by the city brother when his paper announces to the world in a flourish of long primer that "Si Green's choicest bull calf choked itself to death on a baga," doesn't ruffle him a particle for he rests secure in the consciousness that it will please "Si" and don't hurt the city chap who wouldn't know a rutabaga from a Greek god.

Titles.

New York Sun: "Wellington was asked how he liked the title of Iron Duke.

"I guess it's all right," he said, "but why didn't they call me a Mailed Fist or something like that?"

Being assured, however, that all Europe gave him the glad hand, he was somewhat consoled.

Wouldn't Change.

Philadelphia Record: He is familiarly known to his friends and patrons as Otto and he keeps a beer saloon down town, a saloon that long antedates the high license law. A young man of the neighborhood recently secured a position as a book agent, and having met with considerable success in unsuspected quarters, he approached Otto. He stated his mission in a little set speech, enumerating the books that he had at his disposal; but Otto was busy with other matters, listening only in desultory way, without quite catching the drift of the conversation. "Now, there's Shakespeare; can't I sell you Shakespeare?" persisted the young man. "No, no," said the old German, waving him away. "I don' vant no make a change. I haf used Schimmel's beer for twenty-five years, and dot is goot enough for me." "You don't understand me," replied the amateur canvasser. "I am talking about books." "Books, books!" exclaimed Otto; "I vant no more bocks. I get my bock from Schimmel, too!"

Prospective Tariff Wars.

St. Louis Republic: Mr. Chamberlain's policy of a retaliatory tariff war against the United States and Germany may ultimately lead all the great powers to enter into a more earnest and sympathetic study of the merits of reciprocity. Wars of any sort are calamitous, and the lowering of tariff walls already in existence would contain more promise of international benefit and general prosperity than the upbuilding of new tariff walls for the sake of revenge.

Not on Speaking Terms.

New York Sun: Stella—Cholly and Mabel are not on speaking terms any more.

Bella—Why, I thought they were engaged?

Stella—So they are. They just sit for hours and hold each other's hands.

RELATIVES TO FIGHT

Widow of Stuart Bates Will Find Opposition to Claims.

Dead Man's Brother Claims He Was Intoxicated When Married.

The relatives of the late Dr. Stuart Bates have taken steps to set aside his marriage to Miss Marie Jacobson, on the ground that he was intoxicated at the time the ceremony was performed.

The suit with this end in view is no surprise to those who talked with Robert J. Bates, Dr. Bates' brother, who was here at the time of the doctor's death and funeral.

The object of the suit, of course, is to prevent Mrs. Bates from sharing in the estate, which is said to be worth $100,000. Miss Jacobson was a nurse employed by the doctor in his hospital, and they went to St. Paul April 17 and were married, the license being secured on an oath that the woman was a resident of Ramsey county. The couple returned at once to Virginia, and two weeks from the wedding day Dr. Bates died from acute poisoning. He left no will, and his wife claims her dower right of one-third of his estate.

Until after his death the relatives were not aware that Dr. Bates, who was a widower with one child, had been married again.

Saturday Robert J. Bates, a brother, went to St. Paul to secure evidence that his brother had been grossly intoxicated when he was married, with a view to having the marriage declared invalid on that ground. Robert J. Bates is a prominent physician of Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., and he is also colonel of the Third infantry, Michigan National Guard.

In St. Paul Saturday he secured an affidavit from George Gerlich, a deputy in the office of the clerk of the district court, to the effect that Dr. Stuart Bates was intoxicated when he secured the license. He is also said to have secured the affidavits of two other people who swore that Dr. Stuart Bates was drunk when the ceremony was performed.

The suit will be brought in probate court here, and will be tried in this city. The claim of the widow will be contested, and the affidavits secured in St. Paul will be presented to the court. Later witnesses will also be called from St. Paul.

Col. Bates is still at the Ryan in St. Paul looking for further evidence, and will be in Duluth in a day or two to carry on the suit.

Mrs. Bates claims that the suit and the accompanying charges are nothing more than an attempt to prevent her from having her share of her husband's estate, and she will fight the relatives to a finish.

MAY WEAR COLLARS

But Decision Regarding English Officers Not Final.

London, June 8.—The war office has for some time been very active in effecting army reforms. The caps of the men and the braiding of the officers' uniforms have already been considerably altered. The four army corps which Secretary of War Broderick promised should come into being on the first of April have not yet materialized, but a fortnight ago Lieut. Col. Lord Grenfell issued an order pointing out that the practice of officers of having linen collars fitted to their frock coats was forbidden except for the officers of the Seventh Hussars and the Oxfordshire light infantry.

The officers replied by calling attention to the fact that fine collars were fifty years ago, as was proved by portraits in the United Service club. The duke of Cambridge was responsible for this prohibition.

After two weeks' deliberation the war office has now issued a new general order decreeing that the privilege of wearing fine collars shall be extended to all officers with the service dress, but "only as a tentative measure." The careful consideration and calculation devoted to the matter may be seen from the provision in the order that "Not more than one-eighth-inch of collar is to show above the collar of the jacket."

THE "CLIO" WAIST.

Waist of white Louisine, box plaited bands of lace insertion on plaits, medallions down front. Strappings of black ribbon velvet, with rosettes of same. Simple close sleeve with frill and elbow, and turn-back cuff and wrist. Three plaits only ath back, two plaits in upper sleeves.

TO PROTEST TO THE CZAR

Dr. Lorimer Would Send a Committee of Twenty.

New York, June 8.—At an enthusiastic meeting in the Temple Bethel, the Rev. Dr. G. C. Lorimer has proposed that a committee of twenty, composed of both Jews and Gentiles, be elected in the United States and sent to Russia to wait on the czar and "protest against the massacres at Kishineff in the name of God and humanity."

"I propose that we appoint a committee now," said Dr. Lorimer, "to join other committees elected at mass meetings throughout the United States, who will in turn elect a committee of ten composed of eminent men, both Jews and Gentiles, to go to Russia, and if possible, see the czar and protest in the name of God and humanity against these outrages. They may not be able to meet the czar personally, although I know of eminent men who I believe could obtain an audience."

Notwithstanding the enthusiasm aroused, nothing definite toward forming a committee was done.

Dr. Lorimer declared that it was most important this committee be formed at once, whereupon M. S. Stern, grand master of the United States Independent order of the Free Sons of Israel, under whose auspices the meeting was held, announced that at the next meeting of the executive board Dr. Lorimer's proposal will be laid before the grand lodge for immediate action.

Several speakers coincided with Dr. Lorimer.

HIGH ASCENSIONS

May Result In Interesting Physiological Experiments.

London, June 8.—The greatly increased heights reached in balloon ascensions may, according to Dr. Knott, result in interesting physiological experiments. Dr. Knott and Percival Spencer, both well known aeronauts, with a third passenger, recently made an ascent of 11,700 feet. In an interview on his experience the doctor said:

"In healthy persons the pulse beats four times for one respiration, and that ratio is supposed never to vary. After we had reached a height of 11,000 feet we found the pulsation to be one for each respiration. There was also a certain flabbiness of the heart movements. We were then getting nauseating doses of gas from the mouth of the baloon, the gas escaping mouth of the balloon, the gas escaping ic pressure at the great height. I cannot speak definitely until the experiments are complete, but I believe that nausea, intoxication and the ultimate death of aeronauts at extraordinary heights are due to the effects of gas and not to asmospheric conditions.

"Never, so far as I know, has a postmorten shown that a man died from decreased atmospheric conditions. Of course decreased pressure has certain effects, but I think death is always due in these cases to gas. A man may suffer pain, but so long as he is not stupefied he is not incapable. If I could construct a baloon from which gas would not descend on the aeronauts, much greater heights could probably be reached than the record, which is now six miles. There was not the slightest change in our physical condition until the gas made itself felt."

ARREST OF SUSPECTS

Caused Panic on Illinois Central Picnic Train.

Chicago, June 8.—In a crowded Illinois Central picnic train, at the Twelfth street station, two young men accused of the murder of Dr. J. B. Forbes were arrested last night after a fierce struggle with detectives that caused a panic among the occupants of the coaches. Revolvers were drawn by the men and they were subdued only after a struggle that cleared the car.

William Dong Tong and Harry Martini, each 19 years old, were the men arrested. Dong Tong is the adopted son of a reputable and once wealthy Chinese artist. Dr. Forbes was killed May 29 by men who attempted to hold him up in a drug store, where he was acting as night clerk. He was shot through the head after his refusal to sit still when ordered by the robbers.

On June 11, 12 and 13 the C., St. P., M. O. railway will sell excursion tickets to Milwaukee at one and one-third fare for the round trip. Tickets good for return June 15. City ticket office, 405 West Superior street.

The easiest and quickest post mortem on Saturday's game is that Grand Forks outplayed the Cardinals at all stages after the fifth inning.

Shaw pitched a peculiar game, going up in the air one moment and performing brilliantly the next. All of Duluth's errors came at critical moments and were costly.

Capt. Murphy, the Cardinal third baseman, tried to stop a hot one off Cameron's bat in the seventh and will be out of the game for a week or ten days. The ball was driven with such force that it split his hand open.

The feature of the game was Scharnweber's home run over right field fence with two men on bases.

The only Duluth player that could touch McCarthy's pitching was Kennally and the big first baseman succeeded in making a batting average of 1.000 for the day.

In an exhibition game—one that counts for nothing in the pennant race—Superior won from the Cardinals at West Superior yestetrday afternoon by a score of 4 to 3.

McCoy, the Duluth right fielder, was put in to pitch and hold Superior down to five hits. Errors by Doar at third, Mueller in right and Shepard at short, let in three runs.

There was a big crowd present including 400 or 500 fans from this side of the bay. The local players are inclined to laugh at Superior's enthusiasm over winning the game and say they will show them a different score when the two teams meet in a regular league series. The score:

AMONG THE AMATEURS.

Many Interesting Contests Saturday and Sunday.

Saturday was a momentous day in the Jobbers' league. Three games were played by the teams in different parts of the city and the schedule presents a much altered form.

The Keller-How-Thomson nine made its first appearance in a league game and succeeded in administering a coat of whitewash to the dry goods men, winning by the score of 32 to 0. So one-sided was the contest that the game was stopped in the eighth inning after the hardware men had succeeded in piling up 16 runs before three men were put out. The winning places the hardware men at the top of the list, tied with their conferees from Lake avenue. The score by innings is as follows:

K-H-T Co.	3 4 5 1 0 2 1 16—32

Pitchers: Menice and Moo.

The Marshall-Wells team also won a victory on its first appearance and goes to the top of the list. The game against the Leithhead Drug company's nine was closely contested and was won only after a fast and exciting exhibition. The final score was 8 to 5.

The wholesale grocers came together in a slugging match in which the Gowan-Peyton-Twohy nine, strengthened by the addition of some new men, among whom was Gardner, the pitcher, outbatted the former leaders in the league and succeeded in winning by the score of 24 to 17, much to the delight of their numerous supporters. There has been a keen rivalry between the two nines and both teams were eager for a victory.

The grocers and dry goods men are now tied for third place in the league, with the two hardware nines on top and the two druggists in last place. The standing is as follows:

Kelley-How-Thomson Co.	1	0 .1000
Marshall-Wells	1	0 .1000
Gowan-Peyton-Twohy	1	1 .500
Stone-Ordean-Wells	1	1 .500
F. A. Patrick company	2	2 .500
Leithhead Drug company	0	2 .000

* * *

At West Duluth the most interesting game of the league was played between the Marshall-Wells and Leithhead Drug company teams, the former winning 8 to 5. Trevillion pitched a steady game for the hardware men, as did Brocklin for the druggists.

* * *

The batting of the Kelley-How-Thomson team was the feature of the league's game. They had four home runs, seven three-base hits and about half a dozen doubles.

Lakeside beat the Court House team by a score of 13 to 9 on Saturday. There were plenty of fireworks and lots of excitement. The score:

Lakeside	2 0 0 5 2 1 2 0 0—13
Court House	3 0 1 0 2 2 0 1 0—9

Pitchers—Wharton and R. Butchart.

Universal Millers gave Hibbing a universal milling and binglefest yesterday, winning by a score of 14 to 7. The strong local amateurs found Hibbing twirlers hits. Errors by Doar at third, Mueller in for fifteen safe drives, including a home run and double by Salvoy, and two base hits by Combs, Lauermann, Nacey and Bouska. Rick, the new pitcher for the Millers, twirled a very good game. The score:

	R.	H.	E.
Universal Millers	0 1 4 2 2 0 2 1 2—14	15	4
Hibbing	2 1 0 2 0 0 0 0 1—7	6	7

Owing to a decision of the umpire permitting a base runner to score in the ninth without taking the trouble to go near third base, the News-Tribune team won the first game of a double-header from the Herald yesterday, the score being 5 to 4.

News Tribune	0 0 1 0 0 0 3 0 1—5

The second game only lasted five innings, but it was a hot and hectic affair. The score:

Herald	2 0 0 0 1—3

In a very fast game yesterday West Duluth defeated the team of the Big Duluth Clothing company by a score of 6 to 1. Art Young pitched fine ball for the aggregation from the Seventh and Eighth wards and was given nice support. Lowe pitched well for Big Duluth but was touched up at critical periods.

The Imperials and Sluggers mixed things up in great shape at the Sixth street ball grounds yesterday. The Sluggers did not slug quite hard enough and the Imperials won by the following score:

Imperials	2 4 0 2 0 0 2 3 3—16
Sluggers	1 1 0 4 2 3 1 1 1—14

Pitchers: W. Duffy and G. Miller.

After batting three pitchers out of the box and winning their game from a picked team of the range towns by a score of 11 to 7 the Duluth Universal Millers returned homethis morning from Hibbing.

The Hibbing team was strengthened by players from Tower and Cloquet but they couldn't stop the ravages of the flour grinders. Si Bennett, of Duluth, started to catch for Hibbing but when the Hibbing twirler was forced to retire he went into the box and was himself driven out.

Rick, the Miller's new twirler proved a good man, allowing only three hits and one run after the fourth inning. Lowe, the regular man, was on the bench and did not play at West Duluth with the Big Duluth as reported.

Unusually good support was given the Duluth twirler by the Millers out and in-field.

The score by innings was:

Millers	0 1 4 2 2 0 2 1 2—14
Hibbing	2 1 0 3 0 0 0 0 1—7

ST. PAUL AGAIN WINS.

Duluth Lacrosse Men Lose to Saintly City.

The Duluth lacrosse team went down to defeat before the hands of the strong St. Paul twelve yesterday in the return game played in the Saintly City.

The score at the end of the game was 11 to 5 and it about represents the relative strength of the two teams. For a team that has played as little together as the Duluth twelve the men from the head of the lakes showed exceptional strength. The team work was much better than in the game played a week ago in Duluth, and they show promise of developing into a strong aggregation before the close of the season. The victory of the St. Paul men was won by their greater experience in the game and their thorough coaching in team work. The home team was very aggressive in its tactics and only the strong defense of the visitors kept the score down.

The Duluth boys are not in the least discouraged with their two defeats. They realize that defeats must come to a new team and they are elated to think that they could give such a hard contest to what is probably the strongest team in the Northwest.

The game yesterday like the one played in Duluth on Memorial day was marked by an entire absence of rough play. The best of feeling seemed to exist between the members of the two teams and the Duluth boys are loud in their praises of the treatment accorded them. A large crowd of spectators was in attendance, many of them being ladies.

A third match may be played at some future date.

The line-up of the two teams was as follows:

St. Paul.	Duluth.
Murphy	goal Fauble
Armstrong	point Grant
Cowie	cover point Trask
Guiseford	first defense Gilson
McAuley	second defense Cargill
Raymond	third defense McDonald

MRS. ROOSEVELT

Will Not Accompany President to Hanna Wedding.

Washington, June 8.—President Roosevelt will be accompanied by Miss Roosevelt instead of Mrs. Roosevelt, when he leaves Washington Tuesday for Cleveland.

Mrs. Roosevelt has been resting all spring and is not yet able to undergo the fatigue of so long a journey and the consequent excitement of a large social function like the wedding of Miss Hanna and Mr. McCormick.

Mrs. Roosevelt has, however, given her personal attention to selecting a gift for the bride and will present her with two dozen Haviland China cups and saucers entirely covered with gold exquisitely decorated. The china is contained in a handsome white satin case and with it a personal letter from Mrs. Roosevelt, expressing her congratulations and wishes for the future of the bride and groom.

LAURA BIGGAR SUED

By Mrs. Hendricks For Alienating Husband's Affections.

New York, June 8.—Miss Laura Biggar, an actress, acquitted last September in New Jersey of conspiracy to seize the estate of Henry M. Bennett, who Miss Biggar asserted was her husband, while Charles C. Hendrick and Henry Stanton jointly indicted with her, were found guilty, learned that another chapter in the story of her troubles had begun when an action for the alienation of Dr. Hendrick's affections was instituted against her by Mrs. Hendricks. The plaintiff asks for $100,000 damages.

ADDRESSES CLASS

Baccalaureate Sermon to High School Graduates By Dr. Ryan.

Fine Lessons For Future Life With Paul's Epistle as Text.

The Assembly hall of the high school was crowded last evening with friends of the institution, it being the occasion of the baccalaureate sermon to the graduating class of 1903.

Dr. A. W. Ryan, of St. Paul's Episcopal church, who preached the sermon, was assisted by Rev. R. Ames Montgomery, who pronounced the benediction and read the lesson, Rev. Dr. Cleland, of the First Presbyterian church, who offered the prayer, and Rev. S. C. Davis, of the First Presbyterian church, who offered the invocation.

Superintendent of Schools R. E. Denfeld and Principal Charles A. Smith, of the high school, also occupied seats on the platform. Mr. Smith making a few introductory remarks.

The quartet from the First Presbyterian church rendered special music for the occasion and Paul Gilbert, the tenor, sang the solo "I Shall Meet Him Face to Face" in good voice.

The text of Dr. Ryan's sermon was from St. Paul's epistle to the Philippians, viii, 4: "Finally, my brethren, whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report; if there be any virtue, if there be any praise, think on these things."

"Your class," said Dr. Ryan, addressing the graduates is about to be graduated from this high school. Other classes have gone before you. Other classes will follow. To outsiders this is an everyday event. To yourselves it is one of supreme importance.

"You are now looking out into the life that is opening before you. Hitherto, you have been skillfully guided by trained hands. Now you are going forth to take your part in the drama of life. You are going out with the same talents and to a large extent the same hopes and ambitions with which some have scaled the dizzy heights and others have fallen to the greatest depths. What will be the outcome of your struggle?

"Study the lives of those who have won success. We find it does not depend on circumstances, but on qualities inherent within the man. The poorest boy, with nothing but discouraging circumstances about him, somehow has the right feeling of ambition, chooses the right path and forges to the front.

"It is a task of profound responsibility to speak to a graduating class. It is so important to speak just the right word and touch the right chord, so that their life here in the school may be an inspiration to them and their acquirements gained here may be used to direct them along the right path.

"There are just now two thoughts that I wish to impress particularly upon your minds at this time; think constantly of the best things and do the best that within you lies.

"Let us scrutinize the words of my text. It is taken from the epistle to the Phillipians written by Paul to his dear friends in the town of Philippi. He had gone thither in response to the cry of the Macedonians 'Come over and help us.' During Paul's imprisonment at Rome the Phillipians had sent Ephroditus to carry aid to him and this epistle was one of the acknowledgement for the kindness done. It is called 'Paul's Love Letter' and is full of the warm-hearted advice of a true friend. Embedded in that epistle we find the words of our text, which any of you might well take as a life motto.

"First Paul lays stress upon internal things, follow what is true and honest. Then comes the edict to think upon the law affecting our relation to our fellow man.

"It is the main purpose of Christianity to lay stress upon the things that are permanent in life. Take these things that are mentioned in the text. Meditate upon them and make them yours until you come to live up to the precepts that are thought there. We can make these things sure if we set ourselves to the task. We can choose the best if we so will.

"What a man thinks within himself is himself. As he thinks so he is. If we could discover what is down in the depths of a man's mind we would know the man. These inmost thoughts are constantly working themselves outward and showing themselves in gesture, lineament and feature. The inferior man makes the exterior man. Put before yourself the ideal of a strong, vigorous upright manly life and it will do much to banish the shiftlessness and incompetance which are so painfully common in these days. But remember that you cannot expect results in a day or a week or a year. Do the best that lies within you now and let the future take care of itself.

"There is a time in all our lives when we do not know what we want to do or to what line of business we want to turn our hand. You get success best not by working for success, but by doing the best that lies within you. And so in this your time of preparation do the best that lies within you and success will come. Do the thing that comes to your hand to the best of your ability.

"You want to be something. Why not begin now? You want to be a gentleman. Why not begin by being a gentleman now? You want to be a business man and manage large business interests. Why not begin to lay your plans now? The young clerk so often knows what is on the sporting page of the newspaper but is ignorant of anything beyond his immediate sphere of work. The great difficulty with so many of us is that we get into ruts and the great need of the majority of the men of today is to get free from ruts of all kinds. Others have gone out and made a place for themselves. You can do it. All that you need is the faith and the courage. Take them with you as you go out into the world. Think only of the best things and do the best that lies within you. Success may not come to you in money or in the plaudits of your fellow men but success comes to every man who uses to the best advantage his talents and does his best.

"May the spirit of God enter into your hearts and minds and nerve you for the battle of life and sustain you until success is yours and when the cross drops at last from your shoulder and when at last life's long toil is over may there come to you those wonderful words of the Master, 'well done thou good and faithful servant. You have been faithful in a few things, I will make thee master over many things. Enter into the joy of the Lord.'"

The Tyfold Collar

The picture shows how the collar is cut out on each side to allow for adjusting a neck tie without springing the collar open. The collar comes close together in front, it keeps the tie in place and you don't see the cut-out part. Besides the tie is retained just over the button, which is also kept out of sight. Your summer comfort will be increased if you wear one, and you'll thank us for the style. Dealers sell them.

CLOSING EXERCISES.

St. Anthony's School Commencement—Bishop Speaks.

The commencement exercises of the German Catholic school of the parish of St. Anthony de Padua were held last evening at the Sixth avenue theater. They were very fine, and were enjoyed by a large audience of relatives and friends of the graduates and others.

Right Reverend James McGolrick, bishop of Duluth, conducted the exercises and delivered an excellent and interesting address in which he commended with much warmth the excellent work that had been done by the school in preparing the young people who were to be graduated for useful manhood and womanhood. He took the occasion to give some very timely and sensible advice to the young men and young women who were about to step forth into the world from their school life.

A splendid program of choruses, solos, recitations, orations, drills and a biblical drama, "Joseph in Egypt," followed, and was much enjoyed. At the close of the program Bishop McGolrick presented the medals that had been awarded, as follows: Gold medal for good conduct, Clara Fiebiger; award for good conduct, Annie Roth; gold medal for neatness, August Nansois; gold medal for Christian doctrine, Annie Fink; silver medal for scholarship, Frank Schlender; silver medal for scholarship, Annie Fiebing.

The following grammar school graduates were awarded diplomas: W. T. Olsen, Paul Schultz, Annie Roth, Theresa Sieviger, Clara Fiebiger.

A THRILLING BICYCLE RIDE

Went Down Mountain Side In Record-Breaking Time.

Anaconda, Mont., June 8.—Casper Weiss, aged 15 years, has performed a marvelous feat. Casper is in the hospital here, but the doctors hope to save his life.

Young Weiss was on top of the mountain overlooking this city, and decided to ride down the flume leading to the flour on which the city is built. Once started, he could not stop his bicycle, and to throw himself from his wheel meant instant death. So he stuck on, even after the bicycle jumped from the flume and began tearing down the rough side of the mountain.

Long jumps through the air the wheel took, but the boy held one. He reached the flat in safety, with the wheel badly disfigured. When he tried to check his speed he found that the brake had become broken. In his path was a stone wall, into which the machine dashed at full speed. The boy was thrown head foremost against the wall and was unconscious when picked up.

The distance from the top of the mountain to the stone wall is more than 2000 feet, yet young Weiss made the trip in less than a minute and a half.

HONEYMOON SPENT IN JAIL

Missoula Pays Damages For Arrest of Wrong Couple.

Missoula, June 8.—Owing to the fact that they answered the description of a man and his wife wanted by the police of an Eastern Montana town, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Donley, on their honeymoon, were forced to spend several days in jail here. The police had received a telegram to arrest on the west-bound train Mr. and Mrs. John Felkner, accused of arson, and in the telegram were given a description of the wanted couple.

The Felkners failed to arrive on the train it was expected they would come on, but Mr. and Mrs. Donley, who had been married less than ten hours, did arrive. They answered the description that had been furnished the local police and were placed under arrest. As they knew no one in the city it became necessary for them to telegraph to Mandian for the father of the bride to come and identify them before they could secure their release.

When the father arrived and found his daughter in a cell there was a scene, but all parties finally were pacified and the young married couple were sent on their way rejoicing, richer by several hundred dollars than when arrested, as the city was anxious to avoid a suit for damages for false arrest.

IN COPPER LAND

Delightful Trip of Passenger Agents to the Michigan Country.

Power, Railroads and Copper Striking Features of That Region.

In faraway school days, when the teacher used to ask what were the chief products of the Carolinas, the children used to answer in a rythmatic, singsong unison:

"Coal, iron, pitch, tar—
Tur-pen-tine and lum-baar."

Over on the small jut of land extending farther north of Michigan territory into Lake Superior, the chief products are:

Power, railroads and copper.

These products do not rhyme, and it would be difficult to say them in concert, but when one gets in the vicinity he knows they are all there.

There is probably no man in this world (and it might be safe to venture the next), who could so pleasantly, thoroughly and enthusiastically display the charms of the copper country as George W. Hibbard, general passenger agent of the South Shore road.

Therefore, the members of the Duluth-Superior Passenger association, who went to Calumet as his guests Saturday morning, can hardly be blamed for their reluctance to return home on the Saturday night train.

They spent a day about the Calumet & Hecla properties, and they saw more in that day than they probably have seen or ever will again, in the same space of time, and they promised to return again some day.

It was a rather strenuous trip, and the party was made up of the association and several railroad officials from St. Paul, including Thomas H. Larke and George McRae. A meeting was held by the association on the train Friday night, and Martin Adsen was chosen president. At 7 o'clock Saturday morning the party was met by Mr. Hibbard and all breakfasted at Calumet, taking carriages immediately thereafter for the sight-seeing.

The shafts and power houses were visited first. The shafts were looked at from the upper end, which was sufficient, and then began a procession of gigantic engines and networks railroad tracks.

They have a railroad track running in some different direction every ten seconds all through the copper country, it you are travelling at the rate of ten miles an hour, and nobody seems to know where they come from or where they lead to. That the expenditure of money is lavish and extravagant is evident in this bewildering network of railroads that are crossed for hours on a carriage drive.

Power? Ther's more power under one roof at Calumet than in the whole state of Colorado, where they have lots of mines. First, there were the power engines that operate the cages and lifts for a mile or so, on a slant or perpendicular, it does not cut any figure. And the irresistible power of the machines can only be partially comprehended by the fact that they haul up a mile of cable with a car tied on the lower end, as easily as a child pulls a tin engine around.

Somebody rings a bell two or three times, and without a sound the big wheels start turning, the speed increasing rapidly, till some more bells stop it. The wheels are a couple of stories high and the engine rooms immense.

They started to name the engines Superior and Huron and other specimens of Michigan nomenclature indicative of the locality, but they have so many now that they use any old thing for a title, and they cannot use numbers for fear the figures will be exhausted. There is a power plant every few seconds.

Then there is the big pumping station, where they pull 60,000,000 gallons of water out of Torch lake every day they want to, and claim it is cheaper to pump than it would be to have water power and reservoirs. The stamping mills and the electric plant and the whole works have engines—just power. There is so much power around that a person gets charged with it, and feels like lifting up a corner of a building, after gazing at the mountainous looking machinery for a few hours.

At the banquet, Col. J. N. Cox, dignified and with a Loyal Legion insignia at his lapel, offered his hand, some refreshment, a look at his mineral specimens and his dog. And then he reviewed his band, the best ever. It played "Our Colonel," as a parade swung by, and saluted him. The colonel's chest went out, and justly, too, for the C. & H. band plays all bets open, notwithstanding the tempting prevalence of copper and the suggestion lying therein.

All this time Mr. Hubbard had his weather eye doing business and let nothing get away from the crowd. To the smelting plant, where they give away a miniature ingot of copper, and show $15,000 or $20,000 worth of the metal lying around on the floor, he conducted the party, and lunch was served at the La Rose, Lake Linden, and a concert was given by "Larry" Kitchell, of the Great Northern.

The ride to Houghton was made in the Sallie, a gasoline launch, that races with the fast liners; only Capt. Singer's Iroquois proved her waterloo last year. Ex-Congressman C. D. Sheldon and Commodore Calverey were hosts on the trip, and they nearly had a stroke of apoplexy, when the engines refused to work. The craft was picked up and towed ashore by another launch, where it was gotten into shape and the party made some fast time to Houghton. As is usually the case with a jet, it acted villianously when there was company, but everybody understood it, for many were married and have children at home.

The day wound up with a banquet at the Douglas house, in Houghton, where the local railroad men gathered, and the famous "Johnnie" Mann planked whitefish was in evidence. Remarks by a half dozen of the guests, in a pleasant vein, were made, and Mr. Hibbard and others, who had shown nice courtesies, were given a rousing expression of thank-you.

The night train from Houghton brought the crowd back, reaching Duluth at 8:30 o'clock Sunday morning.

GATES GIVES UP HIS OPTION

Quits Explorations For Copper In Douglas County, Wis.

Dissatisfied with the result of a year's development of the Minong copper range, John W. Gates has suspended work and surrendered his option for the purchase or lease of the Weyerhaeuser copper mine.

The option covered about 1200 acres in the Minong district, of which over 300 acres were owned by the Minong Mining company, of Duluth, and the balance by F. W. Durant and the Weyerhaeusers. The option would not have expired for eleven months, but the pumps were drawn last Thursday and the work suspended. One of the conditions of the option was that if work was suspended for twenty days the option should be forfeited. Capt. W. A. Dunn, who has had charge of the work, was in Duluth Saturday and confirmed the report that the option had been thrown up.

John W. Gates and some of his business associates took hold of the property about nine months ago, and have spent, it is said, $20,000 in exploring it. A shaft had been put down 212 feet and some drifting had been done. It is understood that the fee-holders have not despaired of the property and will conduct their own explorations.

LOSS WAS VERY HEAVY

Developments In Big Flood Do Not Lessen Horrors.

Charlotte, N. C., June 8.—Developments in the devastated mill settlements at Pacolet and Clifton in South Carolina do not lessen the horrors of the situation there. The loss of life probably may not exceed fifty people. The destruction of property by the flood was far reaching. The town of Union, S. C., is today totally isolated. The Lockhart mills, below Pacolet, for whose safety fears had been expressed, is but slightly damaged.

A 200-foot section of the Southern railway bridge over Broad river, between Spartanburg and Columbia, gave way yesterday, stopping traffic between those points. Many other bridges are unsafe.

Following is a summary of the damage of the cotton mills: Pacolet, Nos. 1 and 2, totally destroyed; Pacolet No. 3, badly damaged. These mills operated 40,000 spindles and 2500 looms. Clifton mill No. 3 at Converse, 51,000 spindles destroyed. Dexter mills, 30,500 spindles; half destroyed. Clifton mills, 28,000 spindles; half destroyed. Glendale mills, badly damaged. Pacolet warehouse, 3500 bales of cotton and 4000 bales of yarn destroyed. At Pacolet a church, hotel and a number of cottages destroyed. Property damages, half a million dollars.

The mayor of Charlotte has issued an official call for relief.

The flood was due to a mighty cloudburst along the headwaters of the Pacolet river. The crest of the flood, when it reached Pacolet, was sixty feet high. The mills were located along the banks of the stream.

INSANE JEALOUSY

Caused Shooting of Man at Maynard, W. Va.

Wheeling, W. Va., June 8.—Jealousy was responsible for a tragedy in the little mining town of Maynard yesterday. Angered because his cousin paid marked attention to a young woman with whom he himself was enamored, Joseph Seachy shot twice at Michael Seachy and killed Joseph Kosma, an innocent bystander, who was a close friend of both. The first ball entered the breast of his cousin and inflicted a dangerous wound. The second struck Kosma under the eye and passed through his brain. He lived about an hour. The murderer fled. Angered foreigners soon collected and formed a mob. A constable managed to overtake Seachy before the mob caught him and quickly got him inside the county jail at St. Clairsville.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

Howard Blackburn, who has already made two voyages across the Atlantic alone in small dories, started Sunday afternoon from Gloucester in his 15-foot dory, America, in a third attempt to cross the ocean, with Havre as his objective point. His intention is to return via Gibraltar, Azores islands, Porto Rico and Cuba, and exhibit his boat at the St. Louis exposition. A large crowd on the wharves and craft in the harbor gave him a hearty sendoff.

One man was killed, two persons fatally and several others badly injured in a runaway accident on the Alum Rock Park electric railway at San Jose, Cal., late Saturday night. Deputy Assessor Edwin F. Goodrich was killed outright. Alice Myers, aged 24 years, and William Baker, aged 18, the latter the son of Prof. Baker, of the San Jose normal school, are perhaps fatally injured.

The body of Forest Kutz, a school teacher, was found in the debris left by the flood, at Topeka. It has developed that several fertile farms near North Topeka have been entirely ruined. The swift current washed away much of the good soil and in its place has left a thick, hard layer of sand, rendering the ground useless.

The county officials are investigating a peculiar attack last night on the steamship Park City on the way to Bowling Green, Ky., near Evansville, Ind. The steamer was fired on by several men and their fire was returned with Winchesters from the boat. The passengers were panic-stricken, but none was hurt. No cause is known for the attacks.

STEAMSHIP SUNK

One Hundred Lives Lost In Collision Off Marseilles.

French Passenger Steamers Come Together With Awful Results.

Marseilles, June 8.—A terrible shipping disaster occurred a little distance from this port at noon yesterday, when two passenger steamers, the Insulaire and the Liban, both belonging to the Fraissenet steamship company of Marseilles came into collision. The Liban sank and over 100 of her passengers and crew perished.

The steamer Liban left Marseilles yesterday morning on her regular passenger trip to Bastia, Corsica, and was run down and sunk by the Insulaire off the Madre Islands. The collision was witnessed from the pilot boat Blechamp, which was about two miles distant. The Blechamp immediately repaired to the spot to proffer assistance. The force of the collision had cut a great hole in the Liban's side and she was already making water rapidly. Her captain saw the only chance was to run the steamer aground and the Liban was headed full speed for the shore; but within seventeen minutes of the collision and while still in deep water the fore part of the steamer plunged beneath the waves and a few minutes later she had entirely disappeared.

In the meantime the Blechamp, the steamer Balkan, also belonging to the Fraissenet company, and other vessels had drawn near the sinking ship and were making desperate efforts to rescue those on board. The Blechamp picked up forty persons, many of whom were at the point of exhaustion. The Balkan rescued thirty-seven passengers, and up to the present it is known that in addition to the passengers seventeen of the crew were also saved.

Officers of the steamer Balkan describe the scene just before the Liban disappeared as a terrible one. As the vessel was sinking she was inclined to such an angle that her masts struck the water, causing an eddy which made the work of rescue most difficult. A mass of human beings were clinging to the foundering vessel and uttered despairing cries as she went down. At the same time the boilers exploded, intensifying the horrors. For a few moments the victims were seen struggling in the sea, then the waves closed over them and all was silent. Of about 200 passengers who were aboard the Liban, it is feared that at least half were drowned.

The Balkan launched three boats and the other vessels did all possible to save the victims in the short time that elapsed between the time of the collision and the sinking of the Liban.

Up to 5 o'clock thirty bodies had been recovered.

The list of passengers on board the Liban have not been issued at the offices of the company, but it is believed that more than 240 persons embarked at this port.

It is said that the collision was due to the following circumstances: The Liban was putting out to sea just as the steamer Insulaire was making for the harbor. Mare island, which lies off the entrance to the port, hid the vessels from each other until it was too late to avoid a collision.

One of the survivors, a passenger, gives the following details of the disaster: "The weather was splendid when we steamed out of Marseilles harbor and all the passengers were below at table when the shrieking of whistles gave the alarm. Coming on deck I saw the Insulaire approaching us at full speed. The captain gave several orders, but no attempt apparently was made to change the steamer's course. Some of the passengers reproached the captain for his negligence in this matter. When the Insulaire crashed into us a great panic prevailed on board. Attempts were made to lower the boats, but only one boat was got away and in that I and a few others escaped to the Blechamp. As the vessel sank bow first the passengers took refuge on the after deck which was covered by an awning. This as the Liban foundered became a cage in which ther passengers were caught and dragged down beneath the waters."

Many of the rescued were badly injured in the collision.

The Insulaire sustained considerable damage to her bows, but managed to reach port safely. Thousands of persons gathered around the morgue, hospitals and on the quays throughout the evening. Thus far only four bodies have been identified.

SIGNING OF PAYROLLS

In Blank Is Explained By Former Cashier Tulloch.

Washington, June 8.—Seymour W. Tulloch, formerly cashier of the Washington city postoffice, under date of June 3, has written a letter to Postmaster General Payne in response to replies received from Postmaster Merritt of the Washington postoffice and others to the charge of maladministration, made by Mr. Tulloch against the management of the local postoffice. A large part of Mr. Tulloch's letter is in reference to counter-charges made by Mr. Merritt against Mr. Tulloch. Mr. Tulloch says that the charge that under his (Tulloch's) regime as cashier of the Washington postoffice quarterly payrolls were required to be signed in blank, even if true, would not "produce a smile in Washington, where probably the greater portion of governmental employes sign payrolls in blank." But he says that the fact is that this custom, usual elsewhere, was prohibited eighteen years ago by the then postmaster, and the only payrolls signed in blank was when postal clerks at a distance, or other employes expecting to be absent, were at their request and as a personal favor given the privilege of signing in advance, the law requiring the voucher going to the auditor to be signed personally by the employe. He says that at the time of payment all figures had been previously filled in, and that false payments could not put have been detected easily if fraud was imposed. The charge that "a false vouches" had been put in while Mr. Tulloch was cashier, he says, was only an attempt to discredit him, and even Mr. Merritt was "directed by the postmaster, recognized by the assistant postmaster and the money retained paid to persons duly designated."

Mr. Tulloch's letter continues: "In closing, I may state that it has not been shown to the contrary in any of the replies you have published, that irregular payments were made from irregular funds instead of by the proper disbursing officer of the department; that an attempt was made to compel employes to bond under a single blanket bond with some favored companies; that the regulations of the department were violated in forcing a letter box, in which prominent officials were said to be interested, upon the public, even to the unauthorized use of the postmaster's authority and against his protest; that payments were directed for articles not delivered; that persons were paid two or three salaries and performed little or no service; that a physician was illegally appointed whose position was a sinecure. I am told that a $300 operating table was purchased for private use and charged to the department as postal furniture; that promotions were suggested upon proviso of division with high officials in the department; that persons were appointed from whom no service was required upon a complimentary rote; that arrears in Porto Rico were not fully recovered; that useless junket was taken to Cuba and Porto Rico; that persons paid from the military postal service had their salaries continued for months after ceasing all services; that salaries were also continued after service had ceased to take up irregular expenses."

As to the reply of former Assistant Postmaster General Heath, Mr. Tulloch says: "All that is necessary is to compare my specific charges with his general denial."

He then reaffirms that his representations remain in all essential particulars true and not disproved, and closes with a denial that there is any office within the gift of the postoffice department that he would accept or that he even authorized his friends to seek his reinstatement.

ALWAYS TIRED NEVER RESTED

To be tired out from hard work or bodily exercise is natural and rest is the remedy, but there is an exhaustion without physical exertion and a tired, never-rested feeling—a weariness without work that is unnatural and shows some serious disorder is threatening the health. One of the chief causes of that "Always-tired, never-rested condition" is impure blood and bad circulation. Unless the body is nourished with rich, pure blood there is lack of nervous force, the muscles become weak, the digestion impaired, and general disorder occurs throughout the system. Debility, insomnia, nervousness, indigestion, dyspepsia, loss of appetite, strength and energy, and the hundreds of little ailments we often have are due directly to a bad condition of the blood and circulation, and the quickest way to get rid of them is by purifying and building up the blood, and for this purpose no remedy equals S. S. S., which contains the best ingredients for cleansing the blood and toning up the system. It is a vegetable blood purifier and tonic combined, that enriches the blood, and through it the entire system is nourished and refreshing sleep comes to the tired, never-rested, body.

For over four years I suffered with general debility, causing a thorough breaking down of my system. My cousin, who had been benefited by S. S. S., told me about it. I tried it and it cured me. I heartily recommend S. S. S. to all who may feel the need of a thoroughly good blood tonic.
Yours truly,
MRS. JOSIE A. BRITTAIN.

TRADE OF ALASKA

During Fiscal Year Exceeds $20,000,000, Exclusive of Gold.

Shipments of Gold Ore Amount to Over Four Millions.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, June 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The commerce of Alaska during the fiscal year, which ends with this month, seems likely to aggregate over $20,000,000, exclusive of gold. The treasury bureau of statistics is now collecting and publishing monthly statements of the shipments of merchandise to and from Alaska. This information is now being collected under an act recently passed by congress at the recommendation of the bureau of statistics, giving it authority to collect statistics of the commerce between the United States and its non-contiguous territory. Under its operations the value of the merchandise passing from the United States into Alaska and from Alaska to the various ports of the United States is now for the first time presented.

The figures of shipments from the ports of the United States to Alaska during the ten months ending with April, 1903, aggregate $6,537,070 of merchandise and $104,359 of gold and silver coin. During the month of April the total shipments of merchandise amounted to $2,581,734, and as the opening months of the season are those of heavy shipments to Alaska, it is quite apparent that the total shipments to Alaska during this first fiscal year, in which their value is measured, will aggregate between $10,000,000 and $12,000,000. A similar statement of the shipments from Alaska to the United States, which is also published, shows the total value for ten months to be $10,101,960 of merchandise. In addition to this, the shipments of gold are from Alaska, produced in United States territory, amount to $4,369,496. The shipments of "foreign" gold ore from Alaska during the period, by which is meant that from the Klondike (Canadian) territory reaching the United States through Alaska, aggregate for the same period $10,972,454.

By far the most important of the articles shipped from Alaska to the United States is canned salmon, the value of which during the ten months ending with April, 1903, was $8,401,124, or more or less in the ten months in question the entire sum paid for Alaska in 1867, the sum paid for the territory having been $7,200,000. The next largest items in the shipments from Alaska are: Other fish and fish products, $751,983; furs and fur skins, $334,590; whalebone, $115,904, and copper, $100,343. The shipments to Alaska are naturally of an extremely varied character, including provisions, clothing and materials for use of miners and those engaged in the canning industry. The largest single item is manufactures of iron and steel, $1,616,604, of which $730,618 is tin plate and sheets, chiefly for use in manufacturing cans for the salmon canneries. Next in order are: Provisions, $718,273 (of which $162,954 was butter); manufactures of wood, including lumber, $562,454; manufactures of tin, $440,011; breadstuffs, $288,292; wines and liquors, $238,665; tobacco and manufactures of, $188,330; coal, $172,032; fruits and nuts, $171,691; cotton manufactures, $129,192, and eggs, $128,347.

In addition to the above commerce between Alaska and the other districts of the United States there is a total of $461,576, imports of foreign merchandise into Alaska during the ten months ending with April, of which $448,921 was from Canadian territory, $10,776 from England, and $1873 from Asiatic Russia; also, $1,337,197 of exports, all of which went to Canadian territory.

THE GRAND PRIX

Won By Quo Vadis Before Fashionable Assembly.

Paris, June 8.—The grand Prix de Paris of 200,000 francs, distance one mile and seven furlongs, was run at Long Champs yesterday in the presence of an immense concourse. It was won by Edmond Blanc's Quo Vadis, while Calus and Vinicius were, respectively, second and third. W. K. Vanderbilt's Apha came in fourth.

Seldom, if ever, has the grand prix attracted a larger and more fashionable assemblage to the Long Champs race course than it did yesterday. Among the many Americans present were Consul General Gowdy and Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt. English spectators also were seen in greater numbers than for many years, this being attributed to the fact that King Edward's visit and the consequent renewal of cordial relations between the two countries, although the absence of English horses was remarkable. Shortly before the horses paraded for the chief event, the president of the republic, Mme. Loubet and their suites arrived in open landaus with blue liveries, outriders and escorted by cuirassiers.

M. Blanc's victory of all three places in the Grand Prix was well received as his horses were all popular favorites.

Besides taking fourth place in the Grand Prix, W. K. Vanderbilt secured third place in the Prix Du Duc d'Aoste, with his horse Bright.

The total amount of the bets made with the Paris Mutual was $794,989, of which $332,704 was placed on the Grand Prix.

MINERS EMIGRATING.

Vienna, June 8.—There is a wholesale emigration of miners and workmen in the iron district of Austria to the United States in consequence of the unprecedented dullness in the iron industry. Hundreds of men have been discharged since the beginning of the year and the mines and iron works are operating on short time. Wages have fallen 50 cents a day and their families are suffering severely. There is faint hope of any immediate improvement in the situation and whole colonies of workingmen are leaving the country.

M'CHESNEY WAS WINNER

Of the Harlem National Handicap, Gregor K. Being Second.

Chicago, June 8.—McChesney, the West's greatest thoroughbred, won the Harlem national handicap Saturday. If ever the stamp of quality was earned by a race horse, it belongs to McChesney. At every turn in the race he was a winner. Every step of the way Jockey Gray held him where he could gallop to the front. He ran strongly and easily and scored as honest a victory as the turf has recorded. Galloping under the wire, going almost as he pleased, he beat Gregor K., the popular 3-year-old, by two lengths. P. Corrigan's horse, Hargis, was third.

The $10,000 prize was handed by the noted horse in spite of handicaps of high weight, a heavy track and a large field. The mile and three-sixteenths was run in 2:10 3-5, more than thirteen seconds slower than the track record.

Not all of the glory belonged to McChesney. Jockey Charles Gray rode a perfect race on the horse. The little rider, who has been seeking mounts all the season and finding them hard to get, handled McChesney faultlessly. A. Bullman would not have ridden half so carefully nor more timely than did Gray.

The crowd of 18,000 people not only saw a great horse win, but witnessed as good a ride as a jockey could make. There was everything in the race to make enthusiasm.

A cheer began when the gallant McChesney took the lead in the stretch, it swelled as he made his coming victory apparent, and when he flashed home the cheer became one great, roaring yell. It was as if every man at the track had wagered his last dollar and had been saved in the last minute. Hats flew into the air, men who had been heavily on defeated horses were as enthusiastic as those who had won on McChesney. Popular acknowledgement of the great runner's quality continued until he was led from the track wearing the floral saddle provided for the winner.

TURNS HIM DOWN.

Stage Struck Girl Refuses Offer of Millionaire.

Chicago, June 8.—"I'm afraid I'm stage struck. Then I'm told Arizona is a dreadful place to live in."

Miss Olive Jennings Cox, a Southern beauty, with a theatrical company playing at a local house, said this in explanation of her refusal either to marry or be adopted by D. C. Monroe. The heroic nature of her refusal may be appreciated when it is known that Monroe's wealth is computed at $4,000,000. He is 40 years old, a good-looking man of cultivated taste and is president of the White Horse Mining company, capitalized at $10,000,000, which is developing mining properties of rich promise in the Southwest. His home is at Prescott, Ariz.

"I have known Mr. Monroe since I was a little girl in knee dresses," Miss Cox continued. "He used to live in the same apartment house with my family in New York. I did not see him again until a few months ago after I had gone on the stage. For some reason or other he seemed to fall in love with me.

"He stopped in Chicago on his way West a little while ago," she added, "and begged me to quit the stage. When I declined to marry him he wanted to adopt me, and said he would take me to Europe to have my voice cultivated. I like Mr. Monroe. He is very nice, but no matrimony or adoption in mine, thank you. I have a career to carve out."

The millionaire stayed in Chicago ten days and most of his time was spent trying to persuade the pretty show girl to allow herself to be married or adopted.

A WEAKER MARKET

St. Louis Turns Bearish, Leading the Decline In Wheat.

Weather Is Much Improved—Flax Easier, the Price Declining.

Duluth Board of Trade, June 8.—The wheat market was lower today and St. Louis led in the decline, the July option there being off 1c and the September ⅞c as compared with ⅝c in the July in Chicago and ⅝c in the September. The weather conditions in the district that has been suffering from a surplus of rain were much improved and this was the ruling influence in the market. The Liverpool market was ½d lower and this aided the bears. Paris was, however, 1c higher and Antwerp unchanged. Some Manitoba wheat was worked for export by Duluth shippers.

The world's shipments of wheat last week were again large being 12,229,000 bus, against 12,220,000 bus the previous week and 9,460,000 bus last year. The shipments last week came from the following countries or districts: America, 4,760,000 bus; Russia, 3,682,000 bus; Danube, 1,000,000 bus; Argentine, 1,712,000 bus; India, 1,416,000 bus. The amount on passage decreased 684,000 bus.

The visible supply of wheat last week decreased 1,817,000 bus, and is now 27,711,000 bus, against 26,091,000 bus a year ago.

Primary receipts of wheat were 561,000 bus, last year 536,000 bus. Shipments 374,000 bus, last year 516,000 bus. Shipments 374,000 bus, last year 572,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 397,000 bus.

Receipts of wheat at Duluth and Minneapolis, 409 cars, and at Chicago, 41, a total of 450 cars, against 398 last year.

The world's shipments of corn last week were 6,525,000 bus, against 4,182,000 bus, the previous week and 6,225,000 bus last year. Argentine furnished the largest amount, 2,988,000 bus, and America sent 1,014,000 bus, and the Danube 1,716,000 bus. The amount on passage increased 2,991,000 bus.

The visible supply of corn last week increased 45,000 bus, and is now 4,321,000 bus, against 4,261,000 bus last year.

Primary receipts of corn were 511,000 bus, last year 545,000 bus. Shipments 507,000 bus, last year 381,000 bus. Clearances were 39,000 bus. In the Liverpool market corn was unchanged to ½d higher, but in the Chicago market July corn was weaker, declining 3c. July oats were also weak, losing ¾c.

The Duluth wheat market was lower and trading fairly active. July opened 75c off at 75½c, sold up to 76c at 9:30, fell off to 75¾c at 10 and rallied to 76c at 10:50, settling back to 75¾c at 11. At that point it held steady until the close which was at 76¼c, a decline of ⅝c. September opened the weaker, it closing ⅝-⅝c lower. In Chicago July was ⅝c lower and September ⅝c. New York July was off ⅝c and September ⅝c.

Cash sales of wheat were rather brisk, the total running to 75,000 bus with about one-third of it No. 2 northern. For No. 1 northern ¾c over July price was paid and for No. 2 northern 1¼c under.

Flax was fairly active and lower although early in the day it was slightly firmer, July selling 1c up to $1.13¾. From that point however, it fell to $1.12¾ and closed there. This was a decline of ¾c. September and October were off ½c.

Following are the closing prices:

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

General Selling In Wheat With Weak Prices.

Chicago, June 8.—Improved weather conditions brought out a general selling movement in wheat today and opening prices were weak, July being ¼c to ⅝c lower, at 75⅛c to 75¾c, and with only a moderate demand the price declined still further, July selling down to 74⅝@75c within the first hour of trading. Outside markets were all lower, Duluth and Minneapolis being especially weak, and this contributed somewhat to the weakness here. Duluth and Minneapolis reported receipts of 409 cars, which, with local receipts of 41 cars, none of contract grade, made total receipts for the three points of 450 cars, against 398 cars a year ago.

Trading was dull the remainder of the day and prices held steady. After selling at 74⅝c, July closed ⅝c lower, at 75¼c.

The firm cables in corn were overbalanced by the excellent weather throughout the entire cornbelt, and with the weak wheat market the opening price of the yellow cereal was lower, July being off ⅝ @ ¾c, at 48⅛c to 48¾c. Commission houses were liberal sellers and with little support the market continued on the down grade, July declining to 47⅜@47¾c. Local receipts were 465 cars, with 21 of contract grade.

The close was steady at the decline, July being ⅝c lower, at 47¾c.

Oats opened weaker in sympathy with the decline in prices of wheat and corn and on rains in the East and improved weather in the West and Southwest. July was ⅜ to ½c lower at the start, opening at 30⅝c to 30⅞c and with small trading prices showed practically no change during the first part of the day. Local receipts were 210 cars.

The weakness in grains had a depressing influence on provisions and brought on considerable offerings early in the session and opening prices were easier, with September pork 5c lower at $16.75; September lard 2½c lower, at $8.85, and ribs down 2½c at $9.15. There was no feature in trading and prices showed little variation.

Close: Wheat—July, 75⅛c; old, 75½c; September, 72⅝c; old, 72⅞@73¼c; December, 72½c; old, 72⅝c. Corn—June, 47½c; July, 47@47¼c; December, 35⅝@37⅛c; May, 45½c. GRAIN GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—The market was weak early on fine weather west and lower cables. Later it ruled steady. Cash situation is slow, but the seaboard reported moderate export business at the decline. Statistics are rather bullish, except the large world's shipments. The visible supply is small. Speculative trade was rather light. Much depends on the government report on Wednesday. The consensus of opinion seems to be that it will show from five to eight points lower than previous report. We are inclined to think wheat may be bought on any further break for a moderate rally. Estimated cars, 450.

Corn—Market here was quiet and easier. There was some break on the drought in the middle and eastern states, but so far no general relief is reported. Weather conditions seem to be much more favorable, however. These conditions brought about no great amount of realizing but did check confidence of speculative buying. Cash demand is fair. We think corn should be sold on rallies. Estimated cars, 450.

Oats—Tone of market easier. Rather more favorable weather both east and west was the factor. The large local holders, however, are holding rather stubbornly in their position and the liquidation today was scattered and small. Conditions in the West are steadily improving. Think oats should be sold on the bulge spots. Estimated cars, 280.

Rycroft, of Chicago: The government report which will be published on Wednesday afternoon is likely to show quite a drop in the condition of winter wheat. I would not be surprised if condition was reported as low as 80. Report on oats will no doubt be very bullish and show a crop of less than 700,000,000.

Chicago Record-Herald: Within the past month the new crop futures have advanced at Chicago about 5 cents a bushel. There has been an even greater advance in this period at St. Louis but the Northwestern markets are up about only half as much and the foreign markets less than half. The Liverpool advance is 1½ cents to 2 cents per bushel and Paris futures are no higher. The course of the markets makes it plain that the advance here has been on the winter deterioration. The firming up began soon after the freeze of May and there has been one bull incentive after another since, the dry weather, appearance of insects in the soft wheat belt and last week the floods. Half the advance followed the estimate of a 17 per cent drop in the Missouri wheat condition. There has been very little from aboard during all this period to help the advance. The government crop report for June which will be published Wednesday will in a measure confirm or negative the ideas of crop loss which have been formed from the recent Southwestern claims. If the June winter wheat condition is around 85 there will be a great disposition to regard the recent St. Louis claims of loss as exaggerated. The condition would be a drop from April of 7.6 points but would be 9 points higher than the June percentage last year and 5 points over the mean condition for ten years. A condition of 85 on the area as reviewed in May would suggest a winter wheat crop of over 450,000,000 bus, on the basis of 15.5 bus. as the par of condition. A drop in the winter wheat condition to much lower than 85 would tend to confirm the estimate of the private claims of sensational deterioration over a large area and would probably put an end to the professional skepticism.

SELLING IS HEAVY

Liquidation of Stocks Continues and at Times Violent.

General Rally Later and Strong Tone at the Close.

New York, June 8.—Selling of stocks was renewed at the opening this morning and heavy blocks of the principal speculative issues were thrown over. The advance in the discount rate by the Imperial Bank of Germany caused some selling here for foreign account. Canadian Pacific and Twin City Rapid Transit were carried down 1½; Sugar, 1¾; Atchison, 1½; Illinois Central, Pennsylvania and Missouri Pacific, ¾. Blocks of 1000 to 2200 shares were dealt in in the stock specified.

A feverish rally of a light fraction was without much avail in holding the market, as liquidation was renewed in leading stocks not much affected in the opening selling. Baltimore & Ohio lost 2½, and Southern Railway, Reading, Norfolk & Western, Missouri Pacific, Texas & Pacific, the Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault stocks, United States Steel pfd and Peoples' Gas, 1 to 1½. Atchison lost 1⅞, and Canadian Pacific, 2¾. There were declines also of 4 in Sloss-Sheffield, of 2½ in Twin City and Metropolitan Securities, 3 in Northwestern, 2 in Hocking Valley and New York, Chicago & St. Louis, and 1 to 1⅝ in Biscuit, and 3 in Kansas City Southern stocks. Prices were running off rather rapidly in spots at 11 o'clock, and the general level was below yesterday.

There was less pressure to sell toward noon, but the market did not rally readily.

Dormant stocks, showing large losses were Lake Erie & Western, 5; the pfd., 2; Lackawanna, 2¾; Minneapolis, St. Paul & Soo pfd, and Metropolitan Securities, 3½, Consolidated Electric and Consolidated Gas 2½, and Peoria & Eastern, Canada Southern and Westinghouse Electric, 2; New York Central, Pennsylvania and St. Paul showed some resistance. Bonds were irregular at noon.

Offerings of stock continued abundant after midday. The stream of liquidation sales included Pacific, Union Pacific, Baltimore & Ohio, Readings and People's Gas caused considerable misgivings. These leaders all dropped to a lower level, and showed losses since Saturday of 1¾@2¾, with a maximum in Atchison. Further declines were scored by many other stocks, including 6 in American Express, 3 in Consolidated Gas, 3 in North American, 2¾ in Consolidated Gas, 3 in Lake Shore and 2 or more in various others. Stocks recovered sharply after 1 p. m.

The liquidation was renewed with violence again in Readings and Atchison, driving them down 2⅜ and 3¼ respectively. Other stocks which showed a measure of resistance earlier fell off on this drive. St. Paul losing 1⅞. Copper 1¾. Sugar 2 and Tennessee Coal 2½. New Air Brake slumped 8. North American 5, with a rally of 3. Metropolitan 4½, and Northwestern and Westinghouse 4. Prices of the leaders were a good fraction above the lowest at 2 o'clock, and Reading and Amalgamated recovered a point, but the buying was small.

There was sufficient demand for room shorts to rally active stocks 1 to 1½, and some dormant stocks recovered more than that. Lackawanna rallying 3 on Saturday. In the late dealings Amalgamated rallied to a fraction over Saturday. The close was slightly irregular, but generally steady.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Waldorf to Cee Commission Co.: The question whether the market has turned has been answered affirmatively half a dozen times in the last few weeks by the conscientous people and well-informed to them in each instance believed that the downward movement in the stock market had run its course. These same critics together with others who have become pessimistic more recently agree that the action of the market is strongly suggestive of a change for the better. They point out that at the end of a week of vigorous trading, alarming rumors, serious damage to property by floods, etc., labor troubles, stocks with few exceptions are not materially below their final quotations of a week ago. In the meantime the market has on several occasions appeared to be on the verge of collapse and would have undoubtedly sustained a bad break but for the extension at critical moments of powerful support. The question arises, who was buying, the reply of brokers who were attached to the bulges closely is that purchases for the account Kuhn, Loeb & Co., Morgan and Gould, though made quietly, were the most significant developments of the entire week. With these powerful interests apparently engaged in accumulating securities with which they are identified it is felt that whenever stocks are raided they should be bought. The chances are that the bear party will attempt a further drive today as the bank statement was disappointing and reports from the western corn belt are discouraging but in financial circles there is deeply rooted conviction now that good stocks have declined to a level that discounts both higher rates for money and uncertain harvest outlook in Iowa, Nebraska and Missouri. Bankers agree that while the banks return is unfavorable it probably means the end of gold exports which will be checked by the hardening of money. Traders are hinting that Atchison will be subjected to a very fierce onslaught on the opening of this week. One of the reasons given by bears for this is the reported diversity of opinion of the managers as to the outcome of continuing the four per cent dividend. It is related that a meeting of directors not long ago one of the latter estimate the needs of Atchison at $20,000,000 for improvements and equipments. This so astounded a director who was present that he is said to have expressed the opinion that if Atchison was in need of such money on top, of such great earnings he was in favor of cutting or even passing the dividend.

* * *

C. E. Lewis to B. E. Baker: The Waldorf crowd are predicting 50 for Atchison.

* * *

Ridgley to W. H. Laidley & Co.: The labor situation is gradually righting itself, money rates are normal and the numerous bear rumors are for the most part entirely without foundation of fact. In my judgment it is an absolute sure thing to buy stocks on a scale every point down on a five-point margin. The chances are ten to one that even Union Pacific and Atchison, the weakest on the list, will not go five points lower. It is unlikely that they will go even three points down. They may be within a point of the bottom right now. I think they are, but five points margain will make sure. Better purchases, however, on weak spots, are St. Paul, Tennessee Coal & Iron and Southern Pacific, and many of those stocks which have had big volumes at the bottom like Amalgamated.

* * *

Paine, Webber & Co.: New York: Although many stocks are beginning to look cheap from an investment standpoint, we do not believe we are going to have any substantial advance at present and no not believe there is more than one or two-point turns either way in this market.

* * *

New York to B. E. Baker & Co.: The market should be a purchase at this level for a sharp rally and should stocks sell off any we would, but for a turn only. As before stated we look for a sharp rally before the end of the week.

* * *

Dow-Jones to W. H. Laidley & Co.: The next dividend on 10,000 shares of Amalgamated has been sold for ¾ of 1 per cent and ⅝ is bid for the next dividend on 1000 more. The last dividend was ½ per cent.

* * *

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market is nervous, irregular and generally lower. It has been raided severely by the bear element which is now unnerous. There is, however, indications of good support under good stocks and conservative outside buying is increasing. The government crop report, while it will likely show some decrease in wheat conditions will not, we think, be much of a bearish factor on stocks. Notwithstanding the unfavorable bank statement interest rates are still easy. The short interest must be large. We think stocks should be bought and any declines from present prices will be regained. The following stocks are selling on a very attractive investment basis: Atchison, preferred, Baltimore & Ohio, Missouri Pacific, New York Central, Pennsylvania, People's Gas, St. Paul, Union Pacific and United States Steel. We recommend their purchase.

* * *

Dormant stocks, showing large losses were Lake Erie & Western, 5; the pfd., 2; Lackawanna, 2¾; Minneapolis, St. Paul & Soo pfd, and Metropolitan Securities, 3½, Consolidated Electric and Consolidated Gas 2½, and Peoria & Eastern, Canada Southern and Westinghouse Electric, 2; New York Central, Pennsylvania and St. Paul showed some resistance. Bonds were irregular at noon.

* * *

F. M. Dick to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market was extremely weak today. There was heavy selling and much frightened liquidation. Aggressive drives caused sharp declines, particularly in Atchison, Union Pacific, Missouri Pacific and Baltimore & Ohio. Amalgamated Copper was again under pressure and was sold on the reduction in copper quotations. Atchison became the weakest feature. Declines were the rule all through the list, but good support showed in high class issues like Pennsylvania, New York Central and the Vanderbilt group. Toward the close sure was lighter and some support was shown. Later there was a general rally and the tone at the close was strong.

COPPER GOSSIP.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: Copper was quoted a quarter cent lower today. It is said that consumers are beginning to test the metal and expect lower prices, but the bearishness is based wholly on the weakness of Amalgamated stock. There was continued heavy liquidation of it on the New York market and prices were lower. The worst thing about the market at present is that prices have gone down until some of the big mines are forced to sell. While this kind of liquidation is on one can only guess as to when the turn will come.

* * *

New York to Paine, Webber & Co.: The copper metal market for first time since Amalgamated started to break showed signs of weakness. Prices today have been reduced ¼ cent per pound on lake and electrolytic to 14½c.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, June 8.—The cotton market opened firm at an advance of 5@12 points and continued to advance until towards noon, a net rise of 36@37 points on the near positions and 40@6 points on the new crop positions was apparent, with a special demand for July contracts which made a new record by selling up to 11.42, the last high figure having been 11.36. The demand was largely from shorts and winter houses and the commission class generally representing larger business, the entire improvement being predicted on the more or less alarming character of the weather and drop accounts.

A TWIRLER COMING

Another Speedy One Coming Here From Indianapolis This Week.

First Game With Fargo Postponed on Account of Wet Grounds.

Duluth has a new pitcher. His name is McGaughey, and Dale Gear, of the Kansas City team, guarantees that he will make good. He is now en route to Duluth from Indianapolis, and will be seen in one of the games during the present week.

The first of the Fargo series this afternoon was postponed on account of rain. Both teams seemed glad of the holiday. Fargo has had a hard luck streak lately, though the men all look in fine condition. The Duluth team is somewhat crippled. Capt. Murphy's injury on Saturday was much more serious than was supposed at first. He has gone to Chicago for a week or so to get treatment for the injured hand, and incidentally to watch the work of some promising men that desire to wear the Duluth uniform.

Mueller was slated to pitch for Duluth this afternoon, and Quillan was to have taken Murphy's place at third, while McCoy, right-fielder-surprise-pitcher-crack-thrower, was to have been placed in Quillan's place at second.

Lyons, a new infielder from Omaha, may be here in time for tomorrow's game, and in that event he will be played either at third or second base.

"Locie" Kline, the popular catcher, says professional baseball life is not to his liking and he will soon return to railroading, according to a report circulated among his friends. It is said that several of the Northern league teams would like to arrange for his services, but Kline seems to think that an occasional game at home is enough for him, and he can make just as good if not better money at his regular business.

On the trip away from home the big fellow pluckily caught every game, despite the fact that he was suffering with a split finger and a painfully lame arm.

REV. FATHER MACKEY DIES

Succumbs to Bright's Disease—Funeral on Wednesday.

Father T. J. Mackey died this morning shortly after 9 o'clock at St. Mary's hospital of Bright's disease, after an illness that had confined him there since January last.

Rev. Father Mackey has been stationed at Duluth in the service of his church, the Roman Catholic, for the past eleven years, and was known and beloved by a wide circle of friends and former parishioners. He was a man of great affability and broad charity.

Father Mackey was born 68 years ago in Tipperary, Ireland. He was ordained a priest at the age of 24 years. In this country he served for five years at Dubuque, Iowa, and for four years was on collecting tours in the interests of the work of the church. Eleven years ago he came to Duluth and was stationed at the cathedral for three years, after that going to West Duluth, where he had charge of St. James' parish for some time. Father Mackey leaves a number of relatives in this country, nearly all of whom are members of either the priesthood or sisterhood. One sister is mother superior of an academy at Troy, N. Y. Miss Catherine Fogarty, of this city, is also a relative.

The funeral will take place Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock from the cathedral, and there will be imposing requiem ceremonies, in which a large number of the clergy will take part. The Ancient Order of Hibernians, of which the deceased was a member, will be present in a body. The interment will be at Calvary cemetery.

Northern Pacific Officials Visit Duluth Without Notice of Coming.

General Manager Cooper, of the Northern Pacific road, was in Duluth Saturday with a special train, and a party of which it is said President Mellen was one.

The train went to Fond du Lac and to the Twentieth avenue station, and was at West Duluth for a short time. The trip was one of inspection made to look over the route of the new train service from Duluth, also to casually view the track of the road to Fond du Lac.

The party was at Fond du Lac in the afternoon, and probably went back to St. Paul without returning to Duluth.

No notice of the trip was given the local offices of the Northern Pacific down town.

EXPECTED JUNE 20.

Steel Corporation Officers Are Coming Here Then.

Second Vice President James Gayley, of the Steel corporation, and other officials, whose western trip was delayed some time ago, are expected to reach Duluth June 20. The party will be shown over the corporation's property here, but it is not likely that the visit will be a long one.

WEST END MAN IS DROWNED

Carl Norgren Found In Bay Near Scott-Graff Mill.

In a pond of water near the Scott-Graff lumber mill, the dead body of Carl Norgren was found this morning.

Mr. Norgren was about 50 years old and quite well known throughout the West End. His friends are unable to account for his drowning, especially in the locality where his body was found as he was never known to visit that part of the city.

A watch in his vest pocket had stopped at 6:45 and it is thought that he met his death about that time last evening as his movements could all be accounted for up to 6 o'clock.

The body was taken to Burkan & Crawford's undertaking rooms on Second avenue west and the funeral service will be held there tomorrow afternoon. The interment will be at Hermantown.

RAILROADS DEMORALIZED.

Columbian, S. C., Shut Off From Up Country.

Columbia, S. C., June 8.—Railroad connections are in a more demoralized state today than at any other time since the Pacolet disaster. The Southern has two lines from Columbia to the Piedmont range, and the coast line one. The Southern's two lines were cut off Sunday by the destruction of trestle work at Shelton and at Alston. All trains out of Columbia were then forced to depend upon the coast line. But at 10 o'clock five reaches of the trestle over Broad river were undermined and the last connecting line between Columbia and the up country was cut off. Trains on the Southern and Seaboard had been coming into Columbia and being sent over the coast line. But these too are now detoured by way of Augusta. It will be forty-eight hours before trains can be gotten into Spartenburg.

Governor Aycock, of North Carolina, was waterbound here this morning and was unable to reach Erskine college, where he had an appointment. Hundreds of people are thrown out of employment in Columbia, as the Congare has flooded several power houses.

STARTLING EVIDENCE.

Fresh testimony in great quantity is constantly coming in, declaring Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, coughs and colds to be unequaled. A recent expression from T. J. McFarland, Deterville, Va., serves as an example. He writes: "I had bronchitis for three years and doctored all the times without being benefited. Then I began taking Dr. King's New Discovery, and a few bottles wholly cured me." Equally effective in curing all lung and throat troubles, consumption, pneumonia and grip. Guaranteed by all druggists. Trial bottles free, regular sizes 50c, and $1.00.

IN NEED OF MORE

Not Enough Accommodations For Traveling Men Yet Secured.

Crowd Coming One of Largest Duluth Has Entertained.

Although Secretary Eva of the Commercial club has received a number of returns from his request of the addresses of those who would rent rooms during the U. C. T. convention here the latter part of the week, the list is not yet as large as it should be, considering the class of visitors that will be here for a few days. An opportunity will be offered all who care to send their addresses for the next three days either by person, by postal card or by telephone.

Secretary Eva wishes to compile all the names sent in and have the list ready for handy reference when the traveling men and their families begin to arrive June 11. The traveling men will make the Commercial club their headquarters while here, having been tendered the use of the club rooms and all the courtesies of the club by a unanimous vote at the last regular club meeting.

The first contingent of the visitors will arrive in Duluth Thursday afternoon at 6 o'clock, and another big delegation will reach town a half hour later.

Secretary Eva of the Commercial club has received the following train schedules relative to the conventionists:

June 11, a special train bearing members of the U. C. T. association will leave St. Paul over the Great Northern road at 1:30 p. m., Minneapolis at 2 p. m., and will arrive in Duluth at 6:30 p. m.

The same day another special train will leave Grand Forks at 7:45 a. m., Crookston at 8:45 a. m., and will arrive in Duluth at 6 p. m. The Grand Forks special will stop for supper at Bemidji, where the traveling men and their families will be tendered a dinner by the citizens and business men.

The indications all point to a monster industrial parade besides the names already published of those who will partiepate, other local items are daily signifying their attention to take part. Gately, Blake & Waite, wholesale hats and caps, notified Secretary Eva of the Commercial club to put the firm's name on the list.

APPLICATION REFUSED.

Railroad Men Must Stand Trial as Others.

Trenton, N. J., June 8.—The supreme court today refused the application of A. J. Cassatt, E. P. C. Young and others, who are under indictment for responsibility in connection with the Clifton Avenue, Newark, trolley accident, in which several children were killed for a trial before the entire supreme court and also a struck jury. Those under the indictment are all officers of the trolley company. The decision states that the court is without power to grant either one of the two motions. One was for a trial before Newark circuit court and the other was for a trial before the court with a struck jury. The court says that a motion for a trial before the whole court can only be made on behalf of the state and that a struck jury can be granted only in the county in which the indictment was found.

PIECE BY PIECE.

The Longyear Mansion Is Arriving at Brookline.

Boston, June 8.—Piece by piece, the half million dollar mansion of John M. Longyear has begun to come to Brookline from Marquette, Mich. It will take several months for the entire structure, mostly of stone, to be transported east, and then it will be built again in the fashionable Boston suburb. The entire work of transporting and rebuilding the mansion will occupy about two years. Mr. Longyear formerly was mayor of Marquette.

SENIOR CLASS

Does Handsome Thing For Athletic Association.

The senior class of the high school came to the rescue of the Athletic association which has been in debt since last fall and offered to pay out of its surplus all of the unsettled debts of that association.

A vote of thanks was passed by the association. The amount which the seniors will be called upon to pay amounts to $75.

The semi-annual election of the association was held at the meeting and the following officers were elected: Frank Scoble, '04, president; Albert Evans, '04, vice president; Harold St. Clair, '04, secretary; Edward Furni, '05, treasurer; Allen Nelson, '06, recorder; Cramer and Deetz, sergeants-at-arms, and Porter Markell, mascot.

BRIDGE GOES OUT.

Topeka, June 8.—The pontoon bridge connecting North Topeka with the north approach of the big Mehlan bridge, which latter spans the river connecting both parts of the town, went out at 10 o'clock today. This severs all connection with the North Side, save by boat and it is not thought that it will be possible to repair the damage before Wednesday. This will result in great hardship to the people now in North Topeka, as all the boats sent here from the outside have been taken away.

WORST OF EXPERIENCES.

Can anything be worse than to feel that every minute will be your last? Such was the experience of Mrs. S. H. Newson, Decatur, Ala. "For three years," she writes, "I endured insufferable pain from indigestion, stomach and bowel trouble. Death seemed inevitable when doctors and all remedies failed. At length I was induced to try Electric Bitters and the result was miraculous. I improved at once and now I'm completely recovered." For liver, kidney, stomach and bowel troubles Electric Bitters is the only medicine. Only 50c. It's guaranteed by all druggists.

REPORTED PURCHASE

Missabe Road Said to Have Bought Much Proctorknott Property.

The Duluth, Missabe & Northern Railroad company is reported to have purchased several hundred lots in Proctorknott from Beriah Magoffin.

None of the officials of the road could be seen this afternoon and others asked regarding the reported purchase said they knew nothing about it.

The Missabe road has long been cramped for room at Proctorknott, and the railroad shops, which have been talked of for years, could never be erected, it was said, because of lack of room. The company owned very little land there, comparatively speaking.

It has become imperative now, it is said, to secure property on which to construct new yard room. The 400 cars which have recently been delivered to the company will have to be stored somewhere this winter, and it will be necessary to secure new yard room for that purpose.

Rumors were prevalent to the effect that the road was about to do a great deal of building of houses for employes and other improvements, but this is doubted. The company has for years been figuring on building extensive shops at Proctorknott, but at present there appears to be little necessity for them.

It is probable that the company will arrange to let employes have lots at a cheap figure, as an inducement to get men to live in the city, the property to be outside the yard and shop limits.

Mr. Magoffin has decided to leave Duluth and is getting his affairs in shape to go back to Kentucky for good. His family is already in the native state of the son of Kentucky's war governor, and he expects to follow them in a short time.

It is unlikely that the Missabe road will do anything in the way of improving the property this year, and perhaps not next year, as so far as is known no plans have been made for building.

VIADUCT FELL.

Great Northern Passenger Hurt at Minneapolis.

Minneapolis, June 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—A section of the Union station viaduct across the street over the railroad tracks fell late this afternoon on an incoming Great Northern train. The section was 50 by 50 feet. One man on the rear platform was hurt. His arm was crushed.

THIS IS NOT FUNNY.

Some genius or other once made a very funny picture of a room as it seems to a imu who has walked about it in the dark, says the Brooklyn Eagle. Every piece of furniture was exaggerated in the direction calculated to make the greatest amount of trouble. The mantelpiece extended so far from the wall that no shoulder was likely to miss it. The rockers of a chair swept boldly across the floor from corner to corner. Everything was in the way.

An acquaintance of mine who had seen this picture went to Lakewood last Saturday to spend Sunday and the following holiday with friends. He was prepared to have a lot of fun golfing, shooting, sporting in whatsoever way the weather might suggest, but surely getting some good exercise on foot, rain or shine.

Saturday evening was spent in arranging a program of outdoor entertainment for the two days, and my acquaintance went to bed with his noddle full of joyous anticipation—so full, indeed, that he took little note of the room to which he had been assigned.

He was almost asleep when he happened to remember that he had not wound his watch, and, since he knew just where his vest hung, over the back of a chair at the other end of the room, he thought he could reach it in the dark without trouble.

As to that, however, he was undeceived when, on his way across, he stubbed one of his big toes against a trunk corner. The extemporaneous oration he delivered on the spot might have called out the fire department if the windows had been open. Then, on the way back he stubbed his other big toe on a trunk and—well, since the Eagle is not printed on asbestos, I will take no chances: I won't even intimate in a distant and modified way what he said.

The rumpus he made brought his host hurrying to the door. The guest was lying across the bed, holding a big toe in each hand and howling with pain.

"What's up?" asked the host.

"Up? What in —— do you mean by putting me into your—baggage room to sleep?"

"Baggage room?"

"Yes, baggage room. There are trunks enough scattered about here to take a duchess around the world and back again. Don't move till you've struck a light. You'll break every bone in your body."

"What do you mean?"

"Mean? I mean I've crippled myself for life on the dozen or more gigantic trunks you've got stored in this room."

The host turned on the light. There, in a niche, stood a tiny, innocent-looking steamer trunk, the front corners of which extended perhaps an inch and a half into the room. There was unobstructed space enough for ten men to have walked abreast from the bed to the chair where the vest hung.

The host sent for a surgeon, who came and commanded the guest not to leave his bed for two days.

So, there he lay, with his feet like boxing gloves; and everybody who came near him had to listen to a description of the picture he remembered of a room as it seems to a man who has walked about it in the dark.

"It is not a funny picture," he maintained. "It is not a caricature. It is truth, absolute, serious, unexaggerated truth."

He came home to Brooklyn this morning wearing a pair of borrowed felt slippers and leaning on two crutches.

If anybody happens to know who owns that picture I might find a purchaser if it is for sale.

ARGUMENT BY YOUNG

Before Judge Lochren In Behalf of Securities Company.

Says It Is a Holding and Not Railroad Company.

St. Paul, June 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Judge George B. Young today continued his arguments on behalf of the Northern Securities company, in the suit of the state against that corporation, which is being heard by Judge Lochren.

He occupied the entire morning session, devoting himself principally to an attempt to prove that the merger company was in reality a holding company for the stock of a few large holders who wished to protect themselves from raids by unscrupulous persons with designs on their roads, and who desired to consolidate their investments in convenient form.

It was really a private arrangement, contended this judge, and other holders were not especially invited to come in with them unless they liked. It was in no sense a railroad company and was not incorporated in this state because it did no business here and never intended to.

The arguments of the state were ridiculed by him as puerile and wholly immaterial.

The issuing of the joint circular governing rates to junctional points he justified, by saying the original rate in force was a joint one, and any variation of it would therefore naturally be a joint move.

The point which he emphasized the most was that, inasmuch as the so-called Hill-Morgan coterie did not own a majority of the stock of the Northern Securities, it could not be said to possess control of that company. This group of capitalists barely owned $140,000,000 of the $350,000,000 stock of the merger company, and therefore, he said, the arguments of the counsel of the state were not "in the saddle."

None of the arguments of the state citing grievances imposed on citizens of the state by reason of the forming of the merger had any bearing, contended Judge Young, on the question of the legality of the Securities company. One reason he cited for the incorporation of the company in New Jersey, was that the legislature and the courts of Minnesota had for years manifested a spirit of hostility toward large railroad enterprises.

He denied that the Northern Securities company has or ever can have any voice in the control of the Northern Pacific and Great Northern railroads. Mr. Mellen's testimony in the federal suit was quoted to show that neither Hill nor the Northern Securities company has any voice in the management of the Northern Pacific system. Mr. Mellen personally had not even turned his Northern Pacific stock into the Northern Securities corporation. This testimony went to show that the managements of the two companies were more independent of each other since the organization of the Securities company than before.

SOME ANIMALS FOOLISH.

Marsupials From Australia Are the Prize Idiots.

The stupidity of the possum is well known to Southern negroes. It is regarded as the least intelligent of native American animals, but its intellect is a shining light compared with that of its cousins, the animals of Australia, that, like it, carry their young in pouches, says the Washington Post. Their stupidity has recently been brought to the attention of those in charge of the National Zoo, which through the United States consuls at Sidney, Melbourne, Newcastle, Hobart town and Adelaide, has recently acquired the finest and most complete collection of Australian animals in the world, a fact noticed by the English papers.

It is well known to naturalists that the marsupial animals—that is to say, the kangaroos, wombats, thylacines and dasyures of Australia and the opossums of the two Americas, which stand very low in the scale of evolution and form a sort of connecting link between mammals and reptiles—are of an interior order of intelligence. The American possum, however, having for centuries been obliged to steer clear of wild cats, ocelots, pumas, wolves and other enemies, to say nothing of man, has, in order to survive, developed a certain shrewdness not to be found in the Australian marsupials. The Australian animals, having no enemies to combat and an abundance of food, have come to be the stupidest animals in the world, which accounts for their rapid extermination when the country was settled by the British.

"I am an old animal man," said Superintendent Bartlett, of the National Zoo, "having served my apprenticeship, as it were, in the old Philadelphia Zoo when it was about the only institution of its kind in America, and I have found that in dealing with the American, European, Asiatic and African quadrupeds I can generally rely upon their having enough sense to keep out of harm's way. An elephant or camel, for instance, never thinks of running into a fence until it has first examined the fence closely to satisfy itself that no harm will come of the attempt to break through it, and so it is with the others, but from what experience I have had with marsupials I have become convinced that if they possess any brains at all they are in their feet rather than their head.

Some five months ago we received from Consul Goding, of Newcastle, New South Wales, a female thylacine, or Tasmanian marsupial wolf, with two young. I have had excellent luck with these three animals, and they are now in the best of health. Being among the rarest and most extraordinary animals in the world, and the first to reach America when they arrived, I decided to place them in a large yard, inclosed by a strong wire fence, in a part of the grounds seldom visited by sight-seers. My intention in this was to give them an opportunity to rest and recuperate after their long ocean voyage from the Antipodes, cooped up in a tight cage The young were still in the pouch (think of a wolf carrying her cubs in a marsupium), and by thus insolating the mother and giving her plenty of room, I hoped to bring the young up to a state of maturity without accident or death. We turned her into the lot, and I don't think I ever witnessed such absurd and idiotic doings. In my life as were performed by this thylacine. She would run full tilt into the wire fence, as though it were so much air. Every time she ran into the fence she was knocked down or doubled up in a heap, but she was up and trying it over again, repeating the effort as often as she failed. I thought at first that she was frightened at the Zoo employes, who were standing about, so I ordered all hands to leave, and I retired a short distance to take note of further developments. Our absence from the inclosure made no more difference than if a thousand had been present. The Tasmanian wolf ran helter skelter about the corral, looking up at the sky and bolting heading against the fence, until the two cubs fell out of her marsupium. Realizing that she would break her neck, as well as kill the cubs, I had her caught and held, while I replaced the young ones in her pouch. We then removed her to a cage in the carnivora house, between a pair of Small leopards and two striped hyenas. Here we arranged the interior in such a manner that she could injure neither herself nor the cubs.

"This first performance was about the worst case of downright stupidity, I thought, that ever came to my attention; but it was only the first of a whole series of similar doings, which convinced me that the thylacine belongs to a race of natural born idiots. Animals will often run headlong into a wire fence, but seldom more than once. One trial is unusually sufficient to teach them that the effort is not only useless, but dangerous, but with the thylacine it made no difference. The moment she was knocked head over ears by contact with the wire netting just so soon would she rise to repeat the performance as though nothing had occurred.

"Time went on, and the cubs left the pouch and began growing and thriving at a famous rate, to my great satisfaction and pleasure. Visitors and keepers both remarked the fact that the cubs played and acted in a manner utterly idiotic, aimless and stupid, and men accustomed to handling carnivora, especially wolves and foxes, frequently spoke to me about the little thylacines, saying that while they were generally able to tell by their actions what a young wolf, lion or tiger wanted or desired, it was impossible to draw any safe conclusions from the conduct of the young thylacines. If we gave them their food and water in vessels different from the ones we used the first day, and to which they had grown accustomed, they would shy off into a corner and go hungry all day, frightened out of their wits by the new pans and dishes.

"The entire south front of the carnivora house is fitted with outdoor cages, each of which covers a very considerable territory, giving the animals ample room for exercise and on the first warm day in February I opened the door dividing their cage from the out one so that mother and young might pass into the open air and enjoy a little exercise. Instead of doing what I expected all three became so badly frightened at the open door that we had to close it forthwith in order to prevent them from breaking their necks and skulls by running against the iron bars in their frantic efforts to avoid the open door.

"You may think I am stretching the blanket a little when I tell you these animals actually become frightened at each other. I would not have believed it myself had I not seen it. One day the keeper made up a bed of hay for the mother in a corner of their cage, and after he left she took a notion into her head that she wanted to sleep in some other quarter of the compartment. To do this she began carrying the hay in bunches in her mouth to the spot where she proposed taking her afternoon nap. I was in the house at the time, directing some plumbers who came out to look at the steam pipes ,and hearing a terrible commotion in this cage, hastened forward to see what was the matter. The young were terribly frightened and were trying their level best to butt their brains out by running against the iron bars of the cage.

"At the same time I saw the mother carrying the hay about in her mouth, but for all that I could not make out the cause at the cubs' fright. I remained in doubt for about a minute, and then the whole thing flashed upon me. As she carried the hay from one part of the cage to another the head of Mrs. Thylacine was invisible to her young ones. All they could see was a bunch of hay moving about the cage on two legs, and the little idiots were so densely stupid that they could not reason the thing out for themselves. They simply jumped at the conclusion that the hay which they saw moving across the cage was some new and terrible being, such as they had never seen before.

"Their addle-headedness is a thing beyond belief, and it is no wonder that this animal was nearly exterminated by the colonists. One never knows what will frighten them. With some of the keepers they are as tame as pet dogs, while at other times they become crazed with at the merest trifle. They seem to be slaves to habit, and are easily scared by anything out of the ordinary. The same is true of the kangaroos, phalangers, wombats and dasyures of our collection, all of which have less sense than a common mud turtle."

TO EXTERMINATE BEAVERS.

They Have Become Far Too Abundant In Maine.

Beavers are becoming so numerous in Maine that lumbermen are forming a conspiracy to compass their extermination, says the Brooklyn Eagle. The increase in the number of beavers is remarkable, considering the activity of poachers and the destruction of the forests. Of late years they have been remarkable for the construction of their dams and snug winter quarters, the work in some places being of such magnitude and so cleverly done that people have traveled miles to see and admire it.

At Caribou a colony of beavers built a fine large dam, and were just completing their houses when some miscreant destroyed the entire work and killed many of the animals by the explosion of a heavy charge of dynamite in the stream. The beavers that survived were neither alarmed nor discouraged, however, but set immediately to work rebuilding the dam and the cute little houses, so that in a few weeks the colony was better prepared than before for the long siege of winter. The townspeople were enraged at the destruction of the dam, and have offered rewards for the detection of the man who exploded the dynamite, while several citizens have gone so far as to threaten to shoot the first man caught injuring or interfering in any way with the furry homebuilders, which are regarded with affection by all the people there.

An Aroostook county man who has spent his life in the woods and knows all about beavers, speaks thus interestingly of the little animals:

He told that a movement is now under way by the land owners in Maine to have them destroyed. They not only kill the growing timber, but their dams obstruct the streams and brooks down which the logs are driven. I have helped to cut away the dams and clear away the houses that obstructed some streams, and, returning three weeks later, found the dams and houses rebuilt and the streams again full of brush.

"The dams and houses are built of mud, sticks, stones and the green branches of trees. The beavers do not use their tails for trowels, as some would have us believe. The mud is carried between the chin and paws. They cannot make a stick lie at the bottom of a pond unless they load it with stones and mud, and then it often gets away from them, and comes to the surface again. They cannot make trees fall in any direction they choose, but, as most of the trees along the bank lean toward the stream, they will naturally fall into the water when gnawed off.

"Neither do the beavers live in one place always. When the white birch, willows and other trees on which they feed begin to get scarce, the colony, after tearing a hole in the dam, will disband. One coming to the deserted works will see the bottom of the now empty pond covered with short peeled sticks, and the round hole in each house, near the bottom of the stream, that was used for a door. Go along up stream and you will see several holes in the bank, in which the beaver hides when his village is attacked and the houses destroyed. The entrance to this hole is always under water, if the dam is intact; but if you take the pains to follow it up you will find that it terminates beneath some large tree, near the surface of the ground. Here in the summer the young beavers are born, and not in the houses, as some writers tell us.

"When autumn draws near, the beavers migrate, generally up stream to some convenient spot, and a new dam and houses are rapidly constructed. The trees along the bank are felled and huge piles of wood are heaped up before the doors of the houses, always under water. The houses are built from the bottom and rise above the water. When they are plastered outside with mud, they are about the size and shape of a haycock. I have seen as many as thirty houses in one pond.

"When winter comes, the pond freezes solid. The beaver is then safe from all enemies save man, and a man must be a cunning hunter to get the furry and chubby little quadruped. The chamber of the house is above water and is lined with moss and leaves. The door comes out under water, close to the brush pile. The houses are not connected.

"The beaver lives in winter upon his store of bark and tender shoots gathered in the fall and does not come out until spring. On the upper side of the dam he has large quantities of material stored, to use in repairs, should any damage be done to his dam or house. It is said that the beaver sleeps in his chamber with his tail hanging in the water. If anything happens to the dam, he knows it at once, for his tail telegraphs him, so to speak, when the water begins to fall.

"The modern way of trapping beaver is to cut a hole in the ice between the wood-pile and the house. A set steel trap is then lowered by means of a split stick until it sinks into the mud and is thus concealed. The chain of the trap is fastened to a dry stake, driven solidly into the pond. The beaver discovers the stake and, trying to remove it gets caught As he cannot readily gnaw a dry stick, he soon drowns.

"I have known beaver to occupy ponds where lumbermen have built dams in the woods, but they generally prefer to do their own work. A few years ago some beavers were discovered in the pond of a mill on Hardwood creek, near Parkhurst, Me. Someone hoisted the gate, but no beavers came out. Next morning, however, the flume was found to be choked effectually with stumps, logs, stones and mud and the water thus stopped. As there were only two beavers there, the work they did in one short night was remarkable—a good day's work for two able-bodied men."

RAILROADS AND THE LAW.

The New York Journal of Commerce remarks that two things have been distinctly settled by recent judicial decisions in regard to "commerce among the several states." One is that this includes railroad transportation, beyond doubt; the other is that congress has "plenary" and exclusive power for its regulation. Why, then, asks the Journal of Commerce, should not the national government simplify the exercise of its exclusive power by requiring all railroads engaged in interstate commerce to be incorporated under a federal statute which shall clearly define their privileges and obligations, and make plain their limitations?

This seems a revolutionary suggestion, but it is not to be contemptuously dismissed, says the Boston Transcript. The right of congress to enact such legislation seems clearly deducible from the decisions of the courts, for if congress has plenary and exclusive power to regulate commerce among the states it must have authority to prescribe the conditions under which it shall be conducted. If the power of congress is clear, the wisdom of exercising it in the manner suggested is the real subject for discussion. From the public point of view there would be a great gain in definite nes and uniformity of legislation. At present there are wide variations in the laws of the different states. A railway chartered in one state, with certain privileges and under certain restrictions, may traverse another state where the regulations are altogether different, and may there come into competition with a railway chartered in a third state under still different conditions. The state which both lines cross may be unable to enforce its laws against either. This was conspicuously the case with the roads controlled by the Northern Securities company, one road being chartered in Minnesota and the other in Wisconsin, and both controlled by a company chartered in New Jersey. Such confusion and irresponsibility may temporarily serve speculative ends, but in the long run they cannot be good either for the roads or the public.

That the situation is not without legal remedy is shown by the decisions of the courts in the cases of the Transmissouri Freight association, the Joint Traffic association and the Northern Securities company. But in each of these cases the remedy is found in applying the principles of the Sherman anti-trust act. The speech which the author of this act made in introducing the measure shows clearly enough that it was meant to include only transportation companies. The decisions of the courts are, therefore, not in conflict with the intentions of congress. Nevertheless, the act was aimed primarily not at railroads, but at trade combinations, and its provisions, when applied to railroads, while not ineffective, as the decisions of the courts show, are incongruous and confusing.

If now there were rational and well-considered federal statutes under which railroads engaged in interstate commerce could be chartered, and by which they could be regulated, there would be an end to existing complexities and contradictions, to the relief, it would seem, of railway managers not less than of the public. The remedy may be remote; perhaps it is impracticable; but it deserves consideration.

A SAD, SAD TALE.

He had a sure thing, and he was sure it was sure, says the Brooklyn Eagle. But he missed the train to the race track, so he had to telegraph a friend:

"Put $20 on for me," was the message he sent.

Then he at once began the customary celebration by asking several friends what they would have.

"I've got a bit of money on a 20 to 1 shot that is a cenatinty," he explained. "I happened to know that the thing is all framed up."

Later, just as he was ordering a few more bottles put on ice, he received this message from his friend at the track:

"Put $30 on what?"

Thereupon he made all haste to telegraph to this effect:

"Put $20 on Nancy to win in the second race. Don't fail."

Then he explained at some length how the kangaroos, wombats, thylacines would win, and meanwhile, with the help of some of his friends, disposed of the contents of some of the bottles, after which he took up a position at the ticker. Presently this was reeled off:

"Second race—Nancy, first; Brown Bess, second."

"I told you so!" he cried jubilantly.

But immediately afterward this telegram was received from the friend at the track:

"Too late. Why didnt you name the horse in the first telegram?"

He walked wearily out.

"Where are you going?" his friends called after him.

"I am going," he replied sadly, "to get the address of some good asylum for feebleminded sports."

The result in this case is about the same as in others where people bet on sure things, but the method of arriving at that result is a trifle different.

WATERS RECEDING IN VICINITY OF ST. LOUIS

The Flood Reached Highest Mark Since 1858.

Death List Will Be Larger Than Indicated.

St. Louis, June 9.—At the rate of from eight to ten miles an hour, the Mississippi river, over half a mile wide and ninety feet deep in the channel, is pouring past St. Louis toward the gulf. For a week the river, slowly at first, and then gaining in speed, crept out of its ordinary confines, until on June 8, 1903, it had established a high water mark of 37.5 feet, the highest flood tide since the same mark was unofficially established in 1858. The river is now receding. Thirty feet above low water mark is the danger line for St. Louis and the river rose seven and one-half fee above the danger line. The crest of the flood has passed St. Louis and any further destruction to be wrought will be from the possible crumbling of undermined buildings, and to the country below this point, danger of which is lessened by the spreading of the river over the lowlands.

Rapid falling of the water it is expected will quickly drain the inundated section on the Illinois side, where the property loss will be heaviest and repairs to the damaged property will soon be possible.

Reports are coming in from Madison, Granite City and Venice, which indicate the death list may be larger than first estimated. It is known that at least twenty people have been drowned in thatv icinity. A report was received early today from Newport, a small town three miles from Garnite City, that a school building in which are sheltered fifty children, was tottering and threatened to collapse at any moment. Appeals were made for assistance, but there was no way to reach them from St. Louis or East St. Louis, the only places that can now render aid.

City Attorney Robert Hagneur, of Venice, is reported by his relatives to be missing and they fear he perished when the city was overwhelmed. Deputy Coroner William Ball, of Madison county, and his son, who lived in Venice, have been given up as lost. Louis Kisher and wife, who lived in Madison, are believed to have been drowned in the breaking of the levee that flooded that town. William Anchor and Mrs. Clifton and her infant have been missing for several days and it is thought they have perished.

In one party of refugees, near Edwardsville, four cases of smallpox developed yesterday. The officials of Madison county are doing all in their power to isolate the cases and prevent a spread of the disease.

Numerous families, penniless and having no friends to whom to go, refused to leave their flooded homes.

In many cases these people are actualy starving and food will be furnished them by men in skiffs at once.

At 7 a. m. the official gauge registered 37.4 feet, a decline of .1 of a foot from yesterday morning, when the crest of the flood, 37.5 feet was reached. The tendency of the river this morning seems to be to rise, but the great volume of water coming from above is spreading out and does not make itself apparent on the gauge by added inches.

In Madison, Venice and Granite City it is estimated that at least 1000 men, women and children are in a precarious condition. Immediate steps are being taken to remove the people to places of safety and comparative comfort.

In East St. Louis, where the railroad yards and that part along the river on both sides of the Eads bridge is flooded, the conditions are the same as yesterday. All of last night men were at work strengthening the levee that is keeping the water back from the business and residence sections of the city. The railroad situation shows no improvement.

Memphis, Tenn., June 9.—Some concern is felt here over the flood of the Mississipi river to the north. A stage of thirty-four feet is thought to be probable at Memphis and large forces of men are engaged in repairing the breaks left in the Arkansas levees north of this city made by the late flood. Repair work at two breaks has given way and water is passing to the country behind the levees, flooding a considerable area.

Washington, June 9.—The crest of the flood at St. Louis was reached on Monday morning with a gauge reading of 37.5 feet, as forecasted on Friday last. This just equals the high water reading of May 19, 1858, but is 3.9 feet below the great high water mark of June 20, 1844. The water this morning stands at 37.4 feet and from this time forward will fall steadily, though at first slowly. The Upper Mississippi is also falling slowly and steadily while below St. Louis the rise continues. The stage at Cairo this morning was 42 feet, a rise of one foot and at Memphis 28.6 feet, a rise of 1.1 since Monday morning. A crest will be reached at Cairo Wednesday or Thursday at about forty-three or forty-four feet.

MEMBERS OF COMMONS FIGHT HARD TO RETAIN GRAIN TAX

Chaplin's Amendment to Budget Is Presented.

Nationalist Members Will Support Government.

London, June 9.—The approach of the first serious parliamentary brush in the free trade protection fight filled every seat in the house of commons this afternoon. Before facing the situation, which must largely place them at the mercy of the Liberal and Irish votes, the members of the government attended an important cabinet meeting, at which all the ministers were present except Gerald Balfour, president of the board of trade, who was ill.

Henry Chaplin, M. P., former president of the board of agriculture, and the malcontent Unionists were actively engaged early in the day in and around Westminster in rallying the supporters of Mr. Chaplin's amendment to the budget bill, which declares that the removal of tax on grain involves a needless and injurious disturbance of trade and a serious loss of revenue, without substantial relief for the consumer, and that if any taxes are removed it should be those levied on tea and other articles of general consumption.

Before the debate opened, Premier Balfour ascertained from John Redmond, the Irish leader, that the Nationalist members of parliament would support the government as against Mr. Chaplin. The Liberal leader, Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, had already announced that his party would also uphold the proposal of Chancellor of the Exchequer Ritchie to remit the grain tax. This practically ensured the government from possible defeat at the hands of its own supporters. The curious situation created the keenest interest.

At the opening of the sitting, a little excitement was caused by John Redmond asking that a committee be appointed to inquire whether the arrest of P. A. McHugh, member of parliament for Sligo, on Saturday last, under a warrant for contempt of court was not a breach of privilege. This, the speaker refused to do and John Redmond wound up the discussion by loudly and ironically deploring the fact that Mr. McHugh, who is now in the Sligo jail, would not be able to receive King Edward, when the latter visited Ireland.

The asking and answering of questions in the house followed and then Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, Conservative, formerly chancellor of the exchequer, invited the speaker's decision as to whether the opportunity could be taken of the debate on Mr. Chaplin's amendment for a full discussion of the fiscal policy suggested by Mr. Chamberlain, the colonial secretary, not for present, but for future adoption. The speaker replied that he had very carefully considered the matter and had arrived at the conclusion that it was ont relevant to the budget bill, as the question of preferential tariff rates between Great Britain and her colonies, was not raised in the bill. The scope of the debate was thus largely curtailed at the outset.

Mr. Ritchie having formally moved the second reading of the budget bill, Mr. Chaplin, who was received with cheers, arose to move his amendment an dproceeded warmly to attack the chancellor of the exchequer to whose inaptitude, he said, they owed their present remarkable position. In repealing the grain duty, Mr. Chaplin said, Mr. Ritchie had made an irretrievable mistake and had precipitated a movement for which neither his party nor the country were prepared. For the moment he appeared to have prevailed over Mr. Chamberlain, but his triumph would be short lived. Mr. Chaplin blamed the government for yielding to Mr. Ritchie, saying the ministers had thrown away a weapon which would have helped them to carry out the new financial policy to which Mr. Balfour and Mr. Chamberlain were committed.

Mr. Chaplin referred to the extraordinary position in which the followers of the government had been placed by the indecision of the ministers. It was useless, he added, to seek guidance or leadership from them. He concluded with formally moving his amendment, on which, he said, he meant to divide the house. The motion was seconded, and Sir Michael Hicks Beach followed. He commenced by saying that his view of the general financial and political situation was quite different from the view held by Mr. Chaplin.

Sir Michael, continuing, said his colleagues were perfectly aware that the grain duty was unpopular when he had inaugurated it, but it had been a success, and he had heard the proposal to repeal the duty with surprise and regret. He considered the duty was necessary because of the growth of expenditure against which he had protested. Had his protests been received with greater sympathy by his colleagues he would not now be speaking from a bench above the gangway. It was impossible for a chancellor of the exchequer to reduce expenditure without the hearty and continuous support of the premier.

STATE FEDERATION OF LABOR TALKS ON POLITICAL ACTION

Committee's Report In Favor of Political Action Is Opposed By Chairman Pratt of Duluth.

St. Paul, June 9.—A Little Falls, Minn., special to the Dispatch says: The interest in the convention of the State Federation of Labor being held here grows at each meeting. The convention settled down to actual work this morning. The convention met in open session at the Opera house last evening. Organizer French, of Kentucky, of the International Cigarmakers' union, addressed the meeting regarding the blue label movement and what it has accomplished for the Cigarmakers' union. Delegates John Swift, of Minneapolis, and Charles E. James, of St. Paul, also addressed the meeting.

Considerable interest developed this morning when the committee on resolutions reported favorably on the introduction of a resolution asking for political action by the convention. Two reports were made on the resolution the majority report being favorable and the minority, headed by Chairman Joseph Pratt, of Duluth, recommending no action. When the report was heard, it was moved that debate be limited to five minutes. Delegate Mullane, of Minneapolis, and others spoke on the affirmative report, and Joseph Pratt, in an able and logical speech, assailed the committee's action. The following is the resolution:

"Whereas, the development of the trusts into a worldwide institution demonstrates the final consummation of an all-embracing trust, owned and controlled by a few men having legal ownership of the means of life, where economic power, reflected into government, means a final state of capitalistic feudalism; and,

"Whereas, the machinery of production and exchange is now owned by the capitalistic class and operated by them only for profit, which prevents the employment of willing workers and imposes consequent burdens on those employed, and as the wages of the working class in purchasing power has steadily decreased and every raise in money wages has been more than offset by the increased cost of necessary commodities, it demonstrates the necessity of the workers owning the means of production and exchange in order to escape the inevitable tendency of capitalistic slavery; and,

"Whereas, the power of government in both state and nation is at present vested in those who use the courts to issue blanket injunctions, and police and military to enforce their despotic decrees, and through these means prevent lawful persuasion and defeat the cause of organized labor; therefore, be it

AN ENTHUSIASTIC TRIBUTE TO GENERAL ROBERT E. LEE

Judge Speer Says This Reunited Country Can No Longer Afford to Question the Military and Personal Honor of the Great Soldier.

Oxford, Ga., June 9.—Judge Emery Speer, of Macon, delivered this morning the annual commencement address at Emory College. His subject was "The Life and Character of Gen. Robert E. Lee," and he gave a vivid and eloquent recital of the great soldier's career, dwelling upon Lee's sublime self-poise and patience both in victory and defeat.

Referring to Lee's motives in entering the service of the Confederacy, Judge Speer said: "The time seems opportune for the American people to dispassionately inquire whether Robert E. Lee ever merited the reprobation even of the most ardent advocate of our perpetual Union.

"Loving our reunited country with all my heart, counting the long years I have spent in its service as my chief honor, I yet contend that, rich as it is in military glory, brilliant though the roll of its heroes, it can no longer afford to question the military and personal honor of Lee and his noble compatriots. America, with all her acknowledged power, cannot fail to appropriate that warlike renown which gleamed on the bayonets and blazed in the serried volleys of the soldiers of the South. Nor do her greatest and her best longer question the one or put aside the others.

"To the constitution, as he understood it, it is demonstrable that Washington himself was not more devoted than Lee, and his written and spoken words in that day of ungovernable passion portray in the clearest light his immovable aversion to disunion.

"Why, then, it may be asked, did Lee draw his sword in maintenance of secession, which he declared revolution, which he pronounced anarchy, and which he foresaw and declared would inflict untold calamities upon the people? The reply is that he did no such thing. His purpose is declared in the letter to his son:

"'If the Union is dissolved and the government disrupted, I shall return to my native state and share the miseries of my people, and, save in defense, will draw my sword on none.'"

Judge Speer referred to the proposal by the state of Virginia to place a statue of Gen. Lee in statuary hall in the capitol at Washington. In this connection he said in conclusion:

"Then honor him, my country, and in thy need, on those who love him thou wilt not call in vain. And woe to thy foe in the press of battle when the soul of Lee shall fire their hearts and his bright sword shall point the charging columns of thy sons."

STREET CAR PASSENGERS ROBBED

Seattle, June 9.—With a revolver leveled at their heads, eight passengers on an electric street car were forced to surrender their valuables to two robbers, supposed to be boys, late last night. They forced the conductor and motorman to go inside, and while one went through the passengers' pockets, the other held a revolver. About $30 and several watches were secured, no resistance having been offered.

'FRISCO MAN MISSING IN NEW YORK

New York, June 9.—David J. Barr, of San Francisco, a jeweler, and reported to be sole heir to a large fortune in California, is missing. He was seen for the last time by acquaintances at a New York hotel on Decoration day. That night his room was found tenantless. Diligent search for the missing man has been made by William S. Quinlan, of San Francisco. Discouraged by failure, he has notified the police of his friend's disappearance. "I feel that Mr. Barr has met with foul play," said Mr. Quinlan. "For eight days I have prosecuted a secret search, hoping to find him before news of his disappearance could reach his mother. But I have now asked the police for their aid."

NO FURTHER INDICTMENTS

Are Expected From Federal Grand Jury This Week.

Washington, June 9.—There were no developments today as a result of the grand jury's investigation into the affairs of the postoffice and it is said that no further indictments may be looked for this week.

The decision to lay the case of James N. Tyner, former assistant attorney general before grand jury, was reached only after the most careful consideration of all the circumstances surrounding it as a matter of public duty, it was felt that the facts leading up to the rifling of the safe in Tyner's office had been looked into. It is understood that there is a feature connected with the opening of the safe and the abstraction of papers therefrom, which has been disclosed and that it was this which led to the determination to put the case before the jury. It is denied that the services of national bank examiners were utilized in the securing of evidence against Machen and the Groff Bros., the statement being made that all the work was done by Postoffice Inspector Walter S. Mayer, who formerly was in the banking business and several other inspectors detailed by Gen. Bristow.

A GOVERNMENT HAS BEEN PROVIDED FOR THE MOROS

Governor Taft Has Drawn a Bill Making a Moro Province to Be Controlled By the Philippine Government—Gen. Wood to Be First Governor.

Manila, June 9.—The Philippine commission has enacted a bill providing for the government of the Moros. Governor Taft and Maj. Gen. Davis jointly drafted it. The measure practically makes the Moro province an autonomous colony of the Philippines, which the Philippine government controls, and creates an appointive legislative council to provide local laws, the commission reserving the right to amend or annul them. The council is to be composed of a governor, secretary, treasurer, engineer, attorney and superintendent of schools. Governor Taft will appoint the officials. The bill will extend the jurisdiction of the Philippine courts and constabulary to the province, and will recognize Moro laws, which do not conflict with American laws. The measure also directs the codification of the tribal laws, creates Moro courts, provides that the Philippine courts shall try cases between Moros and Christians, give the province its net customs and forestry collections, and authorizes the council to abolish slavery. The province is divided into five districts. The bill provides for partial military government, and it is expected that Gen. Leonard Wood will be the first governor of the Moro province.

FOUR FOREMEN EMPLOYED TO SUPERVISE TWELVE WORKMEN

Controller Grout of New York Withholds Payment of Bill For Demolishing Hall of Records on Account of Excessive Charges For Men.

New York, June 9.—Controller Grout has notified President Cantor, of the borough of Manhattan, that payment of the bill presented by a contracting firm for the demolition of old hall of records in city hall park, has been withheld on the ground that it was excessive. The work was done by day labor and the bill called for more than $47,000. The controller, upon scanning the items, found, it is stated, that four foremen were employed March 29 at $3.50 a day to supervise the work of twelve laborers. One item calls for the payment of three superintendents at the rate of $10 a day and three timekeepers at $3.50 to keep the time of a company of laborers that never exceeded 40, and that was often less than that. One foreman was employed throughout the removal of the building at $10, to supervise the work of a single shorer.

COAL RATES ARE CHEAP, SAYS BAER

New York, June 9.—Hearing in the investigation of the complaint of W. R. Hearst against the coal carrying roads was continued before the interstate commerce commission today when President Baer was recalled by the commission and examined by Commissioner Prouty. In reply to the first question, President Baer said the rate charged on coal from the anthracite regions tapped by the Reading system, about 180 miles to tide water, is $1.55 a ton. Thirty or forty years' experience had shown, Mr. Baer said, that the coal could not be carried for less.

"Notwithstanding the enormous increase of traffic," he said, "the cost of transportation has increased. The rates have not increased, but the cost of all supplies, except steel rails, has advanced within the last few years. In wages alone on the Reading system, the increase last year was $1,200,000."

MEN HELD UP BY FOOTPADS MADE NOISE AND WERE SHOT

Were Returning From Banquet When Stopped and Ordered to Hold Up Their Hands—One Made Outcry and Enraged Robbers Began Shooting.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., June 9.—Two men were shot, one fatally, by footpads in this city early today. John Bald, of this city, and Benedict Kessler and John Weidman, of Altonna, Pa., delegates to the state convention of German Catholic societies, were returning from a banquet, when they were stopped by two highwaymen and ordered to throw up their hands. All complied with the demand and the footpads started to go through the pockets of the three men. They secured Weidman's money and railroad ticket, and had taken $6 from Bald when he made an outcry. This enraged the robbers and they backed away and began firing at the man. Bald was shot through the stomach and cannot recover. Kessler was shot in the knee, but Weidman was uninjured. The footpads escaped.

POSTAGE ENTRY MAN CONFESSES

Houghton, Mich., June 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mick Thompson, of Portage Entry, confessed to the killing of his wife while being examined as to his sanity by Judge Gray yesterday. While the story told by Thompson is somewhat incoherent, the authorities believe it. Five years ago Thompson's wife was drowned at Portage Entry under suspicious circumstances, but a verdict of accidental drowning was brought in by the coroner's jury. Thompson in his confession says he drowned his wife because she continually nagged him and life with her was a burden. He pushed her off the dock one night while they were out walking. The case will be submitted to Prosecuting Attorney Larson. Thompson wrote notes to Sheriff Wills asking for a chance to make a confession, and was arrested on the charge of insanity.

HOUGHTON BOY DRAGGED TO DEATH

Houghton, Mich., June 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fred Demarse, 16 years old, was dragged to death by a frightened horse yesterday afternoon. The boy was out riding when he was thrown from the horse. His foot caught in the stirrup and the animal dashed off down the hill with the youngster dragging. The horse leaped down a stairway and dashed through a fence and stopped in front of Demarse's home.

Four students went in pursuit of the animal and disengaged Demarse's foot and carried him into his home, where he died an hour afterward, his back being broken and skull crushed. Demarse had been sent home from the high school because he slighted his lesson and was told to return in an hour. Instead he went riding, with the above result.

TOOK SIXTY GRAINS OF QUININE

New York, June 9.—Robert Menaker, 5-year-old son of a New York cloak manufacturer, living at Passaic, N. J., is dead, after swallowing sixty grains of quinine. The little fellow had been sick and was being given capsules. While his mother was absent from the room he climbed upon a chair, reached the medicine box and swallowed its contents. He was thrown into convulsions and died in a few minutes.

DOCTOR ADVOCATED OPERATION--- PE-RU-NA MADE KNIFE UNNECESSARY.

CATARRH is a very frequent cause of that class of diseases popularly known as female weakness.

Catarrh of the pelvic organs produces such a variety of disagreeable and irritating symptoms that many people—in fact, the majority of people—have no idea that they are caused by catarrh.

If all the women who are suffering with any form of female weakness would write Dr. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio, and give him a complete description of their symptoms and the peculiarities of their troubles, he will immediately reply with complete directions for treatment, free of charge.

Mrs. Eva Bartho, 133 East 12th street, N. Y. City, N. Y., writes;

"I suffered for three years with leucorrhea and ulceration of the womb. The doctor advocated an operation which I dreaded very much, and strongly objected to go under it. Now I am a changed woman. Peruna cured me; it took nine bottles, but I felt so much improved I kept taking it, as I dreaded an operation so much. I am today in perfect health and have not felt so well for fifteen years."—Mrs. Eva Bartho.

Miss Maud Steinbach, 130 Twelfth St., Milwaukee, Wis., writes.

"Last winter I felt sick most of the time, was irregular and suffered from nervous exhaustion and severe bearing down pains. I had so frequently heard of Peruna and what wonderful cures it performed so I sent for a bottle and in four weeks my health and strength were entirely restored to me."—Miss Maud Steinbach.

Everywhere the women are using Peruna and praising it. Peruna is not a palliative simply; it cures by removing the cause of female disease.

Dr. Hartman has probably cured more women of female ailments than any other living physician. He makes these cures simply by using and recommending Peruna.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

FOUGHT WITH HUNGRY CAT

Parents Finally Rescued Their Fourteen-Year-Old Daughter.

St. Louis, Mo., June 9.—Lena Bertz, a pretty 14-year-old school girl, fought a desperate battle in the cellar of her home, 3929 South Broadway, Saturday morning, with a wild cat, and is now in a critical condition. How this fierce beast happened in St. Louis is yet to be solved, but it is believed that the cat came down the Father of Waters during the flood. Lena was awakened early this morning by strange cries in the cellar, and getting out of bed went to ascertain the cause.

She had hardly entered the door when a hissing noise was heard from a dark corner, and looking in the direction she saw a pair of fiery red orbs. Securing a broom stick she aimed blows at the brute, which backed away slowly, all of the time hissing and spitting until it reached the wall. For a moment it remained there, then suddenly sprang at the girl's face. Miss Bertz threw up her right arm, but was knocked against a cellar pillar. The cat was tearing at her face.

The battle was intense, but she continued to fight off the angered beast, screaming lowly for help. Neighbors, attracted by the weird sounds of the cat and the cries of the girl, gathered about the door, but feared to enter. The girl's parents did not hesitate when they learned of the struggle, but armed in the fight with sticks, putting the beast to flight. Lena was taken to the dispensary, her body torn and mangled. The doctors fear she will not recover. The cat escaped down the river.

Indiana Girl Proves Claim to an Estate.

Anderson, Ind., June 9.—Miss Mary Mulligan, 20 years old, daughter of Mrs. Hannah Mulligan, a clairvoyant of this city, has been advised that she is the sole heir of an estate valued at $12,000 near Manchester, Vt.

The fortune to Miss Mulligan comes about by her mother's father, George Crandall, bequeathing her all his property, except $25 cash, to her mother. Mrs. Mulligan and her daughter have been inseparable here. If Miss Mulligan chose to go on the street or shopping her mother went along, and they always carried in a large basket a black cat which was regarded by Mrs. Mulligan as her medium in telling fortunes. Mrs. Mulligan took a fancy to cats while a young woman and the fact that she is still devoted to a cat assisted in identifying her and her daughter in the court of Vermont. Miss Mulligan is an attractive young woman, but her mother has never allowed her to participate in social affairs outside of her own home.

MIDWAY ISLAND

To Be Utilized as a Coaling Station.

Honolulu, June 2.—(Special correspondence of the Associated Press.)—The United States tug Iroquois left on May 28 for Midway Island, which is to be a cable station. The Iroquois will assist the cable ships in every way possible, and Captain Pond who goes on board with Captain Rodman, commander of the vessel, will report on a sight for a lighthouse. It is expected that the island will be used as a coaling place by vessels when it has cable communication with the world. Captain Pond will also make a report on plans for fortifying the island, it is stated.

YOUNG FINISHES

His Argument and Attorney Bunn Addresses Court.

St. Paul, June 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Judge George B. Young this morning concluded his address for the defense in the case of the state against the Northern Securities merger before Judge William Lochren of the United States circuit court.

Mr. Young's address has occupied two full days of the court's time. Throughout his address he contended strongly that the Minnesota law prohibiting the merger of parallel and competing lines in no manner applies to the Northern Securities company of New Jersey. He denied the state's contention that the Securities company is in effect, a railroad because it holds railroad stocks.

Attorney C. W. Bunn, of the Northern Pacific road, followed Judge Young in addressing the court.

I want it in the house all the time, for it cured me.'" For sale by all druggists.

IT WILL BE GREAT

Commercial Travelers' Convention Will Take Place This Week.

Will Be an Immense Crowd and a Lively Time.

This is the week of the big convention of the grand council of the United Commercial Travelers of America for the jurisdiction of Minnesota, the Dakotas and Manitoba.

Preparations are in an advanced stage, and they assure success. Word has been received from most of the local councils in the jurisdiction, and the crowd is going to exceed the earlier expectations. The only trouble is going to be about taking care of them all, and this work the Commercial club is looking after with zeal, so it is not likely that anybody will be shelterless.

The letters "U. C. T." are being placed in the welcome arch on Fifth avenue west, where electric lights will make them shine forth to greet the eyes of the visitors.

Assurances have been received from merchants along the line of march of the industrial parade that they will decorate with colors of the order, blue, white and old gold, and First street and Superior street will be a parallel of these colors when the parade starts. The local stores have laid in large stocks of bunting of these colors, and a vast quantity of it is going to be used.

Jobbers and retailers are coming in rapidly with notices that they want to be in on the industrial parade. The Commercial club has taken this up also, and Secretary Eva already has notices from a large number that they will have places in the parade. Floats will be many and interesting. Most of the merchants, instead of sending out their delivery and other wagons, will be represented by handsome floats setting forth their particular lines of business, and many of them will be exceptionally handsome. Considerable ingenuity is being exercised in getting them up, and some clever ideas have been hinted at.

The local commercial travelers are particularly anxious to have the merchants take an interest in the affair to the extent of decorating their places of business along the line of march on First and Superior streets with the colors of the order, and they are highly gratified with the response that is being made to this desire.

The convention will be held Friday and Saturday, but the guests will begin to arrive Thursday afternoon and evening, and they will be informally entertained by their fellow-travelers, by the Commercial club, and by the local lodge of Elks.

Treasurer's and Sheriff's Teams Talk About Each Other

The new ball club organized among the employes of the county treasurer's office is receiving all possible encouragement from that department and all manner of unkind things are being said by them for the benefit of the sheriff's team, which it is now alleged is afraid to tackle the treasurer's team on the baseball diamond. Members of the treasurer's team declare that Sheriff Butchart has unlimited nerve to demand that the new team acquire a reputation, when his team never acquired one by winning a game. They also declare that the desire to arrange a contest with the sheriff's team was merely in the way of practice game for the county treasurer's team, and that they took especial care to pick out an easy mark for the first game.

LOG LIEN SUIT.

Plaintiff Claims Have Been Paid Only Sixty Cents.

Only one civil action was on trial in district court this morning, that of M. Fallon against James Crowley, et al., before Judge Dibell. The plaintiff brought the action to recover from the defendant an alleged balance of $120.50 claimed to be due on a contract for banking and loading logs in Cook county. Fallon claims to have earned $121.10 on his contract, and to have received but 60 cents in payment. He claims that he was compelled to quit the employ of the defendents because they had no blacksmith and because the roads were in bad shape. A judgment for a lien on the logs of the defendants is also asked. H. H. Hawkins appears for the plaintiff and Theodore Hollister and W. G. Bonham for the defendants.

VERSES FROM SCRIPTURE

Recited By Saloonkeeper to Each Customer.

Tipton, Ind., June 9.—Quoting Scriptures by the chapter, singing psalms and exhorting his patrons to walk in the straight and narrow path from early morning till late at night, keeps Charles Booth, a saloonkeeper of Atlanta, and his bartender busy. Booth, who is a wealthy man of this place and a large stockholder in the tinplate mill, has become much excited over the determined fight of the temperance element to drive out all saloons in the town. He stands behind his bar and quotes some verse in the Bible applicable to every patron who enters his place. The Anti-saloon League of the state has concentrated its forces in this county and the members say they will close every saloon in the county in a few months.

TOSSED HER HEAD

And Dislocated Neck—Surgeons Put It Back.

Omaha, Neb., June 9.—Miss Gussie Mass, a stenographer, when combing her hair tossed her head and dislocated her neck. Suffering little pain, she came down town to her work, telling her employer that she had a "crick" in her neck. By and by the pain grew sharper and Dr. Mathews was summoned.

Grasping the nature of the accident, Dr. Mathews called other surgeons in consultation. Miss Mass was taken home and there two surgeons, assisted by two other strong men, succeeded in stretching the ligaments sufficiently to allow the cervical vertibrae to slip back into place. When the bones slipped into place they made a noise almost as loud as the report of a pistol.

The surgeons say that this is the second case of the kind known to their profession. They think Miss Mass will recover.

HANNA DUNNED

By a St. Louis Club For Thirty Cents.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 9.—Senator Hanna related a story to the members of the Indianapolis party at the Indiana Society banquet at Cleveland last week, that is being greatly enjoyed by his friends here. While he was at St. Louis attending the dedication of the World's fair buildings, he was entertained by one of the leading clubs. He had occasion to patronize the barber shop twice, and each time he was told to pay the cashier. Instead, he gave the barber a quarter and told him to settle.

Nothing more was thought of the incident until a few days later. Then it was forcibly recalled when he received the following statement from the club management:

"M. A. Hanna, Cleveland, Ohio, to the ——— Club, St. Louis, Dr. to two shaves, $0.20."

The barber had evidently kept the Senator's "two bits," making him a victim of one of the many "grafts" that were worked on the visitors.

STATE FEDERATION OF LABOR

"Resolved, that the State Federation of Labor, in convention assembled, recommends to all local and affiliated bodies the adoption of an amendment to their constitutions by a clause permitting political action along the line of the class struggle, with the aim and object to assist the political movement of the working class of the world in controlling the powers of government and the public ownership of all the means of production and distribution, under a form of co-operative control, through the imperative mandate, and the initiative and referendum."

In his address to the officers and delegates, President M. E. Neary of Minneapolis said in part:

"The numerical progress now being made by the federation is a source of just pride. The wage-earner is beginning to appreciate more and more that the old saying, 'Together we stand, divided we fall,' is the true motto for labor to observe, and while we are not being educated to this point as fast as some would wish, yet I am satisfied that it is becoming less of a task each year, and the day is not far distant when the wage-earners will go hand in hand, shoulder to shoulder, and demand and receive their just share of freedom and enjoyment as well as toil.

"The condition of our treasury and the increased income that would come from newly organized unions and the building up of others, will warrant us at this time to place at least one regular organizer in the field. Brothers, I am satisfied you will make a great mistake if you allow this opportunity to pass without at least trying the experiment of placing a regular organizer in the field. The time is ripe; it will be none too soon to do it immediately upon the adjournment of this convention.

"The more successful we are in organizing, the more successful we will be in shortening the workday. All well organized branches of labor are working under the eight-hour system. This is especially true in the larger cities, where all of the building trades and a great many others work but eight hours a day. The eight-hour day is becoming recognized as the universal workday, and there is no reason why it should not be adopted in the smaller as well as the larger cities.

"From present indications there seems little prospect for securing any change in the system of employing inmates of the penal institutions of the state. The federation has at different times proposed several methods whereby these people could be employed so that there would be no competition against free labor, but for some reason or other it seems impossible for our legislative representatives to look at it in the right light. I would recommend that this convention adopt some definite and practical plan, that we, as the people most interested, may go before the public and demand that it be put into effect."

Secretary-Treasurer McEwen of Duluth read his annual report yesterday afternoon, showing that never in the history of the federation had the labor movement in this state had so successful a year. His summary was as follows:

Balance in treasury last year	$ 721 80
Receipts this year	1,823 22
Total receipts	2,545 02
Disbursements this year	1,237 03
Balance in treasury this year	1,307 99

Number new unions affiliating during year, 75.

Total unions affiliating, 325.

Increase in membership during the year, 99 per cent.

Mr. McEwan, referring to strikes being sometimes necessary, said:

"There have been several small strikes during the year. In most cases the difficulties were settled amicably and in favor of the unions. In but two instances was lawlessness resorted to, and then it was not definitely established that union men were responsible for it. However it is the duty of organized labor to declare itself as being unalterably opposed to any violation of law.

"Our work during the past few years in the field of organization has fully demonstrated the necessity and usefulness of a state federation of labor in this state. Many unions owe their existence to the federation, and several cities would have not been able to accomplish anything in organization without the support of the federation. This federation has two distinct duties to perform. It must continue the work of organization so well begun until every city in the state is completely organized. It must perfect plans and carry on a campaign whereby it will become much easier to secure the enactment of laws for the relief of labor. To do both of these well its officers will have their hands full."

Labor Commissioner O'Donnell reviewed the organization of labor in the state and said:

"Up to October, 1902, the bureau of labor had gathered statistics from the various labor organizations in the state, showing that they had in round numbers a membership of 28,338. This information did not include people who were employed in the railroad service of the state and who have in their organizations some 3500 members.

"I have recently been informed, by what I consider the most reliable authority in the state in matters of this kind, that the increase in new unions, and additions in the way of new members to the older unions has gone on with as much vigor since October of last year, up to the present time, as it did at any like period of the year 1902, and since that time up to the present date. I believe it can be said without fear of contradiction that the number of new organizations that have been formed, and the additional membership to the older unions will undoubtedly wrest the supremacy so far as the number of organization and membership are concerned from the year 1902.

"There is yet a great work to be done in the field in the way of organization among the toilers of our state, and I know of no better method to pursue than the one that has been in use recently, that of sending organizers who are capable and intelligent into every portion of this state.

"I believe that if the manufacturers' association is organized for the purpose of exterminating labor organizations it will never be able to accomplish that end."

When the report of the committee on credentials was read, objection was made to seating the Duluth team owners' delegates, and the matter was referred to a special committee to investigate.

YOUNG CHASE IS VIOLENT.

Indianapolis, June 9.—Moses Fowler Chase, the young millionaire, for possession of whom his aunt and father are fighting at Fowler, Ind., is expected to arrive in this city today to be placed in a sanitarium. This step will be taken as young Chase is reported to have developed symptoms of violence and proper care cannot be taken of him at the home of Attorney Dinwiddie, in Fowler, where he has been confined.

INDEPENDENT UNION

Will Be Formed By Disgruntled New York Unionists.

New York, June 9.—The delegates from the sixteen unions who yesterday left the meeting of the Board of Building Trades because that body refused to expel the Material Drivers' union, and thus end the building strike, took steps today to form an independent central labor organization. As soon as this is completed it is expected the new organization will order all the unions affiliated with it to have their men return to work. Samuel Parks, the business representative of the Housesmiths' union, who was arrested yesterday, charged with extortion, it being alleged that he has accepted money from the Hecla Iron works to call of a strike at those works, was released today on $5000 bail, furnished by William S. Devery, former chief of police.

ALDERMEN TO PLAY

Duluth and Superior Aldermen Get the Baseball Fever.

They Will Probably Meet Upon the Diamond Soon.

There will be a lot of sore aldermen around here soon!

Some disturbing trouble promoter has informed the members of the Duluth city council that the Superior aldermen think they can play ball, and simultaneously wafted a tip over to the lonely village acrosss the sad sea waves that Duluth aldermen had a dull sort of impression that they were the fastest ever.

Now those heavy-browed men on both sides threaten to leave the affairs of state for at least one afternoon and most of the next day to settle a vexing question of supremacy.

Alderman Mannheim, Trevillion and Walker are real fans, and last night they got swapping stories about past days on the green sward.

"I remember a game I played once," said Alderman Mannheim. "You never see a game as fast as that outside the Epworth league. We started the game at 10 o'clock in the morning one Decoration day, expecting to be through by noon. Along toward 5 o'clock that evening we were still playing the fifty-first inning with the score 6 to 6. The other team had a little catcher named Tessman, who started off with a home run, and every third time up to the bat he would smash the ball over the fence.

"There was nothing left for me to do but to match him, and I did. I made a home run every third inning, too. Well, Tessman came up in the fifty-second inning and found he had broken his bat. He couldn't find another heavy enough, so he borrowed mine. I used the heaviest stick I could find, and usually put about eight pounds of lead in the end, so you can imagine what a weight the little fellow had.

"He hit the first one and it went over the fence all right, but instead of getting off down to first like a streak, he kept swinging around and round. Faster and faster he went, the loaded bat swinging him so fast we could only see a shapeless lot of uniform. A couple of fellows got knocked out trying to stop him. Meanwhile the left fielder got the ball back over the fence and I got down on my stomach and touched him on the toe with the ball. 'The next moment I got my seventh home run and that won the game.'

"That reminds me," said Alderman Trevillion, "I came to the bat in the fifteenth inning once with the score 3 to 2 against us. A base on balls put one man on base ahead of me, and two runs were needed to win. I got a ball right where I wanted it, and it went toward left like a streak. The left fielder jumped up and got his hands on it, but instead of his pulling it down it simply pulled him up and carried him over the fence. He couldn't let go. Just as I crossed the plate with the winning run that fielder had the nerve to come back over the fence and claim I was out."

"Guess we'd better play those West Superior fellows right off, then, said Dr. Cullum, "as long as we have such men as that to help us out.

So it was arranged that a very diplomatic message should be conveyed to West Superior for a ball game, to be played at Athletic park, at some convenient date in the near future.

THE POLICE ARE ACTIVE

Getting After Dog Owners Who Have Not Paid Licenses.

Although the Police Relief association does not receive one-third of dog tax money this year, as has been the custom from time almost immemorial the officers show no lack of interest in compelling dog owners to comply with the law.

In fact about thirty warrants will shortly be sworn out for the arrest of dog owners that have been notified to take out licenses, but have so far failed to heed the warning.

There are about 1600 dogs in Duluth and about one-third of these are not wearing the 1903 tags, according to the officers. They hold that all persons know the law in this respect and are therefore in favor of using strenuous methods in getting the canines licensed.

A license for a male dog is $1 with an additional 25 cents fee, while the license for female dogs is $5 and the usual 25-cent fee.

MILLERS IN CITY TODAY

Sixty Members American Federation of Millers Reach Duluth.

Sixty members of the American Federation of Millers, which has been meeting at Detroit, arrived in Duluth this morning on the Anchor line boat Tionesta (which, by the way, is pronounced with the long sound of "i"), and were about town for a couple of hours.

The majority of the tourists, thirty-eight at least, left for St. Paul on the 9 o'clock Northern Pacific train, while several remained for trains to the West and later trains for the Twin Cities.

The party was in charge of the Western manager, J. C. Evans, and the Eastern manager, Walter Thayer, who is making his first trip up to this port with the boat.

There was no formal reception given the millers, and the only representation Duluth had was A. D. Goodman, of the Universal Milling company. D. A. Christy went to Portage Lake and returned to Duluth on the steamer, and conducted the party about town this morning.

The Minneapolis millers accompanied the early morning party to their city, where the afternoon and evening will be spent in viewing the flouring mills.

The meeting of the millers' federation at Detroit was for organization purposes, and millers from all parts of the country were present. The majority of those who came to Duluth are from the Western and Southwestern country.

The Tionesta will leave tomorrow night for the lower lakes and will begin on her summer schedule on her next trip up. W. H. Johnson, Chicago agent for the company, was on the trip.

Court Officer Jensen Tells Remarkable Fishing Stories.

Court Officer Edward Jensen has returned from a fishing trip about twenty miles north of Tower. He says the next time he goes to that particular spot he will get out a lot of injunctions and take them along instead of bait, then he will throw the bare hook into the water and beside it drop an order restraining more than two fish getting on at a time.

The popular court officer has been supplying many of his friends with fish. Besides catching a muskallonge that weighed fifty-six pounds and two pickerel weighing twenty-four pounds each, numerous other species weighing from sixteen pounds down to eight and ten became his prey.

Mr. Raidt was one of the most popular clerks in a great many ways the Spalding has had, and is well known throughout this part of the country and considered a thorough hotel man.

PYTHIANS MEET

Duluth District Lodges Assembled For Their Annual Reunion.

About 100 Guests From Seven Outside Lodges Are Here.

Knights of Pythias from the Duluth district were gathering in the city this afternoon for their annual convention, which was to take place this afternoon and evening, and it was expected that there would be about 100 guests from outside the city and as many more from Duluth.

The gathering is not in the nature of a convention, so much as a reunion, somewhat similar to that which the Masonic bodies will have a week from Friday.

This afternoon there was an informal reception at the Castle hall, 118 West Superior street, at which the local Pythians met and greeted their visiting brethren and extended to them the freedom of the city. This session was open to the public, and was purely informal, the program not even including any set speeches. It opened at 2:30 o'clock.

This evening the rank of knight will be conferred upon a class made up of esquires from the New Duluth and Two Harbors lodges, after which there will be a banquet. Grand Chancellor James Robertson, of Minneapolis, and G. L. Hall, of Moorhead, connected with the Pythian Advocate, are among the visitors from outside the Duluth district. The following toasts will be responded to: "The Knight of Pythias as a Good Citizen," by Rev. R. A. Saunderson, of Duluth; "The Grand Lodge and the State of the Order," by Grand Chancellor James Robertson, of Minneapolis; "The Pythian Press," by G. L. Hall, of Moorhead; "The Pythian Memorial Day," by A. R. Fowler, of Two Harbors; "Friendship," by C. O. Baldwin; "The Uniform Rank," by F. L. Young, of Duluth.

The Duluth district is one of twenty-two in this state, all of which are holding conventions today, and it includes eleven lodges, four in Duluth and one in each of the following towns: Two Harbors, Proctorknott, Cloquet, Hibbing, Grand Rapids, Eveleth and Biwabik.

Harbor lodge, No. 88, of Two Harbors, came in early this afternoon on a special train.

The local members of the uniform rank are expected to be at the hall at 7 o'clock tonight, and if there is favorable weather they will parade.

A VICTORY OVER LIQUOR

Predicted By President of Women's Christian Temperance Union.

Geneva, Switzerland, June 9.—At today's session of the convention of World's Women Christian Temperance union, the presiding officer, Mrs. Lilian M. N. Stevens, of Portland, Me., read Lady Henry Somerset's presidential address, in which the absent president predicted that the eventual outcome of the Women's Christian Temperance union's fight would be a complete victory over the liquor traffic.

The address also referred to Great Britain's unenviable reputation for inebriety, said modern governments were alive to the danger and referred to the fact that Russia, France and Sweden were strenuously fighting the evil. Lady Somerset also mentioned the "magnificent efforts of the United States, more powerful in its youth, to overcome the customs engrafted into old countries enfeebled by time," and concluded with an appeal for the exhaltation of the home, asserting that the work of the World's Woman Christian Temperance union could be best summed up in the words of its great founder, the late Miss Frances Willard, "to make the world wider for women and more homelike for humanity."

Coming In Better.

Yesterday's announcement in The Herald that more rooms would be needed during the U. C. T. convention here the latter part of the week is bearing good results. Today Secretary Eva, of the Commercial club, has received a large number of addresses over the 'phone of local people that were willing to entertain the traveling men and their families while in the city. The committee on charge of the industrial parade is anxiously hoping for fair weather during the time set for the parade, which gives promise of being one of the largest and finest of the kind ever originated in Duluth.

WILL NOT PASS SUPERIOR UP

Northern Pacific Will Continue to Give That Town Trains.

General Passenger Agent Charles S. Fee of the Northern Pacific railroad, who was in Duluth the latter part of last week, announced positively that Superior would be in no danger of being cut off from passenger service on account of the Twentieth avenue station decision.

Mr. Fee said that the night train and the afternoon limited trains will keep the present route and go over to Superior, and that the company will not run more than the 9 o'clock morning St. Paul train out to the Duluth up river stations. Mr. Fee says the law does not compel the running of all trains by that route.

He continued, that if the morning train is run to the Twentieth avenue station it will be taken over to Superior just the same, and stopped at that place for passengers.

WILL AID IN BOOSTING.

One of Ferari Carnival Representatives Arrives In Duluth.

A telegram was received today by the Carnival company stating that S. C. Haller, representative of Ferari Bros.' shows, will arrive in the city tonight and devote his time to the boosting of the project, together with the local committees. Mr. Haller has had a great deal of experience in this line of work, and it is expected that his assistance will be of value. Tomorrow noon there will be a meeting of the directors of the Carnival company with Mr. Haller, at the carnival headquarters in the Manhattan building.

Plans are being perfected by the Carnival company to have an appropriate display in the industrial parade during the traveling men's convention here this week. It is promised that the display will be a very unique one and well calculated to advertise the project.

Interest in the carnival queen contest is increasing, and there is a great demand for the coupon books containing the votes which are being taken by the friends of the fair contestants for the honors and the prize.

It claimed that the three young ladies already in the contest are polling a close vote, and others are getting ready to start out for the prize.

EXCURSION SEASON

Special Trains For the Commercial Travelers to Start It.

Regular Summer Run of Them to Follow on Rapidly.

The summer excursion season will open for Duluth with the Great Northern specials loaded with traveling men which will arrive here Thursday evening at 6:30 o'clock.

Following these excursions the road has arranged for a whole lot of them from various parts of Minnesota for Duluth, and the streets will soon have the appearance of a county fair on exhibition day, every Sunday.

The two first excursions are for traveling men exclusively.

One train will come from St. Paul at 6:30 o'clock Thursday evening, with the numbers upon it avowed to let Duluth know they are here. Between 500 and 600 have arranged to come upon it, it is reported, from the St. Paul offices.

The other train will arrive at 6 o'clock. It comes from Winnipeg, Fargo, Grand Forks and Crookston. About 400 are expected to ride on that special, and the train will stop at Bemidji, where the citizens have prepared a banquet and will hold the drummers up for a few hours.

The first of the real-thing summer Sunday excursions will be one from Litchfield and intermediate points, which will leave Litchfield June 20 and leave Duluth on the night of June 21. The train will be run solid, with bands of music and other paraphernalia that belongs to Sunday excursions, and the number of visitors is expected to be 700 or 800. The same days there will be another from Benson and intermediate points, with the same general effects.

The excursion crowds simply deluge Duluth in the summer time, and the excursionists are mostly on the streets pacing up and down, as the city proper is practically closed.

The week following, Sunday, June 28, there will be an excursion from Evansville, Minn., and other towns along the line. It will leave Duluth the night of the 28th. It is expected that a heavy crowd will be on that one, as a low rate is given.

For the Duluth-Crookston baseball game to be held at Bemidji Sunday there will be a special train run from Melrose and Larimore, N. D., to Bemidji, with excursionists to see the great match game.

BOOKS AND NEGROES

Topics Discussed at Dinner of American Booksellers Association.

New York, June 9.—At the third annual dinner of the American Booksellers' association held in this city, Rev. Thomas Dixon, Jr., spoke on the negro question.

The first subject discussed was the consideration of the steps to be taken to revive the retail book trade and stop cutting of prices by large stores. In this matter the speakers declared that the maintenance of a fair price, and that the matter of 10 cents more or less, which means little to the purchaser, frequently represents for the bookseller the margin of loss or profit.

Dr. Dixon, talking on the negro question, said in part: "Race prejudice is of two kinds. One is a mean thing. This is the prejudice which proceeds from fear of another race's superior powers or abilities. Such is the prejudice against the Jew. It exists simply because the Jewish race is the most persistent, powerful, commercially successful race that the world has ever produced. Thousands of them have been assimilated by America and thousands more will be assimilated.

"The prejudice against the negro is the instinct of self-preservation. I record here the prediction that I, as a Southern man, expect to live to see the day when the whole people of the South will build a statue to Abraham Lincoln in the capitol of the Confederacy."

He called attention, however, to Lincoln's words: "I believe that there exists between the races white and black physical differences which will forever forbid their living together on a plane of social equality."

"In fifty years," Mr. Dixon declared, "there will be 60,000,000 negroes in this country at the present rate of increase, and there are but three solutions of the problem that present themselves to us—to raise the negro to our level, to sink to him, or to remove him.

"The negro is the menace, therefore, to one element of the American strength—his race integrity. The menace to his other element of strength, his individuality is socialism, which attacks first the family, the stronghold of individuality and the bulwark upon which our civilization rests, and then the fiber of the individual himself."

W. Willard Palmer, mayor of Grand Rapids, spoke of the attempts of the association three years ago to see what could be done to revive the book trade and of the crisis now existing. He said the fact that the booksellers had succeeded in consequence of action then in placing the prices of books of history, biography and travel upon a net basis with uniform prices and keeping them there, was proof that the same thing could be done for books of fiction, and he predicted that the convention of booksellers will now ask the publishers to put books of fiction on such basis.

THE NEWBERRY LIBRARY

Presented With Valuable Manuscripts By Edward Ayer

Chicago, June 9.—The Newberry library has been presented by Edward E. Ayer, the noted bibliophile and book collector, with a valuable collection of maps and manuscripts and covering the history of the French marine from the thirteenth century to the Franco-Prussian war. The collection was made by Paul Caries, who was in the service of the French government for many years up to the time of his death in 1896. There are 4100 maps and about 6000 pages of text.

Mr. Ayer purchased the collection from the Librarie Chadenat on his last visit to Paris, whence he returned about three weeks ago. He also secured for his private library a curious old volume, "The Nuremburg Chronicles," printed in 1493. Among the news items of the period it tells of the discovery of America.

THE TIME TO BUY

Get Your Berries For Preserving Purposes Early This Week.

Best and Cheapest of the Season Are Coming Now.

Buy your strawberries for preserving right away, if you want to get the advantage of the lowest prices of the season and the best berries.

That is the edict from Michigan street, given out this morning.

Big bunches of berries from Wisconsin, Northern Illinois and Iowa have been coming in lately, and there is a supply of splendid berries on the market. Not only that, but Michigan street commission men say that prices will not be lower than they are now, when the best berries are retailing at something a trifle less than $1.50 a case, or at that figure.

"Today and tomorrow will see the bottom of berry prices," said a prominent commission man this morning, "and people that intend to 'put up' berries will do well to make their purchases at once. The berries are in good shape, not harmed by warm weather or stale by age, and they are splendidly adapted for preserving. Many people put off buying their berries for preserving until the best of the market is gone, and when they have to pay two prices. Those who get in now will have the best results at the least cost."

The cases for which $1.50 is asked at retail contain sixteen quarts. Of course this price is for the best berries. Poorer ones bring lower prices, but do not make such good preserves.

The heavy rains and floods have spoiled the Southern berries, and there will be but small returns from the Southland. Berries for preserving will mostly come from Wisconsin.

Lovers of strawberries will be delighted to learn that the first lot of Oregon berries are in the market. A carload of them came in from Hood river this morning, and they are large, juicy, delicately flavored and altogether lovable and charming. Some of them are as large as pigeons eggs, and their color is a deep, rich red. They retail at 8c to 20 cents a quart, and those that feel wealthy enough to preserve them will have to pay about $1 a case for them, but they will get twenty-four quarts instead of sixteen, and they will have very fine preserves.

There will be a carload of Indian river, Florida, pineapples in tomorrow morning, and advance notices say they are about the smoothest article that ever came down the pike. Pineapples are at their very best now, and probably at their cheapest. This will be about the last car this market will be able to get, so purchasers tomorrow will get the benefit of quality and price.

THE SPALDING CAFE OPENED

Is One of Finest Dining Rooms In the West.

The Spalding hotel was placed on both the European and American plans this morning, when the new cafe was opened to the public.

Yesterday afternoon a public reception was held at the cafe and punch was served, and several hundred people visited the charming new restaurant.

The room is richly decorated, with fine and elegant taps for hangings, all the room in shadows, with small, red, shaded candle lights on each of the tables and service of the most costly and beautiful character. The cafe is in charge of J. Wallace Hubbs, assistant manager of the house, and will be conducted in a manner that will be a credit to Duluth.

The cafe has been attracting a great deal of attention since its completion—and even before. For a year ago or so, it was announced that the restaurant would be put in and the house changed to both American and European plans. Inquiries became constant regarding it, but delays in material for its construction and some other failures of contracting companies, caused the date to opening to be postponed from time to time, since November, until now there is a realization of the plans of the management of the hotel, made a year or more ago.

The new place is fully up to all expectations. The furnishing and decorations are second to none in the Twin Cities, and its management promises to be such that people will come to Duluth to eat there. The tapestries are of yellow, netted material, which are draped at all openings to the room. The walls are mirrored and the furniture is of the old English fashion, heavy and elegant.

Besides the restaurant on the main floor there is a private dining room on the floor below, which may be used for parties, and which is fitted up in Flemish furniture. This room will be the coaling station of the Fly-

AT WEST DULUTH

A second robbery within three days is reported in West Duluth.

Alexander Bellmeur, part owner of the Tremont hotel, is claimed to have been relieved of $40 last night by one of the lodgers, whose name is said to be Jack Lambert.

The story told by the proprietors of the hotel is as follows:

Lambert came to the hotel yesterday and asked for a room and his supper. He spent the afternoon and evening about the building, finding several old acquaintances among the lodgers. He was unknown to the proprietors, having never stopped there before, but Jack Lambert is the name he was known by among the lodgers who knew him.

About 2 o'clock this morning Mr. Bellmeur's trousers were taken from under his pillow without disturbing him, in spite of the fact that he is very easily awakened. The trousers contained $40 in bills, which were appropriated. Mr. Bellmeur awoke some time later and felt under the pillow for his trousers. Finding them gone he immediately arose and struck a light, saw the trousers lying on the floor, and having searched the pockets, gave the alarm. The rooms were searched and Lambert was found to be missing.

Later, at the breakfast table, Lambert's roommate found that the sum of $1.45 was missing from his pockets.

The police were notified at once, and they are now prosecuting a vigorous search for the culprit, but they have as yet found no clue to his whereabouts. He is thought to be a Duluth man and was known to have come from Duluth proper yesterday afternoon. It is thought he is in hiding somewhere in the city.

He is described as wearing a pair of heavy river boots, a brown hat, grey coat and a striped shirt. He left a sack containing a few clothes at the hotel.

"He was an old hand at the game," said Mr. Rossiter, in speaking of the culprit. "He carried out his plan without a sound, and had not Mr. Bellmeur happened to awake, we would have known nothing of the robbery until this morning."

The party or parties who robbed Donald's grocery store are still at large and the police are without any good clue as to their identity or whereabouts.

Wound Itself Around a Young Lady's Knee.

Richmond, Va., June 9.—Miss Eva Wright, of Pittsylvania county, 17 years old and pretty, was badly frightened yesterday by a garter snake which had wound itself about her stocking.

A young man caught the snake by the neck and carefully unwound it. The girl fainted. The snake was about fifteen inches long.

TO GUARD MORALS

Ministers Will Watch Carnival to Prevent Any Immoral Features.

Association Takes Up Plan of Having Tent Religious Campaign.

The Duluth Ministerial association will exercise a censorship over the carnival to be given here next month, with a view to seeing that it does not include some of the immoral features that rumor says have been a part of similar shows elsewhere.

At a special meeting of the association held yesterday, called to consider other matters, it was decided to appoint a committee of three ministers to keep an eye on the carnival with this end in view, and Dr. T. H. Cleland, Dr. A. W. Ryan and Rev. J. W. Powell were appointed as members of this committee.

The meeting was called for the purpose of hearing the report of the committee of nine, to which was referred the matter of organizing a federated and religious reform movement in which all of the evangelistic churches of the city would join hands.

The report of the committee was practically as outlined in The Herald last Thursday. The tent religious campaign idea was embraced heartily, and an advisory committee of five ministers was appointed to assist the Bethel forces with advice and energies in carrying on the work. The committee is composed of Rev. R. A. Montgomery, Rev. L. E. Stapf, Rev. N. B. Tvedt, Rev. S. C. Davis and Rev. C. R. Sine.

The movement is to be carried on by the Bethel, with the backing and assistance and approval of the churches of the city. It is to consist of a daily series of tent meetings in various parts of the city, at which the local pastors and workers furnished by the Bethel, including local and probably outside speakers, will give addresses. The advisory committee is to choose locations for these tents, and to otherwise aid in the work. Converts will be turned over to the churches for which they express a preference.

The work will be started toward the latter end of this month, and will continue all summer. The Bethel has two large tents suitable for this purpose, and they will be kept occupied all summer long.

The idea of having a Sunday school census was put over until September, in the belief that the fall will be a much more favorable time for beginning it. The plan is to make a house to house canvass of the city in order to find out what families attend Sunday school and what do not, and to endeavor to procure the attendance of those who are not in the habit of going.

OBSERVANCE OF FLAG DAY

Arrangements For Program at the City Hall Monday Morning.

Duluth's first flag day celebration next Monday promises to be extraordinarily interesting.

Although the schools will be closed, flags will be floated from all buildings, and many business houses and homes will be decorated in honor of the anniversary of the adoption of the stars and stripes as the national colors.

Mayor Hugo is arranging for appropriate exercises at the city hall and in the several fire halls throughout the city, to which the public is invited and asked to participate.

Over the city hall the flag will be raised at 9:30 o'clock, probably by Capt. John W. Miller. A band will render national anthems, and after the unfurling of colors there will be a short but appropriate program of patriotic addresses, recitations and music in the council chamber.

Addresses will be made by Mayor Hugo and President Haven. There will be a recitation by City Comptroller McCormick. The music will be furnished by a band.

Final arrangements have not been made for the celebration at headquarters fire hall or at No. 3 hall. At No. 2 Dr. J. H. O. Tufty will be the speaker. At No. 8 (West Duluth) H. H. Phelps will speak. At No. 4 Alexander Marshall is the speaker, and at Lakeside, John Norton will deliver the flag oration.

It is particularly desired that there be as great a display of national colors from buildings as possible—particularly in the downtown business district.

LEARNING THINGS.

We Are All In the Apprentice Class.

When a simple change of diet brings back health and happiness the story is briefly told. A lady of Springfield, Ill., says: "After being afflicted for years with nervousness and heart trouble, I received a shock four years ago that left me in such a condition that my life was despaired of. I could get no relief from doctors nor from the numberless heart and nerve medicines I tried, because I didn't know that the coffee was daily putting me back more than the doctors could put me ahead.

"Finally, at the request of a friend, I left off coffee and began the use of Postum, and against my convictions I gradually improved in health until for the past six or eight months I have been entirely free from nervousness and those terrible sinking, weakening spells of heart trouble.

"My troubles all came from the use of coffee, which I had drunk from childhood, and yet they disappeared when I quit coffee and took up the use of Postum." Name given by Postum company, Battle Creek, Mich.

Many people marvel at the effects of leaving off coffee and drinking Postum, but there is nothing marvelous about it—only common sense.

Coffee is a destroyer—Postum is a rebuilder. That's the reason.

PASSING OF FINANCIER

Story of the Rise and Fall of Col. Musgrave.

New York, June 9.—Many of those who knew him twenty years ago, when he was a well-known figure in Wall street, will be surprised to learn of the death of Col. Thomas Bateson Musgrave, formerly head of the banking house of Musgrave & Co., of 29 Pine street. New York's older business men will recall Musgrave's career as that of one once brilliantly successful, but afterward financially ruined, and one whose later years of life were embittered by domestic broils, litigation, and finally a sharp contest which resulted in his liberation from a private sanitarium for the insane, where he had been confined at the instance of his wife and son, who averred that he was incompetent to manage his affairs.

In 1865 he married Miss Fannie E. Jones, of Philadelphia. They were well known in society circles and entertained generously, both at their handsome city house at 535 Fifth avenue and at their $100,000 villa, which Musgrove built at Bar Harbor and gave to his wife. Musgrave was said to have lavished upon her other rich gifts, among them a $15,000 diamond necklace. The Fifth avenue residence also stood in his wife's name. Of two children born to them the survivor, Percy Musgrave, is now a leading physician of Boston.

In 1890 the banking house of Musgrave & Co. failed disastrously and Musgrave's circumstances were much reduced. He rallied from his misfortunes, however, and became a conspicuous advocate of a Fifth avenue railroad enterprise. After that project fell through he was heard of in New York chiefly through domestic difficulties. He and his wife separated and Musgrave went to live with his sister, Mrs. Edwin P. Woodward, of Mount Tabor, N. J. Mrs. Musgrave sued him for separation on the ground of abandonment, and in his defense of the suit he alleged that the extravagance of his family, which had lived at a rate of $35,000 a year, had precipitated his financial ruin.

In 1899 the colonel's domestic troubles were again rehearsed, when Edward P. Woodward, his brother-in-law, brought an action to recover from Musgrave $7500, which he alleged he had advanced to him while the Bar Harbor villa was being built.

In 1900 the elder Musgrave's health was much shattered. He had suffered a slight paralytic stroke in 1898. On complaint of his wife and son he was examined by a physician and was confined in a private sanitarium at 45 West Thirty-ninth street. Mr. Woodward learned of his whereabouts and applied for a writ of habeas corpus, which was granted after an examination by the state board of lunacy. Musgrave was freed and pronounced sane. He then returned to the Union League club, of which he was a member, and resided there until about a year and a half ago. Since that time he was under the care of an attendant. On his return from Cuba recently he went to the home of his sister, Mrs. Woodward, at Mount Taber, N. J., where he died at the age of 72, heart-broken, alienated from his family, and shattered in health and fortune.

TWO YEARS' WORK.

Accountants Nearing End of a Big Task.

New York, June 9.—After two years of constant work on the court and trust fund books in the office of the city chamberlain four expert examiners from the state controller's office are at last within sight of the end of the task. It is said to be one of the largest which expert examiners have ever been called upon to review, as they were required to go over more than 3000 open accounts and to look up and verify thousands of others which have been opened and closed during the last ten or twelve years.

The fact that the city chamberlain is and has been for a hundred years the custodian of funds left by parents for children is not known to the general public, although the chamberlain last year was in charge of $6,785,831, which the surrogates and supreme court judges turned over to him for investment and to be held until the heirs become of age. Under the law, which was nullified when the greater city was chartered, the fees from this fund swelled the chamberlain's income to the amount of $15,000 a year. Under the present charter the fees are turned into the city treasury. Besides being charged with the safe and honest investment of estates the city chamberlain is also called upon to keep the accounts out of reach of scheming lawyers.

The committee reported that up to date 31 firms have given in.

NOVEL IDEA PLANNED

Proposal to Organize Company to Insure Against Strikes.

Employer to Receive Profits Corresponding With Business.

Louisville, Ky., June 9.—A plan for insurance against strikes is under consideration by F. A. Nunemacher, the largest railway printer in the South, and W. C. Nones, president of the Kentucky Wagon Manufacturing company. Eastern capitalists who have been interested in the plan look with favor on it. The idea, though novel, is not unlike fire or casualty insurance.

The project was really born recently at the session of the National Manufacturers' association at New Orleans. Since then, Messrs. Nunemacher and Nones have been thinking over the plan, and believe it feasible. They hope to induce the formation of a company. The idea is to have the premiums based on the business, just as fire insurance is based on the risk. It is proposed to pay the firm suffering a strike such profits only as were figured on the corresponding year.

It is believed that the manufacturers will fall readily into the plan and that no great amount of capital will be needed to put it into force, as the first year's premiums will form a good capital in itself, though of course considerable capital will be necessary at the outset. It is firmly believed that such an insurance company will yield handsome returns on the investment and prove even more attractive to capital than fire insurance. In addition, the existence of such a company would operate largely as a preventive to strikes, as labor unions knowing the company is sure of profits whether working or not, while they are getting nothing at all save a constant drain on the union treasury, would see their quick defeat, and therefore it is believed there will likely be less strikes called for trivial causes.

Mr. Nunemacher is a deep student of the labor situation, and is a leader in the opposition to labor unions as now conducted by the walking delegates. In his immense plant he has not a union man, yet he pays generally higher than union wages. He puts a premium on good workmanship and for the most cleanly kept office and the neatest work. Thus each department strives to outdo the other. He believes that if the manufacturers and large employers would adopt such measures they would get the best men at all times and the unions would be compelled to weed out the agitators and fill their ranks only with competent men willing to carry out contracts. Nunemacher is also one of the originators of the general movement of the organization of the manufacturers in each city to combat the evil of union labor by an alliance to help each other financially and otherwise in case of a strike, and to do all possible to break down the methods of the agitators.

As to the strike insurance plan he says all is in embryo, but he believes when taken up and discussed by the manufacturers they will see the value of it not only from a beneficial standpoint, but as insurance against strikes by discouraging the unions calling their men out. The plan now only contemplates manufacturers, but, he says, it might easily be extended to include all employers of labor, even hotels, where, as in Chicago today, great inconvenience is caused innocent persons. He believes the insurance premiums against strikes would be less than fire insurance, at the same time yield much greater returns to the stockholders. Nunemacher expects to have some more definite plans soon as the idea is digested by the manufacturers generally.

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Soo Man and His Companion Narrowly Escape Drowning.

Sault Ste. Marie—Thomas Tolan, in charge of the Union dock freight house, and a lady friend, are thanking their lucky stars. While crossing a foot bridge over the rapids Sunday the structure broke and the pair were let down into the rushing waters. Fortunately Tolan managed to seize a portion of the bridge and to get hold of his companion, and they were rescued none the worse for the close call, except a wetting.

Calumet—Much logging will be done in the upper peninsula woods this summer. Kimball & Kerr, of Newberry, have closed another contract with the Michigan Iron company for logging the hemlock and pine timber scattered through the company's hardwood holdings, north of Newberry. It is estimated there are at least 30,000,000 feet of hemlock on the tract. The logs will be taken to Newberry over the railroad owned by the Michigan Iron company, and in all probability will be sawed there.

Escanaba—The Oliver Hotel company has been organized at Escanaba with a capital stock of $25,000. The incorporators are: Will Rose, the present proprietor; Fred Ferrel, who recently came from Chicago, and Maj. Burke, who has been connected with the house for the past two years. The new company is negotiating to purchase the property from the present owners, and should the deal go through, as expected, will greatly enlarge and improve the building. The construction of a thirty-room addition is proposed.

Iron Mountain—Iron Mountain will have a Fourth of July celebration of the old-fashioned kind this year. This point was decided at a well attended meeting of citizens held in the council room in response to the call of the mayor. Committees were appointed and the soliciting of funds at once started. More than $1000 will be spent in helping the eagle scream.

HER HUSBAND WAS TOO GOOD

Sang and Prayed So Loudly That Boarders All Left.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 9.—Mrs. Fanantha West, of Broad Ripple, whose suit for divorce from her husband is now pending here, declares that she and her husband had always lived happily together until a few years ago, when he "got religion" at a Methodist revival. He tried to force his creed on the wife and their children.

Later she charges that her husband became affiliated with the Holiness church and things went from bad to worse. He played and sang hymns with more zeal than he displayed in the management of his business affairs, and a grocery business in which his wife set him up proved a losing venture.

Mrs. West took in boarders, but she charges that her husband was seized with fits of "sanctification" in the night and got up at all hours to sing and pray so long and so loud as to make sleep in the house impossible. The boarders could not stand the strain and left. Mrs. West says that while there was no doubting the quantity of her husband's religion, she questioned the quality of it.

WALL STREET EXPECTS

A Big Battle Over the Pennsylvania Road.

New York, June 9.—The course of Pennsylvania since the announcement of the formation of an underwriting syndicate has puzzled Wall street. Since the temporary rally which followed the publication of the news that the syndicate had been formed the stock has steadily declined, until last Friday it touched 123¾, its lowest point since 1899. The accusation is made openly in the financial district that several of the heaviest subscribers to the syndicate have been the principal sellers of the stock, and the presumption seems to be that the object of the attack is to depress the stock in order to make it unattractive to Pennsylvania stockholders, who have the right to subscribe at 120.

If the real object of the syndicate is to get possession of a great share of the new $75,000,000 issue, with a view to securing a nucleus for a control fight, it is likely to be accompanied by pyrotechnics such as Wall street has not seen since the Northern Pacific panic two years ago, in which several members of the syndicate played a prominent part.

The change in the control of the Pennsylvania railroad, involving as it would similar changes in the Baltimore & Ohio, the Reading, Jersey Central, Norfolk & Western, Chesapeake & Ohio and half a dozen smaller properties, would be accompanied by a financial upheaval that would make some startling changes on the railroad as well as on the banking map.

The great Pennsylvania system was forced to capitulate to John D. Rockefeller in 1877, when it abandoned its support of the independent refineries and accepted the terms of the Standard Oil company unconditionally. At that time Andrew J. Cassatt bore the flag of truce. Wall street is wondering whether history is going to repeat itself.

SON WAS OFFENDED

And Resigned Management of His Father's Ranch.

Walla Walla, Wash., June 9.—Nesmith Ankeny, eldest son of United States Senator Ankeny, has resigned the management of the senator's 20,000 acre stock ranch in Adams county, and has gone to Spokane to get a job firing on a railroad engine.

He was highly indignant because he and his bride of a few months, formerly a school teacher of this city, were not invited to the dinner given to President Roosevelt at his father's house last week.

Nesmith is independent. In 1893 he left the management of a flour mill at Dayton, owned by his father, and enlisted in Company F, Washington volunteers, and went to the Philippines. When the regiment returned he came home from San Francisco by train, refusing to ride on the steamer Queen, chartered by his father.

LURED TO LONELY PLACE.

Mrs. Danalovski Was Then Murdered and Robbed.

Chicago, June 9.—Indications that Mrs. Mary Danalovski, whose body was found near the drainage canal on Sunday, was murdered near the spot where the hunters found the remains, have been obtained by the police. Twenty feet north of the clump of weeds where the body was hidden, the police found a handkerchief and a part of a woman's dress. The ground there indicated that a struggle had taken place. The finding of these new clews removes to some extent, the police say, the suspicion against Servinla Chicka, and his wife, who are under arrest. The police now believe the woman was lured to this lonely place and there murdered for her money.

If the Cardinals beat Fargo today and tomorrow it will land them in fourth place, then by beating Crookston five straight we'll be within—but what's the use?

* * *

Crookston is scheduled to play five games here in three days but one of the double-header events scheduled for Saturday will likely be played off at Bemidji on Sunday. This will mean one game with Crookston Thursday, two Friday and one Saturday.

* * *

Next week Duluth opens up with a three-game series at Superior and closes the week with a three-game series with the same team on this side of the bay. According to present calculations Duluth should be in second place about week after next.

THE LUMBER MARKET.

Not Much Doing, Transactions Being on Small Scale.

There is little doing in the timber land market at present, in fact there have been few recorded sales of standing pine in any quantity for several weeks past. Local loggers and lumbermen are now and then picking up a scattering piece of pine or small tracts belonging to settlers and adjoining their holdings, but there is said to be an absence of any large deals.

Timber transactions have been large and numerous in the past year, and the tendency has been toward the consolidation of white pine interests, or the buying up of adjoining small tracts for the purpose of better self-protection in the future market and the prevention of fires which might be started wherever small logging operations should be carried on by the small owner or the settler, who wished to clear up his land. With the increasing values of white pine stumpage in Minnesota more and more attention is being given to the matter of forest fires, and nearly all the larger logging concerns employ men the year around to patrol their timber holdings and watch for fires.

The action of the legislature in passing more stringent laws with the view of precluding the possibility of forest fires, is meeting with great favor among the lumbermen.

THE STAGE

The opening performance of the Northwestern Opera company at the Lyceum last evening gives promise of a most brilliant season of summer opera. The company is a splendid one and gave a production that brought many demonstrations of satisfaction, enthusiasm running high at times. Manager Walle has given Duluth all that he promised to in the way of summer opera and it is now, in the language of the day, up to Duluth to do the rest. The audience was fairly large.

In every way the company is complete and competent. The principals are from the ranks of the best comic opera talent, the chorus is large, pleasing in appearance and can sing, the volume of voice being exceptionally good, the costuming is appropriate and dressy and the orchestra adequate in every particular. It is not fulsome flattery, but truth to say, that the Northwestern Opera company contains as good material and gave as good a performance as most of the traveling musical organizations that have visited Duluth in recent months.

"The Black Hussar" was the bill, and while not a new opera by any means, has been presented rather less tha nmost of the popular operas which have been played here by summer companies. The music is pleasing and sufficiently catchy, there is good place for comedy and the story is interesting and holds the attention. There were a number of interpolations in the way of songs and dances that caught the public fancy and served to bring the production up to date.

George Lyding, the tenor, is a fine singer and will become a great favorite. The only regret in connection with his appearance is that he was not heard enough in solo, but that deficiency will doubtless be made up before the summer is over. His voice is fresh, strong and magnetic. It has not only that delightful sweetness characteristic of good tenors, but the fullness and resonance which too many lack. He has a good stage presence as well and acts with much ability.

Miss Eleanor Jenkins, the prima donna, is a pleasing singer and actress, having a voice that is sweet and well controlled, though not especially strong. In the role of Minna, one of Hagenback's daughters, she made a fine impression. Miss Bertha Hayden, the soubrette of the organization, has a fine mezzo soprano and much dash and vivacity that found a good outlet in the character of Rosetta, the second of old Hagenback's daughters. She sang the "Congo Love Song," the big hit of the "Nancy Brown" production in New York, of which Marie Cahill is the star, and it caught the favor of the audience completely, recall after recall being demanded. Accompanying her was Cyril Tyler—who is singing with the company—and a chorus that added greatly to the effectiveness of the song.

Sylvan Langlois, the baritone, is another fine singer and was heard to excellent advantage in the stirring song "A Soldier of the Empire." His voice is of much power and fine quality.

The comedians, Stanley Felch and Charley Drew are funny and keep the audience in merriment, the former playing the part of Hagenback, the magistrate, who tries diplomatically to keep his frontier town alternately with the French or Russians, according to the which element at the time is in supremacy, and the latter the part of Piffkow, his man of all work. Sylvester Cornish, as Barbara, of the Hagenback household, is jolly, fat and funny. The baseball character song by Miss Cornish, and Messrs. Drew and Felch was one of the great hits and very cleverly done. Dan Young, in two parts, a French major and an actor of an exaggerated type, was excellent.

A wooden shoe dance by four of the young women was a pleasing diversion and the hussar march caused enthusiasm to reach a high pitch. The costuming of the march is especially pretty and the evolutions were intricate and finely executed.

Altogether the production was one which should give Manager Walle much satisfaction and Manager Marshall, of the theater, as well, for it should keep the house open all summer.

"The Black Hussar" will be the bill for the first four nights of the week with a matinee Wednesday.

* * *

"Fra Diavolo," with its sweet music and romantic story, served to usher in the second week's engagement of the Wilbur Opera company at the Metropolitan last night. All the favorites in the cast were warmly received by an appreciative audience. Miss Richardson, as Zerlina, was charming and her scene in the disrobing act was daintily executed and called forth much applause. "Fra Diavolo," the bandit, was in the hands of Gus Vaughan, who scored a hit. Martin Pache's sweet and powerful tenor voice was much in evidence, while Henry C. Peake's and W. A. McGraw, as the thieves, were good, as was also Maria Langdon, Charles A. Vaughan and others. The sextet from "Lucia," at the close of the second act, received a double encore.

New specialties were introduced. The Gardner trio were warmly welcomed. Miss Ethel Hunt recited "Barbara Frietchie" very well. Katherin Goodrich and Reineck and Lamar were also in evidence.

"Fra Diavolo" will be repeated tonight and also at the Wednesday matinee and night.

A reception will be held on the stage immediately after the performance on Wednesday afternoon by the Gardner children. All children under 12 years of age, if accompanied by their parents, will be admitted free to the matinee.

"The Two Vagabonds" will be the bill commencing Thursday night for the balance of the week.

GOVERNMENT BOARDERS QUIT.

Washington, June 9.—The experiments which Dr. Wiley, chief of the chemical division of the agriculture department, has been conducting on a number of volunteers for the purpose of testing borax and other preservatives in food, will be suspended on June 30. The list of vounteers has fallen from twelve to seven and there have been many complaints since warm weather began from the government boarders, who want a change of diet. No statement of the result of the experiments will be made for some time.

M'CHESNEY DEFEATED

In an Unlucky Race By Drake's Savable.

Chicago, June 9.—Drake's Savable at present the favorite in the future books in the American derby, gave McChesney a beating at Harlem yesterday, in one of the most falsely run races of the year. Savable had only a nose to spare over the Harlem national handicap winner at the wire, and in one more jump McChesney would have won. The defeat of McChesney was due to poor racing luck. Rounding the first turn Eva G swerved across in front of McChesney, almost knocking Smather's horse down and causing him to lose a dozen lengths. Before Gray could get McChesney in his stride again, Savable and Jackful were a long way in front. It looked almost a hopeless task for McChesney to reach them again, but he gradually wore down the leaders, raced into second place at the far turn and then set after Savable, then four lengths in front. Down the stretch McChesney moved like a wild horse, but Gray neglected using his whip until just a fraction of a second too late and Savable crossed the line losing ground at every jump, but just barely a winner.

Detroit, Mich., June 9.—Reservation, bred at Royal Oak, and owned by George Hendrie, the Detroit millionaire, won the International derby at Grosse Pointe, in the presence of 5000 people yesterday afternoon. It was a fine day, but the track was very slow from rains, although not muddy. Reservation was behind for six furlongs, then gradually worked his way through. He caught the rest as they rounded into the stretch and was running away at the end. Luralighter was always a contender and raced Claude, the favorite, into submission in the first half, then came again at the end. Fore and Aft second choice looked a winner for half the way, then died.

SEATTLE REACHED.

Cook and Party En Route For Mt. McKinley.

Seattle, June 9.—Frederick A. Cook, a scientist of New York; Robert A. Dunn, a young geologist, of Harvard, and Ralph Shainwald, a young botanist graduate of Columbia, forming the Cook expedition en route to Alaska to make an ascent to the summit of Mt. McKinley, the highest peak on the American continent, have arrived in Seattle. The party has secured fifteen pack horses which will be taken to Cook's inlet at once.

Included in the 1250 pounds of food supplies will be special preparations for use while on the ascent. The equipment consists of Alpine axes, glacial ropes, alcohol and petroleum stoves, a silk tent weighing less than three pounds, capable of accommodating the party, sleeping bags which may be used as overcoats, cameras, etc.

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

Disgruntled Italians Go on a Strike But Soon Return.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Jamestown—Angered because their foreman had been discharged, a gang of fifty Italians employed by the Northern Pacific struck at Buffalo. The company brought them to Jamestown, paid them off and told them their services were no longer required. They were also informed they would be obliged to pay their fare if they wished to return East. They held a conference and informed the company's officials they would return to work. They were sent back to Buffalo, where they are now busy shoveling under a new foreman and discussing the futility of fighting a great corporation.

News has been received from Brainerd that J. W. Anderson, who had his foot crushed a few weeks ago, has been obliged to have his leg amputated just above the ankle.

Two mysterious fires near Courtenay occurred within twenty-four hours, and the residents are of the opinion that a firebug is at work. William Syvertson lost a valuable barn, and a residence belonging to H. A. Thorsgard was partly burned. In the Thorsgard fire kerosene had been used liberally, and a blaze had been started in seven different places.

Charles Severa, the officer who was bitten by a vicious dog, is in a serious condition.

Fargo—On complaint of S. Shalsan and H. G. Otos, two gipsy women were brought back from Harwood, charged with crooked work. The women were with a band which encamped near Fargo and secured money by means of the "knot game." A card with a knot in one end would be placed in the woman's hand, together with a silver coin. The hand was closed and reopened, to reveal the knot untied and the coin missing.

It was on a charge of grabbing a pocketbook from one of their visitors that warrants were sworn out. One of the women arrested was fined $20 by William Rose, justice of the peace, and two horses were put up as security.

Dan Goff is in hoc on the charge of robbign a room at the Arcade restaurant.

On a telegram from the officials of East Grand Forks, Edward Travis, a paper cleaner, was arrested here. It is said he was working for Mrs. Kennedy, of East Grand Forks, and after his departure a diamond was missed. When arrested here Travis had a "spark" in his possession.

Grand Forks—J. W. Skinner, chemist at the Babcock cement mine, west of Hensel, committed suicide by shooting himself in the head with a revolver. He had been in poor health and was despondent. His home was in Minneapolis.

Devils Lake—The Great Northern passenger station was badly damaged by fire, started, it is supposed, from a spark from an engine. The loss is about $1000.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Rapid City—The case of John G. Smith, charged with incest, has gone to the jury. It was one of the most sensational cases ever tried here, and resulted in the suicide of one person, E. B. Duell, who drowned himself in Box Elder creek Thursday, because of the case. Smith is charged with being the father of his daughter's child. The evidence showed that a criminal condition had existed for a long time, but through fear of the father the two daughters would not make it known. Miss Allie Jewell, of the South Dakota Children's home, was the first to take any action, and she caused the daughters, both of whom are very young, to be removed to the home in Sioux Falls. The defense sought to establish that E. B. Duell was the author of the girl's condition. He was at one time engaged to marry her and was to be one of the principal witnesses against Smith. One of the notes he left before his suicide contained a pathetic reference to the love he had borne the girl, with the declaration that he had never wronged her. Smith is a ranchman living in the northeastern part of Pennington county.

Deadwood—The preliminary examination of William and Abel Jussila, Finlanders from Terraville, charged with criminal assault upon the wife of the former, is in progress. The principal witness is the injured woman, who is about 20 years old and rather pretty.

Sturgis—The body found in Box Elder creek, Meade county, was that of Edward B. Duell. Coroner Sparks says it was a clear case of suicide.

Elkton—The Merchants' hotel burned at a total loss of $6000; insurance $2750. No lives were lost.

Elk Point—At the instance of the teachers of the public schools, the business men have offered a series of prizes ranging from 50 cents to $2, for the best specimens of garden vegetables raised by school children.

E. C. Ericson and children, Harry and Florence, are at Green Lake, Minn., for a few days' fishing. Julius Schaetzel and family are there for the summer.

Pierre—William Pagner, a Sully county horse raiser, sold at private sale twenty head of horses at $100 a head. They had never been fed grain and only been given hay in the severest of winter weather, living on the prairie all their lives. Horses raised in this manner are but a small expense to their owners and sales are largely profit.

Nine local telephone companies have filed articles of incorporation with the secretary of state since the first of April. The companies so organized are the Plankinton Telephone company, Hudson Telephone company, Independent Telephone company, of Yankton; Dell Rapids Farmers' and Merchants' Rural Telephone company, Farmers' Mutual Telephone company, of Lake Sinai, Brookings county; Davison County Rural Telephone company, and Blendon Rural Telephone compan,, of Mount Vernon, and the Fairfax Telephone company at Fairfax, in Gregory county.

A RELIGIOUS TRUST.

Combine of Churches Favored By Rev. Dr. Hillis.

New York, June 9.—Taking as his topic "Christ's Ideas on the Unity of Man and of the Church," the Rev. Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis preached a sermon in Plymouth church Sunday, in which he favored a religious combination after the style of business trusts. He said:

"One problem of the church in the next twenty years will be the organization and combination of churches like the organization and combination effected in the steel business and other industries, whereby the extraordinary waste of money in re-duplication of church plants of different denominations in the same community may be checked.

"Some of the many churches in the West which depend on Eastern money to support separate organization in the same town should be starved into a sense of their foolishness. The cry of the Christian within the next twenty years in this country will have to be unity and corporate management in the 25,000 or more communities instead of 167 sects."

GOVERNMENT AVIARY

Has Been Established on Pelican Island, Florida.

Washington, June 9.—Secretary Wilson has assumed control of Pelican island, off the coast of Florida, and it is now a government reservation. The government is conducting an aviary there. For several years the Audubon society has coveted the island, but to secure it involved several years of litigation, and the idea was abandoned. The island was about to fall into other hands, when, to control it and to prevent the entire extinction of the brown pelicans which breed there, the government took possession.

A warden has been placed on the island with instructions to allow no one to land during the breeding season without a special order from the secretary of agriculture. For years the island has been one of the interesting spots on the coast on account of its beautiful growth of palms and marsh grasses and the hundreds of brown pelicans which flocked over it. This is the only place where these curious birds are known to breed in a colony. The reservation will be maintained simply for the preservation of these birds.

PRIMARY ELECTION LAW

Wanted In Michigan and May Be Passed.

Grand Rapids, Mich., June 9.—Agitation for an extra session of the legislature to enact a primary election law will begin as soon as the present regular session closes. Strong pressure will be brought to bear on Governor Bliss to issue a call. Garret J. Diekema, chairman of the Republican state committee, is a strong advocate of a primary election law, and last week warned the legislature against adjourning until party pledges were fulfilled. He will probably head the movement and a majority of the state committee will be with him. The State League of Republican clubs, state granger and numerous local political organizations will add to the pressure upon the governor, and it is believed public sentiment will be so strong he will yield to it.

THIS IS AWFUL.

A Fear That Police Measuring Machine Is Defective.

New York, June 9.—An investigation has been started by the civil service board and Commissioner of Police F. V. Greene into a charge first made that the machine which had been used at headquarters for years for measuring applicants for the force is defective.

If the machine is as far wrong as alleged, there may be found to be many policemen on the force too short for their jobs. According to an official inspection of the machine, it appears that the apparatus can be so manipulated that a man being measured can add half an inch to his height, which necessarily must be 5 feet 7½ inches. It is asserted that a scheme has been found possible whereby the electric mechanism showing that the person being measured is standing squarely on his heels can be manipulated by the pressure of one heel, enabling the applicant to raise himself a trifle beyond his true height.

SUPERIMPOSED TURRETS

On Warships Condemned By French Naval Commission.

Cherboug, June 9.—The system of superimposed turrets on warships has been condemned by the naval commission which has been experimenting with the battleship Henri IV. The final trials were to test the possibility of men occupying the lower turret while firing was going on from the upper turret. Four sheep were tied in the lower turret, to represent gunners, and after ten shots had been fired three of the animals were found to be dead. The fourth had broken away and had sought refuge in the captain's cabin.

TO WELCOME PRESIDENT.

People of Oyster Bay Are Growing Excited.

New York, June 9.—Oyster Bay is preparing to welcome President Roosevelt to his summer home. A committee has been appointed by the local board of trade to arrange details for the reception. Much will depend upon when the president arrives, and the arrangements will be made to suit his convenience. The village will celebrate its 250th anniversary, June 21-23, and the committeemen are fostering the hope that the chief executive will reach there in time to take part.

CARRIAGE HORSES SOLD.

New York, June 9.—Twenty-five trotting bred carriage horses have been disposed of at a Fasig-Tipton sale, in this city, for $19,125. The highest price, $4000, was paid by S. Walter for a pair of chestnut geldings, one of which won the Blue ribbon in single harnessss at the horse show last spring.

GIFT FOR PRESIDENT.

Washington, June 9.—King Victor Emmanuel has sent to President Roosevelt a gift of rare value, which will be presented to the president on Monday by Signor Mayor Des Planches, Italian ambassador, who, at his majesty's request, will be received in special audience at the White House. The gift is one of books and consists of the war reports of Prince Eugene of Savoy and a copy of Dante's "Divine Comedy," with a comment in Latin by Stefano Tallice Da Ricaldine. The books are elegantly bound in full red moroco and bear the royal crest with the king's monogram in the four corners of each volume. The war reports are in twenty volumes and the comedy in one volume.

A SENSIBLE DECISION.

The decision of the city council to suspend all proceedings in connection with the proposed paving of East Superior street, between Sixteenth and Twenty-third avenues, is the most sensible action that could have been taken. The property-owners on the line of the proposed improvement are not opposed to having the street repaved. On the contrary, the majority are heartily in favor of the paving being done without delay, but this is apparently impossible, owing to the low state of the permanent improvement revolving fund and the demands upon it for other much needed improvements.

It had been proposed to pass an order for the East Superior street paving and levy the assessment which the city charter says can be levied previous to the work being started, but there was no expectation that any work on the portion of the street affected could be done this year. The result would have been the imposition of an unnecessary burden upon the property-owners without any benefit, as they would have been compelled to pay the assessment and their money would have been tied up all winter without a yard of paving being laid. By the action now taken by the aldermen this injustice is avoided, and there will be nothing to hinder the proceedings being renewed in the spring and the pavement being laid next year.

THE EXPORTING NATIONS.

That the United States is steadily gaining in position among the exporting nations of the world, especially in manufactures, is evident, in spite of the constantly increasing demand of home consumption. The position of the different great exporting nations in the order in which they export manufactures is: Great Britain, first; Germany, second; France, third, and the United States, fourth.

The United States bureau of statistics, in a recent bulletin, estimates the grand total of manufactures entering into international commerce at about $4,000,000,000 per annum. Of this the United Kingdom supplies, according to the same authority, 25 per cent; Germany, 20 per cent; France, 12 per cent, and the United States 10 per cent.

The table accompanying this bulletin puts the exports of manufactures as follows: United Kingdom, $1,076,046,000; Germany, $824,051,000; France, $508,803,000; United States, $403,631,000. In general exports, too, Great Britain still leads the world, but her lead over the United States is so narrow as hardly to be appreciable. The leading countries in exports for 1902 were ranked by the United States government reports as follows: United Kingdom, $1,379,847,313; United States, $1,355,481,861; Germany, $1,158,630,000; France, $817,725,000. In the year 1902, though the United States exported manufactures valued at $403,631,000, the imports of manufactures totaled $344,816,000.

MANCHURIA MISSIONS.

Just at this time when the eyes of the world are turned toward Manchuria by reason of the attitude of Russia, the religious situation is of interest as far as missionaries are concerned. The area of Manchuria is three times that of Great Britain, and its population about 20,000,000. It is inhabited by a virile race, consisting of the Chinese and of the Manchus, the race which conquered China. Missionary operations were begun in 1870, by two Irish preachers. At first the natives were hostile, and the path of the missionaries was full of difficulties. In 1873 there were only three converts; in 1899 there were 19,000, and until the outbreak of the Boxer troubles, when various mission stations had to be abandoned, they were steadily increasing at the rate of about 50 per cent a year. There were at that time about sixty foreign missionaries in the field. Special attention has all along been given from the beginning to the training of native helpers. The medical work has been the means of breaking down opposition and opening a way for the gospel. The British Foreign Bible society has cooperated with the missionaries in scattering the literature, and Christian churches are starting up all over the country. The most recent reports are to the effect that Russia has put every possible obstruction in the way of reopening the abandoned missions. She has already put Manchuria under the Greek archmandrite of Pekin, and has limited all Christian teaching to members of the Orthodox Greek church.

The work of the missionaries is likely to be performed under difficulties in Manchuria, and success will be dearly bought. This the missionaries realize, and will go about their task determined to succeed or die.

AN AMERICAN POPE.

It would not be at all surprising if in the course of a few decades an American pope was elected to preside at the Vatican. Present tendencies point that way, a fact plainly shown in the selection of the heads of the Roman Catholic orders. It is not so very many years ago that such heads were invariably Italians, or at most and excepting a few societies German in their traditions, citizens of Latin countries. The present inclination of the Roman Catholic church is to put Americans at the head of as many of these organizations as possible. Complaints have been uttered by Italian aspirants, but they are being silenced by events. That the next step should be taken, and forty or fifty years hence an American pontiff be chosen, will be the logic of events. These events are the wonderful development of Catholic orders in America, and the certainty that that development is to be far greater during the next decade than ever before.

The new Franciscan superior general, just chosen, was born in Prussia, but has spent many years in America, and is looked upon as an American. Other reasons entered into his selection, however, than simply the one of his nominal Americanism. Father David Flemming, an Irishman, was acting superior general only, but during his term of little more than a year he offended most of the Italian Franciscans. Finding themselves unable to secure an Italian, they substituted an American for an Irishman. Father Flemming has been made secretary of the new Bible commission, of which Cardinal Satolli is the head, and will go to Rome to reside, not in the Vatican, as has been announced, but in the Via Merulana, the great Franciscan monastery, erected in Rome in 1890 by the present emperor of Austria. The new superior general, Father Schuler, organized the English-speaking Franciscan Province of the Holy Name, with headquarters in Paterson, N. J. The new American Franciscan consultor is Father Leonard of the commissariat at Washington.

All these things are favorable to American ascendency and there are many Catholics who believe that the future will show their supremacy in ecclesiastical lines as in practically everything else.

WATCH THE CHILDREN.

This is the season of the year when there is special danger of street car accidents. During the evening hours the children receive free latitude to run about on the sidewalks and in the streets. The schools will soon be closed for the summer vacation, and throughout the day there will be an increased number of children playing on the streets in the residence districts. There is little danger in this practice on the avenues and the streets on which there are no electric lines, but where cars are passing at frequent intervals it is different.

The summer season is dreaded by the motorman, because it means increased responsibility for him—constant worry and anxiety, because children in their play frequently dash across a street with no thought of danger. For one accident that is reported there are dozens of narrow escapes that are never mentioned, and only the most careful watching by the motormen prevents many horrible fatalities. A day's ride with a motorman through the residence districts will convince anyone that his position is not to be envied, because of the numerous hair-raising experiences due to small children getting on the tracks. The parents owe it to themselves and to their children to watch them and to caution them against playing on the tracks of the electric cars. There is plenty of room to play on the sidewalks and vacant lots, and those who permit their children to run across the electric lines must blame themselves if accidents happen.

CRIME IN SCOTLAND.

It is certainly a surprise, not to say a shock, to learn that in staid old Scotland, there has been a marked increase in criminal offenses in the past twenty years. In the last report of the judicial statistics the commissioners say: "An examination, however hurried, of the tables which make up the criminal statistics for the year 1901, will show that the rapid increase in crime and disorder which began in 1897 has continued and has as yet received no check. Never, so far as we know, have so many prosecutions been initiated in Scotland, and never before have there been so many committals to prison.

* * * We are forced by these statistics to acknowledge that small crimes and disorders have increased enormously in Scotland since 1881. To such an extent is this the case that, even if we take into account the increase of the population by 750,000, we have now 24,000 more offenses recorded annually in Scotland than we ought to have, if the criminal records of the last two decades of the nineteenth century are to be taken as standards. In making these general observations, we are only restating what has been the outstanding feature of the Scottish criminal records for several years. From whatever point of view the criminal statistics are regarded, the same fact stands prominently forward."

The commissioners have no general explanation to offer as to the causes of the growing criminality, except as regards the minor offenses. "We can come to no better explanation of the extraordinary rise of the imprisonments last year," they say, "than that it was caused by the disorderly conduct of the lowest class, who through an abundance of employment on public works, were placed in possession of wages which they do not wisely spend." That is, as appears from other remarks, the growth in crime is most intimately associated with intemperance. It is significant that while crime has increased in Scotland so has also the consumption of spirits.

Present conditions are certainly deplorable, not only in Scotland, but in other countries, the United States included as well. There is no doubt that intemperance lies at the foundation of it all. With the solution of the temperance problem will come a large decrease in criminal offenses.

The Brooklyn department of water supply, gas and electricity has arranged with lighting and electric railroad companies in the city to make a careful study of the electrolysis of water pipes. The destruction of the pipes by the electricity which escapes from the railroad lines is a problem which every city may well investigate. It has recently been found that more than $1,500,000 damage has been done by electrolysis in St. Louis, and there is little doubt that proportionate damage has been done in other cities. Have the water and gas pipes in Duluth been damaged in this way?

HOTEL GOSSIP.

Cooks are again at a premium.

It's hard enough to get the pastry performers in Duluth, but it's awful in the range towns.

Superintendent O. H. Gates, of the Vermillion Lake Indian school, is here again on a scouting tour for cooks.

He has made a soft of milgration for recuperating his kitchen forces at the school several times this winter.

The cooks evidently don't like the idea of being a chef for the sons and daughters of the noble red man. Just fancy, now.

Last night Mr. Gates got into town again. He had been here only a few minutes when he began ad writing, and notices that cooks were wanted dominated the want ad pages. This morning a score or more of applicants called at the Hotel McKay, where the superintendent of the Indian school is stopping, and sought the place.

Mr. Gates is now a man of experience. At former visits he experimented with different varieties of cooks and made selections with care, but there was always some characteristic that he missed, and the result was the cook would stay about a week or ten days, or long enough to accumulate money enough to get back with, and then he would have to repeat his visit.

In this way he has acquired an inside knowledge of affairs connected with housekeeping that would qualify a signed discussion in a Sunday paper on the servant-girl problem.

Mr. Gates says that this time he will get a cook that will stay or know the reason why.

He probably will—one of the two.

From the gathering at the Hotel McKay this morning he stands a good show of getting a cook.

* * *

Mr. Gates is not the only one, by any means, who has come into Duluth looking for cooks. They are coming from all parts of St. Louis county, and they are all having the same success.

At the Hotel McKay within a week there have been a score of people, women of household possessions and men of hotel connections, all looking for the said cook.

A few have been chosen, but they return and the seekers are still coming in hordes.

"It was back in 1895, I think," said George McRae, assistant general passenger agent of the Omaha road, at the St. Louis hotel this morning, "that we were traveling to some fair in the South, the Atlanta fair, I think, come to remember. At any rate, there were a lot of railroad men from up in this country in the party, among whom was one man who was on the old St. Paul and Duluth line, and who has since left it. We had a special car from the Great Northern road, and the party was made up of seven or eight.

"After we left Chicago, we started on the Southern trip and time began to drag, and somebody started a poker game.

"Now, I don't play poker; I never did and never want to, and it made me weary to see that bunch sit down and cut me off from all communication with civilization.

"I sat around and read for a couple of days, but the poker players kept right on with the game. We were down in Tennessee or Alabama or somewhere in that vicinity when my revenge appeared.

"The boys were sitting around the tables with drawn faces, set teeth, and dull, fireless eyes, gripping the five cards as they were dealt, and the game was intense. I tried to get them to quit, but they wouldn't. Not a man would leave his seat, and they sat and glared and muttered, 'That's good,' or 'I pass,' and the terms so familiar to poker players.

"Right in the middle of a hard played pot, there was a crash, bang, bump and a scraping noise that would have made a blast in a mine look like a two spot, and then the dust and smoke blinded the party and the debris buried it.

"The train had run through one of the tunnels in that country, and it hadn't been built with proper consideration of the Great Northern's special cars. The top was ripped off, and the balance of the roof scraped along the top of the tunnel till it came out the other side.

"It broke up the poker game, and it looked as if it would break up the financial standing of the members of the company.

"But the car was sent back and there has never been a bill sent that I know of, and the claim is probably outlawed by this time."

MY SHIP FROM SPAIN.

Oh, Captain, on whose wrinkled cheeks,
Are marks of storm and beating gale,
Have you not seen on distant seas,
Somewhere, a glimpse of stranger sail—

Perchance when evening shadows fell,
And misty clouds presaged the night,
Uplifted, on some crested wave,
Then slipping slowly from the sight?

My ship should have a sheen of gold,
And silken sails like bridal train,
And bear a perfume, faintly sweet,
Of roses on the hills of Spain.

Youth promised me long years ago
This ship should sometime come to me,
And bear its lade of wealth and fame,
From distant lands beyond the sea.

It has not come, I know not why,
It may have sought this port in vain,
And in some unknown harbor lie,
And idly fret its rusting chain.

Meanwhile, I've beat the anvil's face,
And felt the heated furnace blast,
And wealth of brawn and honest toil
Into life's circling currents cast.

I've climbed the headland, morn and eve,
To scan the dark horizon line,
To catch a glimpse far, far at sea
Of this belated ship of mine.

Full three-score years have fled away,
And still I patient watch and wait;
My whitening hair and feeble steps
Suggest that it may come too late.

For what is wealth to him who dies,
Or honor in the hour of pain?
The Lethe for the ills of years
Was never borne by ships from Spain.

GOOD LAW NEVER DISTURBS

The Commercial West: Business will never be disturbed by bringing suits against trust organizations that are working on wrong lines. The suit against the beef trust, for instance, would not have the hurtful effect on business that the Northern Securities suit had. In the case of the beef packers there are features of organization that are fairly open to criticism, while in the case of the Securities no element of monopoly control appeared, and the United States court in its decision did not suggest the violation in fact of the Sherman law; the power to violate was held to be the illegal feature, a different proposition.

While this ruling stands at the moment as the law of the land, its hurtful effect is felt because unsound law cannot change an economic principle. We cannot change by law. By law to be, moral. If we have a prohibitory statute, some people will drink intoxicating liquors. It is not economic to prohibit, except along the general lines laid down in the law of Sinai. After we leave those principles we reach the point where control begins. In the case of restraint of trade there should be actual restraint else the logic of law is overridden—we are guilty of every crime because we have the power to be.

There is always a right way to deal with business questions, and that is the sober way. The principle underlying business sensitiveness never changes. It is one thing to oppose a wrong, but another thing to arbitrarily call development wrong and fetch it up taut. There is always a bar when the latter method is resorted to. In Minnesota, the home of anti-merger doctrine, the jar has been severe on those securities not directly affected by the Securities decision while Northern Securities stock, directly affected by the decision, has suffered least of all.

What has been gained by the anti-merger policy? Some serious-minded person may say the law has been upheld. Very good, it is good law, born in honor. Good law never disturbs.

In our view of the case the Sherman law is dangerous and incapable of general and impartial enforcement. Judging by the subject matter of some of President Roosevelt's late speeches, we infer that he sees the danger ahead. There is more conservative tone to his remarks. It is more likely that the next move will be to amend the Sherman law rather than to enforce it.

Applying this line of reason to the Northwest merger, we find that if the volume of through traffic cannot be increased, the Northwest cannot hope for further rate reductions of importance on local traffic. The merger opened the door for the increase of through traffic that would make it possible to reduce local rates. Fortunately, the people will not be deprived of all the benefits of merger because common ownerships exist if common management does not. We call attention to figures on Northwest rates printed elsewhere. They are full of significance for anyone who cares to be a student rather than a prejudiced reasoner. They reveal sharply the reasons why the merger would work for public benefit. President Roosevelt evidently caught a new view of the merger at Puget Sound. He suggested it in his speech at Butte.

A way must be found out of the tangle the country is permitting its interests to be drawn into through the Sherman law. The Northwest is paying heavy losses this week on investments in Northwest securities, as a result primarily of the Securities decision. Twin City Rapid Transit shares have fallen 32 points since the Securities decision, or thereabouts. The Soo shares have declined heavily; the common, 22 points. Other leading shares have yielded to the broad influence of a court decision that clouds the title of investments. The people must learn by experience that business cannot be played with.

Working the Old Game.

Chicago Chronicle: Advices from the anthracite region indicate that the coal barons are about ready to provoke another strike and thus have an excuse for still further advancing the price of coal. Unfortunately, the miners appear to be entirely willing to accommodate them. In this situation the consumer may as well prepare to "pay the fiddler" as usual.

No Objection Made.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: It is claimed that Gen. Sherman couldn't endure "Marching Through Georgia," and yet that was the tune the band played when the latest statue of the old warrior was unveiled. But of course it made very little difference to the general.

THE CONVERSION OF SLOW FOOT ROBINSON

By Harle Oren Cummins.

(Copyright, 1903, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

When construction train, Extra No. 340, west, drew out of Bad River, its nineteen freight cars were supposed to be carrying but two things—steel rails and wooden ties for the track layers on the new spur at Big Bend.

Orders had come from the general manager's office that the proposed line of track on the mountain division, connecting Big Bend and the Pass, must be completed before July 1, and the superintendent of the division was working his men over time to have those orders obeyed.

Indeed, in making up No. 340, two box cars had been pressed into service. Now, box cars are hardly what one would select from choice to transport railroad ties on account of the time lost in loading and unloading through the doors. However, the last order from the dispatcher from the Pass had read: "Send up nine cars of rails and ten cars of ties. Rush," and there being only 17 "flats" in the yard it had simply been a case of Hobson's choice for the other two cars.

I have said that No. 340 was supposed to be carrying only construction material. This supposition was incorrect, for snugly tucked away in the rear of the box car next to the engine, was an exceedingly ragged and dirty specimen of humanity.

He must undoubtedly have had a Christian name at some time, but that had long ago been forgotten, and he was known by the very appropriate sobriquet given him by his hobo fraternity—Slow-Foot Robinson.

He had waited around the yard while the cars were being loaded, for he knew that the train was bound for the spur. This being in the direction he himself proposed traveling, he had accordingly decided to beat his way as far as Big Bend. As it was beginning to rain, the box cars at once attracted Slow-Foot's attention, and finding that the door of the first one was only part way closed he waited in the shelter of a pile of lumber until the train was ready to start.

A few minutes later Foley, the freight conductor, came tramping along through the rain on a final tour of inspection. Everything, apparently, being in order, he waved the starting signal to the engineer, who was leaning out of the cab.

There was a vicious little toot from No. 340 in reply, and, amidst a great amount of wheezing and coughing, the construction train slowly pulled out of the yard.

At the same time a ragged figure shot out from behind the lumber pile, ran along beside the train for a little way, then catching hold of the iron rail just below the door, swung up into the foremost box car. In loading the ties there had been a space left in front of the doors about two feet wide, and here Slow-Foot soon found himself. As this was too conspicuous a place to suit his purpose, he scrambled up on top of the ties, and, crawling along to the rear, found an opening between the last row of ties and the end of the car, just large enough to hold him, but with very little room to spare.

"Here's what I calls comfort," he chuckled to himself, as he pulled off his wet boots, wrapped his coat about them for a pillow, and then laid down at full length on the bottom of the car. "Here I be in my side-door Pullman, comfortable and happy as the president of the road, and the best part of it is that it don't cost nobody a cent." With which observation he turned over on his side and was soon asleep.

Slow-Foot Robinson may have worked at some time during his eventful career, but if so, no one was present on that eventful occasion to record it. He had begun life as a "prushun," or tramp boy, and had been taught to beg by an old member of the profession who undertook his education, the same as other boys at his age are taught to work.

For the past ten years he had been drifting about from one city to another, sometimes in the West, sometimes in the East or South, covering in all a distance of over 50,000 miles. And he boasted that for not one mile of this extensive traveling had he ever paid any railroad company a cent.

Strange as it may seem, during all this time there had never been any criminal charges against him. Unlike the majority of his fellow tramps, he did not steal; he had never been a pickpocket or passed counterfeit money. The trouble with Slow-Foot was that he was born "tired," as he expressed it. He was one of the laziest men living.

It would have been a very simple matter to have secured work, for owing to the heavy spring rains, the roadbed on the Bad River division was in terrible condition, and the section bosses were taking on new help every day. They were not over-particular, either, as to whom they hired for it doesn't require skilled labor to wield a pick or shovel. But the habits and associations of the old life had been too strong for Slow-Foot to resist, and he kept postponing the day when he would settle down to work. All that was needed was some great event to stir him deeply and, as it proved, construction train No. 340 was chosen as the instrument to do the stirring.

After leaving Bad River, the road twists about for a few miles, first rising for a few hundred feet, then descending again to the valley level. After passing Cedar Gap, the grades become steeper, and, finally, at Cedar Springs, comes the five-mile ascent up the Pinnacle, as Cedar mountain is called. From there there is a straight down grade into Big Bend.

The train moved along fairly rapidly for the first hour but on passing the Gap, slowed down considerably, for, though No. 340 was an eight-driver and almost new, those nine flats loaded with rails were uncommonly heavy. At Cedar Springs, where a five-minute stop was made to take water, there was some discussion between Foley and the engineer as to whether it would not be better to split the train, leaving half of it on the siding, and make two trips up the mountain. Foley, however, had unlimited confidence in No. 340, and it was finally decided to try the pinnacle with the whole train.

Meanwhile, back in the "side-door Pullman" Slow-Foot was comfortably "pounding his ear," as he would have expressed it. The bottom of the car was not the softest bed in the world, but he had used the same many times before, and he slumbered on peacefully.

He was awakened when the train was about half way up the Pinnacle by an uncomfortable pressure against his body. He tried to turn over to a new position, but his berth had suddenly become narrower. Still half asleep, he felt about him on both sides, and found that he was wedged in firmly between the ties and the end of the car.

"Was just dreaming I was a United States senator," he muttered, sleepily. "Guess I must have got swelled up over it, for I'm sure bigger than when I came in."

He decided to crawl out and get on top of the load, where he would have more room, but when he tried to rise his head struck sharply against something hard. He reached up, and touched a solid roof above him.

In a flash he realized what had happened. In climbing the Pinacle the car of ties being loosely packed, had shifted its position, and was sliding slowly down upon him. The uppermost ties not having so much weight on them to hold them down, had slid more rapidly, so that he was literally walled in. Not only that, but the walls of his prison were gradually closing in on him.

A cold sweat of fear started out on Slow-Foot Robinson, and he reached up and tugged at the timber above him, trying frantically to force it back. He might as well have tried to break a log jam with his hands. He shouted at the top of his lungs, but the rattle of the train drowned his voice, so he could scarcely hear it himself.

With the continual jarring of the car, the huge mass of timber settled slowly backwards. The space in which Slow-Foot was squeezed narrowed from a scanty twenty inches to eighteen, then sixteen, and soon the tramp could not get into a position in which the ties did not pinch.

At this juncture, with death staring him full in the face, Slow-Foot did a little serious reasoning with himself. "Serves me right," he muttered. "It's all my own fault. If I'd a' worked the way I oughter have, this wouldn't a' happened. Bet if I ever do git out of this, I leaves the road for good."

But there did not appear to be any way of getting out of the difficulty. Moving slowly and irresistibly as the wheels of time, the great ram crept down upon him. The space closed up till there was less than a foot of room between the nearest ties and the end of the car, and the pressure on his chest became almost unbearable. He tried once more to call for help, but gave it up and muttering something which may have been an oath, or, perhaps, a prayer, he settled himself to meet his fate like a man. Then, suddenly, above the rattle of the train, he heard a shrill whistle.

"I thanks God, an' I quits loafin' from now on," he muttered, solemnly, for he had recognized in that whistle No. 340's signal for "brakes." This meant that the top of the Pinnacle had been reached and the train was about to start down the other side of Cedar mountain into Big Bend.

On the down grade the train moved faster, and the increased jarring made the great pile of ties slide back more quickly than it had descended upon him. Half an hour later the passenger of the box car crawled out, a changed man.

And the next morning the old saying, "There's nothing new under the sun," was refuted, for, when that brilliant orb rose out of the East it shone on something it had never seen before.

That something was Slow-Foot Robinson, trudging down the railroad track toward the shanty of the nearest section boss to ask for work.

Discriminating Gratitude.

The pension bureau at Washington has discovered a Brooklyn woman with more real, if unconscious humor to the square inch than many a professional afterdinner talker. She is the widow of a New Yorker who fought and bled for his country and she had waited long for the stipend Uncle Sam passes out as a small token of the republic's gratitude. At last the government has granted her a pension, and the patient applicant has acknowledged the tardy action in the following note:

Is the joy of the household, for without it no happiness can be complete. How sweet the picture of mother and babe, angels smile at and commend the thoughts and aspirations of the mother bending over the cradle. The ordeal through which the expectant mother must pass, however, is so full of danger and suffering that she looks forward to the hour when she shall feel the exquisite thrill of motherhood with indescribable dread and fear. Every woman should know that the danger, pain and horror of child-birth can be entirely avoided by the use of Mother's Friend, a scientific liniment for external use only, which toughens and renders pliable all the parts, and assists nature in its sublime work. MOTHER'S FRIEND

STARTLING ARRAY

Of Figures on Divorce Presented By Father Pardow.

Clergymen of All Denominations to Form a Union.

New York, June 9.—More than 500,000 divorces have been granted in the United States in the last twenty years, according to Rev. William O'Brien Pardow, S. J., formerly Jesuit provincial of New York and president of St. Francis Xavier college. He estimates that 1,500,000 American children have seen their homes broken up. The number of persons divorced would populate the state of Nebraska or the city of Philadelphia. They are more than the population of each of twenty-five states and territories of the union. These figures are from statistics and estimates furnished by Rev. Father William O'Brien Pardow.

There is to be a union of the clergy of all denominations—Roman Catholic, Episcopalian, Presbyterian, Methodist and many more—to stem the divorce tide in this country. Already a subcommittee has been formed. It is to be a syndicate of churches of different beliefs, waking side by side.

It is to be a union of courtesy, not of law, civil or ecclesiastical. Briefly, when a clergyman of any church, whatever the denomination, refuses to marry a divorced person, clergymen of all other churches in the syndicate will, by courtesy, respect his action and likewise refuse to perform the ceremony.

The Episcopalians, headed by Rev. Dr. David H. Greer, rector of St. Bartholomew's, where the Vanderbilt and many others of the fashionable set worship, began the movement. Dr. Greer takes practically the same position as the Roman Catholics, for whom Father Pardow, leader of the Jesuits in New York, has taken up the cudgels. Now going with them in the movement are such men as Bishop Doane, of Albany, the venerable Bishop Clarke, of Rhode Island, Bishop Paret, of Maryland, and Francis Lynde Stetson, all representing the Episcopalians; Rev. Dr. William Henry Roberts, of Philadelphia, stated clerk of the general assembly; Rev. Charles A. Dickey and Rev. Drs. McClaine, Nicholls and McCaughan, and John R. Parsons, for the Presbyterians, and Bishop E. G. Andrews, Dr. Kelley and Judge Reynolds for the Methodists.

Archbishop Farley has been invited to join the movement in behalf of the Roman Catholics. While he is strongly opposed to divorce, it has been left to Father Pardow to make the chief protest. He makes a statement to the world, in the course of which he says:

"In these days of modern civilization, we glory in the horseless carriage, smokeless powder and wireless telegraphy; soon we will be coming to the motherless child and the childless mother. More than 500,000 divorces have been granted in the United States during the last twenty years. Think of the homes broken up, the children whose parents are separated, the untold misery that such a state of affairs brings about.

"There are today in this land probably as many as 1,500,000 children who have not what we call a real home—not the home in which father and mother unite to bring up their children as God willed them to do.

"In 1889, by authority of congress, the United States commissioner of labor was ordered to report upon marriage and divorce in the United States for the twenty years from 1867 to 1886 inclusive. He found that in that time there had been granted 328,716 divorces—257,322 people had set up the marriage tie.

"All we can say in estimating figures for the last twenty years is that since those figures were compiled more than a round half million of divorces have been added to the number. This is no mere speculation. The figures, 328,716, were upon an estimated population of 50,000,000. With our present population of 80,000,000, the estimate of 500,000 divorces is little enough.

"During the same period in Europe, with its population of 380,000,000, the number of divorces has been only 244,811. With a population five times greater than the United States there have been less than one-half the number of divorces.

"Considering the loose hold that religion seems now to be having upon so many of the people of the United States, it seems as if the power of coming to the rescue of the country has been transferred from the church to society.

"The responsibilities of the rich and the educated upper classes cannot therefore be too much insisted upon. This water runs down hill by its own weight, so the breaking of the divine law among the 'four hundred' will soon reach the millions, spreading from the classes to the masses.

"The religious penalty seems not to have the power of restraining from divorce. There remains now the question of social ostracism.

"The worst cases in the world are in Newport. If people in high life frown upon divorce and make it a social reproach, those who fear such censure would be less liable to kick over the traces. Let society men and women subject the remarried divorced people to social ostracism, and an almost universal alleviation of this curse would be secured."

HELD MEETING IN FIELD.

Dublin, June 9.—An Irish National league meeting, announced to take place at Fallow, Waterford, Sunday, was suppressed by the police. The members of the league, however, assembled in a field outside the town, at which the proposal of the corporation of Waterford to present an address to King Edward, on the occasion of the king's proposed visit to Ireland, was denounced.

WHITE DOVE AT WEDDING

Very Happy Omen at German Marriage In Wisconsin.

Appleton, Wis., June 9.—Residents of a German settlement in the townsulp of Center, Outagemie county, a few miles north of Appleton, are mystified over what they regard as an extraordinarily happy omen in connection with the marriage which recently took place at the little Lutheran church in the settlement.

The marriage was that of Fritz Wagner, of the town of Osborn, and Miss Laura Ihde, of the town of Freedom, and the ceremony was performed by the pastor, the Rev. G. Schowe. As the bridal party stood before the altar during the marriage service, a pure white dove, one of a flock belonging on a farm near the church, flew into the church door, walked slowly up the main aisle to the chancel, passed between the bridal couple and the minister and flew upon the altar. There it remained until near the close of the service, just as the benediction was about to be pronounced upon the couple, when it spread its wings and flew several times around the heads of the bride and bridegroom as they knelt before the altar.

The bird then resumed its perch upon the altar, where it remained until the bridal party and most of the guests had left the church, when it walked down the aisle, through groups of wondering and half-frightened guests, to the door, when it took wing and flew away.

The visit of the bird is generally interpreted by the simple people of the neighborhood to be an omen portending all kinds of happiness and prosperity to the couple.

YOUNG MILLIONAIRE

Presents Favorite Barber With Check For $1400.

New York, June 9.—Douglass Gordon, whose sister married Senator Hanna's son, has created more than a mild sensation among wealthy men about town by his record smashing barber tip.

To George M. Duncan, a barber at the Hotel Cadillac shop, he presented a check for $1400, remarking: "I think you have earned this, take it and buy yourself a barber shop."

Taking the young millionaire's advice, Duncan looked about for a favorite opening and finally purchased a shop on Eighth avenue.

Recently, while Duncan was shaving Mr. Gordon, he expressed the hope to one day own a shop, but at the same time expressed doubt if he ever would have money enough. The tip mentioned was the outcome of this conversation.

PRICK OF A PIN

She accidentally burned her hand a week ago and a blister came. To relieve the pain she broke the blister with a pin, but pricked too deeply, and blood poisoning set in with a fatal result.

LAST OF THE STRIKE.

Shopmen Make Agreement With Union Pacific.

Omaha, June 9.—The last echo of the shopmen's strike, on the Union Pacific, died away yesterday when the blacksmiths completed terms of settlement with President Burt and Superintendent of Motive Power McKeon. The agreement, as finally concluded and signed, provides:

The strike is declared off. Men return to work next Tuesday.

All old men will be reinstated who apply for work within thirty days.

The matter of piece work is left to the discretion of the men.

An average increase of 10 per cent in pay.

Nine hours is to constitute a day's work.

The matter of non-union men is left to adjust itself.

This statement was officially given out by both sides:

Both the former strikers and the company are apparently satisfied with the terms of the settlement. Throughout the conferences with the different branches of striking shopmen the best of feeling has prevailed, and the men express satisfaction with the treatment they have received at the hands of President Burt. About 200 blacksmiths and helpers are affected, seventy-five of whom return to the Omaha shops.

NOT TO BE CAUGHT

City Will Circumvent Harassing Plans of Paving Concerns.

Lake Avenue Property Present Objections to Paying For Paving.

The council last night—

Authorized an option on local coal-tar output sufficient for bitulithic paving purposes.

Received an ordinance amendment virtually repealing the famous plumbing ordinance.

Authorized board of public works to discontinue proceedings to improve Superior street east of Sixteenth.

Received paving protest of Lake avenue property owners claiming they always should pave north of Sutphin.

Approved the annual coal supply contracts awarded by board of fire commissioners.

Received but did not approve new bids for heating and plumbing No. 4 firehall.

Authorized rebuilding of the dangerous city docks at New Duluth and Fond du Lac.

Received petition from park commissioners asking approval in purchasing old boulevard property.

Authorized circulating of petitions for resurfacing East First street, between Sixth and Twenty-third avenues east.

Fearing an effort to corner the coal tar supply in Duluth, the council has authorized another contract with the Zenith Furnace company, by which that concern will reserve a certain amount of tar from its proposed bi-product coke ovens for municipal use.

Alderman Moore introduced a resolution to that effect, and it was adopted unanimously. It is reported that since Duluth has been seriously considering manufacturing bitulithic street paving with a municipal ownership plant, several corporations interested in the same kind of paving have been anxious to corner the local supply of coal tar, expecting thereby to practically kill the city's proposed street paving venture, and making it necessary to buy bitumen from the companies that now control the bitulithic paving output.

The city has no intention of being headed off in this way, however, and if the Zenith Furnace company shows as strong a disposition to favor municipal ownership in the coal tar contract as in the gas supply contract recently closed, there is said to be no question but the city can get reserve option on a sufficient percentage of the output to go into the bitulithic macadam business at any time.

* * *

An ordinance was introduced by Alderman Wing last evening which would virtually repeal the much cussed and discussed plumbing ordinance. There have been a great many rumors of probable attempts to annul this ordinance, but this is the first effort direct. Many real estate men claim that it has increased plumbing from 25 to 100 per cent, according to various classes of work, but although the ordinance of Mr. Wing was received and referred to the ordinance committee the general expression of the council was not favorable to a repeal.

* * *

In view of the fact that more than one half of the property owners on Superior street, between Sixteenth and Twenty-third avenues east, requested a delay of one year in having that section, the council authorized the board of public works to discontinue proceedings.

The city attorney says the petition for this improvement holds good indefinitely, or until such time as those signing it see fit to withdraw their signatures. This emphatically dispels the report that the delay would mean the speculating of an entirely new petition next spring.

It has also been claimed that in going over till next season the improvement would lose all precedence it had over contracts petitioned for after it. According to the charter, precedence in contracts of this nature must be given where assessments are paid most promptly, so it is scarcely a matter for the board of public works or other city officers to decide.

The request of property owners that all water, gas and sewer connections be made to the lot lines this year, in order that all would be in readiness for the paving next year, was turned down by the council, on the ground that work of this kind is not permitted under the charter until the contract for the street improvement is let.

* * *

Lake avenue owners of property, between Sutphin and Superior streets, protested against the city's making any street paving assessment in the district named.

As outlined by The Herald several days ago, they claim that the thoroughfare from Sutphin street north to the viaduct is an approach to that structure, not made by nature or natural conditions, and therefore a part of the viaduct.

They further hold that the old contract between the city and St. Paul & Duluth road, whereby the railway company agreed to build the viaduct if the city would maintain it, is absolutely void, and cite instances in Minneapolis and St. Paul where the courts held prototypes of this contract to be invalid.

On the strength of these decisions, the railroad companies in the Twin Cities were not only compelled to build, but forever afterward maintain the viaducts. This, the protesting Lake avenue people hold, should be done in Duluth.

Judging from expressions of several aldermen, their point is well raised and taken as far as the viaduct structure is concerned, but the city officers say they do not consider the graded street between Sutphin and the bridge approach a part of the structure.

* * *

Steam heating and plumbing for No. 4 fire hall still perplex the aldermen. Acting on the council's recent instructions, the board of fire commissioners re-advertised the contracts last week. The American Heating company put in the lowest bid for the heating, which was $55 higher than the former bid, while the lowest plumbing bid, put in by D. R. Black, was the same as the former bid.

It was explained that the heating plant specifications had been changed somewhat to improve the plant, but several of the aldermen desired more information on current prices for such work before voting approval of the contracts. The American Heating company's bid was $1130, while the plumbing bid was $696.

* * *

The fire department's coal supply contracts for the year were confirmed. The department gets 600 tons of Youghiogheny coal at $4.50 a ton; seventy-five tons of hard coal at $7.35, twenty-five tons of cannel lump at $5 and twenty-five tons of blacksmithing coal at $5.75. The contract was awarded the Northwestern Fuel company.

* * *

The annual inspection of the fire department will be Thursday, June 18. With one or two exceptions all the aldermen indicated that they would accept the invitation of the fire commissioners to attend.

* * *

The dangerously rotten city dock at Fond du Lac is to be rebuilt at a cost of $150 and the New Duluth dock will be put in proper repair, largely through the efforts of Alderman Sang.

* * *

Noble Sampson, city sealer of weights and measures, notified the council that he had not been observing the new state law in regard to the increase in milk and beer measures, pending a test of the law now on in the Hennepin county district court.

* * *

Petitions for resurfacing East First street, between Sixth and Twenty-third avenues east, were authorized. The engineering estimate for this work is $11,500 or about $34 for a fifty-foot lot.

* * *

An invitation from the mayor to attend flag day exercises at the city hall was accepted.

* * *

The board of park commissioners has asked the council for permission to buy property now occupied by the boulevard drive between Sixth avenue east and Mesaba avenue—a distance of five blocks. Owing to a clerical error title was not acquired to this property when the boulevard was built.

CANADIAN CROP PROSPECTS.

Montreal, June 9.—The Star publishes a crop report from special correspondents throughout the Dominion, which indicate record crops in half the area, average crops in about one third the area, and poor crops in one-tenth of the whole. The Montreal district suffers most. Rain is now falling in many districts. Favorable weather would now undo much of the damage even in the worst districts.

Mr. Charles Crasper, gardener, living at 920 First street east, says: "I was a great sufferer from kidney complaint for ten or twelve years, and although I took quantities of medicine I got at best but temporary relief. I had rheumatism all through me, severe pains in my back and shoulders, so that often I could hardly get around. I wore plasters without number, rubbed myself with liniments, took so much medicine that I lost faith in them. The kidney secretions were very irregular and deposited a heavy sediment. I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised and got a box at W. A. Abbett's drug store. I expected them to turn out as all the other remedies I had tried, but I was most agreeably surprised to find that in two days I felt a great improvement in my condition. KILLS THE FISH

Dumping of Sawdust Into Lakes and Streams Is Fatal.

The State Authorities Will Take Vigorous Action Against Practice.

The state game and fish authorities are taking active steps this season to prevent the dumping of sawmill refuse into the rivers and small lakes in Northern Minnesota. Last year several complaints were made to the authorities that mill men were getting rid of their waste sawdust by dumping it into streams generally recognized as good fishing streams, with a result that the fish were being driven out. It was claimed that in several places in the northern part of this state where there was formerly excellent fishing the fish had disappeared, and their absence was attributed to the presence of large quantities of pine sawdust in the river.

It is a fact well known to those who have investigated the matter that the presence of pine sawdust in the small streams and of pine logs in the small inland lakes or ponds is fatal to fish life, and within recent years laws have been passed by the state legislature prohibiting the practice so convenient to mill men on the inland waters of dumping their surplus sawdust into the streams. Not all the sawdust is disposed of in that manner, for some of it is used for fuel, but enough of it has been put in the streams to cause a serious diminution of the fish. Last season certain sawmill concerns operating on the St. Louis river had to be warned that they were breaking the law in this regard.

A prominent scientific man in one of the Canadian colleges has been experimenting on fish life with water in which sawdust was placed. His line of experiments are also said to have included the contents of wood cells freed in the manufacture of pulp by both the chemical and sulphite mills and with the cell matter freed in the manufacture of beet sugar. The experiments are said to have proved that the results of trying to feed fish on sawdust were more disastrous than were the efforts of the man who fed his chickens on the same material with the expectation of hatching out chickens with wooden legs, or woodpeckers. The scientific man did not even succeed in getting planked shad. The fish died.

Not only is the matter of sawmill refuse in the rivers being given close attention by the Minnesota authorities, but out in the coast states, where the lumbermen have been dumping large quantities of mill refuse in the water in the effort to get rid of it, the local authorities are taking steps to prosecute, and several prominent mill men are said to already be defendants in actions brought against them in Everett, Seattle and other of the Pacific Northwest cities.

Local fishermen who are familiar with the course of the St. Louis river for many miles above Duluth claim that there are now shoals where sawdust and mill refuse have filled in to the depth of from five to six feet, and that the fish have deserted such localities entirely.

AN AIRSHIP THAT FLIES

Michigan Man's Invention Surprises a Washington Patent Lawyer.

Cadillac, Mich., June 9.—George Wade, of Hoxeyville, has procured a patent on a flying machine. He recently went to Washington for this purpose. In order that no harm might befall his model he sent it by express. He arrived at the national capital in advance of the machine and at once sought out a reliable firm of patent attorneys. Mr. Wade is considerable of a farmer in appearance as well as occupation, but the manager received him cordially and gave close attention to the visitor until he learned that he was up against a flying machine crank.

The farmer began a description of the model; told how successful was its flights, and that if they would only furnish a roof, a hall or any place of safety he would give an exhibit. The legal expert smiled in a peculiar manner, at the same time saying it would not be necessary to give an exhibition in order to secure a patent, but Wade insisted. By this time the clerks had crowded around and were anxious to see the failure. The manager asked how high a platform was necessary for the starting point.

It was now Wade's time to laugh. He informed the lawyer that his machine would actually rise off the ground and soar upward to any desired height. The model soon came and it was at once taken to the law office, where Wade demonstrated that he had actually invented a successfuly airship. After several hours, in which the machine was tried in every conceivable manner, the manager siad it was the first successful model he had ever seen of the many that had been brought to the Washington patent office. He said that in every other instance it was necessary to start from an elevation, when, even in the most successful ones, the ship would gradually sink to the floor. Mr. Wade's invention remained suspended in the air, moving about at his will, until the motive power had spent its force, when it would be necessary to wind it up again.

The model is about 18 inches square and by an arrangement of fans and sails makes an upward flight on the same principle as does a bird—compression of air under and at the sides of the body. The model will carry a weight of half a pound in addition to its own weight. He is constructing a large machine on the same plan, which he expects will carry a man. That being successful, he will erect a larger one fitted with a gasoline motor. The one he is now building is fitted with bicycle foot power.

Hints To Advertisers

Mahin's Magazine: Most advertising managers are always in a hurry—procrastinators always are in a hurry at the last minute. Why copy should not be in the hands of the compositor three days before the date of issue, nobody knows. The goods are there and all the details are arranged, but, ten chances to one, copy goes to the printer the morning of the day of insertion, if it is an evening paper. A half dozen printers set the job in "takes," because one man can not complete it in time and carry out an individual idea of type arrangement, etc. Since only one man can work at a case in the printshop, a half dozen too many fonts of type are used, proofs are frequently submitted in sections, the proofreader has to go over the advertisement in a hurry, the form is sent to the pressman in a rush and the finished result shows the haste that characterized the whole transaction. The advertising manager would not for a minute think that he was the author of the whole trouble, but he is.

Printers Ink: A somewhat kindred "advertisement" of the free and fortuitous kind is embodied in the following paragraph, which has been going the round of the joke columns:

Father Knew Him.—One of the Inspectors of schools in one district is a Dr. Williams and the following is an account of what happened on the occasion of his visit to a school near here. A little girl of six, in the infants' school, greeted Dr. Williams with a smile of recognition whenever he turned in her direction. Struck by this fact he at last said, "Do you know me, my girl?" "No, sir," was the reply, "but my father does; he always takes your pink pills!"—Pudsey News.

Jed Scarboro: Good impressions are the results of a well-directed purpose. When an advertiser fails to make his readers appreciate his proposition, the chances are he doesn't know exactly what he is driving at himself.

The Advisor: Never sneer at patent medicines—there are many of them which are saving doctor's bills every day in the year and they are just as legitimate, if not more so, as the doctor's prescription and the pharmacist's concoction.

Progressive Advertiser: Good advertising goes right along with its work day and night without knowing hours or time for rest.

Equally impartial, little Herald want ads will find a buyer or seller for you.

Boston Globe: Some of the people who object to newspaper publicity when they are doing wrong are willing to pay big prices for it when they have goods to sell.

You know just about what arguments result in a sale to the people who come into your store. Use the same ones in your advertising.

LOSS WILL BE HEAVY.

California Banks Will Lose $750,000 Through Eppingers

San Francisco, June 9.—The Chronicle today says: The Eppinger failure, which is now declared to be the inevitable result of about five years of unwise investments, is more sweeping in its results than was at first supposed. It is now known that the liabilities will approximate $1,373,000. There is only about $650,000 worth of property with which to pay this, and $400,000 of it is represented by 20,000 acres of land on which the London, Paris and American bank holds the mortgages, leaving but about $250,000 in warehouses, stores and grains to satisfy claims of nearly $1,000,000. The absolute loss, with no possible payment, will be approximately $750,000. The Eppingers will be left practically penniless, and four San Francisco banks and three country banks will have to bear the combined loss of three quarters of a million dollars.

YOUR MONEY RETURNED

If Hyomei Does Not Cure You of Catarrh, Says S. F. Boyce.

In advising that he will refund the money to any one purchasing a Hyomei outfit who can say that it has done them no good in the treatment of catarrh, S. F. Boyce means exactly what this guarantee says.

Of course the percentage of cures by Hyomei is nearly one hundred or else he could not afford to make this unusual offer. But if the treatment should not be adapted to your case there will be no questions or quibblings when you go to get your money.

That the beginning of catarrh is due to the presence of germs in the air passages is now admitted by every physician. It stands to reason that catarrh cannot be cured unless these germs are first destroyed. The Hyomei treatment kills the catarrh germs even in the minutest air cells, soothes and heals the irritated mucuous membrane and makes complete and lasting cures in cases that have resisted the usual methods of treatment.

Catarrh cannot be cured by medicines administered through the stomach. Hyomei is the only natural method and it has made cures that seem miraculous. An outfit costs but $1.00 and consists of an inhaler, which will last a lifetime and sufficient Hyomei for more than a month's treatment. Additional bottles of Hyomei can be procured for 50c.

S. F. Boyce gives his personal guarantee with every Hyomei outfit he sells to refund the money if it does not cure. There is no risk whatever to the purchaser of Hyomei.

If you are suffering from any of these symtoms don't hesitate to consult a physician at once. Remember that Kidney Trouble is a fatal disease. It carries off thousands every year. This disease is little understood for the reason that few physicians will take the time to make a careful chemical analysis of the urine and without this it is impossible to reach a correct diagnosis and without a correct diagnosis the case cannot be treated successfully. The careful manner in which I examine each case has enabled me to cure

Many Cases Considered Incurable.

IN LINCOLN PARK

Fishermen Are Making Nice Catches of Brook Trout There.

Large Number of Good Size Said to Be Found.

Speckled trout are caught in Lincoln Park. Such is claimed to be the case by residents of the West End. Moose, bob-cats, bear, deer and porcupines have been reported as visitors within the city limits, and now the residents of the West End come forward with stories of large, fat, speckled trout caught within the park, and not one or two at a time, but by the basketful.

The little stream which wanders through Lincoln Park in the West End is claimed to be the paradise of the disciples of Isaac Walton, and the "beauties" are said to haunt its cool depths in great numbers this spring.

Last Sunday three residents of West Duluth, A. Page and Louis and Charles La Salle, fished up the stream and secured twenty-three trout, none of which were under the six-inch limit. Mr. Page got 11, Louis La Salle 9 and Charles La Salle 5.

Mr. Moe, the West End merchant, in speaking of the fishing in this stream, said:

"The young lads out in this part of the city are making a good thing out of the fishing here. Nearly every evening you may see several of them coming home with baskets of trout. The fish are of no mean size, some that I have seen being as long as 14 or 15 inches. Some of the boys come home with baskets loaded, and a few are entirely unsuccessful."

Some of the lads have been disposing of the fish to local restaurant keepers, and in one or two cases a neat sum of pocket money has been earned by enterprising youths who do not know the law or do not object to breaking it.

The news of the good fishing in this stream has spread through the West End, and an ever increasing number of anglers is haunting the shores of the creek. Waltonites who have been journeying by train for twenty or thirty miles in search of a good trout stream are filled with chagrin to hear of the messes that have been caught almost in their own backyards.

PLANT TROUT FRY.

French River Stock Is Enriched By 50,000.

French river is going to be a better trout stream than it is now when the fingerlings planted in it yesterday by Game Warden John Green and President J. P. Harris of the Duluth Fly Casting club grow up. They planted 50,000 of the little fellows, the fry coming from the St. Paul hatchery in a special car in charge of Maj. Marty, superintendent of the hatchery. Not one died en route. The work of planting took up all day. The fry, in 10-gallon cans, were taken on a dray as closely as possible to the river, and then dumped carefully from the bank into the water, care being taken not to burst the little sacs of food that nature had provided for the little fellows as a start in life. The planting was done at intervals along the upper reaches of the river.

THE ARTILLERY RACES

A Feature With Forepaugh-Fish Wild West Shows.

Going nearly across the plains will be seen in the Luella Forepaugh-Fish Historical Wild West a battery of field artillery. The object of the heavy—to illustrate the evolution and efforts of gunners and their officers to take up a new position, or be first into action. In warfare artillery plays a most important part. Indeed, nowadays battles are most frequently nothing more than artillery duels. Therefore, this arm of the service has become, through the modern improvements in projectiles and field service, the most effective.

At West Point the cadets are taught to mount, limber-up, unlimber and rush hither and thither, to and fro, with their field batteries, to fit them for subsequent active service. The commands —"Action, front! Take ground to the rear!" etc., all have mighty significance and bring into greatest activity the men employed in the management of field artillery.

In the Luella Forepaugh-Fish Historical Wild West will be shown the speed and expedition with which field artillery, fully equipped for battle, with its gunners, caissons, cannon, horses and everything can be moved from point to point. The spectators will see artillerists and their armaments, complete in every detail, racing for dear life; horses plunging and gun carriages thundering along in the wild attempt to reach the goal first. Nothing more exciting or illustrative of the pomp and circumstances of rugged war could well be found anywhere else. These races, with all their eclat and thunderous effects, will take place at every performance.

A troup of Bedouin Arabs, whose equestrian feats of marvelous skill and endurance, electrify and enthuse both young and old. Their inimitable and eccentric repertoire of weird and wondrous athletics, include lightning-like manipulation of their long guns, high dives over bayonets and swords, tumbling and tossing beyond all limitations, equilibristic balancing, living pyramids, twisting, twirling and spinning around with such velocity and persistency that suggests perpetual motion incarnate. One of many other remarkable acts to be seen with the Luella Forepaugh-Fish Wild West, which will exhibit at Duluth, Saturday, June 13.

IS LOST IN THE WOODS

John Brown, Two Harbors Butcher, Wanders Astray While Hunting.

John Brown, a Two Harbors butcher, was found in a half-starved and exhausted condition in the woods fifteen miles north of the town yesterday. A posse of fifteen men had been searching for him since early Sunday morning, and it had been feared that he had burned to death in the forest fires, which are raging up there.

Brown left Two Harbors early Saturday morning with William Lawrence and Jack Beatty for a fishing trip to Gooseberry river, and fifteen miles out they started fishing up the stream. Brown, who is fat, became weary and dropped behind, telling his companions he would join them on the return trip. They did not find him, however, and when they reached the point where they had left their team, they were startled to find that he had not been there. They went back up the stream on an ineffectual search for him, which continued all night, after which the two men returned to Two Harbors and organized a searching party of fifteen.

The search was still on when a boy rode into Two Harbors and said Brown had reached Nestor's camp at 9 o'clock yesterday morning, so completely exhausted that he was unable to start for home. He was taken to Two Harbors in a carriage late last evening.

Brown said that after his companions had left him he tired of fishing and taking his rifle started off in the woods after game, and he wandered all night and all day Sunday, sleeping on the ground for several hours Sunday night. He had no food during the entire time.

THE LYDICKS PREPARING

Their Evidence For Presentation at Section Sixteen Hearing.

Cass Lake, Minn., June 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. Nellie Lydick and George Lydick and their daughter Ruth went to Ball Club yesterday, returning today, after securing some valuable evidence to be used in their case next week. They saw numerous Indians, who will testify to her Indian birth and to her former statements. Mrs. Lydick, who claims for herself and her children, Ruth and Henry, the major portion of section 16, was born at White Oak Point, on the Chippewa reservation. She has always drawn her annuities as an Indian from the Indian department. When Mrs. Lydick was a nursing babe her mother was married by Chris Burns, now county commissioner of Cass county. The mother was then a resident of White Oak Point and a Chippewa Indian. The two children are very bright and intelligent. The boy is at the Indian school at Morris and the girl has attended school at Cass Lake. The fact that they have regularly drawn their annuities and their right to take allotments on the Chippewa reservation has never been questioned, and that they could take land on any other part of the reservation, is in favor of Mrs. Lydick.

Mr. and Mrs. Lydick have always affirmed that the squatters would be treated in a fair manner, and when the secretary of the interior granted the land to the allottees and there was no thought of the case being opened, Mrs. Lydick said that although the decision gave her the buildings, she would not take them from the squatters, nor would she even turn them off or in any way interfere with those who had been her bitterest opponents. She also promised, subject to the sanction of the secretary of the interior, to lease, or, if congress permitted, sell the land to the squatters for a reasonable price. So pleased were those who objected to her allotment at her attitude that they withdrew, in writing, all opposition to her claim and signed a document to that effect. All opposition being withdrawn by the squatters who were the original objectors, it was thought the matter was ended, and there was very considerable surprise that Senator Nelson asked for a rehearing of the case, these objectors having wired to him and having in writing told him they were not now opposed, and asking him to withdraw, in their name, the objection. The majority of the few who originally objected and then withdrew their objection have been true to their agreement not to oppose the granting, and the objectors have dwindled down to one or two. It is thought when Senator Nelson knows the above he also will withdraw from the fight.

CORNER STONE OF NEW CHURCH

Is to Be Laid at Fosston By the Methodists.

Fosston, Minn., June 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Methodist congregation of this city has decided to erect a new church building, the corner stone of which will be laid on Wednesday of this week. A very interesting program has been arranged, which will be given on the occasion of the laying of the corner stone. The new church will be built on the vacant lots opposite the public school building, and it is the intention of the congregation to put u pan edifice that will cost not less than $2500. The work of laying the foundation will be commenced within the next week, and the building will be pushed to completion as rapidly as circumstances will permit.

Rev. Dr. Dodds, presiding elder of the Crookston district of the M. E. church, will be present at the exercises and will lay the corner stone, and will be assisted by Rev. Refsdal, pastor of the United Lutheran church, of this place. In the evenign, at the United church, a meeting will be held, at which the presentation of a valuable present will be made to the Rev. Refsdale, who intends to move within the next week to Ishpeming, Mich. The present agitation for the erection of a new Methodist church was commenced some few weeks ago by the pastor of the church, Rev. R. K. Calloway. Mr. Calloway has been pastor to the congregation here but little more than three months, but by his untiring efforts he has worked up much religious enthusiasm for his denomination. The congregation is enabled to push forward with the erection of the proposed new building through the donations made by local supporters of the church and the liberality of the Church Extension society, the bankers for the Methodist denomination in the United States.

DEGREE OF HONOR.

Superior Lodge Holds Annual Session at St. Paul.

St. Paul, June 9.—The superior lodge, Degree of Honor, auxiliary to the supreme lodge, A. O. U. W., opened its sessions yesterday at Minnehaha hall, 165 West Ninth street. Some of the delegates have been delayed by the floods, notably those from Kansas and the states in that direction. The sessions are all secret.

Mrs. Anna C. Wilson, of Morris, Minn., grand chief of honor, delivered the address of welcome, and Mrs. Louise W. Bush, of Aberdeen, Wash., responded.

Mrs. Elizabeth Allburn, of Sioux City, Iowa, superior recorder, reported a total membership of 85,500 and a beneficiary membership of 34,942.

The superior receiver, Mrs. Emma S. Bickford, of Manchester, N. H., reported something over $9000 received into and disbursed from the general fund since Jan. 1. The beneficiary receipts during that time amounted to $12,102.60. The Upchurch fund had received $981, and the fraternal building fund $25.

All the delegates seem to be agreed that the office of superior chief of honor must go to Mrs. Irene Raikes, of Buffalo, N. Y., who is at present superior lady of honor.

The Beginning of Trouble.

A disordered stomach may cause no end of trouble. When the stomach fails to perform its functions the bowels become deranged and the liver and kidneys congested, causing numerous diseases, the most fatal of which are painless, therefore the more to be dreaded. The important thing is to restore the stomach and liver to a healthy condition, and for this purpose no better preparation can be used than Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. SERVICES OF HANNA

Needed at Head of the Republican National Committee.

St. Louis and Chicago After the Next National Convention.

New York, June 9.—High-up Republicans of the Empire States are talking national politics, prompted no doubt by the convention at Columbus, Ohio, concerning which newspapers here have published lengthy accounts.

The groundwork of their comments is the accepted idea at this time that President Roosevelt is to be nominated by the Republican national convention, which will be held either in Chicago or St. Louis a year from the present month.

St. Louis, through ex-Governor David R. Francis, president of the Louisiana Exposition company, is already working day and night on members of the Republican national committee to get the convention for the exposition city. Chicago, though influential Republicans of that city, is putting forth all sorts of arguments as to why Chicago should have the convention and St. Louis should not, and the chief argument of the Chicagoans, who are in town, is to the effect that St. Louis has enough on its shoulders to handle the exposition, without running the risk of attempting to look after a national convention, Republican or Democratic.

It seems that President Roosevelt's friends, believing that he is to be nominated by acclamation, are to ask Senator Hanna to remain as chairman of the Republican national committee and conduct the fight in 1904 for Roosevelt, just as he led the fight for McKinley in 1896 and 1900. When President Roosevelt returns to Washington, and he is expected to be there shortly after the wedding at Senator Hanna's home, certain Republicans who have been always friendly to Senator Hanna and others who have not been on familiar footing with him, are to talk with President Roosevelt for the purpose of assuring the president that the wisest move to be made at this time is to induce Senator Hanna to remain as national chairman.

One of the senator's personal friends, in discussing the matter, said:

"Senator Hanna readily understood the situation in Philadelphia, just as he understood the situation concerning Mr. Roosevelt's status the other day. The senator is a good deal like that lovely lady in Iowa who owned a gentle kid, with glossy coat and gray eyes. The kid was all right as long as it was a kid, but when it grew up and became a goat, with bushy whiskers, prone to butt everything and anything that came in its way, then it was that lovely lady decided that that goat must go the way of all the earth. So she got her friends to buckle that goat down on the railroad track, and the goat struggled and made things unpleasant, and the railroad engine was coming around a curve and it seemed to be all up with the goat, until the goat coughed up a red flag, and the railroad train came to a stop just in the nick of time. The goat was saved and so was the train."

This seems an odd statement to make yet President Roosevelt's friends in New York city are responsible for it, when it is remembered that at Philadelphia, in 1900, Senator Hanna, as chairman of the Republican national committee, protested vigorously against the nomination of Roosevelt for vice president, and labored for the nomination of Cornelius Bliss. Mr. Hanna was induced to withdraw his opposition to the candidacy of Roosevelt for vice president by Senator Quay of Pennsylvania and Senator T. C. Platt, who introduced into the convention an insidious resolution calling for a reduction of the representation from the Southern states in Republican national conventions.

That resolution was a pet measure of Henry C. Payne, now postmaster general, and for the last six years vice chairman of the Republican national committee and Mr. Hanna's protege, and the convention was ready to adopt it. If that resolution had been adopted by the convention Mr. Hanna's influence in the Southern states would have been minimized.

Senator Hanna will be in town within a day or so, and his friends were saying yesterday that he would personally tell whether he had coughed up a red flag, and whether he could find it convenient to remain as chairman of the Republican national committee next year.

Senator Platt was asked at the Fifth Avenue hotel whether he thought Senator Hanna would continue as chairman of the national committee and run the campaign of 1904.

"I haven't heard much talk about that yet," he replied, "but I presume an effort will be made to get Senator Hanna to continue at the head of the committee and run the campaign. But I can't discuss probabilities."

BRIDESMAIDS OF MISS HANNA

Entire Party Represents the Younger Set In Society.

Cleveland, Ohio, June 9.—There will be twenty in the Manna-McCormick bridal party, including Miss Ruth Hanna and her fiance, Joseph M. McCormick. Each represent a prominent American family. The attendants of the bride-to-be are all leaders of the younger set in which they move in their respective cities, while the groomsmen are all prominent young professional and business men.

Miss Lucia McCurdy, Miss Hanna's first cousin, who made her home with Mrs. Hanna's mother, Mrs. D. P. Rhodes, will be maid of honor. Five of the eight bridesmaids were schoolmates of Miss Hanna at Farmington. They are: Miss Frances Lewis, Portland, Ore.; Miss Virginia Johnston and Miss Laura Ginley, Pittsburg; Miss Eleanor Patterson, daughter of Robert Patterson, of the Chicago Tribune, and Miss Adelaide Hamilton, daughter of D. Z. Hamilton, Chicago. Miss Patterson arrived in New York from Russia Tuesday with her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Robert S. McCormick. Two or three bridesmaids who were not schoolmates of Miss Hanna, are Cleveland girls. They are: Miss Florence Cobb, daughter of Lester Cobb, and Miss Claire Hanna, daughter of L. C. Hanna. The eighth bridesmaid is Mary Hopkins, daughter of Archibald Hopkins, Washington.

The best man will be the groom's younger brother, Rutherford McCormick, who is president of the Yale University club. The eight ushers will be: Joseph M. Patterson, cousin of the groom, Chicago; Robert Allerton, Chicago; P. W. Becke, of the Chicago Tribune; Ernest Miner of Cincinnati; Jno. Barney, New York; William Williams, Philadelphia; Malcolm McBride and Howard M. Hanna, cousin of the bride, Cleveland.

SHORT SKIRTS

For Fairies Caused Trouble In High School.

Canal Dover, Ohio, June 9.—A dark cloud has hovered over the annual commencement of the New Philadelphia high school because of the abbreviated costumes designed for wear by the fairies in a production by the pupils of "A Midsummer Night's Dream," at the commencement, June 14. Several of the fairies objected to the short skirts, and their parents indorsed their objection. The matter was taken up by Superintendent Maurer and the high school teachers, and it was decided that the fairies skirts should reach between the knees and the ankle. This satisfied those who objected, and the threatened trouble has apparently passed.

ATROCIOUS WORK

Of Macedonians to Incite the Turks to Massacre.

Plots Are Put on Foot to Win Europe's Sympathy.

Constantinople, June 9.—The air is usually in a quiver with events in Constantinople, but just now there is a special tremor, a reverberation of the occurrences in the Turkish provinces, which threaten to have their culmination in the capital.

The outrages in Macedonia are neither the beginning nor the end of the things of which the Bulgarian Macedonians are and have been capable, atrocious as they were, especially at Salonica, where bombs were lavishly distributed all over the place by men disbuised as monks and women; where the blowing up of the Ottoman bank, the demolishing of the French steamer just as it was leaving port, and the killing and wounding of innocent victims in the streets, produced an indescribable panic that lasted for days.

Almost daily news of fresh outbreaks, of open or covert attacks upon lives and property in other towns of Macedonia, to say nothing of mysterious threats, and intimations of possible outbreaks in Constantinople, with hints of war between Turkey and Bulgaria, leave no doubt as to the determination of the Macedonians to force that attention of Europe which they have so long been coveting.

Notwithstanding the failure of the Armenians in '95, who took similar means to excite the Turks to a massacre, expecting thereby to gain European help and redress, and final independence from the Turkish yoke, the Macedonian agitators are determined upon the same experiment, relying for success upon their tenacity of purpose and their willingness to sacrifice life, whether it be their own or that of whomsoever lies in the path of their purposes.

Though these Bulgarian Macedonians are manifesting a phenomenal recklessness and a certain dare-devil intrepidity which they would call courage, yet they are not likely to meet with the success they have dreamed of. Though attempting to provoke the Turks to a massacre by every means within the scope of fire and sword, powder and dynamite, they are not finding the Turk off his guard this time. The Turk learned a lesson eight years ago in trying to suppress the Armenian uprising by mediaeval methods, whereby he earned the condemnation of all Europe. It has cost him too much in indemnity money and in prestige to take that risk again, and the hope of inciting him to another massacre by the Bulgarian is, so far at least, without the shadow of fruition. Indeed, the military measures taken in Salonica, in the late outbreak, and the attitude of the Turks generally, have been characterized by tolerance, and the punishment meted out to those who have been caught has been tempered with justice, and an evident desire to conciliate rather than antagonize.

Whether this is due wholly to the newly-awakened tolerance on the part of the Turk, or to the influence of the European ambassadors, who are having almost daily conferences with the Sultan, whom they are counseling to toleration if he would have the sympathy of Europe, is immaterial as far as the results are concerned.

It must be borne in mind, to the further credit of the Turk, that he has to deal now with a much more dangerous element than that of the Armenian; not only more dangerous individually and physically, but in his intents, which may involve the disruption of the empire.

When the Armenians succeeded, by secret intrigue and clandestine throwing of bombs, in provoking a general massacre by the Turks, they had no such organization or support as the Bulgarian Macedonians. Deserted by their plotting leaders, who fled the country at the last moment—as far as it was possible—the poor Armenians left behind, most of them innocent of any conspiracy, stood resistless, quaking and cringing in their last hour, and allowed themselves to be clubbed to death without so much as raising a finger in their own defense.

The Bulgarians, on the other hand, are in open defiance, with organized bands, recruited by force and violence, if necessary, but well disciplined, and ready for any atrocity. They do not hesitate to attack the Turkish troops whenever their numbers guarantee a possible chance, when they fight with a demonical fury that outdoes the proverbial savagery of the old-time Turk. With a determination and tenacity of purpose characteristic of their race, to say nothing of their innate ferocity when aroused, they are ever ready for murder, for any form of cruelty, even for acts of unspeakable violence and butchery committed upon their own people, if these crimes can be made to appear as having emanated from the hands of the Turk.

Not for years have the streets of Constantinople been patrolled, both by day and by night, as now, while on every corner it would seem there are new watchguards of police stationed.

It has been rumored that the Pera Palace, the largest hotel in Constantinople, is threatened with dynamite; it being regarded a favorable place for attack, containing as it does, a large number of foreigners, many of whom are connected with foreign diplomatic service.

The Bulgarian element in Constantinople itself is comparatively small, there being but a few thousand, and these mostly dairymen and gardeners, who are a harmless lot, but it is believed that many of the revolutionists from Macedonia have slipped in here of late, hence the strict watch of the government.

The other day as I was crossing the Galata bridge between Pera and Stamboul, I saw a body of thirty or forty Bulgarians in the costume I had never seen before in Constantinople, which showed that they were not of this place, in charge of Turkish police, who was taking them to the railway station to be sent out of the city as suspected revolutionists. This was just after word had been received from Sofia, in Bulgaria, that a number of revolutionists had left that place, disguised as milkmen, with enough dynamite in their possession to blow up all Constantinople.

The Macedonian question is only one of the many difficult problems with which the Turkish empire is struggling. It has become a habit of the Western mind to condemn whatever is of Turkey, to censure whatever position she may take, and to regard the Turk as always hostile to right and reason, and in the light of a bloodthirsty oppressor. It is seldom taken into consideration the unparalleled difficulties which attend the administration of government over a medley of peoples, tongues, races and religions, all of which are hostile to each other, and many of them to the overruling power.

There can never be such a thing as reforms in Turkey," said an Englishman to me the other day. "Turkey is England with forty Irelands." He might have increased the number to 100, for there are that many, if not more, conflicting elements in this land.

The remote beginning of the Macedonian question may be traced to the separation of the Bulgarians from the Greek church, which was the final accentuation of the hatred between the Greeks and Bulgarians. In Macedonia, the larger proportion of whose inhabitants are Greeks and Bulgarians, the strifes between these people have been bitter, leading of late to bloodshed on the part of the Bulgarians.

The next step in the development of the Macedonian question, was when the treaty of Berlin in 1878 left the northern part of Macedonia still under Turkish rule, instead of bringing down the southern boundary line of Bulgaria to include this portion of the province. The Macedonian Bulgarians have manifested a growing discontent ever since, and many of them emigrating across the line into Bulgaria, forming in Sofia a so-called patriotic society, which was known as the Macedonian committee.

However patriotic the intent of this committee in the begining, it soon degenerated into a band of blackmailers, intimidators and brigands, to say nothing of the greater crimes of which they were eventually guilty.

The capture of Miss Stone by Bulgarian brigands, acting under the direction of this Macedonian committee, resulted in replenishing an exhausted treasury, and with this booty the Macedonian Bulgarians have been dealing out death and destruction in Turkey, carrying their menace up to its ruler. Though denied at the time that the capture of Miss Stone had any political significance, it is now universally admitted. Indeed, this act of brigandage had a two-fold purpose: First of all to obtain money through her ransom for revolutionary purposes, and secondly, by effecting her capture on Turkish territory, as well as the paying of the ransom within the limits of the empire, to make Turkey responsible for the indemnity which the United States might claim.

One of the unexpected outcomes of the Bulgarian agitation has been the close relations brought about between Greece and Turkey. The natural hatred between Greeks and Bulgarians has been the cause of the Greeks in Macedonia standing by the Turkish government, and asserting their loyalty in all emergencies. The favorable terms of the commercial treaty lately between Greece and Turkey has further strengthened the friendship between the two countries, and the Greeks are fast forgetting that they ever had a grievance or a war against the Ottoman empire.

Another element in the cement of the newly-awakened friendship of the Greeks for the Turks, their "natural protectors," as they now call them, is the fear of Russia. Any complication that has within it the remotest possibility of Russian advantage or Russian occupation of Constantinople, terrifies the Greek into abject servitude and positive affection for anything and everything that is Turkish.

MADE A "PILE" AND RETURNED

To Repay Louisville's Mayor For a Half-Rate Ticket.

Louisville, Ky., June 9.—After seven years' absence from the city, having gone to Nashville on pauper transportation, Charles A. Widger rushed into the office of Mayor Grainger with a large valise in each hand. He was looking for the mayor, for he wanted to pay back to the city the $3.70, which was the amount advanced him in transportation many years ago.

"Say, is this the place where the mayor is?" said Widger, as he rushed up to Thomas P. Craig, secretary to the mayor.

"Which mayor?" asked Mr. Craig, somewhat surprised.

"Oh, you know; I guess you're joshing me about not knowing, but I'll tell you the fellow I mean. He was a little fellow with a great big heart. He was kind to me once, and gave me a half-fare ticket to Nashville. I promised at the time that I would return the other half, which was $3.70, soon as I got the coin. He laughed at me, and, of course, thought I was lying. I wasn't, and I have come back today to make good. That half-fare ticket gave me a fresh start in life. I got down to Nashville, engaged in business and soon went out West, where I made money in bunches. I've got $100,000 and I want to do the right thing. If that same mayor ain't here, I want to pay that $3.70 to the city just the same. No joke. Here's the cash. All I want in return is a receipt."

The cash was turned over to the city treasurer, who gave a receipt.

Physicians Recommend Castoria

CASTORIA has met with pronounced favor on the part of physicians, pharmaceutical societies and medical authorities. It is used by physicians with results most gratifying. The extended use of Castoria is unquestionably the result of three facts: First—The indisputable evidence that it is harmless: Second—That it not only allays stomach pains and quiets the nerves, but assimilates the food: Third—It is an agreeable and perfect substitute for Castor Oil. It is absolutely safe. It does not contain any Opium, Morphine, or other narcotic and does not stupefy. It is unlike Soothing Syrups, Bateman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, etc. This is a good deal for a Medical Journal to say. Our duty, however, is to expose danger and record the means of advancing health. The day for poisoning innocent children through greed or ignorance ought to end. To our knowledge, Castoria is a remedy which produces composure and health, by regulating the system—not by stupefying it—and our readers are entitled to the information.—Hall's Journal of Health.

Letters from Prominent Physicians Addressed to Chas. H. Fletcher.

Dr. B. Halstead Scott, of Chicago, Ills., says: "I have prescribed your Castoria often for infants during my practice, and find it very satisfactory."

Dr. William Belmont, of Cleveland, Ohio, says: "Your Castoria stands first in its class. In my thirty years of practice I can say I never have found anything that so filled the place."

Dr. J. H. Taft, of Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I am pleased to speak a good word for your Castoria. I think so highly of it that I not only recommend it to others, but have used it in my own family."

Dr. R. J. Hamlen, of Detroit, Mich., says: "I prescribe your Castoria extensively, as I have never found anything to equal it for children's troubles. I am aware that there are imitations in the field, but I always see that my patients get Fletcher's."

Dr. Wm. I. McCann, of Omaha, Neb., says: "As the father of thirteen children I certainly know something about your great medicine, and aside from my own family experience I have in my years of practice found Castoria a popular and efficient remedy in almost every home."

Dr. J. R. Clausen, of Philadelphia, Pa., says: "The name that your Castoria has made for itself in the tens of thousands of homes blessed by the presence of children, scarcely needs to be supplimented by the endorsement of the medical profession, but I, for one, most heartily endorse it and believe it an excellent remedy."

Dr. Channing H. Cook, of St. Louis, Mo., says: "I have used your Castoria for several years past in my own family and have always found it thoroughly efficient and never objected to by children, which is a great consideration in view of the fact that most medicines of this character are obnoxious and therefore difficult of administration. As a laxative, I consider it the peer of anything that I ever prescribed."

Dr. R. M. Ward, of Kansas City, Mo., says: "Physicians generally do not prescribe proprietary preparations, but in the case of Castoria my experience, like that of many other physicians, has taught me to make an exception. I prescribe your Castoria in my practice because I have found it to be a thoroughly reliable remedy for children's complaints. Any physician who has raised a family, as I have, will join me in heartiest recommendation of Castoria."

DON'T GET IN A SWEAT

Perspiration—"sweat" is what the Bible and we common people call it—is a way nature has of driving out of the body refuse that has no business there. We sweat more in summer, because, in the overheated bowels, undigested food ferments more quickly than in winter and produces irritating acids and gases. The bowels, overworked, try to relieve themselves by violent convulsions, causing terrible gripes and colics, and diarrhoeal discharges so acid as to make you sore, and leaving the intestines weak and worn out. Nature assists body-cleaning by sending the filth out through the pores of the skin. It is not safe to stop perspiring altogether but most of the impure matter should be sent out by natural movements of the bowels, and the offensive, ill-smelling, linen-staining sweat done away with. Keep your bowels strong all summer with the pleasant, candy cathartic CASCARETS, that clean the system and don't allow the excrement to be sweated out through the pores. Take a tablet every night, before going to bed. They work while you sleep and make you feel fine and cool all day.

Cascarets

Best for the Bowels. All druggists, 10c, 25c, 50c. Never sold in bulk. The genuine tablet stamped C. C. C. Guaranteed to cure or your money back. Sample and booklet free. Address Sterling Remedy Co., Chicago or New York. 545

ST. LOUIS DRAGS

Other Markets Have Small Advance But It Shows Decline.

Increase In World's Visible—Flax Is Active and Weaker.

Duluth Board of Trade, June 9.—The St. Louis crowd have lost a good deal of the bullish feeling which they had a few days ago. There was a decline in that market today against an advance in other markets. The difference was not large but St. Louis has until very recently been leading other markets by leaps and bounds. The opening was easier today but the cables were steady and this helped the market. During the early half of the session it sagged off somewhat on the increase of 165,000 bushels in the world's visible supply of wheat. A decrease had been looked for and one authority who is looked to by a good many predicted as high as 1,000,000 bushels decrease. The disposition was quite general to await the government report which comes out tomorrow and the expectation is that it will show a decline of from 5 to 7 points from the condition reported a month ago. Eastern markets reported a moderate amount on export business yesterday. In the local market a little wheat was sold today to Eastern millers. The weather conditions were good.

The Liverpool market closed ½d higher Paris ¼c lower to ¼c higher. Antwerp and Buda Pest unchanged, and Berlin ¼c lower.

Primary receipts of wheat were 261,000 bus., last year 265,000 bus. Shipments 171,000 bus., last year 328,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour were 355,000 bus.

Receipts of wheat at Duluth and Minneapolis, 258 cars, and at Chicago, 46, a total of 304 cars, against 575 last week and 186 last year.

Corn in the Liverpool market had a decline of 1d@2d and in Chicago July corn was ¼c higher. July oats advanced ½c. Primary receipts of corn were 648,000 bus., last year 630,000 bus. Shipments 371,000 bus., last year 174,000 bus. Clearances were 242,000 bus. Bradstreet reported an increase of 1,858,000 bus. in the world's visible supply of corn.

The cash market on the Duluth board was slow and narrow. July opened ¼c off at 73¾c, sold at 73½c at 9:39, rallied to 73¾c at 10:56. From there it fell off to 73¼c at 11:45 but again rallied and to the highest point of the day, closing at 73¾c which was yesterday's closing price. September was firmer closing with an advance of ¾c. In Chicago July had an advance of ⅛c and September ⅛@¼c. Minneapolis July was up ⅛@¼c and September ¼c. In New York the July option was ¼c higher and September ⅝c. In St. Louis there was a decline in both options of ⅛c.

Cash wheat business has been picking up for a few days due to the movement of wheat from country elevators, seeding being over. During the morning sales were 40,000 bushels and for No. 1 northern 5c over July was paid, but at the close the elevators dropped the price to July price with No. 2 northern bringing 1½c under. This drop in the premium will undoubtedly cause a falling off in the receipts.

Flax was active and lower. July sold 1c down to $1.11⅜ and then rallied to $1.12 but closed at $1.11¾ and then rallied back to $1.11⅜ closing there. September and October were down 1¼c.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat—No. 1 hard, 80¾c; No. 1 northern, 79¾c; No. 2 northern, 78¼c; July, 78¾c; September, 75¾@¾c. Flax—In store, $1.11½; to arrive, $1.11½; on track, $1.11½; July, $1.11¾; September, $1.13¼; October, $1.13¼; November, $1.13. Oats—To arrive, 35¼-36c; on track, 35½-36c. Rye—To arrive, 56c; on track, 56c. Barley—56@57c. Corn inspected: Wheat, 81 last year, 23; oats, 1; rye, 1; barley, 2; flax, 39; last year, 3. Receipts: Wheat, 22,364; oats, 4586; barley, 1985; flax, 11,100. Shipments: Wheat, 72,789; flax, 16,256.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Prices Trifle Easier on Good Weather.

Chicago, June 9.—There was less pressure to sell manifested in the wheat pit at the opening today but prices were a trifle easier on the continued good weather, July being unchanged to ⅛c lower at 75¾@⅞c to 75¼c. Local traders were encouraged somewhat by the steady tone of cables and bought quite freely but the trading in general was not large, and prices showed little change. Minneapolis and Duluth reported receipts of 258 cars, which with local receipts of 46 cars, two of contract grade, made total receipts for the three points of 304 cars, against 575 cars last week and 150 cars a year ago.

Trading was quiet the last half of the day. An error in the world's visible figures as at first received showing a large decrease in the world's stock, caused a slight rally towards noon, but the strength was lost on the correction of the figure. A better demand developed late in the day and the close was at the top with July ¼ up at 75¾.

Corn opened easier on lower cables and liberal country offerings with July ⅛ to ¼c lower at 47⅝c to 47¾c. Commission houses sold freely but a fair demand steady around the opening figures. Local receipts were 447 cars, with twelve of contract grade.

The market held steady the entire day, July closing ¼c higher at 48¼c.

Further rains in the East, together with the easier tone in other grains, had a depressing influence on oats at the start, July being ⅛ to ⅜c lower, at 35⅞c to 36¼c. Local traders were good buyers of July and the market was firm at the decline. Local receipts were 300 cars.

Better prices for hogs gave an upward trend to provisions at the opening, but trading was dull and featureless and the market showed little change. Sept. pork opened 5c up at $16.80; Sept. lard was 2½@5c to 5@7½c higher at $8.92½ to $8.85, while ribs were up 2½c, at 9.20.

Close—Wheat: July, 75¾c; old 75¾@76c; Sept., 72¾@73c, old 73; December 72¾c; old 72⅝@73c. Corn—June 47⅞c; July 48⅝c; September 48¼c. Oats—June 36½c; July 36¼c; September 33½@34c. December 32⅝@33c; May 34½c. Pork—June $16.95; September $8.85; October $8.80. Ribs—July $9.20; September $9.22½@9.25; October $9.02½. Rye—July 52c; Sept., 50½c. Flax—Cash N. W. $1.12½; S. GRAIN GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—The market here only moderately active, and closed firm. Very little cash business reported anywhere but with light stocks there is not much selling pressure except when the bears are putting out shorts. European crop conditions are about as heretofore. Government report tomorrow awaited with interest. Some decline on winter wheat is expected. We still feel that with the small stocks and a probable late movement that considerably lower prices are likely in the near future. Estimated cars, 15.

Corn—The market was steady here and closed firm. There is still a good deal of bullish sentiment on the poor start of the crop and the dry weather in the East. Country offerings are increasing, however, and the Eastern demand was likely to have more relief. The demand is moderate. With favorable weather conditions we think prices are high enough and that a liberal movement from first hands is likely. Estimated cars, 447.

Oats—There was some weakness early on liquidation but the market turned strong before the close on predictions of showery weather in the West. Country offerings increasing and with good weather a liberal movement should take place. The bulls are figuring on a bulish government report tomorrow. It is, of course, a weather market to a considerable extent, but the price is high and any moderately unfavorable conditions are pretty well discounted. Estimated cars, 90.

• • •

Following is a condensation of the foreign crop conditions as published today in Broomhall Corn Trade News:

United Kingdom—More complaints have been received during the past week, the crop generally irregular.

France—Under the influence of better weather wheat is progressing well and fewer complaints are being received, offerings from country have become liberal.

Russia—Crop prospects are now fairly good in most districts.

Roumania—Very favorable reports continue to be received, crops are progressing well and prospects are very bright.

Bulgaria—The excess of rain reported last week apparently did not cause the damage feared, for today's reports state a good harvest is expected.

Hungary—While earlier conditions have led to expectations of a satisfactory yield the latest reports indicate that a large average will be harvested.

Italy—Scattered complaints of damage from storms have been received during the past week where harvest has commenced in the South.

Spain—Since our last report of a week ago the weather has been more favorable.

Germany—Crops are making good progress, although the earlier damage is still apparent.

Springfield, Ill: The Illinois government report says the central district shows considerable improvement in wheat, but there are many complaints of rust. The Southern district is uniformly unfavorable and a generally poor condition is shown. Many fields already plowed under. Oats show decided improvement. Corn is not all planted and will be delayed several days. There is a fair stand in early corn.

A. H. Farum, Chicago: Acceptances of corn are fair with some houses, very light with others. The market is a little lower but not weak. I think the best posted people here and the money markets feel that corn is low enough, and that 47 cents will practically be bottom for July corn. The stock of No. 2 corn here is small and there is a constant shipping demand for it. All the poor corn is out of here and cash corn is about July price, not a usual condition for June. Oats are off about a cent from closing price last week. The market is quiet. I don't believe selling oats short just now is wise, would rather buy them, especially if they work many lower. Wheat is a little easier. Fine weather should bring selling enough to result in almost 2 cent decline. Our market has not the support just now that would be called first class.

ENORMOUS SELLING

Of Baltimore & Ohio and Norfolk & Western Broke Market.

The Closing Was Furiously Active and Semi-Demoralized.

New York, June 9.—Heavy selling orders appeared in the stock market at the outset and carried down the principal Pacific, coalers, Southwesterns and specialties from ¾ to a point. Running sales of 3000 shares of B. & O. were made at 84 to 83½, compared with 84¾ last night and 2200 shares of Southern railroad sold at 23½ and 23¾, an extreme decline of 1⅞. Kansas & Texas lost 1⅜. There were 3000 shares of Pennsylvania sold at a decline of ⅛, but the next block of 2980 shares was at a recovery. St. Paul also after down ¼ recovered to nearly a point over last night. Dealings were on a large scale through the list and small gains in a few specialties were the only exceptions to the weakness.

The heavy accumulation of St. Paul which carried it to 150¾, induced active liquidating of stocks at other points and the entire market rallied sharply. Union Pacific and Southern railroad recovered a point from the lowest, and Manhattan and Locomotive preferred, sold a point over last night. Weakness in Amalgamated, People's Gas, Reading and the Bries, which lowered them 1 to 1¾, arrested the improvement in the market and prices declined again. B. & O. came back to 83 and Pennsylvania went below 124, but railroad stocks otherwise held a shade above their opening prices.

There was quite a vigorous rally during the second hour, which lifted the market generally above last night, with some large transactions on the advances. St. Paul got 1⅞ over yesterday. Northwestern, 2½; A. & H. 1⅞, and Tennessee Coal, Missouri Pacific, Sugar and Consolidated Gas about a point. A number of the minor stocks scored losses of 1 to 2 and North American and Toledo Railway & Light fell 3½ each. Bonds were heavy at noon.

There was no diminution in the buying movement and prices advanced further in spots. Missouri Pacific rose to 103⅝. Atchison preferred, Wabash, Canadian Pacific, New York Central and Brooklyn Transit were 1@1¼ better. Colorado Fuel, Sioss-Sheffield and Delaware & Hudson gained 2 and Metropolitan 2½. The movement shrank, but the market held pretty well. The advance was renewed again at 1 o'clock with the trans continentals leading.

The Smelting stock and Western Union advanced a point, but the movement upward in the standard stocks turned. Trading became unusually dull and there was a general shading of prices, reaching a point or over in St. Paul, Reading, Atchison, Missouri Pacific, Union Pacific, Wabash preferred and a considerable fraction elsewhere.

Enormous liquidation in Baltimore & Ohio and Norfolk & Western broke the whole market and carried it rapidly back to the lowest. Baltimore & Ohio's extreme decline was 3⅜, Norfolk & Western 3⅜, Erie 2¼ and Reading 1¾. The stocks which had been strong lost their gains and yielded with the general market. Missouri Pacific fell a point under yesterday. Kansas City Southern stocks and other minor stocks fell from 1¼ to 2⅜. Atchison, Union Pacific, Missouri Pacific and United States Steel went back to the lowest point on the movement. Atchison touching 65½, Union Pacific 85 and United States Steel, preferred, 79¾. The market closed furiously active and semi-demoralized.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market is still nervous and closed weak. Nothing new in the gossip. Selling pressure largely from the bear element. Money is easy. It is one of the anomalies of speculation that when stocks averaged $20 per share higher, nothing was heard except the large earnings of the properties. There is no diminution of business since then, yet now all one hears is the number of stocks "this bear" or "that bear" is selling. Stocks that were considered a good purchase on a 3 or 3½ per cent basis a few months ago are now considered a good sale on a 5 or 6 per cent basis. The underlying conditions being practically unchanged. We doubt if any money will be made selling good stocks at present prices and think the buyer of standard railroad stocks has only to stand pat. Think good stocks should be bought.

New York to B. E. Baker: We have all been wrong about the market and the situation is no clearer now than it has been. Of course we are nearer the end of the liquidation. It looks as though prices would sag off some more. Perhaps it will mend before the day is over.

• • •

Chicago to Coe Commission Co.: The matter of a dividend on Soo preferred has hung fire for a long time. In September last President Shaughnessy informed his stock-holders that the company expected a dividend during the current year. It is hardly probable that the president of the Canadian Pacific was trying to guess at the intention of the Soo directors, but it is possible that other plans have induced a change of policy on the part of both Canadian Pacific and Soo line.

COPPER GOSSIP.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: The announcement here that the United Metal company had sold a considerable lot of Electrolytic copper at 14.57 did not bring any new pressure to sell coppers. Amalgamated was less active than for some time past and rallied and sagged with rest of the market. New York advices continue bearish. There is evidently considerable long stock being liquidated still, and if the recent support has been short covering rather than investment, buying prices will be pretty sure to get another drive.

• • •

Paine, Webber & Co.: The directors of Old Colony Copper company have called an assessment of $1 per share payable 30 cents July 10, to shareholders of record June 18 and 50 cents payable October 19 by stock of record October 17.

• • •

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: The Chronicle says: Since January 1 in the face of a strong 15 cent market for copper, the prices of twenty-four active copper stocks showed shrinkage in the market value from the high this year to the low of today amounting to $83,000,000 of which $38,000,000 is contributed by Amalgamated. Were all the other companies to be included as well as the minority holdings in Parrot and Anaconda the total shrinkage from the high prices to the low would easily be about $100,000,000 and this in face of a copper market which means 3 cents per pound more to the producing companies in 1903 than they received in 1902.

• • •

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: It will require $250,000 to complete the plant of the Majestic Copper company in Utah, and the directors ask stockholders to subscribe $250,000 toward a loan at 8 per cent for one year, for which the subscribers will receive two shares of stock in the company for every $100 advanced. The directors offer to subscribe $100,000 towards such a loan. The directors state that there is not a dollar of indebtedness standing against the company at the present time, but that funds are needed for development and new construction work. The smelter which has recently been erected cost $250,000.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, June 9.—The movement in cotton continued on the opening today. July, with a bulge, closed at 11.82 yesterday, opening at 11.91. August was up 10 points, and September opened at 10.32. Other options advanced in sympathy. It was the most exciting and most excitin openings of the season, July advancing to 11.98, September to 10.34, August to 11.30 and December to 10.46. The advance was a continuation of the scare of shorts started yesterday and was attended by further talk of a July corner and reports of crop damage. The Liverpool cables were lower than expected on the old crop, but higher on the new, while New Orleans was again strong with July selling at 13.07. After the call here there was tremendous realizing and July declined to 11.85, while August reacted to 11.19. The new crop months, however, held most their advance and the undertone was nervous and unsettled.

Cotton spot closed quiet, 50 pounds higher. Mid ups 12.40; mid gulf 12.65. Sales 585 bales; cotton futures closed irregular and unsettled, June 12.12; July 12.15; August 11.55; September 10.55; October $9.80; November $9.66; December 9.60; January 9.61; February 9.61.

Revision of Inspection Service Rules Is a Necessary Step.

Unchanged For Many Years—Bessemer Has Trouble With Firemen.

The board of supervising inspectors of the United States Steamboat Inspection service is in special session this week at Washington for the consideration of a complete revision of the rules regarding steamboat inspection.

"The rules need a revision," said Captain Monaghan of the local bureau. "It is many years since anything further than a few unimportant amendments have been passed and many of the laws have outgrown their usefulness while in other cases there is need of new ones."

The principal change contemplated is in connection with the boiler inspection, because of the great changes that have taken place in the process of manufacturing boilers during the past few years.

The steamboat inspection service dates back as far as 1852 when an act was passed prescribing that all makers of iron boiler plate should stamp each plate with their name. Later a penalty was attached for the non-fulfillment of this requirement. In 1877 James A. Dumont was appointed supervising inspector general and he directed that all plates of boiler iron be subjected to certain tests before the process of manufacturing was begun. In 1878 the principal boiler manufacturers in the United States met and advised with the board of supervising inspectors as a result of which a code of rules was drawn up. Since that date there have been amendments to these rules, but no thorough revision has taken place.

In 1878 the principal material used in the construction of boiler was iron and the rules were based upon this fact. Last year out of the total number of boilers inspected, 1252 were iron, 320 were of coil and pipe and 10,674 were of steel. There were nearly seven times as many steel boilers in use as iron, yet the rules of the service are based upon the general use of iron boilers. It was this fact that decided the present chief of the inspection service to call a meeting for the complete revision of the rules.

In spite of the fact that the rules are claimed to be antiquated, a table of statistics compiled by the Marine Review presents a strong argument in favor of the marine inspection service. It shows that the loss of life through boiler explosions during the year 1903 was only one in every 13,525,150 while in the decade between 1868 and 1878 there was one death per annum for every 821,000 passengers.

The old question of uniformity in steering aparatus will also be taken up and it is likely that a ruling will be made on this question. A number of accidents are claimed to have occurred on account of the use of the two methods know as the crossed and the straight chain. In the straight chain vessels the wheel is rolled in the direction which the ship's head is to turn while in crossed chain vessels the reverse is the case. Where a wheelman changes from a crossed chain vessel to a straight chain vessel or vice versa confusion is apt to result. Ship builders all complain of confusion caused by the use of the two methods. MUST CUT RATES

Iron Range Roads Must Reduce General Freight Rates.

State Railroad and Warehouse Commission Orders It Done.

The state railroad and warehouse commission yesterday issued an order at St. Paul to the Duluth & Iron Range and Duluth, Missabe & Northern railroads to reduce their rates on classified freight between Duluth and Ely, Minn., from 5 to 35 per cent in specified cases.

At the offices of the railroads this morning it was said that no official information had reached them as yet as to the reduction, and no promulgations of tariffs would be made until the order was received and in hand. It was said, however, that the roads would have some publication to make as soon as the order came.

The hearing of cases of alleged excessive rate charges against shippers was held by the commission at St. Paul some weeks ago. It was expected that there would be another hearing, however, on June 18. The failure of the order to arrive may be owing to the fact that St. Paul dispatches to the effect that the order was made are premature or incorrect.

The rates of all classified freight between Duluth and Ely, per hundred pounds, and in cents, is as follows:

Less than car loads:

Class	1	2	3	4
Rate	50	42	37	31

In carload lots:

Class	5	a	b	c	d	e
Rate	34	28	22	17	11	12

The distance to Ely is about 106 miles. The comparative rate to Chicago, 564 miles via St. Paul, is as follows, per 100 pounds, given in cents:

Less than car loads:

Class	1	2	3	1
Rate	65	55	41	28

In carload lots:

Class	5	a	b	c	d	e
Rate	22	28	22	19	17	16

The order, the dispatches say, will cut rates from 5 to 35 per cent. It will probably be heaviest on fifth-class freight, which costs 31 cents per 100 between Duluth and Ely and 22 cents per 100 from Duluth to Chicago, according to May 14 tariff. Fifth-class freight is largely beer, in this country.

The new tariff will be published by the range roads when the official document arrives from St. Paul.

RESCUED FROM A VICIOUS MAN

Police Assist a Young Woman Whose Lot Has Been Hard.

Rescued from a life of domestic trouble almost beyond comprehension of the most vivid imagination, the police this morning turned an 18-year-old woman over to the Bethel Rescue home in order to keep her from a man claiming to be her husband.

Her own story of domestic unhappiness is something like this: At the age of 14 years her mother and father agreed to separate, she going with her mother and another child with the father.

She was married almost immediately to a man who was sent to prison two days afterward for cattle stealing. The child-wife was then, according to her story, adopted into the family of the man from whom she is now seeking to escape. She says he had a wife and eight children still living in Canada.

He came to Duluth to work in a lumber camp last year and she came with him, but she claims to have been subjected to severe treatment in the lumber camp and ran away. She secured work out in North Dakota, and there the man that claims to be her husband found her. He brought her back to Duluth and she managed to slip away from him, going to the city hall and telling her story to the police.

The officers were looking for the "husband" today, and have notified the woman's mother in Canada of her whereabouts and facts concerning her unhappy life here. In the meantime she will be protected and cared for in the Bethel home.

New York, June 9.—With offers of bribes and threats of bodily harm, friends of a gang of Italians under arrest for conducting a counterfeit naturalization institution in this city, are said to have tried to break down the government's case. SCHOOLS CLOSE

Those In Outside County Practically All Finished For Year.

Principals In All Cases Are Reengaged at Better Salaries.

Practically all the county schools have closed for the summer vacation. In the southern part of the county one still in session, and on the range those in session include the schools in the various towns with the exception of Tower, Soudan and Ely. The schools at Virginia and Eveleth will be the last in the county to close this season. The school at Eveleth will close June 26.

A large number of the school district boards have already engaged teachers for the coming fall and winter terms of school, but the majority of districts the teachers will be engaged during the next month or six weeks.

One interesting feature about the employment of teachers for another year in St. Louis county is that in every case the principal or the superintendent of schools has been re-engaged to teach at the same place at an increased salary. Superintendent A. T. Park of the county schools argues that this condition speaks well for the efficiency of the teachers for the past year and the appreciation of the school districts for their work.

The school at Gnesen has just closed and among its closing exercises was the presentation of a ribbon of honor to R. M. Stetson, a 10-year-old pupil who has not been tardy or absent once during the past year, although residing nearly two miles from the school house.

LOUBET AND THE POPE.

Discussion of the President's Visit to Rome.

Rome, June 9.—The negotiations between the vatican and France, regarding the attitude to be assumed by President Loubet towards the pope, during the president's coming visit to Rome, are at a standstill. The vatican hopes a change will occur by France modifying the situation. If no change takes place the idea prevails that M. Loubet will not ask to see the pope, thus avoiding a refusal, which would necessarily bring about a rupture between France and the vatican. The authorities believe that by M. Loubet and the pope ignoring each other, the present status of the relations between the church and the French republic will be maintained.

THREE MORE RESTAURANTS

Chicago, June 9.—The ranks of the striking restaurant employes were augmented today when at noon the 200 employes of the Kuntz-Remmler company were ordered out. Officials of the waiters' and cooks' joint council say that a number of other places will be closed before night.

AGAIN POSTPONED.

Heavy Fog Prevents Race For Cup Defender.

Highlands, of Navesink, N. J., June 9.—After the rain squall yesterday and a shift of wind to the southwest it was generally expected that the waiting cup yachts, Reliance, Constitution and Columbia would have good weather conditions for their contest today off Sandy Hook lightship. When the crews of the yachts came on deck at 6 o'clock, it was impossible to see more than a hundred yards across New York bay on account of the fog. At 8:30 the wind was blowing about four knots and the fog showed no signs, whatever, of lifting.

Steamer Warden, via De Forest wireless to Coney Island, June 9, 10:15 a. m.—The fog is so dense that a race seems out of the question. In addition there is very little wind.

2:32 p. m.—On account of a dense fog the race is off for tonight. There will be a race tomorrow of conditions will permit.

SHORT CABINET MEETING.

Washinton, June 9.—The meeting of the cabinet was shorter than usual and was routine in character. Owing to the absence of Postmaster General Payne, the postoffice investigation was not considered in any shape. Secretary Hay briefly discussed the Panama canal negotiations and the Chilean situation. Secretary Moody brought up the subject of pending bids for the three new battleships and it was stated that an announcement of the allotment of bids would be made later in the day.

JOHNSON A JUSTICE.

Washington, June 9.—The president has appointed Finley Johnson as associate justice of the supreme court of the Philippines to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Fletcher Ladd. Mr. Johnson has been connected with the judiciary of the Philippines for the past two years.

REFUGEES FEWER

Large Numbers Have Left St. Louis For Other Cities.

Nearly Four Hundred Remain and They Are Destitute.

St. Louis, June 9.—From police reports it was learned there are 390 destitute flood sufferers in St. Louis, refugees from East St. Louis, Madison, Venice, Granite City and Kaskaskia, and all are destitute. There were over 3000 refugees in the city, but the remainder have either secured transportation to other cities, or are being cared for by relatives and friends in St. Louis and its environs. The 390 are being cared for by the police. A number have become ill from exposure.

There were 1200 flood refugees in Edwardsville, Ill., last night, from the tri-cities and Newport. Because of the congestion it was found necessary to distribute the sufferers in the cities and villages along the Wabash, as far as Litchfield.

Four-fifths of the 5000 inhabitants of Granite City remain within the limits of the town. One half of them are homeless.

The officials of Granite City and those who have been most active in relief work believe that no deaths have followed the flood there.

Reports of drownings have not been verified, and there is said to be no sickness due to the flood.

No passenger trains are crossing the Eads or Merchants bridges today, and the union station is temporarily abandoned as a terminal point for all Eastern traffic, both incoming and southbound. Passenger business is prostrated. Relief from present conditions is not expected before Thursday, and it will be several days before some of the lines resume their regular facilities. On the west side of the river the situation is better, and while all trains operation are arriving at the union station, the service between St. Louis and Western points is not normal. The Alton and Burlington routes are sending their business via other roads. There is no service over the Burlington from St. Louis to points northLouisiana, Hannibal, Quincy of Keokuk. It is thought that all of the roads combined have suffered a total loss thus far of $8,000,000.

Kansas City, June 9.—Clean-up work in the flood district was retarded today both by the lack of water and men. Hundreds of laboring men are needed and every idle person is being pressed into service. It is expected that a full force of water will be sent through the mains tomorrow. The Twelfth street cable line, reaching into the stock yards district, was started today. The Missouri river has fallen 2 feet since yesterday. While both the Missouri and the Kaw are lower by 12 feet than last Tuesday, a good portion of Armourdale and the lowlands near there is still from 2 to 3 feet deep in water.

Mayor Gilbert of Kansas City, Kas., after making a boat trip through the Armourdale district says:

"The ruin in Armourdale is much more enormous than at first supposed. It will require many months of hard labor to make that portion of the city inhabitants."

Governor Bailey of Kansas stated today that he could not reach a decision as to an extra session of the legislature for a day or so.

The Missouri Pacific entered Union station today for the first time. This is the only change in the railroad situation.

Mrs. W. Tenbrook has returned from Deerwood after a three weeks outing.

FUGITIVE FROM JUSTICE.

The Bonds of Herman Wickersham Are Forfeited.

Chicago, June 9.—Herman B. Wickersham, former president of the Lincoln park board, is a fugitive from justice. His bonds in each of six cases were declared forfeited today. Wickersham is under indictment for larceny embezzlement and for obtaining money by false pretenses. His methods are said to be to secure money from persons whom he represented by investment in mortgages, which money he secured by worthless deeds and mortgages, with himself named as trustee, and acting as counsel for the investor. Nearly $50,000 is alleged to have been thus misused by him.

LYON SURROUNDED.

Shoals, Ind., June 9.—Sheriff Holsapple and his posse believe now that they have young Lyon, who is charged with murdering his stepmother, surrounded in the woods seven miles north of this city near West Union. Lyon sent word to the posse that he knew they would lynch him but he "would get some of them while they were doing it."

L. & N. TRAIN JUMPED TRACK

Several Persons Seriously Hurt In Wreck at Colesburg.

Louisville, June 9.—The north-bound Louisville & Nashville passenger train was wrecked at Colesburg, at the foot of Muldrum Hill shortly after noon today. Nobody was killed but it is understood that eleven persons were injured. Among them are: Gus Lamb, Louisville, baggagemaster, will probably die. Engineer Harry C. Palmer, Louisville, probably fatally hurt. James E. Cowhern, Louisville, Adams Express messenger, reported fatally hurt. Fireman John Keller, Louisville.

The train jumped the track as it descended the hill. The baggage and mail cars were thrown down a 50-foot embankment. A relief train carrying surgeons left here at 12:20 for the scene of the wreck. The train left Nashville at 8 o'clock this morning and was the through train from New Orleans for Cincinnati and was heavily loaded. The local officers of the Louisville & Nashville say no passengers were injured as far as they know. President H. Smith, of the Louisville & Nashville, was aboard the train.

TO ATTEND WEDDING.

The President and Daughter Start For Cleveland.

Washington, June 9.—President Roosevelt left at 3 o'clock this afternoon for Cleveland, to attend the wedding of Miss Ruth Hanna, daughter of Senator and Mrs. Hanna, and Joseph Medill McCormick, of Chicago. He was accompanied by Miss Alice Roosevelt, Capt. Cowles, his naval aide, Mr. Grunwell and Secretary Loeb. The trip will be made on a special train over the Pennsylvania road. The party will arrive in Cleveland at 6 o'clock tomorrow morning and during their stay there, the members of the party will be the guests of Senator Hanna.

The president and party will leave Cleveland at 11 o'clock at night for Washington, arriving here at 2 p. m. Thursday.

CHARGED WITH MURDER.

Kalkaska, Mich., June 9.—Sheriff Creighton today swore out a warrant against Mrs. Mary McKnight charging her with murdering her brother, John Murphy. Mrs. McKnight has been under arrest for several days, pending the result of an investigation into the death of Murphy and his wife and baby. All three died within a month. An examination of Murphy's stomach disclosed large quantities of strychnine.

WARSHIPS NOT NEEDED.

Washington, June 9.—The orders issued yesterday for American ships to go to Valparaiso have been revoked owing to the receipts of a cablegram from Minister Wilson which indicates that their presence is not needed.

CRUSHED IN ELEVATOR.

Chicago, June 9.—Clarin Nichols, society editor of the Chicago Tribune, was crushed to death in an elevator in the Tribune building today. The body was at once removed to an undertaking establishment and messages sent to her relatives, some of whom live at Alton, Ills.

THE DEWEY-BERRY FEUD.

Atwood, Kans., June 9.—There are no developments in the Dewey-Berry feud. The arrival of the state militia in the county has had the effect of restoring order, at least temporarily. The militia, with the prisoners, camped within twelve miles of the Dewey ranch last night, and probably will reach St. Francis late tonight.

MILLIONS VANISH IN SMOKE.

Few people are aware that a Bank of England note leaves that bank but once, and that the moment the "Old Lady of Threadneedle Street" regains possession of the crisp sheet of paper its doom is sealed, even though it has been but five minutes in circulation, says Tid-Bits.

Like the Imperial bank of Germany, our national banking institution destroys its old notes by fire; but the Bank of France and the United States treasury prefer to destroy their old paper currency by chemical processes, though the first-mentioned used also to indulge in bank-note bonfires.

Every year notes of the face value of £18,000,000 are consigned to the flames in the Bank of England furnace; not all at once, of course, for that would be an operation too lengthy and too monotonous for the officials who must be present to witness it to take in at one sitting. Fifty thousand notes of various denominations are daily issued by the bank, and in packets of 50,000 they are destroyed. But ere it is burned a returned note is kept in the bank note library for five years, in case it may be needed for reference. It is one of 77,000,000 notes, the number usually in stock, but if it is required, it can be turned up in five minutes, so perfect is the system of filing. This dead stock is kept in 13,400 boxes, each of which measures 18 inches in length by 10 inches in width and 9 inches in depth.

Ere they are burned a hole is punched through the figure showing their value, and the chief cashier's signature is torn off. They are packed into the furnace while the officials look on, the fire is lighted, and in a short while a little ash is all that remains of what once represented many thousands of British sovereigns.

The Imperial bank of Germany burns over 100,000,000 notes yearly. It seems a number that should represent a truly colossal sum; but then many of them are for small amounts and the majority for not more than 5 marks.

Twelve million pounds is the amount representing the annual destruction of 600,000 notes of the Bank of France. They used to be burned in a cage rotating over a huge fire, but now they are reduced to a pulp in the presence of several directors, after being first punched and stamped "Canceled." Such destruction takes place every fortnight.

Comparatively few pound notes are seen in Great Britain, but in the United States it is different; one sees more paper currency than cash. Indeed, in no country in the world are so many notes in circulation.

Hundreds of millions of dollars' worth of bills, varying in value from $1 to $500, are issued by the treasury, while more are issued by the innumerable small banks all over America, secured on a cash deposit with the government.

The treasury will redeem these in any quantities for gold or new bills at any time. Old notes are always being sorted, and when their numbers have been verified and canceled they are made up in packets of 100.

Before they are ready for the destructor four holes are driven through each bundle by a great punching machine; next the packets are cut in halves, and one half goes to be again counted and checked.

All being found correct, the mutilated bundles are passed on for further bad treatment, this time being placed in a huge machine, the interior of which is fitted with numberless sharp blades. When these revolve they cut the bills into minute fragments.

Still they are not finished with. From the macerating machine the fragments are sent to the vats and boiled in a chemical rearation. All that remains after the boiling is a pulp.

WHY BE GOOD, ANYWAY.

The announcement to the effect that the inmates of the county jail are to be provided with facilities for physical culture brings the reader again to that paradox of modern civilization by which a young man of exemplory character gets fewer advantages and opportunities than the young man who perseveres in a disregard for law, says the Chicago Tribune.

Take two boys in an urban tenement district as illustrations. One boy is good. He attends school regularly. He is in a room in which there are twice as many boys as there ought to be and in which the courses of instruction may have practically nothing to do with the industrial life to which he is destined. After a few years of perfunctionary study he reaches his industrial majority—14—and he begins to work. He has learned no trade. His "general culture" is not exactly efflorescent. His chances of becoming anything better than an unskilled employe are slight.

How much better would it have been for him if he had been bad! First, he would have been sent to a school for truants. There he would have got much better food than at home and, in general, much better physical conditions. Also, he would have had instruction much more adapted to his wants, because he would have been given a large amount of manual training.

After he was released from the school for truants, is he only bad sense enough to keep on being bad he would escape going to work, and he would be sentenced to a school for delinquents, where his education would be continued. More games! More discipline! More manual training! All supervised by experts in the sciences of pedugogy and criminology.

Having become too old for the school for delinquents, our boy now proceeds to a reformatory. The good boy, whom we took leave of some time ago, is expiating his piety in a printing establishment, in which he is trying to develop his faculties by means of shoving several thousand pamphlets a day through the throat of a stapler. Our bad boy, shrewdly sticking to his reformatory, gets lots physical exercise, plenty of reading in the library, and a final fitting for the trade in the elaborately fitted reformaory tool shop. He steps out into the world at the age of 20 a trained American workman, uninjured by excessive toil as a boy, and prepared to use his skill in some trade in which skill means large wages.

Viciousness brings its own reward.

MOST NORTHERN RAILROAD.

Last November there was opened up to travel a railroad which crosses the northern part of Norway and Sweden, in a region which up to the present has never been invaded by railroad commerce, says Public Opinion. This railroad is unique in that it is farther north than any in existence at the present time. In June, 1885, the concession was given a Swedish company, the plan being to construct a line between the fjord of Ofoten, on the Atlantic side of Norway, and the town of Lulea, on the Gulf of Bothnia. Because of lack of financial support, however, the enterprise was abandoned, but finally the Norwegian parliament, in 1898, provided the necessary funds and now the road is completed from one sea to the other. The terminus on the Atlantic ocean is found at Narvik. The second portion of the line, that which goes from Gellivare to Lulea and to the gulf of Bothnia, is less interesting, but the freight carried in this direction reaches the respectable figure of 800,000 tons per annum. It is estimated that the mineral beds which are tapped by this railroad, and which lay in the region about Gellivare, contain more than 250,000,000 tons of minerals.

THOUSANDS OF PEOPLE FORCED TO FLEE FOR THEIR LIVES

EAST ST. LOUIS IS SUBMERGED

UTMOST CONFUSION AT EAST ST. LOUIS.

St. Louis, June 10.—The utmost confusion reigns in East St. Louis, and it is impossible to confirm any of the reports of drowning which may aggregate fifty and which will probably be less. Congressman Rodenburg, who has charge of the patrol along Broadway, gives it as his estimate that the number will be about thirty. The only drownings coming under his personal observation, were those of two women and a man who lost their lives near his post of duty.

Numerous narrow escapes are reported, by people who were caught asleep when the flood came. All wagon and rail communication with St. Louis is cut off. Only a limited number of pedestrians is allowed to cross the viaduct to East St. Louis. Refugees from East St. Louis are allowed to use the viaduct. Telegraph and telephone communication is still intact. Although water has entered the first floors of the buildings occupied by the telegraph and telephone companies, the instruments have been elevated out of its reach and the managers say that they will maintain service to the last.

Breaking of Embankment Floods the City.

It Is Feared That Many Have Been Drowned.

St. Louis, Mo., June 10.—Shortly after midnight the Illinois Central embankment, at the valley railroad crossing in East St. Louis, was washed through, and the entire lower portion of East St. Louis was flooded, and the people fled for their lives. The river this morning reached a stage of 37.9 feet, the highest point during the present flood. East St. Louis, with a population of 32,000, having large manufacturing interests and the terminal point for railroads from the North, East and South, is partly under water and will probably be totally submerged by noon. The southern half of East St. Louis is deep in the flood, and the city's levee builders have fallen back on Missouri avenue in the attempt to save the remainder of the city, menaced by swelling waters from three sides. Broadway, the central east and west thoroughfare, has been abandoned to the flood. Lee Harper, former city engineer, says that the water will be two feet deep in front of the city hall before this evening. Seven miles of water, pressing from the south and southeast, overcame the city's line of defense shortly before 1 o'clock this morning, and 5000 persons were driven from their homes. Numerous reports of drownings have been received, but the East St. Louis police have thus far learned no names of victims.

At 9 o'clock Congressman W. A. Rodenburg estimated that thirty lives were lost in the flooding of the lower portion of East St. Louis early this morning. While general alarms were given by the police, and retreating levee workers with shouts and pistols, there was not time to call at every house in the thickly settled district, and it is believed many families in first story cottages awoke only when it was too late to escape. Even workers who laid down to rest on the embankment, worn out with hard labor, were caught by the flood and drowned like rats. It may never be learned how many died in this way. Among the drowned last night, previous to the break in the Illinois Central levee, were D. H. Sherwood and John Koolish and three children. They lost their lives by the overturning of a boat in the north part of the city. A Negro was drowned at 8 o'clock this morning in the waters which are climbing up the side of the embankment supporting Broadway, East St. Louis. The man was trying to get his team to higher ground and remained in the rising waters until the swift current upset his wagon and plunged him to the bottom. His horses were lost. Everything obtainable is being used in the rescue of unfortunate people from the second stories of dwellings in the submerged district. Rafts are being built, boats improvised, and wagons, even, are put into use, the horses of which flounder around with only their heads above water while on their errand of mercy.

Broadway, running east and west through East St. Louis, divides that city in two. It is built up in places, standing fifteen feet above the surrounding country. It was first thought this street would serve as a protection to the northeast half of the city, but the flood that covers the southern part has broken through in a small stream between Eighth and Ninth streets. Should the embankment formed by Broadway give way suddenly, as threatened, it will send a wall of water fifteen feet high over the remainder of the city. The flooded district in East St. Louis, due to the breaking of the embankments early this morning, is one mile wide south from Broadway and four miles long from east to west.

It comprises about one-fourth of the city. That part of East St. Louis known as the "island" was flooded several days ago.

The district that is inundated includes the Second and Third wards, which are known as Illinois town and Denver. Alta Sita, the suburb east of Denver side, was still above water at 9 o'clock this morning. The population of that district is about 8500, all of whom have abandoned their homes and fled to higher ground.

Alta Sita, Denver and Southern East St. Louis is devoted to manufacturing plants and the residences of employes.

The iron works, the malleable iron works, the Wiergraft-Lebben company, the St. Louis syrup refinery, the Elliott frog works, the Central Brewery company, the Pittsburg reduction works, the Oeters Bread company and other large manufacturing plants are under water.

One thousand men were working on the part of the levee which broke. For several hours before the final break they had the active assistance of hundreds of women and children. The break came at the St. Louis valley crossing of the Illinois Central embankment, two miles south of Relay depot. While as many men, women and children as could stand on the embankment were heaping sand bags between the rails to prevent the menacing waters from mounting over the top, the resistless current broke through the lower part of the wall of earth and spurted in rivulets in the faces of those who were carrying sand bags up the bank. Bags thrown into the openings by dozens of men were tossed by the waters like feathers. Then the workers fled from their useless task and the alarm was given by the ringing of bells and the blowing of whistles in every part of the city. A few of the workers on the embankment remained at their posts until the rushing waters made it necessary for them to swim for their lives. Then they joined their companions in warning the residents of the thickly settled district of their danger.

Awakened families saw the water in the streets. When they were ready to leave, with their hurriedly collected stock of necessities, the flood was at their sills. All fled to the north. The Washington school was the nearest point of safety. Many made for the high ground, near the Illinois Central tracks.

Men from Alea Sita and Denver side who had been working on the abandoned levee hastened to those localities to tell their neighbors of their danger. Every locomotive and factory whistle joined in the clamor of alarm.

The water is not expected to reach its level in the flooded part of the city before noon. Engineer Harper predicts that when the level is reached, the water will be two feet higher than at 7 o'clock this morning. Undismayed by the defeat which has come in their seven days battle with the flood, the greater part of the levee builders fell back to Broadway, where it was at first decided to resist the water. A half hour's work and survey of the prospect convinced those in charge that it was useless to try to keep the water from Broadway and the flood fighters fell back upon Missouri avenue, which runs east from the Relay station. Here the scenes of the past week were repeated, as the street was rapidly transformed into a dike of sand bags and clay.

An appeal from Mayor Cook to the governor of Illinois for state troops to aid guarding property was answered by the promise that details of militia would be sent to East St. Louis at once.

A few hours before the break in the levee, Ned Roberts, a negro, employed as a levee builder, was killed by members of the levee patrol for attempting to tear down a portion of the dike.

His act was caused by anger because he was not allowed to draw his pay at once.

Relief boats started from St. Louis for East St. Louis early this morning. By order of Park Commissioner Ault, the skiffs used for recreation on the park lakes were collected, to be sent on a Wiggins' ferry boat to the east side.

Congressman William A. Rodenburg has issued an appeal for aid for the flood sufferers. Food, he says, is mostly needed and means must be had for delivering it to persons who are in upper stories of their homes or in box cars.

At nine o'clock this morning the water was threatening the north and east sides, held temporarily by the B. & O. railroad embankment and had reached to the viaduct only seven blocks east of the city hall. In this public building a foot and a half of deep water had already collected. All low points of the city are under water.

When the break occurred warnings were first sent through the Dexter addition by messengers, who discharged firearms, blew horns and shouted in stentorian tones the news of the flood arrival. Lights gleamed in houses where the occupants had retired in confidence that the embankment was secure.

People scantily attired emerged from their homes and in a few moments the whole populace of the low district attacked, six miles in area, were fleeing to higher ground.

As the noise of the approaching flood was heard the flight, at first a rapid retreat with more semblance of order, assumed a panic stage. All efforts to assure the people that there was sufficient time to escape, unless a gap was washed through the embankment, failed to convince them, and most of them fled without any effort to save property.

Messengers were sent to the main portion of the city, telling of the danger from the new point of attack, and the greatest excitement prevailed. As the bottoms filled and the river gained a larger entrance, the terror in the business section of the city grew intense. It was all the greater because of the darkness and the fear that while guard was maintained in one direction the torrent would break through at another point and engulf the luckless inhabitants between two floods.

By the thousands they began to desert their homes and run vainly up and down the streets, seeking a place of succor.

Hundreds of families from the choicest residence portions of the city, carrying trunks, grips, bundles of clothing and valuables, began to cross Eads bridge, toward St. Louis. Most of the refugees were scantily clad. Strong men carried aged women in their arms, followed by women, which continued steadily over the bridge. Hundreds of others sought protection in the second story of the public library building. As the water encroached about it, many dashed through the shallow overflow to find a more secure refuge. In terror of the rising tide of water refugees in hundreds thronged the street, crowding the cars and beseeching public officials for aid. In the city hall alone 500 homeless persons, with such scant belongings as they had been able to seize on short notice, were assembled. Provision for the time being was supplied them and they were made as comfortable as possible in the auditorium on the third floor.

Business is totally suspended. The streets are filled with the almost panic-stricken inhabitants of the invaded districts. Women with children in arms, men carrying household goods, horses, dogs and other remains of once comfortable domestic establishments, parade the streets. The common direction of all movement is toward the bridge, over which the refugees are hurrying to St. Louis.

THE BRITISH COMMONS FAVORS FREE TRADE

Chamberlain's Preferential Tariff Will Fail.

Plainly Evident By Debate on Chaplin Amendment.

London, June 10.—That the interest in the political situation has been enhanced by the dramatic developments yesterday was fully evidenced today by the remarkable animation and alertness of everybody in and about the house of parliament when the time approached for the resumption of the debate in the house of commons on the amendment of Henry Chaplin, Conservative, to the budget bill.

The debate yesterday developed the fact that very few members of the house favor Mr. Chamberlain's preferential tariff program, and there were rumors that he intended to resign the colonial secretaryship. All the members of the government who spoke declared themselves as free traders and opposed Mr. Chamberlain's proposals. The final sensation was when Hon. A. Elliott, the financial secretary of the treasury, replying on behalf of the government to Mr. Bryce's inquiry, made a bitter attack on protectionists and preferential tariffs. He declared that the financial policy of the government was clearly exhibited by its decision to revoke the corn tax, which savored of protection. This direct attack on Mr. Chamberlain by a member of the government, who, it is believed, must have spoken with authority, elicited loud cheers, as indicating that the majority in the cabinet is overwhelmingly opposed to any system of preferential trade.

The answers to the questions not referring to the great problem of the day passed almost unnoticed today, so keen was the anxiety to get to the all-absorbing topic.

The debate was resumed by Maj. Seeley, Conservative, who, as a convinced free trader, rejoiced in the repeal of the grain tax.

Sir Charles Dilke, advanced Radical contended that the house had the right to demand an opportunity for pronouncing judgment on this import fiscal question. There was enormous exaggeration in the statement that it was foolish for this country to maintain a policy differing from that of the rest of the world. While the United States and Germany were reaping much prosperity under protection, Great Britain's foreign exports at the present time were equal to the combined exports of the United States, Germany and France which, considering the enormous expansion of the population of the United States was a truly surprising thing. The speaker denied that protectionist countries were cutting out Great Britain from world markets. Germany had not even hurt Great Britain's market in South America, and when one considers the great natural advantages of the United States, her size and her highly cultivated population, it was marvelous that she had not years ago attained first place in trade. The commerce of the United States had progressed independently of protection, but it had been retarded rather than advanced by the adoption of protection.

H. H. Asquith, former home secretary, who followed, declared that the reason for the abandonment of the grain tax remained an "unsolved and inscrutable mystery." Mr. Chamberlain had told the public that the tax did not fall on the consumer. If that was so, its repeal was a magnificent display of international attachmen, as it practically meant that Great Britain was making a present to the United States of the $12,500,000 which the tax brought in. All the opposition's arguments against the tax were employed by Mr. Ritchie yesterday evening to justify the repeal. Never had a small minority been so rapidly and completely justified.

BUILDINGS FALL

Ten Brick Structures Have Collapsed at Kansas City.

Twenty-Three Thousand People Homeless at Kansas City, Kas.

Kansas City, June 10.—Ten small brick buildings at Armourdale have collapsed, weakened by the flood, and others are in a weakened condition. No one was hurt. The Missouri river today has receded to within seven-tenths of a foot of the danger line of 21-foot.

The Kansas City, Kas., relief committee, after a thorough canvass, has issued an official statement placing the number of homeless in that city and its suburbans at 23,000, and says outside aid is imperative to relieve the distress. The Chicago & Alton is now included in the list of roads that have re-entered the Union station.

CREW OF SCHOONER KILLED BY NEW HEBRIDES NATIVES

Vessel Was There For the Purpose of Recruiting Labor When the Men Who Were Ashore Were Brutally Murdered By Natives.

Victoria, B. C., June 10.—News was brought by the steamer Moana which has just arrived from Australia of the murder of members of the crew of a labor recruiting schooner in the New Hebrides. The murder took place at the island of Maille, where Bishop Selwyn was attacked and had a narrow escape in 1851 and many murders have since taken place. But a few months ago Capt. Lakins was shot dead there, and more recently other parties were attacked.

The schooner Marie Henry, Capt. Gaspard, anchored off Bushman's bay and Noel Bettari, a Frenchman, and a Kanaka landed to recruit native labor. The two men assembled a number of natives and everything seemed peaceable when suddenly they were attacked and though they fought hard for their lives, they were overpowered by numbers and killed. The bodies of the men were riddled with rifle bullets. The French cruiser Muerthe and the British gunboat Archer have gone to punish the natives, who stampeded to the bush.

SENATOR HANNA'S DAUGHTER HAS AN ELABORATE WEDDING

In Presence of Distinguished Party, Including President Roosevelt.

Dresses of Bride and Her Maids Were Beautiful Creations.

MRS. McCORMICK, NEE HANNA.

Cleveland, June 10.—In the presence of a large and distinguished assemblage, Miss Ruth Hanna, youngest daughter of Senator and Mrs. M. A. Hanna, was united in marriage to Joseph Medill McCormick, of Chicago, son of Hon. Robert S. McCormick, ambassador to Russia, at St. Paul's Episcopal church here, at high noon today. The wedding party entered the church precisely at noon and passed down the center aisle to the altar.

The ushers preceded the maids. They were Howard E. Hanna, of Cleveland, a cousin of the bride; Joseph M. Patterson, of Chicago, a cousin of the groom; Robert Allerton, of Chicago; J. W. Beck, of Chicago; Ernest Minor, of Cincinnati; James Barney, of New York; William Williams, of Philadelphia; Malcolm McBride, of Cleveland.

The maids approached the altar two by two, Miss Florence Cobb and Miss Mary Hopkins, of Washington, leading. Following were Miss Clare Hanna, of Cleveland, a cousin of the bride, with Miss Adelaide Hamilton, of Chicago; Miss Virginia Johnston, of Pittsburg, with Miss Frances Lewis, of Portland, Ore.; Miss Laura McGinley, of Pittsburg, with Miss Elenor Patterson, of Chicago, a cousin of the groom.

The maid of honor was Miss Lucy McCurdy, of Cleveland, cousin of the bride.

The maids were gowned alike in exquisite costumes of white silk mull over pale green silk. The bodices were accordeon plaited over silk, with transparent yoke of Valenciennes and point d'esprit lace. The skirts were accordeon plaited and footed with an applique flounce of the Valencienne lace.

The girdles were of pale green satin ribbon with long loops and ends. They wore white lace hats with medium tops and with falls of many soft pale green ostrich feathers about the crown. The maid of honor's gown was like the maids', with the exception of the silk slip, which was white. The mull was made over white silk, the ribbons of white satin and the ostrich feathers white. The maids and Miss McCurdy carred shower bouquets of white sweet peas with maiden hair ferns. The bride walked with her father. Her gown was a creation of white peau de soie made princess, with bodice effect of real lace, with duchesse lace and hand embroidery in white chenille set with pearls. The sleeves were of the mull, with a flow of the lace. The trailing skirt was plain to the floor, with the exception of four inset falls of real lace, over each of which fell a spray of orange blossoms. She wore a veil over her face, caught in her hair with orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley and white orchids.

The maids and the maid of honor passed up the chancel steps and awaited the bride at the altar. The groom and his best man, his brother, Rutherford McCormick, awaited the bride and her father at the chancel steps, where the betrothal ceremony was performed by Bishop W. A. Leonard, when the bride and groom passed through the aisle formed by the bride's attendants to the altar. The bishop was assisted in the ceremony by Dr. Billings, of Groton, Mass.; Dr. George H. McBrew, and Rev. W. H. Jones, of this city.

The music, which was of rare merit, was under the management of Mrs. Seabury C. Ford.

The church was decorated with white Peonies. Five immense trees of the flowers standing in the chancel reached to the tops of the windows. The broad decorative scheme was set out with most pleasing effect by hundreds of white candles. The sides of the church were also elaborately decorated.

The president and Miss Roosevelt were seated in the front pew on the Hanna side of the church. The ceremony was followed by a wedding breakfast served at "Glenmere," 150 guests being entertained.

While no public announcement has been made concerning Senator Hanna's gift, it is understood to have been a check for a generous sum. Mrs. Hanna's gift was a rare string of pearls.

Late this afternoon the newly married couple will leave for Monticello, Ill., where they will spend their honeymoon, after which they will reside in Chicago.

The groom is one of the editors of the Chicago Tribune. He is son of Hon. Robert S. McCormick, ambassador to Russia, and a grandson of the late Joseph Medill, for many years owner and editor of the Chicago Tribune.

Cleveland, June 10.—President Roosevelt, Miss Alice Roosevelt and Secretary Loeb arrived in Cleveland at 5:50 o'clock this morning on a special train over the Pennsylvania road from Washington, to attend the wedding of Miss Ruth Hanna and Joseph Medill McCormick.

The crowd at the Union depot to greet the president was not large. There is no demonstration other than a general raising of hats by the spectators as the chief executive and his daughter walked down the long depot platform to the exit, where carriages were in waiting to convey the party to "Glenmore," the Hanna home.

The president was evidently in good health and spirits. The distinguished visitors were met at the station by Mr. Dover, Senator Hanna's private secretary. The president, upon arriving at "Glenmore" was warmly greeted by Senator Hanna and the wedding guests, after which breakfast was served. Secretary Loeb said that the trip from Washington was uneventful. He said there was no intention of discussing politics, and denied that the president would have a conference with Ambassador McCormick relative to the situation in Russia while there.

ATTORNEY MUNN MAKES THE CLOSING ARGUMENT FOR STATE

He Says the Whole Question at Issue Is Whether a Sovereign State Can Vindicate the Majesty of Its Own Laws.

St. Paul, June 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—M. D. Munn, special attorney for the state in the suit of the state of Minnesota against the Northern Securities company et al., in the United States court today began the closing argument in the case. In opening he said:

"The magnitude and importance of this action is self-evident from the issues framed and evidence submitted. The judgment of this court thereon must determine whether a sovereign state of this union is powerless to vindicate the majesty of its own laws.

"The fact that these two railroad companies have been consolidated in a perpetual control secured by a single corporation is not disproved by a word of testimony in the case.

"The only defense interposed is a plea that such consolidation was necessary in order to preserve the united control that Mr. Hill and Mr. Morgan and their associates most urgently desire, followed by a declaration of good intentions on their part, framed in alluring visions of benefits they intend to bestow upon this and other states.

"If what is attempted to be done by these defendants can be successfully accomplished, the states of this Union are powerless to enforce their remedial statutes, and corporate instrumentalities created by them become more powerful than their creator.

"Under the constitution the national government is powerless to aid a state in regulating and controlling its own corporations; and the judgment of the court in this action, in its final application, will determine whether a state, having adopted the constitution and entered the Union is also powerless to enforce its constitutional enactments for the regulation of corporations created by it, and whether a corporation created by another state, can be used as a means for evading and violating such enactments.

FRAUD ON INSURANCE COMPANIES

Vienna, June 10.—Alos Grebentz, a merchant, and Anton Creitz, an agent, have been arrested at Trieste on the charge of defrauding New York insurance companies by effecting an insurance on the lives of sick persons and then acquiring an interest in the policy for small sums. They insured seven persons for a total of $68,000. The companies paid the first claim for $8000, but they discovered the conspiracy in the second case, in which a man named Anton Petschek was insured for $12,000. Petschek revealed the plot shortly before his death, stating that he had sold the interest in the policy to the prisoners for $400.

AN ATTEMPT TO LYNCH DEWEYS

Lincoln, Neb., June 10.—A special to the Star from Atwood, Kan., says that at daylight this morning an attempt was made by a mob of 200 armed men to secure possession of Chauncey Dewey, Clyde Wilson and J. C. McBride and lynch them. The fight is said to be still in progress.

Bird City, Kan., June 10.—Persistent rumors of a conflict between the company of Kansas militia guarding the prisoners accused of the murder of Daniel Berry and sons, and 200 farmers, are heard here today. The first word was brought in early today by a farmer, who said the fight took place shortly after daylight and before the militia camp was thoroughly organized for the day's march.

Other arrivals from the range and farm districts told similar stories. The militia is, so it is said here, making no effort to reach St. Francis tomorrow, the time set for the preliminary examination.

SOLDIERS TO PREVENT PILLAGING

Springfield, Ill., June 10.—Upon solicitation of mayor of E. St. Louis, five companies of Illinois militia under command of Major Watkins were ordered to Alton this morning by Acting Governor Northcott. Pillaging has commenced in the flooded district of the city and local authorities are unabel to cope with the lawlessness. The soldiers took tents and provisions for two days. Ten rounds of ammunition were given each man before leaving the armories.

It is believed by Adjutant General Smith, that East St. Louis and other smaller cities where the flood is raging will call for troops before night. Commanders of militia troops in several cities have been notified to hold their commands in readiness for immediate action.

TROOPS ARE ORDERED TO ARIZONA

Washington, June 10.—Acting Adjt. Gen. Hall has ordered the commanding officer of the department of Colorado to send troops from Fort Grant and Fort Huachuaca to Morenice, Ariz., at once, with a discreet officer in command, to protect life and property. He directs that violence be avoided, if possible, the action of the troops to be governed by law in such cases. This order is in response to a telegram to the president from Acting Governor Stoddard, who states that 3000, mostly foreigners, are on a strike at Morenice.

Property Owners to Fight Assessment Plan.

Advance Collection May Mean Extravagance.

Duluth property-owners are about to institute a determined and vigorous campaign to do away with the new charter provision that permits the city to levy assessments in advance of the making of improvements.

Most of those who are interested in the movement are old-time residents of the city, and have vivid recollections of what happened under the old charter when there were no great restrictions on the amount of improvements the city authorities might do.

The new charter was framed by a charter commission that knew the conditions that grew out of this practice, and it made the restrictions such that it was not very likely that any improvements would be made that were not really needed and desired by the property owners.

As the memory of those tough times for property owners faded the city authorities were able to get through an amendment to the charter, doing away with many of these restrictions, so that today the situation is practically back to where it was in the olden times, when prosperity was coming so feverishly that city authorities got an idea there was no end to it, and plunged recklessly into public improvements that impoverished the city. The effects of that period of lavishness of city officers with other people's money have not yet been wiped out altogether.

With all due respect to the present city authorities, the property owners who are interested in this movement wish to put out of the way all temptation and opportunity for a repetition of that experience, hence the campaign for an amendment to the charter that will wipe out the amendment adopted Oct. 23, 1902, by which the city was permitted to anticipate improvements with assessments, and tie up the money of the property owners far in advance of the improvements anticipated.

They believe that when improvements are needed there is ample facility to procure them in the provisions originally drafted in the new charter, and they want these reinstated.

Therefore they will ask the charter commission to submit an amendment, substituting the original provision for that which the voters adopted by a narrow margin Oct. 23 last.

The original provision is as follows:

"When said board shall be ordered by the common council to make any improvements described in section 356 of this chapter, it shall, if the same is ordered to be done by contract, cause the work described in said order to be let and done by contract, as hereinafter provided.

"Said board shall proceed, without delay, to assess so much of the amount necessary to defray the cost of such improvement as is assessable, including the expenses of making such assessment, as nearly as it can ascertain the same, on the property benefited thereby, in proportion as nearly as may be to the benefits resulting thereto, but in no case in excess of such benefits. In making such assessment roll the board shall describe each parcel of property assessed, and the amount assessed against the same, and shall state the name of the owners thereof, so far as known to said board. No mistake in or omission of such owner's name shall in anywise affect such assessment."

This is the provision to which the property owners wish to return. The provision that was substituted for it at the election of Oct. 23, and which passed by a very small margin, is as follows:

"When said board shall be ordered by the common council to make any improvements described in section 356 of this charter, it shall cause an estimate of the cost of such improvement to be made by the city engineer, and shall thereupon proceed at once to assess 80 per cent of such portion of the estimated cost of such improvement as is assessable, including 10 per cent upon such amount, which shall be added to the assessment to defray the necessary expenses of making survey, plans, specifications and superintendence, on the property to be benefited by said improvement, in proportion as nearly as may be to the benefits resulting thereto, but in no case in excess of such benefits. In making such assessment roll the board shall describe each parcel of property assessed, and the amount assessed against the same, and shall state the name of the owner thereof, so far as known to said board. No mistake in or omission of such owner's name shall in any wise affect such assessment.

"If the work shall have been completed before any assessment is made, or if the amount so assessed shall be insufficient to complete the work, said board shall, after the completion of said work, make a final assessment in the same manner to pay the same.

"All assessments paid on account of any improvement ordered to be done by contract, before the contract therefor is let, shall be kept separate in the permanent improvement revolving fund for such improvement until the amount of said fund available for said improvement equals that portion of the estimated cost of said improvement that shall be paid from said fund."

Under the old deal no assessments could be made until the work was done, and under the new one the assessment is made first. The advantages to those who push local improvements, and the disadvantages to those who have to pay the money, are obvious.

Under the new deal 80 per cent of the estimated cost is assessed at once, though the improvement may not be made for months or even years. This piles large sums up in the city treasury, drawing low rates of interest in local banks, which the property owners might be using to advantage in the wait between the assessment and the completion of the improvement. An instance of how it works is shown in the case of one man who was out of the city when an assessment was made, and who did not, therefore, get the notice that is sent out. On his return he found that he not only had to pay the assessment, but a penalty of 10 per cent, amounting to $70. And that improvement has not yet even begun.

Property owners figure that this tends to extravagance, and at least opens the way for it. Under the old charter, with no restrictions worthy the name, during the flush of prosperity improvements were carried on to the verge of ruin. Improvements were made regardless of anything. The new charter, framed by men who were mindful of the evils of this system, contained a number of wholesome restrictions. No improvements could be made unless 25 per cent of the owners of 25 per cent of the property affected petitioned for it. Another good rule was that the city could not let contracts for improvements unless there was money enough in the internal improvement revolving fund to pay for them.

But a return to the dangerous impulses common to periods of prosperity led to a removal of much of the effect of these restrictions. The permanent improvement revolving fund was increased from $100,000 to $150,000.

Improvements were permitted on petitions containing 25 per cent of a list on which all joint owners of property were counted as one. Under the old deal, if there were four owners of one piece of property, they counted as four, and this made it necessary to get a larger list of signers. When they are counted as only one it reduces the number of signers necessary.

The city authorities were permitted to campaign for improvements by employing men to circulate the petitions for them.

Last but not least was the amendment providing for advance assessments, whereby there was always money in the revolving fund to make improvements, thus nullifying the wholesome provision that no contracts could be made unless the money to pay for them was in the revolving fund.

In the opinion of those who are about to start a campaign to restore the old assessment system, the increase of $50,000 in the fund and the other liberalizing provisions are sufficient without the one permitting advance assessment, and they want to have that done away with, leaving the other new provisions as they are.

The effect of this provision is held to be to draw money from the people into the city treasury months or years before it is actually needed to pay for the work. It simply swells the city's bank account, enlarges the opportunities for making improvements, and tends to do away with the restrictions originally placed about their making, especially that providing that improvements could not be made unless there was money enough on hand to make them. When the authorities con order an improvement and immediately levy an assessment, there will always be money in the fund to make any improvements the council can get petitions for.

As it is, under the present provisions the council can order any number of improvements, swell the revolving fund by assessments, and then not let the contracts or begin work until it gets good and ready, or go on with work on such particular ones as the authorities may favor.

In the opinion of most property owners this is a pernicious and dangerous system, and the campaign to do away with it will start at once. Opposition from the city authorities may be looked for confidently, because the system is easy for them and makes it easily possible to do a lot of improvements that will—perhaps—confer credit upon them at the expense of the property owners and to the profit of contractors.

STAGE HELD UP.

Highwaymen Make Good Haul Near Reading, Cal.

Reading, Cal., June 10.—A stage traveling between Weaverville and this place, was held up and robbed late yesterday by two masked and heavily armed highwaymen, who secured about $400 and some valuable watches from the eight passengers, including one woman.

The men robbed were either commercial travelers from San Francisco or miners. The woman was not molested, but the bandits secured $41 of her money, which she hid under a seat. The robbers escaped.

AT WEST DULUTH

Eight of the party of twenty-one land seekers which left West Duluth a few weeks ago have returned. Some of the others will return during the latter part of the week while a few have decided to make their home in California and will remain there. Those who returned last evening were Messrs. Chabot, Evjen, Christenson, Solberg, Kearns, Morneau and Younger.

Those who have returned express themselves as abundantly satisfied with the results of their trip.

"I would have been satisfied," said Mr. Chabot today in speaking of the journey, "if I had not secured a foot of pine. The trip alone was worth far more than we paid for it.

"We were exceedingly fortunate, however, in our claims. I believe that the land which we have secured will average at least 7,000,000 feet of pine to the claim. It is all together in a block and the timber is a good quality of sugar pine. The land is situated not more than two or three miles from a railroad and is twenty-four miles in a direct line from Eureka.

"We reached the land by rail to San Francisco, boat to Eureka and then by railroad, horses and foot to the site of the claims.

"In returning we passed through the flood district. About 150 miles from Kansas City our train which was on the Rock Island road had to run into Kansas City over the Missouri Pacific the only road whose tracks are in a condition that trains can run over them. It was also the only road by which we could get out of Kansas City and we went over it to St. Joseph.

"The reports of the floods have not been exaggerated. For miles and miles on either side of Kansas City we ran through fields which were entirely submerged under water. Sixteen bridges over the Kaw river have been destroyed and the river is filled with floating tables, chairs, cattle, and all kinds of household goods and live stock, even houses being occasionally seen.

"The worst of the flood is now over, however, and the water has receded considerably. It is now about six feet below the high water mark reached by the flood and is going down steadily. The loss of property however has been terrible and it is the most disastrous flood experienced in many years."

HOCQUOIL—MEUNIER.

The wedding of Miss Mary Hocquoil, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. Hocquoil and Gideon Meunier, took place early this morning at St. James' Catholic church in West Duluth, Father Feheley officiating.

The wedding was a very quiet affair and was solemnized in the presence of a very few immediate friends and relatives. The bride was attended by her sister, Irene Hocquoil, and the groomsman was Louis Lassard.

The bride wore an appropriate traveling gown and immediately after the ceremony the party partook of a wedding breakfast and the bride and groom left for the East on the morning train.

Miss Hocquoil is a well known Duluth girl and is prominent socially at the western suburb.

Mr. Meunier is the manager for the Scotland Woolen Mills at Superior and a young man with many friends at the head of the lakes. He has lived in Duluth for five years, and ran the company's store on this side for a long time. He is now a resident of Superior and will live there with his bride.

A GNESEN QUARREL.

Neighborhood troubles between two families of Polanders living in the little town of Gnesen are being aired before Justice Stone.

Mrs. Francis Marcinak laid a complaint last evening asking that Paul and Joseph Szeesny be placed under bonds to keep the peace, claiming that they threatened her with severe bodily punishment. The two brothers with the unpronouncable name appeared to answer to the charge and claimed that Mrs. Marcinak had caused the demonstration on their part by her treatment of the defendant's younger sister.

They pleaded not guilty to the charge of assault and the trial was set for this afternoon. A party of eight witnesses will be present from the vicinity to give testimony.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

CONTRACT IS LET

George H. Lounsberry Gets Building of Omaha Freight House.

Railroad Men Making a Campaign Against Card Sharps.

George H. Lounsberry received word this morning from the general offices of the Omaha railroad at St. Paul that he had been awarded the contract for the construction of the new freight house.

Work is to begin at once and the present freight house will be moved back 170 feet to make room for the new brick structure, which is to occupy the Fifth avenue frontage.

It is expected that the new trackage and the new freight house will be completed and ready for shipping by the early fall at the latest. It was expected that the building would be up by the middle of July, but the delay in letting contracts will make it later. The new building will be of brick, one story high and 170 feet long. The old building is 160 feet long.

The Northern Pacific company has not made any later arrangements regarding the building of its freight house addition.

AFTER CARD SHARPS.

Railroad Companies Will Crowd Them Off Trains.

The railroad companies in Northern Wisconsin and this part of Minnesota are adopting measures to scatter and rid their trains of card sharpers.

The trains have been infested with card sharks for several weeks, and complaints have been made by men who have been relieved of sums of money by the old pitch game developing into a poker hand.

The conductors are resorting to instant ejectment of offending passengers, and some of the gamblers have been put off between stations on the Twin Cities lines.

The game is played by three men. They board a train and size up a "live" one, and one suggests a small game of pitch for 10 cents a corner and five cents a set back. He looks around for other players, and presently picks out two men to make up the four-handed party, his confederates being chosen.

After the pitch game becomes rather hard fought, and all are nearing the end of the game, one of the strangers locks his hand over and says:

"This is the boo poker hand; I'd like to be in a poker game with this."

"So would I, and I'll bet you a little piece of money that I've got you beat at that," says a second.

One of the men leans over and shows the victim his hand. It's three kings or aces.

The three agree to discard one card and play with the five.

In the meantime the victim, who has been having only small cards at the original game, looks over his hand to find he has a straight flush of very small cards, and he begins to prick up his ears, and thinking his luck might be better at another game, goes in.

There is some raising and betting, until he is in as far as he can go, and then the call is made, with another man holding perhaps a royal flush, or something just a bit higher than that of the victim.

It is so easy to start a game of cards on a train that " sharks have no trouble in getting players, who want to kill time.

There are a large number of men engaged in this business or profession, and it is necessary that they travel in threes.

The railroads are watching them, and while they cannot be thrown off until they start something, when conductors see them working their game, they stop trains to get rid of them.

RYAN TRANSFERRED.

Goes From Here to the Breckenridge Division.

George Ryan, traveling freight agent in this territory for the Great Northern, will be transferred to the Breckenridge division of the road, and will leave tomorrow. Mr. Ryan will travel out of the general offices in his new position. He now reports to the local general agent.

Mr. Ryan was made a traveling freight agent a year ago, having been promoted from chief clerk in the local general agent's office.

His successor has not been named as yet, though it is probable that William Powers, who is next in succession, will be elevated a step.

AFFAIRS IN MINING

Explorations on "Section 30" Are Becoming Very Expensive.

Drill Without Black Diamonds Is to Be Tried Here.

Explorations on section 30 are becoming very expensive and when the work is completed will add another large lump sum to the immense expenditures that have been made on the famous piece of property.

There are five drills working on the property of the section thirty company now. One drill has been in the ground since the first of February. This drill is but 480 feet down now, which is less than 100 feet a month, or a little over three feet a day.

The work is not anywhere near completed, and it is expected that months will be consumed before it is. The results of the drilling are being guarded carefully, and with secrecy, though it is known what the findings are, which are being made in a general way. The character of the formations and qualities of the overlying strata, is probably the hardest on the ranges. The drilling proceeds with more difficulty, perhaps, than at any of the properties on the ranges.

Six months more, at least will be necessary, for the explorations, before it can be determined where, if at all, shafts will be sunk.

CUT OUT DIAMONDS.

Drill That Does Not Use Them to be Tried.

The first of the steel shot drill machines arrived in Duluth this morning and will be taken to Barclay, near Hibbing, for a test.

A. Coleman Terry, of New York, who is having the machines put in for test purposes, is in the city and will attend to the placing of the machines.

The drilling will be done with these machines for Cuyler Adams at Deerwood, at Boulder Mountain, on the Menominee range and at Barclay.

One machine which has been on the road some weeks and which was meant for the work at Boulder Mountain, has been lost and tracers are now out to try and locate it.

Mr. Terry has two expert drill men with him and will have others come in a short time. He intends conducting parties to the scene of the drilling to show the work under way, when the drills are started.

The method of drilling, if successful, will be a great economy in this part of the country, as the black carbons which are used for drilling purposes now are expensive and the price is going up every day.

IS NOW A JUDGE.

T. R. Mayo Pooh-Bah of a Mountain Village.

The Duluth friends of T. R. Mayo, former deputy sheriff under Sheriff Butchart, and up to a year or more ago, a well known ward politician and barber in West Duluth, will be pleased to learn that he is permanently located at Meadows, Washington county, Idaho, where he goes by the title of Judge T. Roger Mayo, being justice of peace, a member of the school board, president of the Fourth of July celebration committee and otherwise prominent citizen. Meadows is situated on a high plateau at the entrance of the Thunder Mountain district, and is thirty miles from any railroad. That it is progressive is noted by the weekly paper, which heralds its "doings" to the outside world. One of the paragraphs in a recent issue of the Meadows Eagle would indicate that Judge Mayo has not given up any of his story-telling proclivities, in fact that he is just as able along that line as he was when in Duluth, and told the famous story of a foot race that he witnessed in Montana, where one of the contestants at the finish jumped clear over a milk wagon bearing a farmer and his wife, knocking off the old lady's spectacles, but winning the race.

JEWELER BARR LOCATED.

New York, June 10.—David J. Barr, of San Francisco, a jeweler, and disputed heir to a large fortune, who disappeared from a hotel here on Decoration day, has been located at the Fordham hotel, where he went for treatment during a slight illness.

BROKERS WAIVE HEARING.

Chicago, June 10.—The twenty-four officers and directors of the board of trade, who surrendered themselves last week when they learned that warrants had been issued for their arrest for bucket shopping, waived examination today in Justice Bradwell's court and were held to the criminal court.

THAT'S THE TIME

When Proper Food Is Necessary.

Proper food is never more necessary than when recovering from a wasting sickness, when over-eating would be fatal and yet the body needs nourishment and plenty of it.

At this time the condensed food Grape-Nuts is shown to be one's most powerful friend. Four teaspoonfuls of Grape-Nuts and cream will sustain A healthy man for half a day and a less quantity in warm milk will build up the convalescent wonderfully. No stomach is too weak to digest and relish Grape-Nuts. "I was taken sick with typhoid fever, and everyone who has had this disease knows how weak and lifeless a person feels when beginning to recuperate.

"I had to be very careful about my diet and could eat only very light foods. These did not seem to nourish me and instead of getting better every day I was just at a standstill, and everyone began to fear a relapse. One day while lying in bed very much discouraged my sister, who was reading to me from the paper, read an article about Grape-Nuts, and we decided to send for a package.

"From the very first meal of Grape-Nuts I began to improve, strength came in bounds and leaps, with the result that I was soon out of bed; my change for the better seemed simply marvelous. My mind is clear and strong and my body sturdy. I am now entirely recovered." Name given by Postum company, Battle Creek, Mich.

There is a reason.

A dessert that helps the body, that's the thing! Any number of them in the little recipe book in each package of Grape-Nuts.

FEARED A HOLD-UP

Sam Berg Thought Marshal McLaughlin Was Robbing Him.

Says That Was Why He Fired the Fatal Shot.

"I did not know that the man I shot was an officer. I thought we were being held up."

Such was the statement made to a Herald representative this morning by Sam Berg, the man who killed Marshal McLaughlin at Mountain Iron, and who is believed to be slowly recovering at St. Luke's hospital from a bullet wound inflicted by the officer before he died.

Berg says that he does not speak English very well. He did not talk much this morning as he is weak and the nature of his wound is such that he is compelled to take short breaths. He is, however, very hopeful that he will soon recover and that he may be set right in the shooting affair, which he appears to regret very much.

Berg said that he and Emerson were walking on the railroad track from Hibbing and were stopped by McLaughlin, who, without telling them that he was an officer, demanded that they tell him where they came from and were going. Berg says that both he and Emerson got the impression that they were being held up, especially as Marshal McLaughlin drew a revolver and began to search Berg's pockets. Emerson, the wounded man claims, started away on a run and McLaughlin began shooting at him, one of the bullets passing so close to Berg's head that he thought he was shot through the ear, whereupon he drew his own revolver and fired point blank at the officer.

Berg says he would never have offered the slightest resistance had he known the dead man was an officer, that after he had time to think the matter over he understood the situation, but at the time he shot he supposed he was being held up, and fired at McLaughlin believing that his own life was in danger.

He says he did not have anything on his person that anyone would care to take, and after the tragedy was over realized that some serious mistake had been made.

Berg says that he has relatives in this country, that they do not reside in this state, but are far enough away so that he does not care to speak of them.

He expressed some interest in learning that Emerson has not yet been apprehended, but said that it would be only a matter of time when he would be found and that it would be better for them both if he were found.

Berg is still in a condition that does not warrant the need of a deputy to watch him, but when he is farther on the way toward recovery, which is expected to follow unless his wound becomes infected, an officer will stay with him until he is able to go to the county jail.

BILLS MOSTLY "TENS."

Most Common Denomination Now In Circulation.

Washington, June 10.—For some months the treasury has been changing the denominations of United States paper currency of every description in pursuance with the recommendation of Treasurer Roberts, and to meet the popular demand for notes of small denominations.

In a short time if the present policy be continued, there will be no United States notes in circulation below the denomination of $10, and relatively few above that denomination.

Of the entire volume of these notes outstanding two-thirds of them are already in the denomination of $10. Of the lower denomination there is reported as outstanding in round numbers $19,000,000 in fives, $1,500,000 in twos and $2,000,000 in ones. Of tens there were on June 1, $231,000,000.

Very few national bank notes of the two lowest denominations are found on the list of notes outstanding, and of the denominations of $5 less than $61,-000,000. Ones and twos are no longer issued by national banks.

The treasury statement just issued showing the money in circulation shows that on June 1 the amount was $2,382,-174,125, an increase over June 1, 1902, of $127,768,850.

REVOLUTION IS ENDED.

MEETING IS A SUCCESS

Annual Convention of the Duluth District Pythians Is Held.

The annual meeting of the Duluth district Knights of Pythias yesterday afternoon and evening was a very successful affair, exceeding all expectations. About 300 were present, including about 100 from outside of the city, every one of the eleven lodges in the district being represented, except Grand Rapids and Eveleth.

This attendance surprised everybody associated with the gathering as summer is considered rather a poor time for such meetings. J. L. Cromwell, of this city, as special deputy for the Third Pythian district, arranged the meeting, and the ritual work was under his direction.

In the afternoon there was an informal reception, with music and a few off-hand speeches by R. D. Hare, of St. Paul; Dr. C. B. Pillsbury, and J. L. Cromwell, of Duluth. A number of visiting ladies and the local Rathbone Sisters were present.

In the evening the rank of knight was conferred on a class of four esquires, two from Two Harbors and two from Duluth, and the session closed with a very delightful banquet, at which a number of happy speeches were made. The program of speeches, as announced yesterday, was followed out with the exception of C. O. Baldwin, who was unable to be present. The toasts and those who responded to them were as follows: "The Knight of Pythias As a Good Citizen," Rev. R. A. Saunderson; "The Grand Lodge and the State of the Order," Grand Chancellor Robertson; "The Pythian Press," G. L. Hall, of Moorehead; "The Pythian Memorial Day," A. R. Fowler, Two Harbors; "Friendship," C. O. Baldwin; "The Uniform Rank," F. L. Young.

The wives of U. C. T. members of Duluth are requested to meet at the Commercial Club at 1:30 o'clock Friday.

HE GETS NO DAMAGES

John Olson Loses Slander Suit Against M. O. Aubolee.

County Attorney M. O. Aubolee, of Lake county, has won the suit for alleged slander brought against him by Former County Auditor John Olson. The case was tried before Judge Ensign at Two Harbors, and resulted in the jury's bringing in a verdict for the defendant.

The suit is the outcome of sensational charges made in a circular issued at the instance of the county attorney during last fall's campaign, charging the county auditor practically with malfeasance in office. The trial created much interest in Two Harbors during last week, and crowds attended to hear the claims of the defense in substantiation of the charges made in the circular. C. O. Baldwin, of Duluth, represented Aubolee, and C. D. O'Brien, of St. Paul, was Olson's attorney. Olson sued for $8000 damages.

IGORROTES

Building Roads In the Philippine Islands.

Washington, June 10.—Forty cents in insular currency is the amount paid per day to the igorrotes who are engaged in building roads in Benquet, according to the report of William H. Peck, the governor of that province, to the war department. Nearly 200 miles of comparatively good road have been built since the American occupation, and between 200 and 250 igorrotes at 40 cents a day are engaged in constructing what is known as the Benquet wagon road.

In order to prevent as much as possible the spread of cholera, Governor Peck says, he has issued orders to prevent the practice among igorrotes of gathering about the affected tents and holding feasts and sacrificing fowls and animals, and also to discourage the traveling of persons from one pueblo to another. His requests have been complied with generally, and this, he believes, is satisfactory proof of the confidence which the people have in American rule.

Governor Peck reports, says the Times, that notwithstanding the cholera, new homes are built, new plantations laid out and conditions generally improving.

THE LABOR HOSTS

Election of Officers Next Thing on the Program.

Meeting at Little Falls to Close With Grand Ball.

St. Paul, June 10.—A Little Falls, Minn., special to the Dispatch says: This morning, in the State Federation of Labor, a resolution to amend the preamble of the constitution was referred to the different local bodies. At this afternoon's session the election of officers, choosing the next place of meeting and naming the official organ of the federation will be taken up. The meeting closes tonight with a grand ball at the Gross opera house.

The resolution introduced by the socialistic element declaring for political action was finally disposed of by reference to the trades assemblies throughout the state, which will take a vote on it. Those opposed to the uniting of politics with labor claim this a victory.

Delegate Barron, of Duluth, submitted a proposition to require all delegates to state conventions in future to subscribe to an oath or understanding to purchase only union made goods. This question also will be determined by a referendum vote of the trades assemblies of the state.

The resolution of the Minneapolis Carpenters' union providing that no delegate to a state convention be eligible if he holds a political position was defeated by a vote of 186 to 54.

Fred McKelvey, a Duluth delegate, introduced a resolution, which was adopted, to appeal to the next session of the legislature to enact a law limiting the hours of labor for women and children to ten.

The contest for the official paper of the federation lies between the Union of Minneapolis and the Labor Union Advocate of St. Paul, with the friends of both confident.

Candidates for the various offices are hustling and talk in the hotel corridors and upon the streets is spirited. While the opposition to President Neary is formidable, it is conceded on all hands that his re-election is practically certain unless something arises between now and election time to turn the tide in favor of some other candidate. Mr. Bainbridge is making a quiet campaign for chief executive of the federation and has a strong following, while C. E. James, president of the St. Paul trades assembly, is being backed by the St. Paul delegates.

Indications point to the re-election of Secretary-Treasurer W. E. McEwen by an overwhelming majority, if opposition presents itself at all; and if one is to judge the result of the election this afternoon from the burst of deafening applause following the conclusion of the secretary's address, it is altogether likely he will be selected unanimously. McEwen's report was well received and was in all respects a business-like document.

New Elm and Stillwater are active candidates for the next convention, and the delegates from both places are doing some strenuous work.

NOT HELEN BANCROFT.

Mrs. Bedford Confounded With Beautiful Westerner.

New York, June 10.—The name which Mrs. Gunning S. Bedford used in her negotiations with the woman from whom she obtained her bogus baby suggested to many persons in New York that she might be Helen Bancroft, the beautiful, who disappeared from New York several years ago.

Miss Bancroft, who was for a brief period on the stage, was heard of last three years ago, when she was married to a former secretary of the late Henry E. Abbey, says the Sun. He was incurably ill and died a few months after the marriage. Just before leaving for South Africa Miss Bancroft had finally declined to marry a noted New Yorker who had been for two years desperately devoted to her. He was not rich, but socially distinguished, and he was old enough to be her father.

Miss Bancroft consented and his family was so far reconciled to the match as to call on their future relative-in-law. But at the last minute Miss Bancroft "choked the game," as it was graphically described by her friends, and fleeing to South Africa, married the young American who had gone out there in the hope of saving his life. Not a word has been heard of her since that time. She came from the Middle West and was strikingly beautiful.

TEN THOUSAND REFUGEES FLEEING TO THE BLUFFS

Everything Is Being Done For the Safety of Those Who Are Still Confined In Various Buildings By the Waters.

St. Louis, June 10.—Ten thousand refugees from the east side district now submerged and from districts threatened are fleeing towards the bluffs to the east, many taking trolley cars to Belleville, Ills.

An order was issued closing the public schools of that city for the day and opening all the buildings for the temporary accommodation of the flood refugees.

By 9 o'clock, the work of rescuing the people of East St. Louis was well under way, with Broadway and Tenth street as the point of embarkation for the rescuers. On all sides there were urgent calls for more skiffs.

Hundreds of men at the plant of the Mallenkie Iron works hastily knocked together a number of rude flat boats, which were put into service without delay. The row boats from the Wiggins ferry boats had not reached the scene at that time.

An immense lake had formed south of Broadway for three or four blocks, reaching from Fifth almost to Fifteenth street. This is constantly spreading.

In the Washington school house 200 persons were huddled together awaiting rescue. Some had to swim to get there. Shortly after daylight it became impossible to reach the building except in boats.

A number of those imprisoned in the school house expressed their willingness to remain there provided something to eat could be sent them. Efforts were made to provide supplies for them.

In the hall above the grocery store of Henry Bedenick, on Irene street, seventy-two persons took refuge. They could be seen at windows signalling for boats to them aways.

Congressman Rodenberg, Former Mayor Stephens and Former Postmaster Henry M. Bader arrived at Tenth street and Broadway early to aid the rescuers. Mr. Bader stated that he expected that a great damage would result. Mr. Bader estimated that 10,000 inhabitants were affected by the disaster and that from 100 to 600 were immediately in danger from the rising flood. The police pressed into service all negroes and others who were loitering about and these men were set to work building boats and rafts and assting in handling the skiffs already in service.

Washington, June 10.—The weather bureau today issued the following regarding the flood situation:

The river at St. Louis has risen slightly during the past twenty-four hours to 37.9 feet, where it is not stationary. The rise was evidently due to the fact that fresh northerly winds had temporarily increased the rate of flow, and the decline should begin today. The stage at Cairo was 42.7 feet, a rise of 0.7 foot; a further slight rise is expected during the next two days. The rise will continue below Cairo, but will not be of a serious nature.

TRIAL OF JETT AND WHITE HAS BEGUN AT JACKSON, KY.

Commonwealth Attorney Says He Will Prove That Jett and White Conspired to Kill Marcum and That Jett Fired the Shots.

Jackson, Ky., June 10.—All those entering the court to attend the trial of Curtis Jett and Thomas White, charged with the murder of Marcum were searched and none allowed to enter with weapons. When court convened at 8 a. m., Jett and White were represented by John O'Neal, of Covington, Judge B. F. French, of Winchester, and John L. Noble of Jackson. Commonwealth Attorney Boyd was assisted by Judge Patrick of Jackson and Thomas Marcum of Oklahoma, brother of the murdered man. O'Neal moved to set aside the entire jury panel as irregular. The motion was overruled and twenty-five witnesses were called for each side. They were excluded from the court room. The defense made the request that the county judge James Harris, one of the alleged factionists and also a witness be allowed to remain and assist the defense. The commonwealth objected and Judge Redwine sustained the objection. Commonwealth Attorney Boyd in his statement of the case promised to prove that Jett entered a side door of the courthouse just prior to the shooting and returned by the door immediately after the second shot. He said he would prove White and Jett entered into a conspiracy to kill Marcum and that Jett fired the shots, having been seen by witnesses whom he would produce. He would prove that Jett told persons he did it but that somebody's money paid for it. R. J. Ewen was the first witness.

SHERIFF RUTTER GETS ONE OUTLAW

Havre, Mont., June 10.—Authentic advices from Hinsdale, Mont., say that Brown, one of the Glasgow jail breakers, was captured late yesterday by Deputy Sheriff Rutter. Brown told Rutter that he did not want to be with the gang when they came in contact with the officers as he was sure that there would be some hard fighting. He says while the four outlaws rode through the brush near Glasgow they passed within thirty feet of some of the posses that they could have easily killed the whole lot. Nothing has been seen or heard from the other three outlaws.

PRESIDENT THINKS

Secretary of Postmaster General Unfit Because of Scandal.

Expected to Announce Chairman of Campaign Committee Soon.

Washington, June 10.—President Roosevelt is not pleased with the connection of Postmaster General Payne's confidential secretary, Rand, with the mining stock company, of which August W. Machen is an officer, and it is quite likely that Mr. Rand will retire. Postmaster General Payne will not discuss the matter, but it is known the president does not approve of the employment of persons in the government service under circumstances where there is any cause for criticism.

An investigation of the affairs of the mining company was made, and while it was shown that both Rand and Machen were officers, the inspectors exonerated them from the charge of using their official positions to sell stock to employes of the department.

Former Assistant Attorney General for the Postoffice Department Tyner, in all probability, will be indicted by the United States grand jury for directing his wife to open the safe in his office and abstract papers. While Mr. Tyner did not himself remove the papers, he admits he instructed his wife to do so, and this action has impelled the officers of the department of justice to present the case to the grand jury.

After President Roosevelt's visit to Senator Hanna today, he, perhaps, will be ready to make a statement as to whether or not Mr. Hanna will continue to act as chairman of the Republican national committee during the presidential campaign next year. The president is always prompt to inform the public when he has decided upon an important matter, and is especially frank when dealing with questions affecting his own political fortunes. There is considerable speculation here as to whether Senator Quay will act in the event of Senator Hanna declining to again undertake the conduct of the campaign, which involves so much hard work. If the wishes of the president prevail Senator Hanna will manage the next Republican national campaign.

"Our state has settled political matters," said Senator Penrose. "We are for President Roosevelt, who will be nominated and elected. However, Pennsylvania wants no tinkering with the tariff. Tariff has brought about the present prosperous condition in the country and we see no reason why there should be any change. As to the choice for vice president, I can say we have not yet given much attention to the matter. It is probable the man will come from the Central West—Indiana, if that state puts up the right man."

* * *

"I suppose there are no other worlds to conquer at this time," said Representative Babcock to President Roosevelt Monday in referring to the certainty of the latter's nomination for the presidency and to the declaration in his favor. After leaving the White House Mr. Babcock said: "The president's trip was an indication of his personal strength in the country, and that counts a great deal. The political situation is favorable both to the president and Republicans at this time. The people, especially those in the West, have absolute confidence in the president."

* * *

"President Roosevelt's nomination is settled. There will be no opposition to him," said Senator Scott of West Virginia. "Our state is for Roosevelt and it will be found in the Republican column." Senator Scott has just returned from Europe. "My trip abroad," he said, "was with a view to making a special study of industrial conditions as bearing on the interests of our own country. The conditions in European countries are not to be compared with those prevailing in the United States.

"The laboring people there—and I use the word in reference to the people who work with their hands, because in America all men are laboring people in some branch of work—are not to be classed with the laborers in this country. It would simply be preposterous for a laboring man in Eprope to think about having a piano, an organ, or anything in the character of a luxury in his home.

"Their general condition cannot be classed with our people who do the same class of work. Anyone who has observed the conditions under which these people live in Europe cannot blame them for coming to this country to seek an improvement in their way of living. That is the reason for such a large number of immigrants coming to our country."

Professor Wiley's borax eating boarders will be given a two months' vacation, beginning June 30, when the cafe will be closed. The warm weather is said to be responsible. The boarders rebelled and declared they could not eat borax and formaldehyde any longer, and asked for a respite. This was granted. An entirely different cause also is given for closing Professor Wiley's cafe. Because the boarders insisted upon getting their hair cut, it is claimed, can the whole difficulty be traced. The matter came to a head several days ago when one of the boarders appeared for breakfast with his head shaved. The sight caused a commotion. Dr. Wiley and his assistants pointed out that great confusion would result owing to the fact that the loss of hair would occasion errors of grave importance in the official data. The shorn boarder, according to the story, was commanded to return to the barber shop and procure the hair which had been cut off, in order that it might be weighed. The boarder made a search for his missing locks, but he could not pick out his own from the mass of hair on the barber shop floor. Thus the number of ounces of hair cut off to be accounted for in loss of weight could not be placed on the scientific scales of the bureau for investigating purposes, and considerable dissatisfaction ensued. A vacation was then decided upon. Professor Wiley will make a report of the test Sept. 1.

HICCOUGHED ALL WEEK.

Now a Shadow of His Former Self.

New York, June 10.—For over a week Frank Mittau, proprietor of a shoe store at 894 Cortlandt avenue, the Bronx, has been hiccoughing. Night and day without any cessation he has hiccoughed, until he is only a shadow of his former self.

It was a week ago yesterday he was first attacked, according to the Tribune. He had just fixed a show case and sold a pair of shoes to a customer when the hiccoughs began. He treated them lightly at first, and then tried home remedies. None availed, and at length he consulted Dr. Newson, 606 East One Hundred and Fifty-eighth street. Dr. Newson tried all the remedies usually efficacious, but none of them helped Mittau.

Dr. Newson said last night that he hoped Mittau would recover, but that he considered his condition serious.

SEASONING TIMBER

A Claim That It Makes the Wood Last Longer.

New Method of Forest Economy of Much Importance.

Washington, June 10.—The rapid disappearance of the best American timbers has developed a new method of economy, which is, in brief, that inferior timbers shall be pressed into service and by proper seasoning and preserving be made to take the place of those more valuable.

The odea is the inevitable outcome of wasteful cutting, long continued, which has culled the forests of their best trees, so that industries requiring high grade woods at a low cost are less able to obtain supplies at a price which they can afford to pay. White oak, for example, was for many years practically the only wood used for railroad ties. So abundant and cheap was this timber that it never occurred to the railroads it would not always continue to be abundant and cheap. Ties were laid without seasoning two days after they had been hewn, or were left to lie and decay in ditches of water before they were put in the track. But conditions have changed; white oak for ties, fence posts, piles and other common purposes cannot be used to the same extent as formerly, and its place has largely been taken by inferior timbers.

It is not enough that forestry on a large scale replace the present wasteful methods of cutting, since forestry cannot make up immediately for what has been lost. It is essential, while administering wisely to forests which still remain, that the timbers can be now put to their highest use; that a good timber be put only to a high grade purpose, and that a poor timber be substituted for a good timber whenever it will do the work required.

This kind of forest economy the bureau of forestry, having in mind the increasing demand for good timbers and the diminishing forest resources, has persistently urged and encouraged. By every available means it has attempted to find uses for woods not now regarded as merchantable and to substitute them for woods rarer but better known. The railroads especially, enormous consumers of wood, have been impressed with the necessity for such a substitution. Longleaf pine in the Northwest has been laid as ties during the past year instead of bull pine. Short leaf and loblolly ties will probably soon replace those of longleaf in Mississippi, Louisiana and Texas. Hemlock and tamarack may take the place of oak and pine in other parts of the country, and when oak is used at all for ties it will be the inferior species instead of the valuable white oak.

The substitution of low grade for high grade timbers depends on what can be done to increase the lasting powers of the substitutes; in other words, it depends on timber preservation. Special treatment must so prolong the life of the inferior timbers, and at a cost so small as to make the investment a good one.

In the first of a series of bulletins on problems in timber preservation just issued by the bureau of forestry as bulletin 41, "Seasoning Timber," by Hermann von Schrenk, the seasoning which precedes the preservation treatment is dealt with. Dr. Von Schrenk's seasoning experiments, made largely in co-operation with railroad companies, although still in the preliminary stages, have adready developed facts of very considerable importance.

The main advantages of seasoning timber are that seasoned timber lasts longer, since the water in green timber is necessary to the life of decay-producing fungi; that it greatly increases the effectiveness of the preservative treatment, and that by reducing the weight of timber it causes a corresponding saving in freight.

In Europe, all railroad ties, bridge materials, telegraph poles, fence posts, etc., are commonly seasoned, the time of seasoning varying from several months to two years. In this country the tremendous development of the industries that require building lumber has pressed the lumber manufacturer so hard that he is forced to send out a poor product, which the consumer is willing to take in that condition rather than wait for thoroughly seasoned material. Properly seasoned material commands a high price and sometimes cannot be obtained at all.

One of the interesting facts brought out by Dr. Von Schrenk's study is that, as a rule, high-grade timbers like white oak and longleaf pine, being very much denser than timbers of low grade, are not so readily penetrated as the latter by the preservative fluid; and thus it is, therefore, much more economical to treat low-grade, porous wood like beech, which ordinarily lasts only four or five years, than a high grade timber. Beech so treated has outlasted oak several times. For a similar reason, "It would be a great waste,' says Dr. Von Schrenk, 'to attempt the treatment of white oak or long leaf pine, when better results will be obtained by using loblolly pine or red oak."

Dr. Von Schrenk's bulletin contains detailed accounts of different methods of seasoning, both open air seasoning and by kiln drying the results of seasoning tests in different parts of the country and with difficult timbers; tests with telephone poles, etc. The bulletin will be of special interest to railroad men who have followed the experiments with close attention.

The American Telegraph & Telephone company is experimenting this summer, through the bureau of forestry, with methods of lengthening the lasting powers of cedar and chestnut poles. The bureau has sent several men to Wilmington, N. C., to study the loss of weight by cedar poles under proper methods of seasoning and the increased length of service of the poles which seasoning and preserving bring about. Similar work is being carried on near Harrisburg, Pa., with chestnut poles.

In Bear Canyon, Gallatin County, Montana, and at Sheridan, Wyoming, the seasoning tests with lodgepole pine, begun last summer in co-operation with the Burlington Railroad, will be continued under the direction of Reynolds Hill. Experiments in seasoning and preserving long leaf pine ties will be carried on on a large scale at Silsbee, Texas, on the tract of the Kirby Lumber company.

With a wild desire to satisfy a tremendous public yearning the management is strenuously trying to put a pennant winning ball team in Duluth.

In carrying out this policy it was announced today that Disch and Hubbard, the famous shut-out battery of Racine, had been signed and would report here Friday morning.

Disch has been the cynosure of the professional base ball promoters in the West, since he started his phenomenal twirling record of the current season.

Hubbard, his catcher, is said to be somewhat responsible for his clean record and the local promoters decided not to break up the battery, a new catcher being needed since the resignation of Kline.

By winning the fastest game of the season from Winnipeg yesterday the Grand Forks team is once more within striking distance of first place.

Should the wooters of the green beat the Champions today Winnipeg will return home in second place, but from advices received from Grand Forks the shift will not occur without a fierce struggle.

Sessions and Bartos both pitched magnificent ball and were given splendid support in yesterday's sizzling performance. Grand Forks hit opportunely and the only run that crossed the plate was in the first inning. The score:

Summary: Struck out—Sessions, 8; Bartos, 9. Bases on balls—Sessions, 1; Bartos, 3. Two-base hits—Chandler. Bases on errors—Winnipeg, 1. Double plays—Hanrahan to Kling. Annis to Kelly to O'Dea. Left on bases—Grand Forks, 6; Winnipeg, 5. Umpire—Owens.

The gang that has been knocking the Cardinals from the start are now circulating rumors against Shepard. They do not seem to appreciate bad luck. From the beginning of the season the fast short stop has met with misfortune after misfortune and as a result his playing at present is not as fast as it has been in the past. Still with a little vacation and a chance to get in form again Shepard's friends are confident that he would hold his own with the best in the league.

If "Jap" Plavins does not stop the game again today Duluth and Fargo will come together for the first and last game of what was to have been a three-game series. Mueller was announced as the pitcher for Duluth and Foulkes for Fargo.

* * *

Fargo has a new catcher named Archer and a new pitcher named Schwalm. The latter is a Grinnell college man and has an excellent intercollegiate record.

Baudelin will take charge of the Fargo team next Sunday.

Difficult Digestion

That is dyspepsia.

It makes life miserable.

Its sufferers eat not because they want to, but simply because they must.

They know they are irritable and fretful; but they cannot be otherwise.

They complain of a bad taste in the mouth, a tenderness at the pit of the stomach, an uneasy feeling of puffy fulness, headache, heartburn and what not.

The effectual remedy, proved by permanent cures of thousands of severe cases, is

SUICIDES FROM DESPONDENCY

Mrs. Lena Lacousierre, Discouraged By Ill Health, Hangs Herself.

Discouraged on account of ill-health, Mrs. Lena Lacoursierre, 904 Garfield avenue, committed suicide by hanging yesterday afternoon.

Her husband, Marjorick Lacoursierre, was in the invalid's room just prior to the suicide and says his wife seemed more cheerful than usual and did not even hint at suicide during their last conversation.

He left the house for a short time, and, returning went to his wife's bedroom again. She was not there and in searching for her Mr. Lacoursierre passed into an adjoining room and was horrified to see his wife's body hanging by a rope which was tied to a board put across an open space in the ceiling.

The condition of the body was such as led to the theory that life had been extinct but a few moments before the suicide was discovered, but all efforts to revive the woman failed.

The coroner was summoned and directed that the body be removed to the undertaking rooms of Durkan & Crawford.

With the exception of a few months' residence in the western part of the state, Mrs. Lacoursierre had lived in Duluth for the past seven years.

THE STAGE

The Northwestern Opera company played to a large audience again last night and the permanency of the organization in Duluth is assured. Miss Bertha Hayden again charmed the audience with her Congo love song, and the chorus accompanying the refrains were smooth in spite of the difficulty of location. The number was the hit of the evening. Miss Jenkins and Mr. Langlois both received appreciative applause for their efforts, and one of the most attractive things of the performance, to judge from the response in the upper part of the house, especially, was the review of the uniformed chorus, and the march accompanying, which was led by Miss Marie Connell, which was designed and laid out by Dan Young, who has been making up numbers of that kind for years.

The company will close its performances of "The Black Hussar" tomorrow evening, and will be in Superior for Friday and Saturday.

* * *

The three Gardner children, with the Wilbur Opera company at the Metropolitan, are making a tremendous hit. When they appear on the stage they are greeted with a burst of applause, and they are always compelled to respond to two or three encores. Last evening was no exception, and in their act in connection with the opera, "Fra Diavolo," they made another decided hit. At the matinee today children were admitted free, and at the conclusion of the performance the three little Gardners held a reception on the stage. "Fra Diavolo" was sung a second time last evening to a fair sized audience, and it will be the bill this evening.

Beginning tomorrow night and for three nights and the Saturday matinee, the Wilbur company will present "The Two Vagabonds," and there will be another change in the vaudeville features.

MINNESOTA CROPS.

Weather Service Report Covering Last Week.

The crop report for the state of Minnesota for the week ending Monday is as follows:

The temperature rose early in the week and June 5, 6 and 7 were moderately warm days in all parts of the state. There was very little rain during the week, and what there was came in scattered showers, the heaviest being reported in Wilkin, Polk, Nobles and Douglas counties. In the northern half of the state the week was favorable to the healthy and rapid growth of wheat, oats, barley and flax and for gardens, especially on the higher lands. Flax and barley are still being seeded.

In the southern portions of the state, where the lowlands were flooded and the level lands very wet, as shown by the last bulletin, the dry weather has allowed a rapid subsidence of the waters and drying of the soil so that the preparation of the wet lands for corn pulled, corn fodder and buckwheat has been going on rapidly. There is complaint that seed corn and seed potatoes have rotted in the wet soil, causing an irregular stand. Some correspondents think that much of the seed corn this year was defective. On lands bordering the rivers the grass that was flooded is so covered with mud as to be unfit for hay. The small grains which were suffering from excessive moisture are improving. On the high lands the small grains are in good condition and corn and potatoes are being cultivated. Rye is in bloom; timothy and winter wheat are heading, clover is coming into blossom, June grass and red top are ready to cut and strawberries are ripening.

All ladies and children who cannot stand the shocking strain of laxative syrups, cathartics, etc., are invited to try the famous Little Early Risers. They are different from all other pills. They do not purge the system. Even a double dose will not gripe, weaken or sicken; many people call them the easy pills. Sold by all druggists.

OPTION ON TIMBER

Duluth and Two Harbors People May Sell Oregon Holdings.

Pooled Interests Giving Purchase Right on Sixty-Five Quarter Sections.

The foresight of a number of Duluth and Two Harbors people, which manifested itself about two years ago in the acquirement of some timber lands out West, bids fair to find substantial realization within a short period. They have just given an option on their holdings which will bring them a handsome profit if closed.

The Duluth and Two Harbors people who are concerned in this deal have claims lying together, and some time ago agreed to bunch their interests—that is, to sell them together, and thus get a better deal than they could by dealing singly. As a result of this pooling of interests they were able to give J. N. Nelson, of Taylor's Falls, Minn., an option on sixty-five quarter sections and obtained from him an agreed price of $1 per 1000.

The option was delivered at 2 o'clock this afternoon and runs for sixty days, during which time an estimate of the timber is to be made. If it should be impossible to complete this estimate in the time designated, an additional sixty days is to be given.

Should the estimate made by Mr. Nelson be unsatisfactory, the owners will send out a man themselves, and if that does not bring an amicable settlement, the two will send a third man and the three will fix the basis of the deal.

The timber on the land is mostly fir and sugar pine. The government estimates run all the way from 4,000,000 to 8,000,000 feet to each quarter section. The land is located in Douglas county, Ore., and the owners are selling only the timber, reserving mineral rights.

Among those who are concerned in the deal are J. J. LeTourneau, J. D. Mahoney, B. F. Wells, C. V. Greer, D. G. Penney, D. G. Thompson, W. A. Abbett, Dr. D. H. Day, Emil Peterson, J. Brown and others.

The owners of the land have had their claims for about two years. Some secured them through timber and stone entries and others bought from the railroad. The former paid the government $2.50 an acre, paying it down. Those who bought from the railroad paid from $3 to $5 an acre, but paid only one-tenth down and the balance in ten installments, one each year. Some of them have refused as high as $12 an acre since. The railroads withdrew all their lands from the market eight or ten months ago.

While the closing of the deal would mean a handsome profit to all of the holders, none are particularly concerned over whether the option is closed or not. They believe that it will not be many years before timber out there is worth $2 a thousand, and that holding would be quite as good as selling.

ZENITH OF 1903.

Fine Publication Issued By the Senior Class.

Better in every department than it has been for years the Zenith of 1903, the annual publication of the high school senior class, was put in circulation this morning.

The book is beautifully printed on rough paper and the typographical work is far above the ordinary. All of the usual departments are contained in the book this year, and all are well edited.

The drawings which the book contains are unusually good. Miss Mary Richards and Olive Colbrath, two of the senior girls have drawn the best things.

Three fraternity departments full of drawings and verses vie with each other for superiority. Each of the classes has its allotted pages filled with matter of interest to class members.

The volume is dedicated to A. F. M. Custance. It is printed in two editions, one bound in rough leather and the other in paper. The leather bound edition has a hole cut in the cover through which a couchant tiger, the emblem of the class, looks ready to spring. It is far and away the most artistic book that was ever published by high school students.

Photographs of each member of the senior class as he now appears and as he appeared in boyhood are printed side by side much to the amusement of the students. The cuts are printed in black and sepia and all are excellent.

MARKET IS STEADY

Walker Reports Copper Metal Market Showing No Change.

Thinks Amalgamated Is Used as Club to Beat Stocks Down.

George L. Walker's copper letter for last week reports the market for metal unchanged. He says of the metal price, copper shares and the market generally:

The market price of copper is unchanged. Both Lake and electrolytic are quoted 15 to 15¼ cents, and casting at 14¾ to 14¾ cents. A very reliable authority states that more than two million pounds were sold in New York this week at 15¼ cents. Consumers are again in the market, but are buying sparingly. They have been greatly disturbed by the wide fluctuations of the London metal market and by the continued weakness of Amalgamated stock and the shares of other copper producing companies.

Despite the apparent weakness of the London market, the closing Thursday was 15 shillings higher for spot and £1 higher for futures than on the corresponding day of last week. This shows that the foreign market is really stronger than generally supposed, and also that there is beginning to be somewhat better buying of futures, which indicates that consumers are gaining confidence in the market.

There has been a great decrease in exports of copper this year, compared with last, and the imports of copper in the same period have shown very little change. Domestic consumption of copper continues very heavy, and consumers are practically bare of supplies. Producers everywhere report that consumers are asking for advance shipments on existing contracts, and appear in urgent need of copper for immediate use. All of the brass manufacturers are working day and night. More brass and copper are being used in the building business, by far, than ever before; and electrical manufacturers are all rushed to their full capacity. Leading producers declare that there is a consumptive demand for every pound of copper that is being produced, and that there is, therefore, nothing to cause a decline in prices. They have simply to hold their copper at the going price and they will sell it without any difficulty. Producers are all making money, and have no surplus of copper on hand. They are therefore in a position to hold the market steady until the present excitement is over.

THE COPPER SHARES.

The manipulative tactics of the Amalgamated interests have had a depressing influence on copper mining shares in general this week, and some new low-price records have been made. It has been apparent for some time that Amalgamated is being used as a club to beat down the prices of other stocks; but the desire seems to be to break the New York market rather than the coppers listed in Boston. There has been comparatively little pressure to sell copper stocks, and the buying met on the decline has been of a most excellent character.

The relation of Amalgamated to the long-continued decline on general security prices may be explained as follows: The break in the market was foreseen by Standard Oil-Amalgamated interests fully a year ago. They were convinced that the promotion of new companies and the issue of new securities had been greatly overdone and they made preparation to take advantage of the inevitable day of reckoning. They were very heavy sellers of securities early in the fall, and it will be remembered that Frank A. Vanderlip, vice president of the National City bank, which is controlled by Standard Oil-Amalgamated people, delivered an address in the South on Nov. 3 last in which he declared that credits had been unduly expanded, that they were like a pyramid inverted, and predicted a great decline in prices. He was undoubtedly expressing the views of the Rockefellers, Rogers and their associates.

The break in the market occurred in the face of the most bullish industrial conditions that the country has ever known. While it was in progress it developed that all of the surplus supplies of copper had gone into consumption, and the demand became so strong that it was seen that prices must advance. Amalgamated people fought the advance so long as they could without heavy loss and when they found it must come, they did all that could be done to prevent a rise in Amalgamated stock.

Another move of theirs that seems significant was the selection of the Standard Oil dividend at the end of probably the most prosperous year of the company's career. There was a tremendous consumption of oil last year, due to the high price of coal, and the Standard Oil product was sold at an unusual profit. As a last act in the drama comes the break in Amalgamated. The stock is sold down and depressed to the lowest prices recorded at a time when the company is really enjoying great prosperity. Its weakness is interpreted as meaning that the general situation must be very bad, that Standard Oil interests are bearish, even at present low prices, and also as an indication that the price of copper must be about to decline. When the stock market turns and is advancing again, it will be understood that under cover of the weakness of Amalgamated, Standard Oil interests were heavy buyers of securities in general.

One who buys coppers at present prices gets more for his money than he can by investing in any other group of securities on the market. There are few of the established mines that are earning as little as 12 per cent on the selling prices of their shares, and in several instances exceed 20 per cent. Coppers are on a sound investment basis, and therefore will not decline materially below present prices. I believe the market is at the bottom, and that purchases made now will show very large profits.

FACTS ABOUT PATENTS.

Some one has unearthed the interesting fact that the first patent ever issued in this country was granted to one Samuel Winslow, in 1641, for manufacturing salt, says Harper's Weekly. The grant was made by the Massachusetts Bay colony for ten years, and was conditional upon Mr. Winslow's completing his plant within a year. Later, under the articles of confederation, the states were permitted to issue patents independently, as the original colonies had done. The first patent granted was issued to Samuel Hopkins, of Vermont, who claimed protection for a method of making pot and pearl ashes. According to recent estimates by the commissioner of patents from six to seven-eighths of the manufacturing capital of the United States is based more or less directly upon patents. Incidentally it may be noted that the number of applications filed at the patent office in sixty-five years, from 1837 to 1901, reaches the enormous total of 1,201,346. The number of patents actually issued in this country, from the time of the earliest records to Dec. 31, 1901, is 709,241. The nearest approach to this by foreign countries is France's record of 330,977 grants, from the most ancient records (extending, of course, much further into the patst than those of this country) to the close of the year 1901. Great Britain follows with a record of 144,239, while Germany's total is only 144,239. Although this comparison would seem to redound to the credit of American alertness and enterprise, it should be remembered that it has been, until recently, much less difficult to secure patents issued here than abroad. The grand total of patents issued by the nations of the world up to the time of the last compilation, in 1901, is 2,087,812.

FLAG DAY CELEBRATION.

Duluth will have its first Flag day celebration on Monday next, and arrangements have been made for appropriate exercises at the city hall and at the various fire halls. In a letter published in another column, Jacob Laux, one of the leading G. A. R. men of the city, makes the excellent suggestion that every person, young and old, who attends the celebrations, should take along a little flag and wave it during the singing of the "Star Spangled Banner." As Mr. Laux says, this would produced a beautiful and inspiring spectacle, which would never be forgotten by those present. It would be a splendid demonstration that would thrill the audiences with patriotic fervor, and add greatly to the effectiveness of the celebration.

Another good suggestion is that the observance of Flag day be not confined to these exercises at the city hall and fire halls during the day, but that a general gathering take place at the Armory in the evening when this magnificent flag spectacle could be repeated. There are many people who would be glad of the opportunity of joining in such a demonstration, but who will be precluded by business from attending the other celebrations. An evening meeting would attract many hundreds and would be a fitting climax to the day's exercises. Perhaps Mayor Hugo, who has taken the lead in arranging the Flag day celebration, will see fit to adopt this sugestion. No doubt the use of the Armory could be obtained for the occasion, and there is ample time to make all the necessary arrangements.

CAUSES OF SUICIDES.

The rapid increase in suicides in the past decade has called particular attention to the conditions surrounding those who have, from one reason or another, ended their existence voluntarily and with apparent forethought. In the five years which ended with the year 1901, there were over 10,000 cases of which a record could be obtained. Professor William Bailey of Yale made a study of these cases and his deductions are most interesting. He found that of these suicides, 7781 were males, 3129 having been unmarried, 3817 married, 496 widowed, 137 divorced, and 202 social relation unknown. Of the total 10,000 deaths, 490 men and 310 women took their lives by drowning, while the respective figures for poisoning were 1831 and 910; for shooting 2080 and 267; for cutting, 605 and 115; for gas, 466 and 200; for jumping, 350 and 123; for hanging, 750 and 202, and for miscellaneous, 219 and 83. Despondency was the motive for 29 per cent of the suicides; business troubles, poor health and insanity ran about 13 per cent each, and disappointment in love had the next lowest percentage. Suicide on account of alcoholism was seventeen times as common among males as females.

Fewer suicides occur on Saturday than on any other day of the week, probably owing, as Professor Bailey explains, to the arrival of pay day and a day of rest. This surmise would seem to be sustained by the fact that most suicides occur on Monday. With despondency as the leading motive for self-destruction it is rather easy to believe that the spending of the week's wages on Saturday night and Sunday and the facing of another week of work might help in forming a decision to commit suicide. It is shown that females prefer Sunday for suicide to any other day. This is believed to indicate that they may be influenced in some degree by religious excitement.

These figures have again started the question of restricting the sale of firearms and poisons to irresponsible persons, and many go so far as to advocate the suppression of the sale of revolvers and poisons to anyone, where there is the slightest question as to the intent of the purchasers. It is evident that such a plan would not be practical. There are many laws now which regulate the sale of poisons, but they do not prove at all effective. Even if the sale of all firearms and poisons could be regulated, the would-be suicide would find other means to end his or her existence. Water is usually handy, and if not, a rope would do the business. Thus far there is no apparent way of preventing suicide when a diseased brain is once imbued with the idea of taking life.

Miss Hanna, who was married at Cleveland today to Mr. McCormick, of Chicago, caused the president of the United States to change his plans and the date of the Republican state convention of Ohio to be changed, that her wedding might take place at the time originally set. In view of the will power she displayed, Mr. McCormick will of necessity be a diplomat to maintain his place as the head of the household.

It is said Perry S. Heath is preparing to start on a long trip to China. Mr. Heath should remain at home until the postoffice investigation has been completed. He may be needed to explain some things that happened while he was in the department.

If Mr. Roosevelt is elected to the presidency next year, will it be claimed that the term of a president who goes to the White House from the vice presidency does not count as one term?

Vegetarians who were disturbed by the old story that tomatoes caused cancer will be pleased with the opinion of many English physicians that the eating of pigs' flesh is gratly responsible for the increase of the dreaded disease.

The nation must get down to the study of flood prevention.

FADS IN THE SCHOOLS.

There is trouble in the public schools at St. Paul, the result of an attempt to introduce a number of the new fads that are destroying effective work by the schools in many cities throughout the country. In St. Paul, the board of education has ordered the introduction of a lot of new fads in the schools, but has made no increase in the teaching force. Naturally the teachers are in revolt. They find that if they undertake the mud pie and paper doll business and the other pet foolishness conceived by so-called "educators," they will not have sufficient time to devote to the regular and essential studies. If the school board's orders be carried out, the regular studies will necessarily be neglected and the children will be badly taught in the common essentials of education.

Conscientious teachers, who believe that the public schools should devote less attention to foolish fads and more to sound education that will fit the pupils for the ordinary avocations of life, who rightly think that lessons in reading, writing and spelling should be preferred to instruction in mud pies, paper dolls and whittling, are fully aware of the absurdity of the faddists' schemes and the bad effect which they have upon the efficiency of the schools. It is not surprising that they protest, and in doing so they voice the sentiments of the parents and taxpayers.

PLANS FOR SAVING.

When the people are prosperous, their savings increase. That is the general rule as far as it refers to what may be termed the middle classes. In fact these people save at almost any time. Their tastes are usually modest and they have an eye ever out for a rainy day. From time immemorial philanthropists and others interested in the poorer classes have made it a point to impress upon those whose earnings are naturally small, to try to save something, if even but a trifle, and many plans have been tried to encourage such small savings. In the year 1879, the Newport, R. I., Charity Organization society found that the poor that applied for relief during the winter were so improvident that in many instances, while their neighbors on exactly the same income lived comfortably throughout the year, they were obliged to come often for assistance. The society determined to help by securing the services of four ladies, who volunteered to call every week from house to house and collect the small sums these people could afford to lay by. In ten years, by means of this house-to-house visiting more than $15,000 was saved by many of these people who had asked for relief. The Saving society on Staten island has also had remarkable success, and not only has money been saved, but the self-respect of the families has increased.

The outgrowth of these two experiments resulted in the Penny Provident fund or Stamp Savings societies, which are scattered over the United States, and have headquarters in Boston, New York, St. Paul and Chicago. The first Penny Provident society was organized in New York with money furnished to make a beginning by those who foresaw the good to be accomplished. There are now in the country more than 100 similar societies scattered over twenty-two states, which patronize this central office in New York. The method is to keep on hand a large assortment of stamps printed especially for this work and of various denominations from 1 cent to a dollar. Each depositor is furnished with a blank book containing ruled spaces for the attachment of stamps as the money is deposited. The depositor hands his money to the society, and receives a stamp of proper value in return. This he places in his book, and when by this process he has evidence of deposits amounting to $5 he can turn in his book and receive the money for use or for deposit in a savings bank which will pay him interest.

The St. Paul Associated Charities has a savings society which issues its own stamps, and has flourished with success since 1876. The Chicago Penny Savings society states that it was organized to make it possible for everyone to save small sums of money which might otherwise be wasted, so that the amounts thus accumulated can be used to buy something necessary or be deposited in a good bank. It is conducted entirely in the interest of the depositors and not for benefit. These Penny Provident societies can be introduced into boys' and girls' clubs, workingmen's clubs, mothers' meetings, etc., and their growth has been in all instances productive of good. In this respect Toronto, Canada, has accomplished remarkable work. In their Dufferin school, after the institution had been open only four weeks, more than 600 pupils became depositors to the amount of $307.01.

Such plans cannot be too highly commended. The only regret is that there are not more of them. The plan of saving, once established, will do more for improvident people than anything else in the world. All should be encouraged to save. To save means future comfort and assured success.

STEAMBOAT INSPECTION.

It is evident that there is to be a severe shake-up in the steamboat inspection service of the United States, and if results expected are accomplished there will probably be quite a saving in lives lost among those who live and travel upon the waters of both lake and ocean. One great change and improvement which has been presented to the board is the passage of a law which will require every owner of a steam vessel to establish a load line on the outside of his boat. If the master permits this line to get below water by overloading the vessel shall be declared unseaworthy. This proposition has been before the board of inspectors at various times in the past, but has always been rejected. The argument is made that a similar law exists in England and that it is an important and necessary precaution against loss of life and property.

Nothing could be more reasonable than this, and such a law should be promptly put into effect. It will not harm the honest captain or owner, but will simply serve as a stay to the avaricious mariner who is intent on acquiring gain without regard to the safety of employes or passengers.

Another proposition is that the board take the necessary steps to see that all vessels propelled by machinery and navigating inland waters shall comply with the pilot rules for the Atlantic and Pacific coast inland waters. Accidents occur frequently because of the confusion resulting from the lack of rules and regulations to govern both classes of vessels. The board has also been asked to recommend to congress the amending of the act of June 7, 1897, so that Rule 9 of the pilot regulations for the Atlantic and Pacific coast inland waters shall be declared null and void. The law now says that a steamer shall not blow its whistle in passing another vessel unless the officers of the first boat can see the second boat. This requirement frequently causes long waits on account of fogs and is a dead letter on the Great lakes.

Too many safeguards cannot be provided for vessels of any description and it is certainly to be hoped that all the improvements recommended may be adopted.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

E. Willis, of Carrollton, Mo., a traveling man, is registered at the St. Louis hotel this morning.

Mr. Willis just came from the flooded districts along the Missouri river. He has several things to tell about the conditions there.

Among other remarkable consequences of the flood was the following:

"I had a friend,' he said, 'a poor fellow, who had secured a homestead on the bank of the river, and was trying to recuperate after several years of unsuccessful work and labor. He was one of the first to get results when the floods came, as he was right on the bank. He had about 500 acres of land with a two story hut on it, when the floods started.

"This man woke up one night with a start, hearing the water of the river pouring over his acres, and making a terrible noise. He went up in the top of the house and rigged up a bunk and took a lot of bacon and other food with him, and proceeded to wait for the flood to finish before he came out again. He was on the south bank of the river when the flood started.

"He slept and ate and read for a couple of days, and finally the water ceased rushing, and he crawled out of his hut. Where the broad and muddy Missouri flowed there was nothing that looked like water, but back of his house where there used to be a pasture for the goats and things, a large stream of water, fully a mile across, was raging.

"And in the place of his farm buildings, there was a brand new store, a store full of goods, a general store, the kind they have in Missouri. He went out and looked at it. The name had been washed off. He went inside and found the safe had also been washed till the name was indistinguishable, and there was no mark of identification about the place.

"He was a merchant. He opened the doors of his store and is now waiting for the country to settle again to make him a rich man. A dwelling house was also washed up on his property, and a large amount of farm machinery and implements.

"He figures he is fixed for life, and is a believer in the adage that a wind must be ill, indeed, which blows no one good."

A party of seventeen young men and women, in charge of the Minnesota Cruising company, left the St. Louis hotel this morning for northern St. Louis county, with packs on their backs, and the general appearance of explorers and trappers.

The members of the party are from Eyota, St. Anthony's Park, St. Paul, and Echo. They are going out to locate lands and take up claims on homesteads. They attracted a good deal of attention this morning, just before taking the train for the range country, as all were packed, and the women were carrying heavy lumbermen's boots, which they intended wearing when they got to where tramping in the woods would be necessary.

The United Commercial Travelers' button is showing up around the hotels, and the crowd is starting to come in for the convention already. Accommodations will be at a premium for a day or so, but the hotel men believe that they will be able to take care of all the traveling men who come here for the gathering.

Still another booming traveling men are wearing the small button and lodge talk has become common about the lobbies. Many commercial travelers, whose trips brought them here early this week are staying on to their rooms and will stay through the meeting.

About fifty cooks, candidates for the position at the Tower Indian school, called upon Superintendent O. H. Gates of the institution at the Hotel McKay yesterday morning and afternoon.

The majority of the applicants handed out finely engraved and asked them to be sent up.

Mr. Gates finally made a selection, and also secured an option on one or two more so that he will not have to come down to Duluth again, when the one he took back with him leaves the position.

Over in the copper country everyone is interested in copper stocks. The street car conductors the miners and the financial giants are talkin when it comes to a question of copper stocks. The miners, who don't talk English come down town with their money and say "stock." They don't care what kind it is or what color, or how much they get for their money. They want stock.

Strangely there are few, very few, cases of imposition on these men. The whole country teems with this interest, and it is far more of a stock country in its way, than Texas is in its.

There is a genial godly gentleman over at Calumet, whose character may be summed up in the fact that he loves that Calumet & Hecla band, and has devoted years to making it a success and give the city the best band in the United States for its size and uses.

He loves the band and the band loves him, and that elevating and admirable feeling may be the inspiration for the delightful music it creates.

This man is Col. Fox, and he is to Calumet what the Good Samaritan was to the party whom lay on the roadside, for he does all the good he can, and Mrs. Cox is as interested in the work as he, and everybody thinks the world of them.

Well as a matter of course, just as some women go shopping to the German market places or store, she bought several hundred barres of Boston & Butte. That is she thought that was what she ordered.

But when she arrived at home she discovered that her receipts were for Boston & Montana. She was horrified, but she decided to hang on.

Within the next three weeks Boston & Montana went up 50 points and Boston & Butte fell nearly as much.

Mrs. Cox was of course overwhelmed, and did not immediately tell of her lucky stroke, though eventually the story leaked out and is now being told by her friends.

Every Inch a Judge.

New York World: As the month of June came in Associate Justice Harlan of the United States supreme court completed his seventieth year. He has served twenty-six years on the bench. Under the law he may, if he chooses, retire on full pay. Writing a decision on this subject, with the full court of his finely preserved faculties concurring, he chooses not to do so. At 70 Judge Harlan walks from Washington to the Chevy Chase club, a good seven miles, to play his frequent game of golf. He seldom rides to or from the sessions of the court. There are neither kinks in his muscles nor cobwebs in his understanding. Justice Harlan is the Grand Old Man of the supreme court and a grand exemplar of what sane living will do for the joints and the judgment.

SMILING LINES.

Atlanta Constitution: "What do you want with so many thermometers?' asked the dealer.

"Well, suh," replied Brother Dickey, "it's gittin' too hot ter preach now, so I des hangs 'em 'round' whar de sinners kin see 'em good!"

"Go in and tell the editor I am out here with a horsewhip," cried the irate citizen.

"He'll be very glad to hear it," replied the office boy. "He'll just take it away from you and sell it. We had an auction up here last week and sold a dozen."

Chicago Tribune: "Well, I got rid of that life insurance agent in short order," savagely remarked Mr. Higgswaithy.

"You didn't insult him, did you?" asked his wife.

"Insult him? No, I gave him my application for a policy, blame him."

Washington Star: "Why do you sigh for great riches?"

"Well, answered the mild mannered man, "I don't value money for its own sake, but I'd kind o' like to be in a position where the subordinate employes of large enterprises will say 'good morning, sir,' instead of 'step lively.'"

Philadelphia Press: "No, I cannot marry you, Mr. Spoonamore," the pretty girl said, with tears of pity in her eyes; "but you—you will not do anything rash, will you?"

"Rash!" he exclaimed bitterly. "Rash! No, Miss Yardley. I'll not do anything rash. I shall do something coldly methodical. I shall insure my life heavily and marry your dearest friend."

Chicago Post: It's an eight hour day for about everybody now, isn't it?"

"Oh, no; not for the employers."

"And why not for them?"

"Because if they had been content with an eight-hour day they wouldn't have succeeded in becoming employers."

Detroit Free Press: "Then again," said my non-musical friend, who was in one of his hypercritical moods, "what is 'chamber music?'"

"That produced by the baby," we replied conclusively, for we were not disposed to treat his querculousness seriously.

Somerville Journal: Ethel—I think she is making up her mind to be an old maid.

Maude—Why so?

Ethel—She is learning to play solitaire.

Sea Power In the Sanctum.

The man who owns the office now
And dominates the place,
Who takes no orders from the Chief,
And dictates as to space,
Is he who has a breezy air,
Who talks about the sea,
And writes—"The yacht Reliance
Left the others
On her
lee."

He tells the City Editor,
"I guess a page will do.
You ought to see her windward work,
She's got a dandy crew.
Her spinnaker was booged to port
As pretty as could be,
You should see the Reliance leave
The others
On her
lee."

No sailor is the city boss,
To him it is all Greek.
He does his yachting in a scow
That's anchored in Hook Creek.
And so he says: "We'll go ahead,
We'll cut down stuff, by gee.
We must tell how Reliance left
The others
On her
lee."

The baseball man ain't in it now,
He used to be, of course.
And he who runs the sporting page
Is only underboss.
The man with tan upon his face,
Who talks about the sea,
Is It—For he knows all about Reliance and
lee.

A FLAW IN THE MAKE-UP

By T. C. De Leon.

(Copyright, 1903, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

"They say, chief," remarked the dramatic critic, reaching for one of the old editor's cigarettes, "that you were a famous amateur actor in your day." The veteran lit a fresh Perique, puffed a moment in silence, and ordered a new bottle of Madame Eugene's Chateau la Rose. Then he said placidly:

"Well, Buskin, that is one of those rare cases when 'They Say' doesn't lie. I once had the privilege of dining with Charles Dickens; and he told me that he was credited with being the worst amateur actor in all Britain. I did not have the check of the present day youth, else I had offered to play with him for the international championship, and could have made it at least a draw. But, in my salad days, I thought I was Charles Mathews, the elder Booth and the two Placides rolled into one."

"What was your best game," asked the sporting editor.

"The make-up, Buffey, indubitably the make-up. That great art, sir, is as essential to success on the stage as it is in the Sunday blanket sheet. If you need proof look at those chorus girls in the boufe tonight, and later, when Ruskin has them at supper. The difference in curves and breadth of beam would convince any skeptic. But, master of that art, as I was acknowledged to be, 'it undid me quite,' on one occasion."

"With a girl?" queried the "Society Happenings" editor.

"You are right, as usual, Johnnie," the old chief answered, kindly. "Indeed, with two girls, for I played them in pairs those days. It happened this way: You all know Daydone Springs, up the river? Well, in my youth, none in the country surpassed Daydone for style, elegance and liberality—of the visiting that annually flocked there to drink the waters, sport and kill time by high-bred assassination.

"Well, one dull and protracted yellow fever season, Daydone Springs was gayer and more crowded than ever before. I was north for the paper when the shotgun quarantine cut off all trains and boats so I could not get home, though an immune. A lot of my chums were at the Springs having a great time, and they had been urging me to join them. Tom Storm, the violinist and lady-slayer, was beau-in-chief there. Henry Ritchie, serious and platonic; Colin Cook, who later went to the bad, 'and all through luxuri', as the song says; popular Alan Dameron, whom we buried that year, and others of our special set. They had crammed in with Old Simp, as they pet-named him; a retired Chinese merchant, who had settled near the Springs, drove fine horses and went the pace with the liveliest and youngest of 'ours.'

"I had never known Daydone so brilliant. Planters' families from the Mississippi, Alabama and other river belles from New Orleans and interior cities, and a line of horse owners and wealthy 'high rollers' were exhausting all the not long list of spring's amusements. Drives, billiards, tenpins—even dancing and feminine card games—had been done to death. 'The club house,' which was merely a retiring room for men who liked long sessions of draw, at big limit, held its own; but the general company was yawning over repetition when I arrived. Within the week Tom Storm was trailining his orchestra and I was rehearsing my cast for a grand charity benefit for yellow fever sufferers in two of the stricken cities. Of course it was a great success—those things always are when the right women are in them; and my leading lady and ingenue were just the very rightest. Miss Armantine de Labrune was the reigning belle of the whole Southwest, by virtue of a beautiful face, magnificent form and more plantations and city property than any orphan I now recall. She had talent, too; and I introduced songs for her fine alto voice. I would have introduced a cake walk, or a Roman triumph, had she wished it, for I was making great time with the heiress and looked the favorite, at the long shot. But I never yet have decided whether I was not really more in earnest with the rival belle, who did my ingenue parts. Little Lilla Whiting, as everybody naturally called her, was the prettiest, daintiest and blondest thing I ever saw. There was a restful trust in her manner, an appeal in her eyes, and a tender trill in her whisper—even when accepting a hot waffle or calling a tenstrike—that went straight to all hearts. Taking a stroll through the woods after a grand and soaring two hours with Miss da Labrune was, as Dr. Holmes puts it, 'like taking the cat in your lap, after playing with the squirrel.'

"Other plays followed; then charades, tableaux, and finally I hit on a charity fancy ball. Happy thought! It took like wildfire; and every woman at Daydone strained her invention for novel costumes. But the tough problem was the men, with city costumers quarantined and only the village tailor. Every man at the Springs consulted me, but I declared I was at my wit's end as to my own costume. But secretly our set—including 'Old Simp'—had arranged to stun the ball into mutcness by a Chinese quadrille and real celestial concert; the old traveler coaching us in the last two. Costume at first seemed hopeless, but I have told you I was master of make-up, and Tom Storm was no end of a good second. We astounded and delighted the village store by buying out its stock of high-figured calicoes, to drape the ball room,' we explained. Then we shut up our popular cottage for two whole mornings prior to the ball, hanging out an affiche: 'Gone Fishing.'

"Behind closed blinds and in stifling heat we all sat cross-legged on the floor, and, under Capt. Simpkin's tutelage, cut out and sewed our wonderful jumpers and baggy breeches, and we plaited long queues of the jute switches, bought 'for the chambermaids.' But one difficulty had loomed up ominous. We wanted perfect disguise, though the ball was not to be a masquerade. Of course no masks were to be had; but necessity mothered a substitute. I got from the drug store a lot of yellow licorice powder, some glycerine and gum Arabic. The paste they made was the right color and comfortable, while warm and fresh, but it 'drew' a little when dry and hard. But it was all in the line of art, so we grinned and bore it.

"The ball was a crush. People drove twenty miles to air their charity, and—vanity. Our set were on hand early and in evening dress, vowing it was impossible to think of any costume obtainable. Miss de Labrune was superb as 'Queen of Night,' but Little Lilla was even more fetching as the 'Moon Flower.' The 'Sweet Home' galop I reserved for the queen, but the promenade and waltz preceding it was the Flower's.

"Tom led the orchestra till things warmed up, then he escaped, and one by one we slipped off to dress. Just at midnight we filed into the flagging, but now astounded, crowd; eight veritable Chinese men and women, all unmasked. First we squatted on the floor and sang. Tom playing a bamboo fiddle. Finally we presented favored belles with Chinese preserves from the old merchant's pantry.

"We were a huge success, quite the feature of the ball, and no one recognized us until we gave ourselves away to enjoy the showered praises. Then the closing hour approached. I sought the little blonde beauty, told her the room was stuffy, and suggested a familiar pavilion in the now deserted grounds. We had grown quite devoted and prudence made me seek that pavilion often, as secure from the view of my more serious and brunette flame. For, tho' I might love the tender blonde the more, I did not love her dark rival's bank account the less.

"It was so delightful in the cool summer house that we lingered until the notes of 'Sweet Home' floated to our ears and recalled other engagements. Her partner claimed Miss Whiting on the dark piazza of the ball room and I rushed in to find the queen in a haughty mood and frowning brow. But with her first glance at me she unbent and smiled merrily, as she said: 'You need not explain! the cause of your delay is self-confessing.'

"I was dumbfounded at her sagacity and at the cool way she took my desertion, for she was staring straight into my right eye and laughing. And in my confusion I noticed Tom Storm grimacing and pointing to my face. For one instant I could not comprehend. Then next all was hideously clear.

"Miss Whiting floated through the window from the piazza on the arm of her partner—a vision of young purity. Miss Labrune, still smiling merrily, and just placing her hand upon my shoulder, stood transfixed. Her face hardened and her flashing eyes traveled swiftly from mine to the white and velvety shoulder of her rival. There, clinging with the fatal tenacity of Cleopatra's asp, was a patch of my make-up, and shaggy jute eyebrow.

"Mechanically my hand went to my brow. My right eye was as smooth as a babe's and the cursed jute over the left one had no mate.

"All the now icy brunette said was: 'I believe you asked me for this galop, Mr. Storm,' and she glided off with my grinning friend. The ball was breaking up, but I comforted myself with the philosophy about the good fish still uncaught in the social sea.

"I sought Miss Whiting; found her on the piazza, and—in tears!

"'Go away! Don't come near me, you na-asty thing,' she sobbed, ending in a scream. 'My fiancee swears he'll never—never speak to me again!'"

Card Table Talk.

Brooklyn Eagle: Now that we have to have elaborate instructions for everything we care to do, it is perhaps not surprising that a book on "Card Table Talk" should be issued. Of course, there are various kinds of card table talk, but one may be pardoned for surmising that it runs something this:

"Who's shy?"
"All in."
"I pass."
"Pass."
"Open it for ten."
"Raise you ten."
"I stay."
"Three cards."
"Three here."
"Two."
"Bet ten."
"Raise you twenty."
"Twenty more."
"Another twenty."
"See you."
"What you got?"
"Three queens."
"Three nines."
"Three kings."

And right here we have to stop. It is no use at all to outline card table talk, but there comes a time when it isn't of a nature to be printed, and it isn't likely that even the author has put it all in. Still there are plenty of card players who can supply all that is missing."

Served Both God and Devil.

New York Tribune: Father Black, the English clergyman who has been writing letters to the newspapers about the marriage of W. K. Vanderbilt and Mrs. Rutherford, visits the London prisons weekly and tries to reform the prisoners.

In this good work he is often successful. Sometimes, though, he has odd experiences. A religious paper told recently how on one occasion he devoted a fortnight to the reformation of a housebreaker and how the housebreaker said to him gratefully at the end of that time:

"Thank you, sir; thank you for what you have done for me. There was a time when I knew nothing of God or of the devil, but somehow you have made me love them both."

A Sturdy Hero.

New York Evening Post: One of the novelists, referring to his hero, says:

His countenance fell.
His voice broke.
His heart sank.
His hair rose.
His eyes blazed.
His words burned.
His blood froze.

It appears, however, that he was able to pull himself together and marry the girl in the last chapter.

Looking Out For No. 1.

Buffalo Express: The discovery that the late Thomas B. Reed left a fortune valued at more than $500,000 indicates that a man may be a shrewd philosopher and unquestioned patriot and at the same time retain an eye to the main chance.

No Hard Times Ahead.

Philadelphia Press: The railroad companies see no hard times ahead, which must mean that they see no prospect of Democratic success. Orders for cars and locomotives are increasing. Leigh Best, secretary of the American Locomotive company of New Jersey, says that his company has orders to keep them busy until July, 1904. The railroad companies cheerfully pay for locomotives delivered three months ahead of time. The only danger to future success is said to be the labor troubles.

Coats and Pants.

Philadelphia Ledger: "Wow!" yelped the dog, as he dropped the hot pepper; "that's taken the coating off my tongue sure." "Taken your coating, eh?" remarked the comical cat, "but it's left you panting."

She Knew It.

New York Tribune: Jones was ejected out of the bathroom in a gorgeous and purpling fury. "Some idiot has been using my razor!" he howled.

"I know it," responded Mrs. Jones. She looked Jones right square in the eye. "I know it," she repeated.

"Who was it?" demanded Jones. His voice shook with emotion. "I say, who was it?" he danced again.

"John Henry," remarked his wife, dispassionately, "I'll have you know that nobody uses that razor but yourself."

Poor Jones! How he sneaked back into the bathroom! And how disconsolately the cord of his bathrobe trained behind him.

It is a terrible thing to have a clever wife.

Great Lovers of Liberty.

Chicago Chronicle: Having blown up a bank and killed a number of innocent people in order to attract the attention of Europe to their wrongs, the Macedonians announce that they will now proceed to scatter the infection of bubonic plague throughout Europe for the same purpose. These Macedonians evidently are great lovers of liberty.

Mighty Task of Assimilation.

New York Tribune: Multitudes of immigrants are pressing with constantly increasing numbers into the New York gateway of North America. Four thousand newcomers passed through the buildings on Ellis Island in a day, and a single vessel has brought 299 steerage passengers across the Atlantic. Is this republic likely to become a weary Titan under the mighty task of assimilating all this extraneous material for citizenship?

Plaint of the Thirsty.

Boston Transcript: Into each life some rain must fall. But in the month of May, with only a third of an inch for the whole of us, the individual allotment must have been something less than a drop and but little more than a trace.

EXTENT OF LOSS

To Traffic By Floods Not to Be Known For Months.

Figures In Kansas City Alone Reach Into the Millions.

Chicago, June 10.—Traffic officials of the Western lines will not forecast the probable extent of the loss to traffic due to the floods which did so much damage in Kansas and elsewhere during the past week, but it is admitted that there will probably be considerable curtailment of gross earnings, and even net earnings, during the coming months. It is still too early to get a reliable idea of the amount of property destroyed beyond Kansas City, and it may be a month or so before it can be determined. At any rate, it will be great enough to quite seriously cut into revenues of the railroads for some time. Many bridges will have to be rebuilt, miles and miles of tracks will have to be repaired, and many miles of roadbed will have to be filled in before tracks will be in condition to take care of the great tonnage which will accumulate in the meantime.

In the large cities which were caught by the floods terminals were either destroyed or seriously damaged, and it will cost hundreds of thousands of dollars to put these in shape. In Kansas City alone the figures will run up into the millions, to say nothing of the loss at other places. Of course, this does not all apply to the railroads, but it applies to the great packing and other industries which furnish the roads with a tremendous amount of tonnage.

Those concerns have temporarily been put out of business, and it will no doubt be weeks before they can get into running order again, to say nothing of the condition they were in before the disaster. Not only will the roads feel the loss of the traffic from the large manufacturing cities, but they will feel it from many of the smaller towns which were more or less affected. The loss of grain and live stock will cut a considerable figure in the immediate traffic future, and the delay to farming operations and loss to the farmers may be the means of curtailing their expenditures, which have heretofore been on a very liberal scale.

It is likely that he will now want to wait until after harvest before he makes further purchases of merchandise not classed as absolute necessities. It is no doubt true that there will be a large demand for merchandise of every description as soon as the roads, the rivers and the flooded sections get back to normal, but it is not believed that the tonnage of this class of goods will be as great as it was before water played such havoc for many weeks.

The railroads leading into St. Louis expect the damage from high water will be very great before the crest of the flood has passed, and this may double the great loss experienced at Kansas City and elsewhere. Traffic men assume a reassuring attitude and profess to believe their losses will be comparatively slight, but they do not have the enthusiasm and positiveness they formerly did when they were speaking of the general traffic situation.

Formerly they expected they would have a period of uninterrupted increases in earnings, but this now seems to be an impossibility. The roads running through the Northwest are still handling a great volume of general traffic, which is still in excess of the same time last year. This is in spite of a slow grain and flour movement. The Northern movement of ore, lumber and coal is very large, and these roads expect to keep up their former record of earnings. Business conditions in sections not touched by the floods continues in a very healthy condition, but will probably feel the effects of the doings some extent later.

Steel interests here say that while the state of affairs in the West has been against large sales of their products, their business has maintained its former large volume. They say the flooded districts will call for increased supplies of wire and nails later. Mills are running day and night to keep up on delivery and the output is sold fully sixty days ahead.

The labor situation, as far as the railroad and industrial situation is concerned, is rapidly becoming more pacific and it is expected that the local business situation, aside from some of the minor difficulties, will soon get back into a normal and healthy state.

BIDS ARE ACCEPTED.

Washington, June 10.—Secretary Moody late yesterday afternoon announced the acceptance of three lowest bids for the three new 16,000 tons battle ships and the following awards have been made: Minnesota—Newport News Shipbuilding company, of Newport News, Va., $4,110,000. Kansas—New York Shipbuilding company, of Camden, N. J., for $4,170,000, and the Vermont to the Fore River Manufacturing company, of Weymouth, Mass., for $4,165,000. Secretary Moody has ruled that portable equipment is not to be included in the limit of cost fixed by congress, which was $4,212,000 for each ship.

TRUSTS AND LABOR UNIONS.

Governor Cummins Says Both Must Be Controlled.

Hopkinton, Iowa, June 10.—Governor Albert B. Cummins, in his address to the students of Lenox college, arraigned the trusts and labor unions and declared that while they were necessary they must be controlled. His address was upon the duties and opportunities of citizenship. He said, in part:

"We are entering the domain of altruism. I do not want these young men and women, these boys and girls, to be satisfied with the individual good to all men which results from the efforts of each for personal well being. The time is at hand when man must consciously and intentionally aim at the uplifting of others. No diviner maxim ever emanated from the golden throne than 'I am my brother's keeper,' and it is becoming, and must more and more become a maxim of society and government as well as of individual life.

"We are witnessing an awakening, the like of which man never before saw. We behold an unprecedented association of wealth. We have recognized and I recognize its necessity, but we never dreamed of its power. Association is necessary, but the excesses of its power must be controlled, prohibited, or there will be commercial slavery at the end of the path.

"We witness two aggregations of men. And just as I said of association of wealth, so I say of labor organization; they are necessary, but it is easy for me and for you to see that they become so tyrannical that nothing but riot and revolution can result. I am no pessimist. I believe that the American youth under the guidance of American institutions, will safely solve these problems."

THE BLIND MAY SEE.

Possible Properties of New Element Polonium.

New York, June 10.—Polonium, the new element, which was exploited in a series of most interesting experiments by Professor W. Markwald before the Chemical congress in Berlin, is really the discovery of Mme. Curie, a Polish woman, who, with her husband, gave radium to the world. She is recognized as among the truly great pioneers of chemistry.

Scientists understand too little of the marvelous properties of this new element to venture more than vague predictions of what sphere of future usefulness it may fill, but it is not improbable that it may be found to perform the present functions of the so-called Roentgen or X-rays far more powerfully and without the cumbrous apparatus now essential to their use.

By use of polonium the blind, it is believed, may be made to see. In a much higher degree even than radium it possesses the property of shining in the dark and, although it is known that actual particles, infinitesimally small, are being shot out from it continually, a fact which is proved by magnetic experiments, this strange substance does not seem to exhaust itself nor to lose its luminous powers with the passage of time. Here, therefore, is a hint at least of the future possibility of a constant and brilliant illuminant generated without heat or combustion.

KILLED BY LIGHTNING.

Academy Students Lose Lives at Brookville, Pa.

Brookville, Pa., June 10.—A thunderstorm broke over this county yesterday afternoon which resulted in death for two and injury to several others. The dead:

MISS LULU MULLEN, aged 18 years.

MISS BRICE KELSO, aged 15 years.

Injured: Professor C. D. Carrier, Carry Cumming, Kitty McKinley and Annie McGill.

While the afternoon session of Corsica academy was in session at Corsica, seven miles from here, the storm broke. The students gathered in a frightened group in the big recitation room. A bolt of lightning struck the belfry and, descending through the ceiling, ran along the blackboard, at which two courageous students were still at work, hurling them to the floor. The two dead girls had all their clothing burned from their bodies, and Professor Carrier, who was standing close by, was also badly burned about the body. The young girls who lost their lives were daughters of prominent citizens.

SHOT BY SOLDIER.

Kansas City, Mo., June 10.—For refusing to obey the command to halt, Albert Hurley was shot and fatally wounded last night by John Maloney, a member of Company A, Sixth United States infantry, who was doing guard duty in Kansas City, Kan., where a mild form of martial law has been in force since the flood. It is asserted that Hurley abused the soldier when ordered to stop, and that Maloney did not fire until he had twice repeated his command to halt.

CLASS OF SEVEN

Commencement Exercises of St. Thomas Cathedral School Are Held.

Bishop McGolrick Dwells on Necessity For Practical Education.

Five girls and two boys, comprising the class of 1903, of St. Thomas cathedral school, were graduated from that institution last night, the exercises being held in Catholic Association hall.

A feature of the exercies were the remarks of Bishop McGolrick, in which he reiterated his strong views on practical education, already expressed at other commencement exercises.

There was a long and excellent program, and it was well done throughout. The small boys of the third and fourth grades made a big hit in a chorus entitled "Uncle Sam's Little Drummer Boy," each being dressed in military attire and accompanying the song by drums. "The Farmer" was given by a chorus of boys from the fifth and sixth grades in costume, each wearing a straw hat and overalls. Essays were read by Edward Fisher on "The Constitution," and by Elizabeth Sullivan on "William Cullen Bryant." Mary Healy gave the valedictory.

The pupils who were given diplomas by Bishop McGolrick were as follows:

Jennie Bellepercbe.
Edward Fisher.
Daniel Donovan.
Mary Healy.
Elizabeth Sullivan.
Nellie Reau.
Agnes Herton.

"You have been well trained," said Bishop McGolrick to the graduates. "Your faculties of observation have been trained so as to help you in the more advanced work which you will next take up. We are developing a good system here, and it is better every year.

"One manner of educating children is to grind them through a mill. Pupils trained that way can rattle off the names of the states on the Pacific and Atlantic oceans without a halt, but if you ask them a question in local geography, such as the direction of the postoffice from the school, they could not answer. The great need is for practical education. The three Rs must be learned and learned well, and then attention should be given to things which will be useful in later life. Each child has peculiarities which must be recognized and taken into account by the teacher. Many good men have been ruined by forced study of some subject for which they had no taste.

"Sir Isaac Newton, the great scientist, was a dunce in all studies but mathematics. The years which he put in on geography, Latin and other studies were wasted.

"I hope you will not read any this summer. Go out in the woods, on the green grass and study nature. Be happy and enjoy your vacation. I shall watch your progress, and if at any time you need help, you may come to me, and I will do all in my power for you."

Gold medals for good conduct and general progress during the school year were given to Victor Lanigan and Jenne Bellepercbe.

"Farewell," sung by the members of the graduating class, and "A Greeting to the Class of '03" by the seventh grade, closed the long program. Miss Catherine McKay accompanied the musical numbers on the piano.

CORRIVEAU IS FAILING

Lake County Murderer Is In Need of Hospital Care.

Louis Corriveau, the Lake county murderer, whose death sentence was recently commuted to life imprisonment, is steadily failing in health and much concern is expressed by the county authorities over his condition. They fear that he may die in the county jail unless commitment papers arrive soon so that he can be taken to the state prison at Stillwater.

Corriveau, himself, believes that he has only a short time to live, and he is desirous of being taken to Stillwater, where the facilities are better for medical treatment. The county authorities have done all that they are permitted to do under the law for Corriveau, but he appears to be growing weaker all the time. Up to the time of his imprisonment he was used to an outdoor life and the confinement of the county jail is said to have brought about his collapse.

SCOFIELD WILL REBUILD MILL

Lumber Plant at Superior Will Be Replaced at Once.

Ex-Governor Edward Scofield, of Wisconsin, who has been in West Superior several days making final settlement of the insurance on his sawmill which burned a few weeks ago, has decided to rebuild the plant immediately. Mr. Scofield states that the new mill will be larger, more modern and will have a greater capacity for lumber manufacture than the old mill.

Negotiations looking to the rebuilding of the sawmill were completed yesterday afternoon and a large crew of men will be started on the preliminary work of clearing up the debris within the next few days.

It is claimed that the new mill will be run day and night and will furnish employment to nearly 200 men.

It is understood that the new mill is to be ready to begin sawing some time in the fall.

FIRES IN TIMBER.

Several Reports of Dangerous Blazes Reach Duluth.

Reports of serious forest fires are reaching Duluth from parts of Lake county. Last Sunday night a large fire is said to have started in the slashings of Alger-Smith & Co., in town 54-10, along the Iron Range railroad, about 15 miles from Two Harbors and spread until it has covered a large territory and done much damage. The Duluth, Minnesota & Northern logging road has lost ten cars, a trestle has been destroyed and the Vaughn cedar swamp has been burned over. The rain during the early part of the week checked the fires, but the damage already done is estimated at $10,000.

Morris Thomas, of this city, lost his camp, equipment and cedar in section 29-51-10. His total loss is about $5000. On the western Mesaba, Sunday evening, the Forest fire destroyed two dwellings at the LaRue mine.

FLAG DAY CELEBRATION.

Suggestion That Would Produce an Inspiring Spectacle.

To the Editor of The Herald:

I am sure that I am but voicing the sentiments of every old veteran, and the younger ones, too, for that matter, when we say that we are highly delighted to see that the leading citizens of Duluth are leading also in patriotic aspirations, and bent on a proper celebration of Flag day. We of the Old Guard, that once numbered millions and yet numbers thousands, salute them!

And now permit me this suggestion: Let every person, young and old, bring a little flag—they cost but little, perhaps ten cents—and wave it during the chorus of the "Star Spangled Banner" or, if there be no one present to start that song, then close the celebration with three cheers for Old Glory. A hall full of flags, what a beautiful and inspiring spectacle. No child, no man, would ever forget it. Why not give Duluth the opportunity of such a magnificent scene by filling the Armory or the High School assembly hall in the morning, when the attendance could be more general?

"Long may our land be bright
With Freedom's holy light."
Humbly, for God and Country,
JACOB LAUX.

CONTRACTS FOR YELLOW PINE

O. H. Clarke Will Buy Large Amount In the South.

O. H. Clarke is numbered among the Duluthians that have been investing in Southern yellow pine standing timber. Mr. Clarke has returned from Randolph county, Ala., where he has taken a contract to purchase 180,000,000 feet of yellow pine. The timber is located in the northeastern part of Alabama. Mr. Clarke says that the territory in which he has been picking up pine lands has been settled. The pine is of the long leaf variety.

The yellow pine market of the South has been coming into more prominence within the last few years, owing to a greater demand for that class of timber. Yellow pine has been found to answer many of the purposes to which white pine was formerly put, and while cheaper than the white variety and a coarse lumber, has shown a marked raise in price as the demand for it has increased.

The Duncan & Brewer company, which sold out its Minnesota timber interests to the Red Cliff Lumber company, is now operating a mill in the yellow pine district in the southern part of Alabama, and the Alger-Smith interests own immense yellow pine tracts in Florida.

Biennial Session of Supreme Lodge at St. Paul.

St. Paul, June 10.—The Supreme lodge, Ancient Order United Workmen, began its biennial session at the state capitol yesterday, Mayor Smith and Governor Van Sant welcoming the delegates to the city and state. Supreme Master Workman Webb McNall replied on behalf of the delegates, after which the lodge went into executive session.

In his report, Supreme Recorder M. W. Sackett gave the total membership at the close of 1902 as 451,510. The amount that has been paid to widows and orphans was $9,860,416 during that year, and the death rate during the same twelve months per 1000 was 11.84.

The appointment of committees through which the business will be transacted followed.

An address by Dr. D. H. Shields, supreme medical examiner, was heard with interest. Dr. Shields said:

"The great problem that confronts this organization, and indeed all others, is to promote healthy and rapid growth with a decreased death rate. We find upon investigation that 562 of our members have died during the past year with that dread 'white plague,' consumption. Were it possible for us to so legislate as to prevent these deaths it would be of great benefit to us in eliminating the 'excessive cost' problem. Can it be done? We have the opinions of the most learned men in the medical profession that consumption is a communicable disease, and that being the case, it is a disease that can be prevented or obliterated. If the fraternal orders would begin a thorough and systematic agitation of the question of suppression, we could, in a general way, destroy the destroyer."

CHARGED WITH CHEATING.

New York, June 10.—Between thirty and forty warrants have been issued for doctors who are charged with cheating the city out of anti-toxin by making affidavits at department of health stations, that the serum was for a poor patient, by which they got it free. Then, it is alleged, they sold it to the patients for $5 a bottle.

With this mysterious compound no weak man will ever again be troubled with impotency, vital losses, nightly emissions, spermatorrhea, varicocele, prematurity, defective power or lack of vital energy.

Send me no money. It is my duty, guided by an Unseen Hand—it is my mission on earth—my life work—to lift up the fallen, heal the weak and cure the maimed or undeveloped, and to every man who has lost his vital power or finds it waning, I send my message of love and peace and health. I can save him and I will save him and restore him to many years of happiness and the impetuous vitality and vigorous manhood of perfect health and youth.

Remember it matters not how old you are; it matters not how you lost your manhood, or when you lost it. It matters not what doctors or roofers say. This is no ordinary drug or stimulating method of treatment, but it is the vital spark of life itself, and it matters not how many remedies and doctors have failed. I have repeatedly and instantly renewed the youth of old men. My secret compound never fails. I have often instilled into jaded men new vitality, health and strength. For worn-out men I have left kindled, in an instant, and to stay, the sparkling vitality of youth. My private address is Dr. C. Sargent Ferris, 81 Strawn building, Cleveland, Ohio, and I urge every weak man to come to me for I will give him undying strength, the supreme joy and happiness of perfect manliness. My wondrous discovers has startled the world by its miraculous effects, yet I seek not fame nor glory. It suffices me if I may be the humble instrument to bring all men into the enjoyment of bringing all men into the enjoyment of their true manliness and I do it free. In the time allotted to me here on earth I shall do all that in my power lies to give my fellowmen the benefit of this great secret and my reward shall be in the knowledge that I have done unto others as I would that others should do unto me.

HAS HE THE RIGHT?

Certain Justice's Authority to Perform Marriages Doubted.

Elected By One of the Townships, But Has Left There.

Considerable consternation is manifest among local couples recently married by a so-called justice of the peace in this city as to whether the ceremonies were legal. Had the justice the proper legal authority to unite them in marriage? is the question.

A certain justice of peace from one of the range townships moved to Duluth not long ago, and has since been doing a pretty good business in the marrying line, for young people who desired to have the knot tied right away after getting the proper marriage license.

The matter has been called to the attention of some of the local legal authorities, and they have had no hesitancy in saying that it is very questionable whether the justice performing the ceremony had the legal right to do so, though they do not assert positively that he has not.

The justice who is concerned in the matter was regularly elected to office in another township in this county. By moving to Duluth he is said to have lost his residence in the township where he was elected, and it is held that while the statutes do not expressly say that a justice of peace, when he moves out of the township in which he was elected, vacates his office, they are very likely to be so interpreted by a court.

One of the county authorities to whom the matter was referred claimed that when a justice removed from a township it was the duty of the people there to immediately elect another, the inference being that the office had been vacated.

The justice who has been performing the marriages to which reference is made claims that so long as he resides in the same county in which he was elected he holds office until his term expires, whether he resides or does not reside in the township where he was elected.

Shortly after coming to Duluth he opened a justice of the peace office but this for some reason was closed before any business was transacted, and the justice has been performing the marriage ceremonies at his home and collecting the fees.

It is understood that steps are to be taken by the proper county authorities for an investigation of the alleged authority of the transient justice and it is estimated that a warning will be given him that he will have to cease doing business in an official capacity.

It has been urged that young couples contemplating marriage would be wise in looking up the matter of legality of marriages performed by so-called justices before taking a step which they may be compelled later to take over and which might prove a very embarrassing one.

ADDRESSES OF PENSIONERS

No Longer Given to the Newspapers By Pension Bureau.

Washington, June 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—Eugene F. Ware, commissioner of Pensions, on last Friday caused an order to be issued withholding the postoffice addresses of persons to whom pensions have been granted. It has been the custom for nearly fifteen years to give to the newspapers of the country not only the names and postoffice addresses of such persons as are granted pensions, but also to state the character of the pension, that is, whether an original claim, a reissue, an increase or a widow or a dependent relative or minor of a deceased soldier, and also in the case of men, the war in which they served, designating whether Mexican, Civil war, Indian wars or Spanish-American. Now, however, Mr. Ware, for economical reasons, will give only the name of the pensioner, the amount of his pension, and, of course, the state in which he resides.

The commissioner claims that by this proceeding he can dispense with the services of at least one clerk, drawing $1200 a year, who has been engaged in preparing these lists for the newspapers and in giving only this partial list or abbreviated list save a half a day of the time of another clerk, who with this half day so saved may be placed at other work, deemed more important by the commissioner. The lists as now given out are utterly valueless to many of the Washington correspondents, as in many of the larger states newspapers do not care to print the names of pensioners for the entire state, only wishing to use the names of those who reside in the radius where their papers circulate most widely. Under the present arrangement without the postoffice addresses it is absolutely impossible to tell in what section of a state the pensioner may reside.

COMING TO THE FAIR.

Stockholm, June 10.—Prince Gustave, crown prince of Sweden and Norway, has announced his intention of visiting the St. Louis exposition.

MANY PASSENGERS DROWNED.

Rostoff-on-the-Don, Russia, June 10.—The steamer Moskva was about to land passengers at Azoff, after a pleasure trip, when the crowd caused the gangway to collapse and many were drowned.

STABBED A GENERAL.

Kieff, Russia, June 10.—A Jewish midwife named Prunskin, who was arrested on a political charge, was being interrogated yesterday by General Novitzsky, chief of the gendarmes, when she rushed upon him with a knife, which she had concealed in her dress, and inflicted a wound in his neck. The general's injury is not serious.

WORST OF EXPERIENCES.

Can anything be worse than to feel that every minute will be your last? Such was the experience of Mrs. S. H. Newsom, Decatur, Ala. "For three years," she writes, "I endured insufferable pain from indigestion, stomach and bowel trouble. Death seemed inevitable when doctors and all remedies failed. At length I was induced to try Electric Bitters and the result was miraculous. I improved at once and now I'm completely recovered." For liver, kidney stomach and bowel troubles Electric Bitters is the only medicine. Only 50c. It's guaranteed by all druggists.

TWICE A MURDERER.

Serious Charges Are Hanging Over George O'Brien.

Helena, Mont., June 10.—George O'Brien, who is believed to have killed an Italian near Rexford, after robbing him along with three others, about ten days ago, has been arrested.

O'Brien is also supposed to have killed an aged German saloonkeeper near La Salle last week. This murder was the outgrowth of the robbery.

The arrest was made by Deputy Sheriff George Rich and Special officer Robert Baker. The officers came upon O'Brien and John O'Neill in the thick brush near a railroad grading camp. O'Brien started to run, but seeing that Rich had the drop on him he threw up his hands and made no resistance.

O'Neill is wanted for a murder alleged to have been committed by him near Fernie, B. C. A Canadian officer was also on the scene, says that O'Neill, over whose head there hangs $10,000 reward, will doubtless be returned to Canada, as there is no special charge against him in Montana. O'Brien will be given a preliminary hearing at Kalispell tomorrow.

A FIEND AT BERLIN.

Berlin, June 10.—The Tageblatt, commenting on the recent increasing number of horrible murders of little girls in Berlin, expresses the opinion that the city harbors a fiend like "Jack the Ripper." It points out the similarity in the methods of the perpetrators of the murders and that the Berlin miscreant, like his London prototype, disappears into impenetrable mystery.

Another club woman, Mrs. Haule, of Edgerton, Wis., tells how she was cured of irregularities and uterine trouble, terrible pains and backache by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"A while ago my health began to fail because of female troubles. The doctor did not help me. I remembered that my mother had used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound on many occasions for irregularities and uterine troubles, and I felt sure that it could not harm me at any rate to give it a trial.

"I was certainly glad to find that within a week I felt much better, the terrible pains in my back and side were beginning to cease, and at the time of menstruation I did not have nearly as serious a time as heretofore, so I continued its use for two months, and at the end of that time I was like a new woman. I really have never felt better in my life, have not had a sick headache since, and weigh 20 pounds more than I ever did, so I unhesitatingly recommend Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. MAY HAULE, Edgerton, Wis., President Household Economies Club. —$5000 forfeit if original of above letter proving genuineness cannot be produced.

Women should remember there is one tried and true remedy for all female ills, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Refuse to buy any other medicine, you need the best.

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

Sensation Caused at Aberdeen By an Attempt at Bribery.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Aberdeen—It is just leaking out that at an executive session of the city council City Engineer Washburn exhibited a check for $100 signed by Mat Strohl, a cement sidewalk contractor, who handed it to Washburn just before the council convened, to bring the engineer to approve several hundred dollars' worth of walk believed not to be up to the standard and according to specifications.

Armour—The council has let a contract for the building of a compressed air system of waterworks, and is advertising for the sinking of a ten-inch well to sand rock for a water supply. It has been discovered that soft water can be secured here by going into the sand rock between the tubular and artesian flows. The tubular flow is secured at a depth of 260 feet and the water is hard. Soft water is about 450 feet below the surface, while it is about 850 feet to the artesian flow. The artesian water is very hard.

Wauhay—The $7000 worth of six per cent. bonds voted at the last election for the installation of a municipal waterworks system in this place, have been offered for floatation. The work will begin in July. The shores of Pickerel lake, the new summer resort, will be thickly dotted with new cottages this season.

Faulkton—This place, for the first time in fifteen years, is experiencing the novelty of open saloons among the local business places, two having been recently granted licenses and opened for business in accordance with the result of the recent annual election, when license carried by a small majority.

New Rockford—In the case of William Cahill, charged with the murder of his brother, the jury returned a verdict of manslaughter in the first degree and fixed the penalty at ten years at hard labor. A stay of seventy days has been granted to give time for a motion for a new trial.

Cyanide—Charles Bauer, who has been mine foreman for the Spearfish Mining company, died in the county pesthouse of smallpox. His case was of the confluent type, and his features were so distorted he was not recognizable. He was to have been married at Spearfish on June 3.

Lead—Patrick McDonald of Duluth, who has the contract for paving the principal streets of Lead, has arrived, prepared to begin work on his contract. Main street and Mill street are to be laid with paving brick, the contract involving approximately $170,000.

Yankton—Fire in the opera house destroyed the scenery, stage and dressing-rooms. The loss is about $4000, fully insured. The origin is a mystery as there has been no play there since last week.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Fargo—The members of El Zagal temple presented the illustrious potentate, J. F. Treat, with a handsome cane in appreciation of his efforts at the recent ceremonial when a large class was put through.

Tracy Becker has secured a divorce from Lulu Becker. The Beckers formerly resided at Watkins, N. Y., where they were rather prominent. Becker alleged desertion. He has been a resident of this state for more than a year and will probably reside here permanently.

Edward Travis, who was arrested here Saturday night on the charge of stealing a $75,000 diamond from Mrs. Kennedy in East Grand Forks, refuses to return there without a requisition and Sheriff Sullivan of Polk county has gone to St. Paul to secure the necessary papers from Governor Van Sant. A negro woman is making a fight for Travis and threatens to institute habeas corpus proceedings in his behalf.

JEWS ARE RE-ASSURED.

London, June 10.—It is announced that the Lord Mayor of London, Sir Marcus Samuel, himself a Jew, has made urgent representations in the proper quarter touching the situation at Kishineff, and has received assurances which will tend to allay the anxiety throughout the world respecting a possible recurrence of outrages.

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Stephenson Contractor Arrested on Charge of Attempting Murder.

Stephenson—Henry Horde, a well-known contracting carpenter of Stephenson, has been arrested and held under $1000 bonds for examination on the 16th on the charge of assault with intent to murder. The complaining witness is C. V. Herbert, also of Stephenson, who alleges that Horde tried to shoot him with a revolver, but that as the cartridge failed to explode his life was providentially spared.

Houghton—Arthur McCurdy, aged 18, son of William McCurdy, of the firm of McCurdy Bros., building contractors, West Houghton, died after a brief illness. Appendicitis was the primary cause of death. The young man was taken sick on Tuesday last, and from the first there was little hope for his recovery, a complication of other bowel troubles making his case extremely serious. He was not operated upon, as his condition at any time would not allow it. He was conscious nearly to the last.

Sault Ste. Marie—Fire destroyed the Simonis & Campbell block, Canadian Soo, in which were located Ogden & Kiefer, hardware, and Sam Farasohn & Co., dry goods. The loss is $70,000, insurance $35,000.

Ironwood—Gus Johnson, a boy aged 4, was killed by a Northwestern ore train at Ironwood. He and another lad crawled underneath the train, which started and ran over him. The other boy escaped death, but was seriously injured.

Norway—The Aragon mine at Norway has been closed down owing to the caving of No. 2 shaft. This means that 750 men are thrown out of employment for several days at least. The lay-off is temporary and it is presumed that the work at the mine will be resumed during the week.

Newberry—Mr. Harris, of Newberry, has been getting into all kinds of trouble since the newspapers advertised the fact that he had been acucmulating beaver skins for an overcoat, comments the Manistique Pioneer-Tribune. It is unlawful to purchase or possess these skins, and the game wardens are making life a burden for the aforesaid gentleman.

Manistique—Evelyn McGregor, a little Manistique girl, was badly bitten by a dog last week, and as a result she will be scarred for life. With her mother the little one was visiting at the home of a neighbor and was in the act of petting the family dog when the animal sprang at her. The dog bit her severely in the cheek, making one particular deep gash. The canine was shot the next day.

SHOULD HAVE A GUARDIAN.

Wealthy Young Rancher Is Swindled By Western Crook.

Spokane, Wash., June 10.—When William Lawrence, a wealthy young Klickitat county rancher, opened his satchel yesterday he found a piece of gas pipe in lieu of $1000 in coin. The rancher sold his farm recently and went to Portland, Oregon, to see the sights. He picked up a woman companion on his way, and later a stranger wormed himself into Lawrence's confidence, pretending to be a government revenue officer. He said there was a plot on foot to kill Lawrence and induced him to travel to Spokane with him.

Lawrence put his coin in the satchel, and the stranger also placed a big revolver in it. Lawrence gave the supposed officer a duplicate key to the satchel and the men parted. When Lawrence opened his satchel to examine the money he found the gas pipe. "French Pete," a notorious crook, is under arrest in Seattle as the alleged confidence man.

SHOCK TOO GREAT.

Rutledge Boy Dies From Injuries From an Engine.

While playing near his home at Rutledge yesterday, Claude F. Wilkins, an 11-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Wilkins was run over by a Northern Pacific switch engine.

He was brought to this city and taken to St. Mary's hospital, but did not recover from the shock dying shortly after 6 o'clock in the evening. The remains were taken to Rutledge for burial today.

MINNESOTA FIREMEN.

Annual Tournament and Convention at Brainerd.

Brainerd, Minn., June 10.—The State Firemen's association's tournament and convention opened in this city yesterday. At noon the Brainerd Marine band and the local firemen met the delegates at the train and escorted them to the hotel, and at 2 o'clock the convention was called to order in the Brainerd opera house by President L. H. Stallman of this city, who delivered his annual address. The exercises consisted of an address of welcome by Mayor Halsted, an address by C. D. Johnson and music by the Brainerd Marine band.

At 4 o'clock the delegates were taken by a special train, provided by the Northern Pacific, to the shops, mills and other points of interest in the city. Last evening a big banquet, costing in the neighborhood of $500, was given in honor of the visitors.

The weather is rainy and indications are that many outdoor sports will be dispensed with. There is a big crowd present.

Today the regular hose races of the tournament will be held on Front street, and there will be a parade of all the fire companies this evening. The city is in gala attire and the indications are it will be the largest tournament held in years.

A CROOKED CLERK

Washington Man Said to Have Stolen Over $60,000.

From Office of Auditor of District of Columbia.

Washington, June 10.—James M. Watson, Jr., a clerk in the office of auditor of the District of Columbia and the son-in-law of a wealthy retired railroad contractor, was arrested yesterday on a charge of embezzlement of government funds.

The amount is estimated at from $60,000 to $75,000. The warrant makes the specific charge of embezzlement of $8,000, which represents only a portion of the alleged peculations.

Watson was not bonded and in case he or his relations, several of whom are said to be wealthy, fail to make good the alleged losses, Auditor J. D. Petty will be held responsible for the amount. The auditor's bond is for $20,000.

The money alleged to have been embezzled was part of the funds deposited in the office by property owners who are willing to pay half of all costs of improvements abutting on their property, such as paving, sidewalks, alleys and streets.

This embraces deposits by railway contractors, electric light companies, telephone companies, work on sidewalk, sewer and water mains and is essentially separate from the other accounts. This account is not subject to review by the treasury department but it is checked by the clerk in charge of the corresponding account in the district department and he reported it correct as late as February, 1902. The depositors, it is said, have the right to recover from the district through suit. The auditor's office is under the supervision of the board of commissioners of the District of Columbia. Auditor Petty has complete charge of the assessment and permit fund, depositing the money in a bank to his own credit. Mr. Watson, it is alleged, has been entrusted with making the deposits and has returned the pass book in apparently proper condition in each instance. He has been an employe of the district for four years and the alleged defalcations are supposed to have occurred throughout most of that period. The discovery of the alleged shortage was made several days ago, but was kept secret by the auditor in the hope of securing restitution. The commissioners of the district were made acquainted with the conditions of affairs yesterday and dematided from Auditor Petty a report and explanation of the system by which so large a sum of money could have been abstracted without becoming known. The system was inquired into some ten or twelve years ago without any change being made. Auditor Petty said the accounts had been manipulated in such a manner that he was not acquainted with the exact situation until yesterday. Watson was the joint publisher of a news bulletin issued in the city. In addition to running the paper he owned a barber shop which he has been trying to sell recently. He also was the promotor of a patent medicine concern and the treasurer of what is known as the District Co-operative Association, which takes in money from employes on deposit and lends it out again. Many of the office holders at the District building are depositors in the association turning the money over entirely to Watson and getting his personal receipt in tiny books resembling bank books. Several months ago Major Sylvester, the chief of police here, investigated Watson's record and it is stated he found that Watson was sent to a reform school while in his minority on a charge of forgery.

STARTLING EVIDENCE.

Fresh testimony in great quantity is constantly coming in, declaring Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, coughs and colds to be unequaled. A recent expression from T. J. McFarland, Bentonville, Va., serves as example. He writes: "I had bronchitis for three years and doctored all the times without being benefited. Then I began taking Dr. King's New Discovery, and a few bottles wholly cured me." Equally effective in curing all lung and throat troubles, consumption, pneumonia and grip. Guaranteed by all druggists. Trial bottles free, regular sizes 50c, and $1.00.

SKIN DISEASES THE OUTCROPPING OF BAD BLOOD

And while not always painful are aggravating beyond expression. With few exceptions they are worse in spring and summer when the system begins to thaw out and the skin is reacting and making extra efforts to throw off the poisons that have accumulated during the winter. Then boils and pimples, rashes and eruptions of every conceivable kind make their appearance, and Eczema and Tetter—the twin terrors of skin diseases—Nettle-rash, Poison Oak and Ivy, and such other skin troubles as usually remain quiet during cold weather, break out afresh to torment and distract by their fearful burning, itching and stinging. A course of S. S. S. now will purify and enrich the blood, reinforce and tone up the general system and stimulate the sluggish circulation, thus warding off the diseases common to spring and summer. The skin, with good blood to nourish it, remains smooth and soft and free of all disfiguring eruptions.

I suffered with Eczema of the hands and face for over a year, it was not only annoying and painful but very unsightly, and I disliked to go out in the streets.

I tried at least a dozen soaps and salves and became very much discouraged until I read in the paper of the cures performed through the use of S. S. S. I had little faith at first but determined to give it a month's fair trial at least. I am pleased to state that I soon noticed a slight improvement, sufficient to decide me to keep it up. After the use of six bottles my skin was as smooth and soft as a baby's. This was a year ago and I have never had any trouble since.

THEY LOST HEAVILY

Western Crowd Caught In the Wall Street Net.

Lambs Blindly Followed the Plays of the Big Ones.

New York, June 10.—Men of Gotham-town who are directly interested in events financial, as that is applied to affairs that come under the head of doings in Wall street's bailiwick, are busying themselves just now in discussing men who, within the last few years, came out of the West to do battle with the giants "in the street," as New York's financial district is known. While what is called the "Western crowd" is not numerically strong in New York's finances, it represents a considerable body of Ohio, Indiana and Illinois men who have been very successful. Among the leaders, all of whom hold forth in Gotham, the Hoosier State product is largely in the majority in the persons of William B. Leeds, Dan G. Reid and Col. Elwood. The others, Judge W. W. Moore, John W. Gates and John A. Drake, are of the Sucker State stripe, geographically. At least they are so far as locality is concerned for the purpose of designating from whence they come. These men have been filling the eye of the speculatively inclined for some time. When they hearded the Wall street barons in their dens the old query went up as to how long they might last. It was freely predicted they would fall by the wayside, for Wall street knows how to dig pitfalls. Now the air is filled with gossip. Yet it cannot but be that at least a part of this combination got away with a goodly part of the profits captured in the last few years. The gossipers have it that those who have held out something have determined to try other fields—notably Chicago—in which to operate. It was about two years ago that the Western crowd, with its large out-of-town following, started in to bull the market. This was against the advice of New York bankers, who, as usual, had a few lambs to shear on their own account.

The Westerners persisted, and often was it heard that it would be only a question of time when the New Yorkers would get them into their net and drag them to financial ruin. If one would believe one half that is heard in Wall street circles these days he could not but think that some wings have been clipped, and cut very short at that.

* * *

Under manipulation from these bold boys from the Middle West stocks were shoved up, many of them to record prices, until the Wall street wiseacres fairly shouted that the bubble, as they were pleased to call it, must surely burst. But the speculators who reached out to control whole railroad systems and saw their profits on paper amounting into millions could see no top, and continued buying with a recklessness born of confidence by past successes. Wall street will not soon forget the almost unprecedented speculation that reached its height last fall. It looked as if nothing could check the victories of this crowd, whose members made their night headquarters at the Waldorf-Astoria and spent money like princes. But Wall street kept on predicting a reaction—one that would leave millionaires stranded and put the market in a condition so demoralized that it would take months for it to recover. The slump came, and the falling of prices was as astonishing as was the advance, so much so that many stocks have made low records, and no one knows yet whether the bottom has been reached. It is maintained by those who should know that the Westerners were caught by those who had been gunning for them, and it is said practically all of them have been forced to sell at tremendous losses. Wall street today is said to be full of poor men who less than a year ago were millionaires. In fact, the great slump, which has caught so many men who had fabulous profits to their credit, is generally known down town as a rich man's partie. Of course, an army of small operators who were dazzled by the money the big men were making have gone down to ruin, but they were only lambs, and Wall street generally expects them to be wiped out sooner or later.

* * *

To give one an idea of how hard the big operators have been hit, one has only to think that "the crowd" were buying Chicago & Northwestern last summer and fall at 240 and higher, and their purchases were of large blocks. Other large purchases made by them were Rock Island, which cost them 200 and upward, and St. Louis and San Francisco, which sold as high as 82⅝. Under the reorganization Rock Island common sold this week for 23¼ and preferred for 70. St. Louis and San Francisco this week were quoted as low as 69.

While the sun was shining the Westerners succeeded in storing away a goodly crop of hay, especially in the deal by which John W. Gates obtained control of the Louisville & Nashville, unloading it upon J. P. Morgan at a profit of many millions. It was this and other successes that made them so bold and prompted them to borrow vast sums of money to absorb more stocks. Just how much stock the interest held will never be known, but it is said to have been so great that an ordinary person would become dizzy trying to count it. When the tide finally turned and prices ceased to rise, "the crowd" borrowed more money and bought more stock, determined to force prices higher if possible. They might have succeeded but for the fact that money was forced scarce by Wall street, and seekers after loans were compelled to pay higher and higher rates of interest. Finally, when the rates for money became ruinously high, some of the bull leaders were forced to unload certain good stocks to get ready money to protect others. This forced liquidation naturally gave the bears a chance, and they hammered the market and have since been hammering it. Money went up and prices went down until more liquidation was forced, and the same was continued until some of the men who had been loaded with stock which had shown a big profit on paper found themselves denuded of their holdings. For many of these men it is all as a tale that has been told now. Others who fought shy of the bubbles are picking up bargains in Wall street now, but "the crowd" leaders are either out of the market and away or they are no longer buying. The calling of loans, the practical impossibility of further loaning and the tremendous slump in prices has left them, many of them at least, high and dry on the shore, where they can look at others sporting in the waves into which they may not venture. Such are the tricks of Wall street, and such is some of the gossip one hears nowadays.

GOVERNOR MARRIED.

Chief Executive of Kansas Takes a Wife.

Kansas City, Mo., June 10.—Willis J. Bailey, governor of Kansas, and Mrs. Ida B. Weede, were married in the First Congregational church in this city at 6 o'clock last evening. Rev. J. F. Fifield performed the ceremony, which was extremely brief and very simple. Only a few guests were present. They included E. N. Bailey, brother of the governor, and his wife; Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Cafferty, the latter the governor's only sister; John Albert, of Seneca, Kas., father of the bride, and Mr. and Mrs. Potts, of Kansas City.

Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Bailey left for Topeka. It had been Governor Bailey's intention to make a trip to his old home in Illinois, but this was postponed because of pressing business relating to the flood. An interesting incident of Governor Bailey's recent campaign was a story to the effect that he had promised to marry if elected governor. After his election he was the recipient of letters from women in all parts of the country offering themselves in marriage. Governor Bailey said today: "Long before the election Mrs. Weede and I were engaged to be married. I never made a promise with any one that I would take a wife if I were elected governor of Kansas. That was a story started by some of my Kansas friends. They meant it in a good-natured way, but I really had the joke on them."

Mrs. Weede's maiden name was Ida Albert. Her first husband was a real estate man, who died five years ago. Mr. and Mrs. Weede lived formerly at Yuma, Col., and Fairbury, Neb. Mrs. Weede met Governor Bailey at Baileyville, Kas., where she went to live after her husband's death. She has two children.

MRS. EDDY REPLIES

To Recent Claims Regarding Christian Science Origin.

Concord, N. H., June 10.—Recent claims that Ralph Waldo Emerson is the author of Christian Science has called forth a statement from Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy, in which she says: "I was early the pupil of Miss Sarah J. Bodwell, the principal of Sanbornton Academy of New Hampshire, and finished my course of studies under Prof. Dyer H. Sanborn, author of Sanborn's Grammar. Among my early studies were Comstock's Natural philosophy, Chemistry, Blair's Rhetoric, Whateley's Logic, Watt's 'On the Mind and Moral Science.'

"In 1883 I started the Christian Science Journal, and for several years was the proprietor and sole editor of that journal. In 1892 Judge S. J. Hanna became editor of the Christian Science Journal, and for ten subsequent years he knew my ability as an editor. In his recent lecture at Chicago, he said, 'Mrs. Eddy is, from every point of view, a woman of sound education and liberal culture.'

"Agassiz, the celebrated naturalist and author, wisely said, 'Every great scientific truth goes through three stages. First, people say it conflicts with the Bible. Next, they say it has been discovered before. Lastly, they say they have always believed it.'

"The first attack upon me was,—Mrs. Eddy misinterprets the Scriptures; second, she has stolen the contents of her book 'Science and Health With Key to the Scriptures' from one P. P. Quimby (an obscure, uneducated man), and he is the founder of Christian Science. Failing in these attempts, the calumniator has resorted to Ralph Waldo Emerson's philosophy as the authority for Christian Science! Lastly, the defamer will declare as honestly (?) 'I have always known it.'

"I am the author of the Christian Science text-book, "Science and Health With Key to the Scriptures;" and the demand for this book increases, and the book is already in its 274th edition of one thousand copies each. I am rated in the National Magazine (1903) as 'standing the eighth in a list of twenty-two of the foremost living authors.'

"I claim no special merit of any kind. All that I am in reality God has made me. I still wait at the cross to learn definitely more from my great Master, but not of the Greek nor of the Roman schools—simply how to do His deeds."

It is especially so in the treatment of infants and children, cleansing, soothing and healing the most distressing of infantile humours, and preserving, purifying and beautifying the skin, scalp and hair.

JUDGE SPOONER AT CASS LAKE

Appoints Appraisers of Indian Land For School House.

Cass Lake, Minn., June 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—Judge Spooner of the district court came here yesterday to appoint appraisers to appraise the value of a block of land belonging to an Indian allotment condemned for the purpose of building upon it a school house. He was accompanied by Court Stenographer Campbell. The following were appointed: C. M. Taylor, Charles Leeman and Dr. Rodwell. A party of business men then took the judge for a fishing trip, this being his initial visit to Cass Lake. The party fished in the mouth of the Mississippi near the Mission about six miles from here.

The Columbia, owned by Jake Yotter and which is so well known to visitors of Cass Lake has been repaired after having been sunk in deep water by running into a dead head at the mouth of the Mississippi. Fortunately there was no one on board but Jake and he swam to the boom of logs near.

Edward Hamilton of the bureau of forestry is in town for store and other purposes. He and his colleague, Griffin are busy marking the fifth of the pine to be used as the basis of a forest reserve. They are preserving the young trees and have made very rapid progress.

State Senator Dunn of Hennepin county is having a great time in Cass Lake fishing. He has secured many fine specimens of black bass and an abundance of pike and other fish.

A heavy rain has saved the berry crop that was about lost through lack of moisture. The Indians are jubilant and are making great preparations for gathering the fruit. Already the berry is on the stem and strawberries are partly ripe. Last year about 20,000 crates were shipped from this district but it is expected now that about 50,000 crates will be sent from this quarter.

State Senator A. D. Stephens and wife, W. E. McKenzie, editor of the Crookston Times, and wife, Dr. Dampier and wife, Dr. Thomas Spence and wife have been fishing here for rest and fishing. They left for home today after an enjoyable time.

WHEAT IS HIGHER

St. Louis Market Again Takes a Brace, Leading All Others.

Government Report Is Awaited—Flax Is Active and Lower.

Duluth Board of Trade, June 10.—The wheat market today was a dull affair with the trade seemingly waiting for the government report. There was a general sentiment that it will show damage sufficient to make higher wheat prices. The St. Louis market came down with some of its former spirit and closed with the best advance on all markets. The July there was up ⅞c and the September ⅝c, while in Chicago the July was only a shade higher and September ⅛c up. Minneapolis July was ⅝c up and September ¼c up, while Duluth was ¼c up for July and ¼-⅜c for September. New York July was up ¼c and September ⅝@¾.

The market started out firm and advanced steadily until about the noon hour, when it settled back somewhat, but at no time did it reach the closing prices of yesterday. The weather reports were not as favorable as might have been wished, some reports of northwestern frosts being disquieting. The local exporters are able to work a little Manitoba wheat for export every day, the markets being on a fair working basis. The eastern millers are also buying a little wheat in this market every day, though the amount is not large.

The Liverpool market closed ½d higher, Paris ¼ to ½c higher., Berlin ⅛c higher and Antwerp unchanged.

Primary receipts of wheat were 255,000 bus., last year 377,000 bus. Shipments 266,000 bus., last year 347,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour were 310,000 bus.

Receipts of wheat at Duluth and Minneapolis 291 cars and at Chicago 9; a total of 300 cars, against 263 last week and 385 last year.

Corn in the Liverpool market closed unchanged to ½c lower and in the Chicago market July corn was ½@¾c higher. July oats in Chicago declined ⅛c. Primary receipts of corn were 421,000 bus., last year 512,000 bus. Shipments 278,000 bus., last year 160,000 bus. Clearances of corn were 124,000 bus.

On the Duluth board trading in wheat was slow all morning. The July price opened with the same price bid as at the close yesterday, but it quickly sold upward and continued without a decline to 80⅝c, settling back after that to 80c and closing there, an advance for the day of ¾c. September was ½c higher.

Cash sales were 15,000 bushels and July price for No. 1 northern and 1½c under for No. 2 was paid.

Flax was active and weaker. July declining ½c to $1.11¾ and then closing at $1.11⅝. September and October declined only ½c.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat to arrive, No. 1 hard, 81c; No. 1 northern, 80c; No. 2 northern, 78½c; July, 80c; September, 72c; December, 71½c. Flax in store, $1.11¾; to arrive, $1.11⅝; on track, $1.11¾; July, $1.11⅝; September, $1.18⅝; October, $1.13½; November, $1.13⅝. Oats to arrive, 35¼-36c; on track, 35¼-36c. Rye to arrive, 51c; on track, 50½. Barley, 35@46c.

Cars inspected: Wheat, 15; last year, 2; oats, 4; barley, 1; flax, 92; last year, none. Receipts: Wheat, 25,567 bus; oats, 1407 bus; rye, 1345 bus; flax, 24,277 bus.

Shipments: Wheat, 170,204 bus; flax, 2388 bus.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Unfavorable Weather Caused Strong Opening In Wheat.

Chicago, June 10.—Wheat opened strong on unfavorable weather and on adverse crop reports with July ¼c higher at 76c. Shorts covered freely on prospects of a bullish government report and there was also a fair demand from commission houses and with light offerings the market held firm, prices showing little change the first hour. Minneapolis and Duluth reported 201 cars, which with local receipts of 9 cars, none of contract grade, made a total for the three points of 300 cars, against 263 cars last week and 188 cars a year ago.

Quietness prevailed the latter part of the day and the market was fairly steady. After selling up to 76¾c, July closed a shade higher at 75¾@7⅝c.

The unfavorable weather conditions was the main factor in causing a strong opening in corn, although cables were firm and receipts light and had some influence with traders. July was ¼c to ⅝c higher at the start, opening at 48¼c to 48⅝c, and the market held steady the early part of the session. Commission houses were the best buyers but the trading was small with offerings light. Local receipts were 240 cars, 8 of contract grade.

The close was steady with July ⅛@¼c higher at 48¼@⅜c.

Oats opened firm in sympathy with other grains and on unfavorable crop reports July being unchanged to ¼c higher at 36⅜ to 36¾. There were no features in the early trading and the volume of business was light. Local receipts were 97 cars.

A small run of hogs together with an advance of 10 to 15 cents in prices at the yards was responsible for a strong opening in provisions, and with a fair demand from brokers, the market held firm at the advance. September pork opened 12½ up at $16.55. September lard was up 5 to 7½c, at $9.00 to $9.02½, while ribs were up 2½@5 to 7½@10c at $9.27½ to $9.32½.

Close: Wheat—July, 75⅞@7⅝c; old, 76¼c; September, 75@75⅛c; old, 75¾@7⅝c; December, 77½c old, 75¾c. Corn—June, 48⅝@⅝c; July, 48¼@48⅜c; September, 47½c; December, 46⅝c; May, 46¾c. Oats—June, 36½c; July, 36⅜c; September, 33⅝c; December, 29¾c. Pork—July, $17.00; September, $16.85. Lard—July, $8.87½; September, $9.00; October, $8.80. Ribs—July, $9.37½@9.40; September, $9.30; October, $9.05. Rye—July, $1.02½@2c; September, 50⅝c. Flax—Cash, N. W., $1.12½; S. W., $1.10; July, $1.10½; September, $1.13. Timothy—June, $3.75. Clover—June, $11.50. Barley—Cash, 42@56c. Cash wheat—2 red, 76c; 3 red, 72@76c; 2 hard winter, 76c; 2 hard winter, 72@76c; 1 northern spring, 79c; 2 northern spring, 75@78c; 3 spring, 72@77c. Corn—2, 48¾@49c; 3, 48½@48¾c. Oats—2, 34½c; 3, 33½@34c.

GRAIN GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—The market here was very quiet. Dullness in cash situation and the approaching government report both tend to make a waiting market. In the meantime there is no much selling pressure on account of small stocks. We think the general feeling is that the government report will show a moderate lowering of the condition, possibly five to eight per cent. The weather west is generally favorable, although temperatures are low in the Northwest and hard frosts were reported in North Dakota. It is not thought this will have any unfavorable effect. Estimated cars 90.

Corn—This market was a little firmer on the cool weather. There was fair liquidation by some of the prominent local holders but on the whole the visible market was inactive and the volume of trade small. Country offerings are fair and the demand moderate. The government report on wheat and oats tends to make corn also a waiting market. There will be no report on corn. Estimated cars 320.

Oats—Market is quiet and steady. Further rains in the East, including New England, offset the effects of cool weather in the West and the strength in corn. There was also a selling through brokers that looked like liquidation through some of the local holders. It is thought the government report will be bullish but we are inclined to think it has been discounted. Estimated cars 90.

McQuillister, Chicago: With drouth in the East, killing frosts in North Dakota and floods in the Southwest and No. 1 northern wheat 2¾c premium over July and No. 2 red about ¾c premium over July option and September wheat about the same December about ½c over. It looks as if there was only one side to the market. Wheat bought on the soft spots should certainly bring money home.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, June 10.—Sentiment was still very nervous and unsettled in cotton this morning and early trading showed no lessening of activity. The market opened firm in tone at a decline of 7 points to an advance of 4 points under disappointing English cables. July sold as low as 12.08 and on the call, while August opened 3 points higher, September 1 point and October 2 points lower. For a few minutes the market ruled irregular and then was rallied sharply by continued firmness at New Orleans and a sharp upturn in Liverpool. There was a renewal of short covering, the bulls sending in buying orders and the near months were sent up with a rush. July reaching 12.25; August, 11.71, and September, 10.82. These being advances of 10, 16 and 8 points over yesterday's close.

Cotton spot closed 10 points higher; middling uplands, 12.50; middling gulf, 12.75; sales, 1000 bales. Cotton futures closed weak and unsettled. June, 12.00; July, 12.05; August, 11.64; September, 10.64; October, 9.86; November, 9.72; December and January, 9.64.

STOCKS ARE SMASHED UNDER HEAVY SALES

Some Stocks Touched a Lower Point Than In 1901.

Long Continued Rally In Prices After Noon Hour.

New York, June 10.—The stock market opened under a flood of liquidating sales thrown upon the market in enormous blocks and at wide quotations. Eight thousand shares of Atchison sold at 65 and 64¾, compared with 65¾ last night. Six thousand shares of Erie went at 29½ and 30, compared with 30¾ last night. Three thousand shares of Pennsylvania sold at 123½ and 123⅝, compared with 123¾ last night, and 3000 shares of U. S. Steel sold at 29 and 29¼, compared with 29⅝ last night. All of the leading active stocks among the trunk lines, coalers, Pacifics and grangers were dealt in in 1000 to 2000 share blocks at declines of a point or over. Louisville and Nashville slumped 3¾, Erie second preferred 2¾, Southern Pacific, 2½, Kansas & Texas, 1⅝, and Pressed Steel Car 1⅜. There was a quick rally of 2 points in Louisville & Nashville, a point in Southern Pacific and higher prices on steel and quotations elsewhere. The flood conditions at St. Louis and notable depressions in the London market were features in the heavy selling.

The smash at the opening was taken advantage of by the shorts to cover and there were substantial recoveries which brought Pennsylvania, Baltimore & Ohio, Missouri Pacific a shade over last night. New York Central and Amalgamated were lifted to best night's level and the Pacifics, Atchison and the Erie gained a fraction. Northwestern ex. dividend sold 2¼ over last night. As soon as it was perceived that the buying was decreasing at the rally, the pressure to liquidate was renewed and by 11 o'clock new low records were being established. Missouri Pacific broke through par to 99¾. Declines in Norfolk & Western reached 2½, Erie first preferred, 2¾, Canadian Pacific 1⅞, and Atchison, Union Pacific, St. Louis Southwestern, Brooklyn Transit and other active issues 1 to 2. Wheeling and Lake Erie first and second preferred and railroad investment preferred lost over 4. Brooklyn Union Gas, 3¾, Pere Marquette 3⅛, New Jersey Central and Canada Southern 2¾, and some other minor stocks 2 points.

The market continued nervous and excited and the occasional rallies seemed to be due only to quick profit taking by room shorts. The higher prices were made the basis for renewed liquidation. Prices during the second hour went lower than before. Baltimore & Ohio touched 75½, Chesapeake & Ohio 35¾, Atchison 63¾, Wabash 20, St. Paul 147½, Union Pacific 77, Erie 28⅜, Reading 41⅝, Ontario & Western 21¾, Illinois Central 130½, Southern Railroad 21, United States Steel 28⅜, the preferred 75⅜ and so on. There were many declines of 3 to 5 points in the inactive list, Pittsburg, C. C. & St. Louis broke 15, and rallied 5. Northern Securities sold below 86 on the curb. The speculative leaders rallied 1 to 1½ at noon. Bonds were very weak at noon.

The rally in prices after the noon hour was long continued and was a counterpart in many respects of that following the opening, as it was most effective in pretty much the same stocks. St. Paul, Missouri Pacific, Union Pacific, Canadian Pacific, Rock Island, Baltimore & Ohio, Norfolk & Western, Pennsylvania, Reading, Atchison, Sugar and People's Gas got back to yesterday's close or only a small fraction below, while Amalgamated sold 1¾ and New York Central ¾ above. The general run of stocks ruled a point or two above the lowest. Liquidation continued in some of the dormant stocks.

The suspension of the recent selling pressure at the higher levels led to the further uplifting of prices which more than cancelled the forenoon's lossets in many stocks. Atchison got up to 65, St. Paul to 149½, New York Central to 129 and Pennsylvania to 124⅝. Selling was also pretty well checked in the minor stock and some notable rallies were made. Lake Erie & Western perferred advanced 2½, Cleveland, Columbus, Cincinnati & St. Louis dropped 2 points, Metropolitan 2½ and Detroit United Railway 5. Prices were running off rapidly again at 2 o'clock.

The market became feverish and nervous again. The relapse after 2 o'clock was sudden and carried a few stocks to the lowest, but there was vigorous support again. Several movements up and down followed on light dealings. Hocking Valley and Long Island fell 3 and Colorado & Southern 2. Then Missouri Pacific gave way to 99 and Rock Island 61¾. The weight of offerings included Atchison back to the morning's level and other stocks within a fraction. Feverish fluctuations made the close unsettled.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market is still nervous and unsettled. There is still raiding by the bears and scattered liquidation, but on the other hand there is a much better investment buying in standard stocks. Indefinite rumors of trouble of some important house still curb the market, but so far nothing has developed. We think good stocks should be bought. We recommend Atchison, preferred, Baltimore & Ohio, Pennsylvania, New York Central, Missouri Pacific, Union Pacific, Illinois Central and Steel all as good investments at present prices. We believe these properties are worth the money and the prices will come back.

* * *

Ridgley to W. H. Laidley & Co.: There are indications that the bear market is near an end. It is unlikely that stocks, such as Pennsylvania, St. Paul, T. C. I. and Amalgamated will sell much lower. Never in the past five years have I been more certain than now that the market is about to have a substantial advance. Conditions look pretty bad, but it is obvious that big men are going to put things in the worst possible light while they are buying stocks just as the bull conditions are exagerated when they want to sell. Of course, they do not want all their stocks at the bottom, if prices go lower they buy more. I only know that the big men are buying now. We have to guess the rest. I think stocks will be a buy this morning for keeps.

* * *

Strong, Sturgis & Co. to B. E. Baker: There is unquestioned evidence that stocks are going into strong hands on declines, but while selling continues so heavy on part of powerful bears parties as well as those forced to liquidate, the buying will not be of sufficient volume to check recessions in prices.

* * *

Town Topics: A feature which stands out prominently in reviewing yesterday's market is that for the first time during the big decline the bull party endeavored to test the metal of the bears which promptly consolidated its various divisions and overwhelmed the opposition. Sharp rallies are getting more and more frequent and this is the surest sign that the end of the bear campaign is drawing near. While it seems likely that lower prices will occur today in the general market our information leads to the belief that another determined effort will be made to check the onslaught. The uncertainty with regard to the government crop report to be published this afternoon of course favors the operations of the bears, but if they are successful in depressing prices further it is quite probable they will immediately cover for fear the crop report may not be as bad as forecasted.

* * *

F. M. Dick to Paine, Webber & Co.: The days preceeding May 9, 1901 made the conservative man look foolish. The street was humming with bull points and wild bull speculation was in force. Two years have elapsed and we find the same forces which were being used to advance prices are being used with equal strength to depress. When announcements are made before ten o'clock in the morning that certain stocks are to be put down, it is usually the beginning of the end. It is against common sense in Wall street to make money easily. The London market has been depressed this morning, but we believe that the selling comes from New York. It is very hard to take a position on the bull side, but we believe that this the one that will win out.

* * *

New York to Coe Commission Co.: It is said that an offer has been made to the Pittsburg syndicate that they underwrite the $75,000,000 new Pennsylvania railroad stock at 120 by an important financial interest t otake over any part or all of these issues. It is estimated that with its present holdings the possession of new stock would probably give this interest control of the road. The identity of the interest who seek control is not disclosed but rumor attributed such a desire to a group of powerful financiers, including the Rockefellers. Gould interests in connection was further emphasized that the Pennsylvania that the proposed purchasers have offered to take stock at 6 per cent over the syndicate price.

* * *

C. E. Lewis to B. E. Baker: Stocks are rallying again and may hold a day or two but are a sale on all bulges.

* * *

New York to Coe Commission Co.: A terrific cotton squeeze finished by the W. P. Brown clique helped demoralize the stock market yesterday. It was the worst day yet experienced in the disastrous history of the decline, which the street had begun to hope was over. New low records were established generally while stocks slumped cotton soared. Spot cotton jumped 50 points and the two options which the Brown clique are cornering made almost the same advance. The closing hour was wildest of the day. The cotton squeeze was responsible for liquidation of stocks. A great demand for money was created, and this affected the stock prices.

* * *

Chicago Record-Herald: The Standard Oil crowd have bought Amalgamated Copper in the last three or four days and to have taken more from St. Paul. The scattered short interest on the street is said now to be the largest on record. Many houses whose customers never sold stocks short have many short accounts on their books. A story was current in the street that a new and powerful bull pool had been formed in the United States Steel.

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: The Chronicle says: "The prices of standard railroad stocks have declined from 30 to 40 points, those of industrials from 20 to 50 points. This is certainly a discounting of possible contraction in trade if there ever was a discounting. At present prices we are selling at or largely below their intrinsic value."

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: We get the following message from the head of one of the prominent Wall street house: "The writer is in close touch with all the large financial institutions in the street. I think what danger may have been hanging over the market in the way of possible trouble has been averted."

COPPER GOSSIP.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market closed weak as a result of heavy and continued liquidation. Looks as though there was still more to be sold and we would see lower prices for a few days. We think advantages should be taken of rallies to sell on. Coppers held fairly firm throubhout the day and on drives should be bought.

* * *

Clark, Dodge & Co. to Paine, Webber & Co.: We hear copper is selling at 14½c, which is very satisfactory.

In every city there is one paper favored by local advertisers. In Duluth it is The Herald.

CONTROLS TRADE

Steel Trust Is Master of the Ore-Carrying Trade.

Boats Are Unloaded While Others Have Tedious Waits.

Absolute control of the ore-carrying trade of the lakes is said by well-informed shippers to be an accomplished fact for the steel trust.

It is claimed by shippers that the boats of the independent owners have been suffering lengthy and numerous delays in unloading at the ore docks in the lake Erie ports while the boats of the steel trust have been receiving quick dispatch.

The steel corporation owns enough vessels to enable it to control the ore-carrying trade and make whatever rate it pleases at the opening of the season.

At the opening of navigation this spring the trust announced a rate of $5 cents for ore from the head of the lakes. The increase of 10 cents was supposed to cover the increased cost in fuel and wages. Later a cut of 5 cents in the rate was made and is generally credited to the steel trust.

"Our coal mills are $120 a trip higher this year than they were last," said a prominent marine man in discussing the situation, "and there is an increase of about 20 per cent in the cost of labor. If the individual boats were given quick dispatch it might be a living rate, but with the way the boats are failing over themselves in their endeavors to get unloaded you can see how we are going to come out.

"The individual furnace man cannot pay more than the trust rate for, of course, he has to compete with the trust in selling his product. The outlook is anything but promising for the individual vessel owner on the lakes."

STEAMER SUIT SOLD.

The negotiations for the purchase of the steamer Suit have been completed and she has been transferred to Schuneso Bros. of Chicago, to be used in transferring freight from Chicago to South Chicago. She is now loading lumber here for her down trip.

COAL CARGOES ACTIVE.

Coal cargoes continue to arrive in large numbers, eight having reached the harbor during the past twenty-four hours. Many are experiencing delays in unloading and the detention promises to become greater during the week as a large fleet is on the way.

FAIR DEMAND FOR VESSELS.

Chicago, June 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—There was a fair inquiry for vessels to take grain at 1¾ cents for corn, and several charters will be made before night.

THE NEWAYGO STRANDED.

Sault Ste. Marie, June 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—The steamer Newaygo, up bound with coal, stranded just after passing through the cut at Hay lake. Her cargo must be lightered.

The barge Henry Bissell, after lightering about 300,000 feet of

LEADER OF A GANG

James King, Convicted Murderer, Led Band of Counterfeiters.

Blast at Nashwauk Throws Up Shower of Bogus Dollars.

Serving a life sentence in Stillwater for murder, James King, is now believed to have been the leader of a gang of counterfeiters that distributed bad dollars freely in the Iron range towns a few years ago.

A dynamite blast at the shack formerly occupied by King, near Nashwauk, scattered silver dollars in all directions Tuesday and it is believed that nearly $1,000 in cleverly counterfeited coin was unearthed by the explosion.

The counterfeiting gang of which secret service men had a suspicion that King was the leader was broken up in the winter of 1897-98, after making a big killing on both ranges.

King was arrested, brought to this city, tried, convicted and served fifteen months for counterfeiting in prison. When he was released he became an ordinary woodsman and always claimed Hibbing as his home.

During the tournament of firemen at Hibbing two years ago he got on a big drunk and for several days was something of a terror. He finally wound up by walking into a saloon and shooting William Carson, the bartender.

He was tried here for murder and convicted, receiving a life sentence, and is now serving that sentence in the state penitentiary. He is something of a mystery, claiming to have withheld his right name from the authorities to save connecting scandal with a prominent family in New York. He has never given the slightest information that would lead the authorities to establish the identity of his family.

A yellow journal in New York ran a long story about him more than a year and a half ago, mentioning the mystery as to his family connection, and ever since the local authorities have been receiving letters from heartbroken mothers all over the state of New York, apprehensively asking for information concerning the murderer and counterfeiter and fearing that he was a long-lost son.

TRUSTED TO THE WEATHER

Servant That Stole Winter Clothing Made a Mistake.

O cook-lady, in our hours of ease, scarce, high-priced, uncertain and hard to please; what prospect does the future hold for folks when your attack's so bold?

A new and bewildering phase seems developing in the ever-changing and always-puzzling servant girl problem.

Within the past week or two several cook-ladies, a couple of second maids and a maid-of-all-work that didn't seem to be made of any, have been taken in custody for inhabiting glad clothing in which they had no legal interest.

A real dainty person possessing the physical asset of blonde beauty, gently frou-froued into the municipal court this morning and in a velvety chiffon voice, slightly moist, admitted that instead of strictly attending to certain gastronomic needs of the family where she last worked, she had taken sundry valuable articles of wearing apparel.

She also pleaded guilty to the name of Alice Kronwall, and it was decided that she should either pay a fine of $99 and costs or remain in jail for thirty days.

A moment or so after sentence had been passed a large gentleman friend hove in sight with a large roll of real money. He paid the cook-lady's fine.

The servant had been employed in the family of M. Kelly, 606 East Second street, until very recently. When members of the family missed certain articles of winter wear that had been laid away for the summer but desired again for use during the current weather, suspicion fell on the Kronwall person.

Detective Terry, good-looking and equipped with a thoroughly modern, double-action search warrant, visited her apartments on Mesaba avenue yesterday afternoon and found the missing clothing. He then went to the home of a prominent lawyer where Alice Kronwall was working and arrested her.

The woman smiled blithesomely when confronted with the charge, and explained that she supposed the family from which she had taken the clothing would not miss them till next winter—And she joined the large and constantly growing chorus that are knocking Duluth's summer weather.

New York, June 10.—The United States circuit court of appeals handed down an opinion reversing the finding of the United States district court, which declared forfeited the $15,000 pearl necklace imported by Mrs. L. QUEER REASON FOR STRIKE

Railroad Employes Mix Up In Civil Affairs.

Huntington, W. Va., June 10.—Twelve hundred employes at the Chesapeake & Ohio railroad shops in this city, which includes even the office force, struck today, the cause being perhaps the oddest ever known. William Davis, a carpenter employed by the Chesapeaks & Ohio, and who is a member of the city council, recently voted along with a majority of the council to take from Mayor C. M. Buck authority to name the standing committees for the coming year, this being the termination of a fight between the mayor and chief of police. Policemen appointed by the mayor were discharged and others named contrary to his wishes. Mayor Buck, being a member of the Blacksmiths' union, his fellow-laborers demanded that Davis be discharged. The Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad company refused, hence the strike.

Wardner's admission that he deserved punishment came after an elaborate "insanity defense."

STREAK OF COLOR

Superior and First Streets Are to Be Handsomely Decorated.

Stores Will Decorate In Honor of the Traveling Men.

Superior street and First street will be two streaks of colors Friday and Saturday, when the traveling men's convention is in progress.

The places of business along the line of march for the industrial parade will be liberally and copiously decorated with the colors of the order, blue, white and old gold, vast quantities of which, in bunting and other decorations, are displayed in the show windows of some of the local stores.

The convention is going to bring a large crowd here, and this means business for many of the merchants, who will show their appreciation of this by lavishly decorating their stores in honor of the visitors. Assurances have been received by the committee that practically every building along the line will be decorated.

The work of providing sleeping accommodations for the visitors is going ahead nicely. Every day Secretary Eva, of the Commercial club, receives a large number of responses from residents having rooms which they are willing to rent during the occasion, but there is need of many more rooms than have yet been provided, and so many people are expected that there is little danger of there being more rooms than are needed. The list of rooms that is being prepared now will be needed frequently during the summer, as the excursions come to town.

The industrial parade is assuming large proportions every day, as store after store announces its intention of getting into line with it. Nearly every prominent business house of the city has notified the Commercial club that it will be on hand Saturday afternoon with a float of some description, and the line of march will be very fully representative of the industries of the city.

The vanguard of the convention is here already, as traveling men have begun to adjust their runs so as to get into Duluth in time for the meeting. The large crowds will begin to arrive tomorrow night, and there will be a lot of them in the city during tomorrow evening. Friday morning, before business begins, most of the delegates will be here, though a few will scatter along in all through Friday and Saturday.

Many will be the ladies traveling men and their friends and families. Very attractive excursion rates have been offered, and hundreds of people will take advantage of them to view the Zenith City.

The local lodge of Elks will keep "open house" for the visiting traveling men who come to Duluth to attend the U. C. T. convention. Thursday evening the Elks will entertain the visitors at a social session in the Elks hall. The local lodge has already established an enviable reputation in the line of entertainments and the committee in charge promises that the program tomorrow evening will prove true to form to the rule. The festivities will begin promptly at 8:30 o'clock and will end when finished. "Refreshments will be served for man and beast."

HEAVY FROST PREDICTED

Weather Man Says There May Be a Sharp One Tonight.

There is a possibility that a killing frost will be handed out to Duluthians by the weather man tonight.

Low temperatures are reported throughout the Dakotas and Western Minnesota. At Langdon a temperature of 30 was reported, while the thermometer registered 32 at Pembina.

The head of the lakes may escape, although the surrounding country will experience one or two degrees of frost before morning.

"Frost is not infrequent in June," said Mr. Richardson, of the weather bureau, "but it is very seldom that a killing frost is reported this late in the year."

It is not thought that the wheat in the Dakotas will shuffer much from the frost, being too far advanced in growth. Several degrees of frost would be necessary to do any noticeable damage.

P. W. HEWINS DIES SUDDENLY

Officer of Massachusetts Real Estate Company Expires.

Word was received in the city today of the sudden death of Porte W. Hewins, treasurer and chief executive officer of the Massachusetts Real Estate company, at Boston Saturday night.

Mr. Hewins was in Duluth June 1 and 2, looking over the local holdings of the company, which are considerable. He returned to Boston Friday, and Saturday evening, about 8:30, he was to take a train for Taunton, N. J. He fell dead from heart disease while walking from the hotel to his carriage. He was about 40 years of age, and was well known here, having visited this city frequently.

Word of his death was received by J. L. Cromwell, the local agent of the company.

REPORT ON CROPS

Government Reduces Winter Wheat Average 10.4 Points From May.

Spring Wheat Condition 95.9 With an Acreage of 17,257,000.

The government crop report for which the grain trade has been waiting anxiously for several days because of the damage reports that have been coming in an avalanche from the Southwest was issued this afternoon.

The condition of winter wheat is given at 82.2. This is a decline from the May report of 10.4 points and is more than the trade looked for.

A Chicago report this afternoon says that with an average of 33,107,000 acres, that given in the May report, and a condition of 82.2, there should be a crop of 449,000,000 bushels of winter wheat, figuring 16 1-2 bushels to the acre as perfect. The Chicago gossip also adds that the report is several points lower than had been looked for. A condition of 85 was about what was anticipated.

The spring wheat condition is placed at 95.9, a high figure. The acreage is placed at 17,257,000 bushels.

The condition of oats is placed at 85, against 90.6 a month ago.

WOULD HAVE PARADE ALSO

Fair Association Anxious For One During Fair Week.

The industrial parade, such as will be held on First and Superior streets, Saturday in connection with the U. C. T. convention, is a very popular idea and Northern Minnesota and St. Louis county Agricultural, Mechanical and Industrial Fair association contemplates having a similar feature in connection with the big fair to be held in this city August 20. The following letter addressed by Secretary Thomas E. Hill, of the fair association, was received by Secretary Eva of the Commercial club today:

"The board of directors of our fair association would be pleased to have a similar industrial parade to that given by the merchants of Duluth on the 13th inst., at the fair grounds, Aug. 20, at which time we expect to have a large concourse of people present who will appreciate such a display.

"This invitation is extended now in order that our merchants may save their floats and street exhibits for that occasion if the proposition meets with favor."

Several bids for material and construction work on the Lake Superior harbor improvements hase just been awarded by the government. The Clyde Iron works, of this city, has secured the contract for the concrete mixer at the Marquette work, and Lipsett & St. Clair, of Marquette, have been awarded the contract to furnish broken stone for the concrete work at the same point, at $1.80 per cubic yard, delivered.

The H. D. Porter Co., of Pittsburg, Pa., has secured the contract for a small locomotive to be used for the new south pier work at Superior entry. The engine cost the government $2950.

Bids for the breakwater and for revetment repairs at the Portage Lake canal, at Houghton, Mich., were opened today in Maj. Lansing H. Reach's office. There were two bidders, the bids being as follows:

Whitney Bros., of West Superior, 200 tons of derrick stone at $2 per ton; 600 tons of smaller stone at $1.70 per ton; revetment repairs complete, $200.

Powell & Mitchell, of Marquette, Mich., derrick stone at $2.74 per ton; small stone at $2.74 per ton; revetment repairs complete, $286.17.

New York, June 10.—Dr. E. P. Host, once one of the best known dentists in New York and who accumulated a large fortune, is dead. He retired twenty years ago and devoted his fortune to the aid of poor persons to recover their health in the Adirondacks. He built hospitals and churches at many points in the mountains for the purpose of furthering his objects.

TESTIMONY TAKEN

Commissioner Pressnell Hearing Evidence In Hadley-Wilson Case.

Will Come Before Judge Morris For Trial Next Month.

Testimony is being taken today, before United States Commissioner Pressnell, in the petition of William P. Read, owner of the steamer Hadley, which collided with the Wilson of the Pittsburg Seamship company's fleet last June, sinking the latter, to limit his liability for the accident.

The case is to come up for trial, before Judge Morris of the United States district court, next month, and the testimony of a number of different witnesses of the accident is being taken before United States commissioners at various points on the lakes. At Cleveland the testimony of several of the crew has been taken, and the story of the accident was told this morning by H. G. Inman, local manager for the Great Lakes Towing company; Capt. Jaques of the tug Annie M. Smith, which took the Hadley her orders, and Engineer Perry of the same tug.

C. E. Kremer, of Chicago, is acting as attorney for the owners of the Hadley, and H. R. Spencer, Alexander Marshall, of Duluth, and Herman A. Kelly, of Cleveland, are acting for the Pittsburg Seamship company.

The case will probably the first one tried by Judge Morris after assuming his position as federal judge. The story of the collision is well known. It resulted in the blame for the Wilson, which still lies at the bottom of the lake, about a half mile off the mouth of the canal, and serious damage to the Hadley, which was only prevetned from sinking by being run on shore.

Suits were brought against the Hadley, which was blamed for the accident, by relatives of several members of the crew who lost their lives by the collision, and by the owners of the Wilson. The petition to limit the liabilities of the owner of the Hadley was the result of the large number of suits which was brought, and on the decision handed down by Judge Morris will hinge several personal damage suits, in addition to the one brought by the Pittsburg Seamship company.

RACES ARE POSTPONED

Rain and Lack of Wind Again Defers Defender Trials.

New York, June 10.—At 8:50 o'clock this morning it was doubtful whether the yachts Reliance, Constitution and Columbia would race today, as the fog was so thick that it was impossible to see more than fifty yards from the tower at Highlands.

Up to today the yachts have been racing under the management of the regatta commitee of the New York Yacht club, and for prizes offered by that club. An invitation of the Atlantic Yacht club was accepted for today, this being the first of four races arranged by other yacht clubs in which the three cup yachts will participate this season.

The conditions to govern today's race, however, were similar to those arranged by the New York Yacht club, the start and finish being at Sandy Hook lightship, the first gun to be fired at 11:30 a. m., and the course the same as arranged for the regular cup contests.

At 11:30, Sandy Hook reported that the sun was dispelling the fog, while the wind was fresh, east-northeast, and indicating an ideal condition for the trial. By noon all three racers were under way for the starting point at Sandy Hook lightship. The fog had lifted somewhat and the wind was blowing 12 knots an hour.

The yachts had all reached the lightship at 1:30, but the wind had decreased so that they moved very slowly under sail. The light winds and the approach rain storm made it doubtful that a race would be sailed today.

At 2:55 the race was called off, a downpour of rain and lack of wind making it impossible for the yachts to sail today.

CONFESSES TO MURDER.

Kaskaskia, Mich., June 10.—Prosecutor Smith announced at noon today that Mrs. Mary McKnight has confessed to the poisoning of her brother, John Murphy, and his wife and baby. The prosecutor said Mrs. McKnight confessed voluntarily to him last night that she administered strychnine to Baby Murphy, Gertrude Murphy and John Murphy.

PRACTICAL DEVICE

That Transmits Writing or Drawings By Telephone.

Not since the first message was flashed over the first telegraph wire or the first greeting exchanged over the first telephone has Uncle Sam issued letters patent for an invention which promises so much to the business world as those issued a month or two ago to Herr Ernst Karl Gruhn for an instrument which he calls a "Telechirograph," says the Brooklyn Eagle. The telechirograph is precisely, what its name implies, a device which transmits over an ordinary telephone wire, the written message, as well as the spoken, and which transmits not merely the message, but the handwriting of the sender, even as a good telephone transmits not merely the words, but the voice of the speaker.

The telechirograph is to the telephone what the telautograph promised to be to the telegraph when it startled the world with its possibilities. But it IS, while the telautograph merely promised to be. While the latter has so far proved of little practical value, because it has not as yet conquered distance, at least not any distance worth the conquering, the telechirograph has been used successfully over a two hundred mile circuit, and there seems no logical reason why it should not be used with equal success over a two thousand mile circuit, when such an one comes into general commercial use.

It is a wonderful thing that the contents of a little wooden box about the size of an ordinary office typewriter should be able to do all this, but they are. The invention consists of a transmitting and receiving apparatus united to a single instrument. It reproduces the handwriting of the individual down to its minutest idiosyncrasy. By its use a man in New York can draw his check on a bank in Chicago and have it cashed within a few minutes of signing. It carries the written word wherever the telephone carries the spoken word. If "Mr. Jones is out," Mr. Brown can write his message, as secure that Jones will get it when he returns as if he had stood at Jones' door and written it on a slate left for that purpose—in fact, more secure, for the slate is exposed to any mischievous passerby, while the telechirograph message is not.

The transmitter is enough on the principle of the telephone to be easily understood by the people. It consists of a metallic pencil holder, to which are connected two wires, each being part of an independent closed electric circuit. When not in use the pencil lies in a rest which opens a switch breaking both circuits—very much as the "receiver" hangs in a rest on the ordinary telephone, and by its weight opens the switch and breaks the current. When taken out of the rest the switch is closed and the current thus set in motion lights a small incandescent lamp in the receiving instrument and the apparatus is then ready for use.

In the end of the metallic pencil is placed an ordinary piece of pencil lead, which plays slightly in and out. The writing may be done on any pad or piece of paper that is handy. The pressure of the pencil on it in writing closes an electric circuit in the metallic interior of the pencil holder. For convenience there is an arrangement such as tradesmen use in writing purchase slips, which shows a square of paper in a tablet of slate, on which the desired message may be written. The up and down motion of the pencil in writing sets in action what electricians call the ordinate current, and the left to right motion starts the so-called abscissa or horizontal motion current.

In the ordinary motions of the hand in writing both currents are called into play in a greater or less degree. If the pencil is placed at the extreme top of the pad the minimum degree of intensity in the ordinate current is produced, and if placed at the bottom of the pad the maximum degree of intensity. Similarly, if the pencil be pressed on the extreme left of the pad, the minimum degree of intensity in the abscissa current, and the maximum if pressed on the extreme right of the pad. The currents thus affected are what are known as closed or continuous, being the same used in the telephone, as distinguished from the open circuits used in the Morse telegraph.

The same amount or amperage and the same intensity or voltage of current as is used in the telephone will serve for the telechirograph. Any current which will transmit the sound waves of the voice in speaking will equally transmit the muscular pressure of the hand in writing or drawing. A third or return wire is necessary to complete the circuit for the vertical and horizontal motion currents.

So much for the transmitter. In the receiver there is a small mirror supported on three points, two of which are movable, so that the mirror can be turned or rocked at any angle. In the back of the mirror are two magnets controlled respectively by the horizontal and vertical motion currents above described. The light from the lamp passed through a concentrating lens produces a compact bundle or pencil of light rays, which fall on the mirror. The mirror, in response to the magnets, moves in exact correspondence with the movements of the pencil at the other end. The ray of light deflected upon a strip of sensitized photographic paper, follows the movements of the writer's hand and produces on the sensitized film an exact fac simile of the pencil markings at the transmitting instrument.

When the message is completed the metallic pencil is put back in its rest at the transmitting instrument and the circuit is broken. In the receiving instrument the light goes out and an electric motor operated by an independent battery in the receiving instrument is set in motion. This motor operates a train of wheels or rollers which draw the portion of the film written upon by the light ray through a developing bath and out again through a pair of rubber drying rolls so that the completed message is delivered about thirty-five seconds after the sender replaces the metallic pencil in its rest. The entire apparatus is contained in a polished hard wood box 13x12x15 inches.

Also it does not confine itself to reproducing writing. It reproduces drawing as well. One sees in fancy some Sherlock Holmes of the future, desiring to advise his lieutenant to watch for a certain criminal, sitting down in front of the transmitter and drawing a picture of said criminal, that his lieutenant may know at once the appearance of the man for whom he is to watch. Particularly one sees the energetic newspaper artist, who knows that the mail will not deliver his sketch "in time for the first edition," or who even knows that he cannot himself reach the office in time, sitting down before a telechirograph and telephoning in his picture—"by our artist on the spot." Of course, it needs development, but it seems to be capable of almost unlimited development.

The man who has made this thing? He is young; he is German. Some thirty-two years ago he was born in Silesia. In due time he studied at and graduated from the technical high school at Charlottenberg. For three years he devoted himself, day and night, to first of solving the problem of a recording telephone. Many times the solution seemed almost within his grasp, when some unexpected difficulty arose. Finally it was done, and, like everything else, it seemed so amazingly simple once one knew how!

About a year ago the German patents were secured. But Herr Gruhn was poor —poor as Job's turkey, or as the traditional inventor. He succeeded, however, in interesting Otto F. Herzka, a manufacturing chemist of Dresden, with whose aid the Kopier Telegraph Geselschaft was organized, to make and sell the telechirograph on that side of the mill pond.

Mr. Herzka put the matter in the hands of his brother, Max Herzka, of 190 Broadway, Brooklyn, for exploitation in America. Max Herzka made a trip to Germany and brought back with him several sample instruments, and the inventor. The latter speaks not a word of English, but he got his American patents in November, 1902, and arrangements were at once begun to have the thing made and put on the market in the United States.

A company has been set on foot with headquarters in the offices of Thomas F. Fitzhugh Lee, counsel for the company, as wel las one of its controlling officers. Whether they will make the apparatus and put it on the market themselves is still uncertain. They have received already several flattering offers, from some of the few capitalists who have heard of the invention. So far it has been kept pretty quiet. But the capitalists naturally want to buy the American rights outright, and Messrs. Gruhn, Herzka and Lee are by no means certain that they care to relinquish their interest in what promises to prove a gold mine. But whoever develops it and places it on the market, and in time, improves it, as it doubtless will be improved, it is going to be a big thing for business men to be able to record telephone conversations, and it is going to add tremendously to the already tremendous utility of the telephone in business.

SCARCITY OF DRINKING WATER AT ST. LOUIS

Is Causing Suffering and Sickness Is Feared.

Flood Situation Remains About the Same.

St. Louis, June 11.—The situation in East St. Louis remains about the same for last night. The flood on the south is still being held back at Missouri avenue, where the levee is watched unceasingly, as elsewhere, by workers ready with bags of sand to stop any break that may occur. A decline in the river's stage of a fraction of an inch since last night does not make any apparent difference in the height of the flood, but shows that the river has a tendency to fall. The stage at 7 a. m. was 37.9. This may relieve the situation greatly during the day if the fall continues, but until there is a decided decline in the flood the city will be at the mercy of the wall of water that surrounds it on three sides.

The night was cold for this time of the year and there was considerable suffering as a result among the thousands of homeless persons on the east side, most of whom, however, were taken care of in comparative comfort in tents and other modes of shelter.

Lack of drinking water is one of the worst annoyances experienced by the East St. Louisans who were caught in the second stories of their dwellings by the flood. Many are compelled to drink of the water that surrounds them on all sides and much sickness is likely to result if this continues.

Congressman W. A. Rodenburg, who has charge of the rescue work in East St. Louis, sent hundreds of men out early with boats through the submerged district, taking off people from the second stories and roofs of houses and removing them to places of safety.

Three thousand flood refugees from Venice, Madison, Granite City and East St. Louis are being sheltered and cared for in St. Louis. Fully 2000 of these were provided for by various charitative associations working in conjunction with the merchants' exchange relief committee, while the remainder have found places in the homes of relatives and friends.

Government tender No. 3, manned by a crew of Wiggins ferry employes, brought 300 refugees from the flood district of East St. Louis today. Several hundred others were brought over in different ways.

East St. Louis, June 11.—"Not one person has been drowned by the inundation of this city," said Chief of Police Purdy today. "Several persons have fallen from rafts and from over-turned boats, and been drowned by accident, but not a life has been lost by the inundating water. If all the dykes surrounding East St. Louis were to break at once today there would be no loss of life and the city would not be flooded in the residential district, while there would not be more than two feet of water in the business portion.

People have been so thoroughly warned that they would escape from the most dangerous places at the first menace of danger, and even if the water came in it could not come in an overwhelming deluge. However, the dikes are more than sufficient to protect the city from damage and the crisis is over. The impression has gone abroad that martial law has been proclaimed. I want to assert that martial law has not been proclaimed and will not be. We are amply able to preserve order in the ordinary police manner and although there are the militia men here the soldiers are under my direct orders and are simply doing police duty."

East St. Louis, which has for a week been thrown into a turmoil, is rapidly regaining normal conditions in the business districts not under water, although it will be weeks before the effect of the flood is offset. In order to prevent curious outsiders from idly collecting in the city and to protect exposed property from thieves the police department issued passes by the hundred to accredited citizens. No others are allowed to pass into or from the city without a special permit. It is impossible to get water today except on an official order signed by the city clerk. This measure was taken by the mayor and in order to protect waste of the scant supply of usable water.

Water is still seeping through Broadway but that thoroughfare, which is made of ground, still holds and it is believed will not break.

THEY SAW JETT

Witnesses Testify That He Came Out of Court-house.

Captain Ewen Makes Queer Statement Concerning Case.

Jackson, Ky., June 11.—The crowd at the court house was much larger today. The soldiers brought Curtis Jett and Thomas White from the jail and guarded them in court. Jett was as confident as ever and White more despondent. White's mother is with him and constantly begging him to tell the whole truth. Miss Sarah Hargis, daughter of the county judge, was today again seated beside the defendants.

Miss Laura Rawlings, clerk in Day Bros'. store, testified that she saw Jett come from the side door of the court house just after the shooting of Marcum. A severe cross-examination could not shake her in her statement. Seldum Back testified the same as Miss Rawlings, averring that he saw Jett come from the side door after the shooting.

Henry Hurst, Marcum's brother-in-law was at the postoffice at the time of the shooting and he testified to what he saw after he reached the court house.

Louisville, Ky., June 11.—A special to the Evening Post from Jackson, Ky., says: Capt. B. J. Ewen stated today to State Inspector Hines, who is Governor Beckham's personal representative here, that he (Ewen) was offered five $1000 bills to testify in the Jett case, that he was excited immediately after the shooting and did not remember whether he saw Jett or not. For his better protection, Capt. Ewen was this morning taken to the military camp where he will be guarded for the present.

PASSENGER TRAFFIC BADLY MIXED IN FLOODED DISTRICT

Travelers Out of St. Louis Are Obliged to Catch Most of Their Trains From Illinois Side—Situation However, Is Slowly Improving.

St. Louis, June 11.—Except for westbound traffic, railroad passengers are not beginning their journeys from union station during the flood time, but are starting from various points on the Illinois side of the Mississippi.

Western passenger trains from St. Louis are gradually resuming normal condition. There are still delays and irregular running, but all western bound trains of the various lines are moving.

The Missouri Pacific, which is the only line running through to Kansas City and other points on its own track is practically making schedule time.

The Missouri, Kansas & Texas is running on the Missouri Pacific tracks to Sedalia, where it connects with its own tracks to Moberly and then uses the Missouri Pacific tracks.

For the first time in a number of days the Wabash last night started out a through sleeper to New York. The sleeper was routed to Moberly and thence to Hannibal and thence by its own road East.

East bound traffic, however, is facing a different situation. Passengers for the Chicago & Alton, Burlington, Big Four and Wabash will find their trains at Alton after arriving at Alton by boat. So Baltimore & Ohio Southwestern start trains from Cote station, which is reached by street car from East St. Louis. The Vandalia passengers take the street car from East St. Louis to Collinsville, where an accommodation train will carry them to Effingham where they will connect with Vandalia trains.

Passengers for points south on the Illinois Central go to Belleville, Ill., over the P. & O. Southwestern road and connect with the Illinois Central there.

The Southern railroad and L. & N. roads are taking passengers from a point as near the relay station in East St. Louis as possible.

The Clover Leaf is taking aboard passengers at Edwardsville. No terminus for the Mobile & Ohio has yet been arranged and no traffic is going out over that road from here.

MANY BRICKLAYERS MAY STRIKE

New York, June 11.—The first general strike of bricklayers and city has seen in twenty years, is now threatened. There are 8000 man belonging to the eight unions. The latter originally demanded of all the employers an increase from 65 to 70 cents an hour and that all men should join the union. After some exchanges, the first demand was withdrawn. The employers have now refused to have their foremen become unionists, and at a meeting of the eight lodges, it has been decided to press both of the original demands.

Until this clash occurred, an annual agreement on all matters has been made between the bricklayers and the Mason Builders' association, through a joint arbitration board consisting of eight bricklayers and eight mason builders.

CLOUDBURST COOLS OFF STRIKERS

Denver, June 11.—A special to the News from Phoenix, Ariz., says: A cloudburst has intervened to delay the crisis in the strike situation at Morenice, Ariz., where thousands of armed men are threatening trouble with the authorities.

A report has reached here that a great rain storm inundated Morenice and neighborhood camps Tuesday night and drowned nine men, dampening the ardor of the strikers sufficiently to check serious violence. Official advices state that a mob of Italians and Mexicans charged on the guards who surrounding the milling plant of the Detroit Copper company, disarming them and taking possession of the mill, while another mob of 1000 Italians is more seriously than ever menacing the whole copper camp.

HILL FINDS CROPS FLOURISHING

New York, June 11.—James J. Hill, president of the Great Northern railroad and the Northern Securities company, who has just returned from an inspection tour in the far west, says, according to the Herald, that he never has found fundamental business conditions more promising. "I cannot say that I have ever seen the crops of the Northwest in a more flourishing condition at this season—not for twenty years, at any rate," he said. All the railroads have come to satisfactory understandings with their employes and I look for no more trouble for a considerable length of time."

GRAND LODGE OF GOOD TEMPLARS

Forty-Sixth Session of Minnesota Lodge Has Begun.

Brainerd, Minn., June 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The grand lodge of the state of Minnesota, I. O. G. T., met here this morning for the forty-sixth session in the Columbia hall. There were about sixty delegates including among others the following: Judge N. T. Moen and wife, Ada; Jene Barnes and wife, Rev. C. W. B. Ellis, Hawley; E. J. Finney, Rev. J. T. B. Smith, Cass Lake; Agnes E. Stoffey, grand secretary, St. Paul; Mrs. One J. Ogg, secretary of the fifth district; Irving Thompson, Windom; Lizzie P. Cole, chief of the fifth district; Dr. Allen, Minneapolis; Col. B. F. Parker, supreme secretary of the world; R. C. Shih; A. S. McCarthy, Mrs. M. G. Gardner, Mrs. Calmondson, and Rose E. Nelson, Duluth; and George H. Haggard, park commissioner, who is one of the Blueberry war veterans, and this is his first visit to Brainerd since the summer of 1872 when the Indians were hanged to the trees in the streets of Brainerd.

While Good Templarism in the state has been on a standstill it is encouraging to know that it is now on the up grade. At the international supreme lodge held in Stockholm, Sweden, it was shown that after a long depression the work in America was progressing as it had been in all other parts of the world.

The R. W. G. secretary, Col. B. F. Barker with the delegation at Brainerd reported, 350,068 adult members in 8165 lodges, and 181,253 juveniles in 2613 lodges, or a total membership of 640,321 members in 10,779 lodges. For the next international meeting were 261 candidates including Seattle, Washington, Portland, Me., Washington, D. C., U. S. A., but Belfast, Ireland, was selected for August 1, 1905.

It developed that the Minnesota grand lodge had the smallest membership for forty years, yet the leaders were in no wise discouraged and they hoped by reorganization and wise administration to give it an uplift at this meeting and throughout the state this year.

After the opening of the grand lodge it went into private session for the performing of degrees, after which officers would be elected.

The Brainerd lodge, No. 123, gave the grand lodge an informal reception last evening and gave them an idea of how they conducted an ideal session. The Twin City and Southern delegates came in a special coach from St. Paul and had a most enjoyable time. The delegates wear their respective badges and can easily be detected from the numerous Firemen and Woodmen also present in the city.

HEAD MEN SUBMIT.

Paris, June 11.—The operations of the French military expedition to Moroco were practically concluded yesterday when word was received at Beni Ounif, Algeria, that the head men of the seven villages composing the Figuig oasis had made full submission.

WANTED FOR WIFE MURDER.

St. Louis, June 11.—John E. Mundy, who, it is charged, murdered his wife ten years ago in Toledo, Ohio, is under arrest here. Mundy was arrested here on the same charge in 1896 and taken to Toledo, but escaped from jail there. Mundy will return to Toledo without requisition papers. He has been working at the world's fair grounds under the name of Dell Lewis.

SERVIANS ARE JOYFUL OVER ASSASSINATION

A Festal Illumination of Belgrade Has Been Projected.

King Had Been Warned of Existence of Plot Against Him.

Berlin, June 11.—A dispatch from Semlin, Hungary, to the National Zeitung gives an interesting version of the events at Belgrade. It says: A party of officers proceeded to the palace by previous arrangement with Gen. Ljubasivkovics and called upon King Alexander to abdicate in favor of Prince Peter Karageorgevitch. The king refused and shot Col. Naumovics, who made the proposal. The other officers thereupon summoned the war minister, Gen. Pavlovitch and Tudorovics, the minister of the interior, and shot the king and queen and Petrovics, one of the king's aide de camps, and other loyal officers. The leader of the actual assailants was Lieut. Col. Mischich, who himself killed the queen. The latter, together with her brother and sisters, was struck down with an ax. The queen died immediately. The king lived a few minutes.

"The immediate cause of the revolution was the return to Belgrade of Lieut. Lungievitaz, brother of the queen and a supposed candidate for the throne. The surviving ministers have been arrested.

The obsequies of the king and queen will be held June 14. A festival illumination of Belgrade is projected for this evening.

The dispatch concludes with stating that intense joy prevails at Belgrade.

The German government cannot be said to have taken up any attitude as yet regarding the provisional administration of Servia. Horror was expressed at the foreign office at the bloody coup d'etat. The immediate feeling is one of antagonism to the new ministry, and there is an indisposition to make its path easy. The foreign office for the present is simply waiting full information from its legation at Belgrade, and is also sounding the other chancelories.

The fact that the late King Alexander was not allied to any European reigning family is regarded as simplifying the situation. Germany has no special interest in the events in Servia. That an intrigue, looking to the dethronement of the late king, was on foot had been known to the German government, and also to the government of Servia, for some time, but no importance was attached to the matter. The late king seems to have looked upon the hints of the existence of a plot as having no special significance. Reports to this effect have been circulated in the Austrian and German newspapers, and have been cabled to the United States, but as the Balkans are so productive of baseless rumors, those concerning the plot against the late king of Servia were treated lightly.

The members of the provisional ministry of Servia form an energetic group. Each one is a person of some celebrity in Servia.

M. Avakumovities, the new premier, was premier in the Liberal government of 1892 and previously was minister of justice and judge of the court of appeals. He is the best known jurist in Servia.

M. Protics, the new minister of the interior, is the most prominent leader of the Radicals and an able speaker and writer.

M. Kallevics, the new foreign minister, was premier in 1875 and later minister at Vienna. Latterly he has been a senator and has been occupying a neutral political position.

M. Schiokovics, the new minister of justice, sharply criticized the doings of the royal pair in the last parliament. Like M. Protics he was condemned to twenty years' imprisonment because of his complicity in a plot against King Milan, but he was pardoned.

M. Genshics, the new minister of commerce, served two years in prison on the charge of high treason for his opposition to the late King Alexander's marriage.

M. Velikovics, the new finance minister, is a former member of the cabinet.

London, June 11.—M. Mijatovich, Servian minister at London, confirms the reported assassination of the king and queen of Servia.

The Servian minister said there were many causes leading to the revolution. A large section of the people were very greatly dissatisfied with the tendency of King Alexander to eliminate the radical element from the government, and by the constant rumors of his intention to appoint Queen Draga's brother, Lunjevitza, heir apparent. In addition to this, the queen was disliked by the people who were also intensely outraged at the recent suspension of the constitution. The minister did not anticipate that the changes would result in internecine strife, or in any real dangers to the country. He pointed out that the original Karageorgevitch was not a prince. He was a rich swine owner. The father of the new king was made a prince in 1842.

The ministerials related a curious incident. He said that a month ago he was present at a clairvoyant's seance, at which a letter written by the murdered king was handed to the clairvoyant, who immediately became violently agitated, proclaiming that King Alexander would be assassinated very shortly, and even depicted the scene which appears to have been enacted at the palace at Belgrade during the night.

The tragedy of the palace at Belgrade is naturally the latest of the revolutions which have convulsed Servia from time to time during the past century, is not regarded in diplomatic circles in London as likely to lead to civil war. Stress is laid on the unpopularity of King Alexander since his marriage to Queen Draga. King Alexander's successor, Peter Karageorgevitch, is a son-in-law of the prince of Montenegro and is regarded as being most acceptable to the people.

The universal anxiety of the governments of Europe for peace is advanced as a reason why the Servian situation is not likely to lead to complications. Should, however, these unexpectedly arise official circles think an Austro-Hungarian army will immediately march into Servia and restore order. This eventuality, however, is considered improbable.

Paris, June 11.—The startling announcement of the assassination of the king and queen of Servia caused a deep sensation here, particularly in governmental circles. The foreign office received early advices from the French minister at Belgrade, confirming the Belgrade press dispatches, and adding that the city was comparatively quiet this morning, the people seeming to accept the proclamation of Prince Karageorgevitch as king. Foreign Minister Delcasse communicated his advices to President Loubet. Officials of the foreign office say it is too soon to indicate clearly the effect of the situation in Servia on the European situation. Servia's dynastic troubles have been long impending, the present uprising being due to the animosities growing out of the propaganda of the pretender Karageorgevitch. It is recalled that when the Karageorgevitch dynasty secured brief rule in 1858 the European powers intervened and established a protectorate and thus terminated that dynasty. Whether there will be similar action of the powers at this time officials are unable to predict, saying the shock of the tragedy is principally occupying attention. It is generally believed that the assassinations are the sequel of the king's coup d'etat two months ago when he suspended the constitution resulting in the disgrace and retirement of a number of senators and leading officials.

SELECTING QUARTERS FOR THE CASS LAKE LAND OFFICE

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, June 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The general land office is going ahead to select the building in which to put the new land office officials at Cass Lake regardless of the fact that Representative Steenerson, Tams Bixby, et al, desire it removed to Bemidji. The department is now in correspondence with Messrs. Warren and Fairbanks, who own the building at Cass Lake which the government will rent as headquarters for the land office, if satisfactory terms can be agreed upon. Just at present the government officials are of the opinion that the terms suggested by Warren and Fairbanks are excessive and though they like the location will not pay the price at which the property is held.

The property the government desires to rent is a brick building situated on rear of lots 1 and 2, block 10, 24 by 34 feet, and containing 833 feet floor space. For this the government will pay $40 per month, provided the owners put in a fireproof vault and partition the room, making two rooms, and agree to furnish heat and light.

SITUATION GRAVE ON THE RANGES

Denver, June 11.—A News special from Gunnison, Col., says: Serious trouble between cattle and sheepmen in the southwestern part of this county is imminent. Sheriff Watson has been summoned to the scene. It is alleged that efforts are being made to drive a herd of sheep into this county to graze on the ranges, which have been heretofore used as cattle ranges. The cattlemen are determined to allow no trespassing and grave trouble is apprehended. Armed forces are gathering in the vicinity of Cimarron, just outside the boundary lines, in Montrose county. Much enmity between the cattle and sheepmen in this part of the state has been manifested for some time. In the present troubles both sides are armed, and evidently determined. The crisis is expected today.

KING ALEXANDER AND QUEEN DRAGA ASSASSINATED

KING'S MINISTERS ALSO KILLED

Awful Tragedy Occurred at Capital of Servia.

Murders Were Committed By the Soldiers.

Prince Karageorgevitch Proclaimed King.

Belgrade, Servia, June 11.—A military revolution broke out here last night. The troops, who revolted under the leadership of Maj. Angikovics, surrounded the palace, assassinated King Alexander, Queen Draga, the latter's sister, the queen's brother, Nikodem, Premier Markovitch, Ministers Petrovitch and Tudorovics, Gen. Pavolovitch, the former minister of war, and some of the members of the royal guard.

Prince Karageorgevitch was proclaimed king.

A new government was formed and the following proclamation was issued:

"To the Servian People: Last night the king and queen were shot. In this grave and fateful moment friends of the fatherland have combined to form a new government. While the government makes this announcement to the people, it is convinced that the Servian people will gather round it and lend it their aid to maintain order and security throughout the land.

"The government hereby makes known that from today the constitution of April 6, 1901, comes in force. A meeting of the national representatives, dissolved by the proclamation of March 24, is summoned to meet at Belgrade June 15."

Signed by Jovan Avakumovics, premier; Ljubornur Kallevics, foreign minister; Stogan Protics, minister of interior; Georg Genghics, minister of commerce; Gen. Jorvan Alanzokvics, minister of war; Vogis tav Velikovics, minister of fiannce; Col. Alexander Machin, minister public works; Ljubomir Schiokecs, minister of justice.

The streets are thronged with people whose actions seem to approve the coup d'etat. M. Protics, the new minister of the interior, was loudly cheered as he drove to the ministry.

M. Avakumovics, the new premier, belongs to the Independent Liberal party.

The people received the news of the assassinations, which were perpetrated between 10:30 o'clock last night 2 o'clock this morning, quietly. The bodies of the king and queen remain in the palace.

Cologne, June 11.—A private telegram from Belgrade, Servia, states that the army last night proclaimed Peter Karageorgevitch to be king of Servia. The troops immediately surrounded the Konak and forced their way into the royal palace, where they assassinated King Alexander and Queen Draga.

It is rumored that all of King Alexander's ministers also were murdered. This is stated to have occurred between the hours of 12 and 1 o'clock this morning.

A further telegram from the same source says: "The career of the Obrenovitch dynasty was closed in the early hours of this morning, the same day of the year on which Prince Michael was murdered thirty-five years ago in the park of Topschider, near Belgrade. Today a requiem mass was being sung in memory of Prince Michael, and now the last of his race, together with all connected with the dynasty by his unfortunate marriage, lies in a bier in the palace at Belgrade.

"The people of Belgrade have been flocking the streets since 3 o'clock this morning, discussing the tragedy, but without condemnation. A strong detachment of troops is encamped about the palace of the newly proclaimed king, who was a pretender to the throne for many years. He was born in Belgrade in 1846 and was married in 1883 to Princess Zorka, daughter of Prince Nicholas, of Montenegro. She died in 1890."

The Cologne Gazette prints a dispatch from Belgrade which says a story is current there that the late King Alexander was recently considering effecting a separation from Queen Draga, and that the latter, becoming aware of this, planned preventative measures.

Some high military officers last night, the dispatch adds, entered the palace and tried to carry off the queen by force, but encountered strong resistance on the part of the queen's partisans, and in the fierce struggle which followed the king and queen and their respective supporters were killed.

All entry to the palace is prohibited and a strong cordon of troops surrounds the royal residence.

The ministers who shared the fate of their sovereign were the leading spirits of the Obernovitch party. Their murder removes the only men capable of making a real stand against the Karageorgevitchs, who have now no serious opponents in Servia.

As the morning advances the excitement in the streets grew steadily. In spite of the pouring rain, thousands of people gathered in the vicinity of the palace. Everywhere troops of all arms were posted and field guns were placed in positions to quickly deal with an opposition to the newly formed government's will. The soldiers discarded their cockades bearing the late King Alexander's cipher and substituted for it flowers, green twigs and leaves.

Bands of young men paraded the streets waving flags and shouting: "Long live Karageorgevitch."

Flags are flying from nearly every house in Belgrade, and there is absolutely no display whatever of crape or other signs of mourning. The royal standard has been lowered from over the palace. Reports from places outside Belgrade indicate that the country accepts the disappearance of the Obernovitch dynasty without regret.

Acording to the best available information obtainable from the mass of contradictions, the crime was carried out by members of the Sixth infantry, under the command of Cols. Mischich and Machin. The latter is a brother-in-law of the late Queen Draga and is minister of public work in the new cabinet. The soldiers fought their way into the palace, shooting down the aide-de-camp on duty, Col. Naumovics, although, according to another version, the king shot Naumovics because he opened the gate to his assailants, thereby creating a suspicion of his connivance. Some of the others killed were surprised in their houses, simultaneously with the attack on the palace. The bodies of all the dead will be placed in coffins during the day. The remains of King Alexander will probably be buried at the convent of Rakovzia. The other bodies will be interred in the local cemetery.

Cannon were fired as a signal for the carnage to begin and the troops surrounded the ministerial residences at the same time as they moved on the palace. After the drama at the palace, officers galloped through the streets of the city shouting out the news that the king and queen had been killed. Queen Draga is said to have sustained numerous wounds.

A postmortem examination was held on the bodies in the palace at 11 o'clock this morning.

The local papers embellish their reports of the tragedy with all sorts of extraordinary statements. Acording to one of them, the bodies of the king and queen were placed in shrouds and were lowered from a window of the palace to the gardens, whence they were carried away in a baggage wagon.

The new king is well known here, having frequently visited the city. He has a cousin, Prince Bodijar Karageogevitch, living on the Avenue Du Bois De Boulogne, who took part in the French campaign in Tonquin and was decorated with thec ross of the Legion of Honor. In an interview today Prince Bodijar said he considered that popular hatred of Queen Draga was largely responsible for the events at Belgrade. He added that his cousin, the new king, had long aspired to the Servian throne and declared that the family was closely allied to Russia, thus assuring a pro-Russian policy in Servia.

Dr. Petrovitch, of the Servian legation, described the new king as a student of affairs of the state, as being intensely animated by Servia's political destinies and as an admirer of Russia. The newly proclaimed king, Dr. Petrovitch added, is sending his son to St. Petersburg, where he will be educated at the expense of the imperial court of Russia.

Politicians had frequently sought to induce the new king to attempt to take the throne of Servia, but he always replied that he would not permit a dynastic contest to provoke a civil convulsion and he preferred to await the result of the popular weariness resulting from an old regime.

A French government official said: "The bloody deed of last night is the most pressing menace to the general peace of Europe that has happened in many years."

Geneva, Switzerland, June 11.—Prince Peter Karageorgevitch, who has been living here for some time, appeared to be greatly astonished at the news from Belgrade, which, he said, he had only learned through a private telegram from Vienna.

Prince Peter Karageorgevitch lives in a modest apartment on the Rue de la Bellote. Recently he has been in constant communication with Servian politicians, has been several times to Vienna and has visited St. Petersburg, where his son is at school.

Washington, June 11.—News of the assassination of the king and queen of Servia and the proclaiming of Peter Karageorgevitch king, reached the state department today in a cablegram from United States Vice Consul General Christian Boeglili at Belgrade. This cablegram is dated Zingony, an Austrian town, six miles across the border, where it was necessary for Mr. Boglili to go to get it off. It fixes the hour of the revolution at 2 o'clock this morning.

Mr. Wilson, secretary of the legation at Athens, also cabled the news, saying that the "minister left for Belgrade Tuesday."

Summer Catarrh Afflicts Men and Women.

HON JUDSON W. LYONS, Register of the United States treasury, in a letter from Washington, D. C., says:

"I find Peruna to be an excellent remedy for the catarrhal affections of spring and summer, and those who suffer from depression from the heat of the summer will find no remedy the equal of Peruna."—Judson W. Lyons.

No man is better known in the financial world than Judson W. Lyons, formerly of Augusta, Ga. His name on every piece of money of recent date marks his signature one of the most familiar ones in the United States.

Two Interesting Letters From Thankful Women.

Miss Camilla Chartier, 5 West Lexington St., Baltimore, Md., writes:

"Late suppers gradually affected by digestion and made me a miserable dyspeptic, suffering intensely at times. I took several kinds of medicine which were prescribed by different physicians but still continued to suffer. But the trial of one bottle of Peruna convinced me that it would rid me of this trouble, so I continued taking it for several weeks and I was in excellent health, having gained ten pounds."—Miss Camilla Chartier.

Summer Catarrh.

Mrs. Kate Bohn, 119 Willoughby Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y., writes:

"When I wrote you I was troubled with frequent headache, dizzy, strange feeling in the head, sleeplessness, sinking feelings, faintness and numbness. Sometimes I had heartburn. My food would rise to my throat after every meal and my bowels were very irregular.

"I wrote you for advice, and I now take pleasure in informing you that my improvement is very great indeed. I did not expect to improve so quickly after suffering for five long years. I am feeling very good and strong. I thank you so much for Peruna. I shall recommend it to all suffering with the effects of catarrh, and I consider it a household blessing. I shall never be without Peruna."

For these phases of catarrh peculiar to summer Peruna will be found effectecious.

Peruna cures catarrh in all phases and stages.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

ROTHSCHILD SAYS BRITONS ARE BUYING AMERICAN STOCKS

No Foundation For Rumors That British Financiers Are Dead Set Against American Securities—There Is No Feeling of Distrust.

London, June 11—Lord Rothschild was interviewed by an Associated Press representative today on the financial situation in America. He said:

"It is no good looking further than your nose in these matters. The depreciation in stock values is not caused by European selling, for the very good reason that Europe has scarcely any American securities to sell. Yesterday's sales in London were almost entirely on New York orders. Amsterdam sold slightly but not nearly as much as was attributed to that city by the dispatches. When an American wants to sell he has got into the habit of sending his order here and leaving it to the arbitrage houses. There is absolutely no feeling distrust in Europe over the financial conditions in America. Only a fool would say that the financiers here are making what you call a dead set against American securities. What do I think of the future? Well, the best answer I can give is this," and Lord Rothschild handed over a stock ticket showing that he had just purchased 500 shares of an American railroad. "That, of course, is only a drop in the bucket, but I may tell you that one of the wealthiest capitalists I know yesterday invested £200,000 in American securities, and he has put another £200,000 into them again this morning. That sounds large, but it is nothing compared with the selling orders which come here from New York. At such a period as this the transactions of even the largest investors had small effect on the market, in which the speculator figures so largely."

Lord Rothschilds' explanation of the recent serious shrinkage in values is this: "Speyers' went into street railways. Yerkes came over here to electrophy the undergrounds. Morgan bought British securities, and I am told Schwab went in largely for British industrials. They all thought that British or European investors would take a larger share in these European enterprises than they did. The result is that some of the largest capitalists in America have been obliged to realize on their securities on the other side in order to provide capital for their undertakings here. Under such circumstances, quotations were bound to go down."

LOVE AT NINETY IS NOT INSANITY

New York, June 11.—Love at 90 is not insanity in law, whatever it may be in poetry, according to Judge Marean, of the supreme court, who has dismissed the suit of Mortimer S. Brown for the annulment of the marriage of his father. After hearing testimony, the judge said there was nothing the matter with the wealthy baker, who died a few weeks after his marriage, except that he wanted to get married, "and it would be a dangerous doctrine to decide that that was insanity," the court said. The old man's children attempted to have his will set aside because he left all to the woman of 30, whom, according to an oddly-written dairy introduced as evidence, he described as "an angel, sent from God."

The dairy detailed many attempts of the nonagenarian to find a wife, and told of repeated failures until the angel appeared. The children of his dead wife produced the book as evidence, and its reading caused much amusement in court.

WILL SHOOT INTO DRIVERS

To Protect His Own Life, Says a Milwaukee Horseman.

Milwaukee, Wis., June 11.—"In order to protect my life, that of my wife, children and friends, if they happen to be driving with me, I am going to shoot some one if the drivers of automobiles continue to force me into such dangerous positions as they have twice recently. The law provides that a man is entitled to protect himself from deadly menaces, and I am going to do it even if it requires my buckling on a six shooter."

In discussing his preparations to get his horses in condition for the horse show in July, A. S. Witherbee served this notice on auto owners. Mr. Witherbee, who is an ardent horseman and maintains a splendid stable, says he assumes a great risk everytime he drives, but is perfectly willing to take the risk and utter no word of complaint if the automobile driver will allow him one-half of the road and slow up or stop when he sees that his horses are trying to climb the telegraph poles.

"The utter disregard the automobile driver has for the horseman, the laxity of the laws governing their driving, and the failure to enforce what laws do exist, is most discouraging to many men. I know that my feelings in this matter are shared by a large number of Milwaukeeans whose horses take fright at the machines, and who are daily finding it harder to work their horses into shape for the horse show.

"It is my opinion that the automobile drivers of Milwaukee are fast becoming the worst in this respect of any city in the country. New machines are being put into use daily and a climax is rapidly approaching. I for one propose to protect myself."

STOPS THE WORK

City Holds Up Asphalt Laying For About Ten Days.

Four Blocks of Cement Foundation Fail to Meet Test.

Four blocks of cement foundation must be taken up and relaid before the Barber Asphalt company will be permitted to go ahead with the East Superior street paving.

As a result that concern has sent its large crew of colored asphalt layers back to St. Paul and Minneapolis and a force of men were put to work this morning taking up the objectional cement foundation.

City Engineer Patton claims, that the cement put in between the street car tracks from Twelfth to Sixteenth avenues East, has failed to meet the required test, and, when the Barber Asphalt company began laying asphalt on this foundation, disregarding the city engineer's warning about the cement, Mr. Patton stepped in and advised them to remedy the defective concrete or it might result in the city's rejecting the paving.

As near as can be learned Mr. Patton made a number of tests of the cement and in each instance the foundation failed to meet the requirements. He notified the Barber company and that company and the manufacturers of the cement took it up, claiming that the cement was all right and would meet the required test after a time, Mr. Patton said if they doubted his word as to the tests made he would be willing to leave the matter to any impartial and unprejudiced expert engineer. But the Barber company went ahead and began laying the sheet asphalt and the city stepped in and stopped the work.

The cement with the exception of the four blocks mentioned meets all the requirements. At the city hall there seems to be a general opinion that the defective foundation was not the result of inferior quality or mixing, but simply some unnoticed defect in the cement. It will cost the Barber company much money and time to remedy the matter and will delay progress on the improvement for about ten days.

AT WEST DULUTH

A panic-stricken cat saved thirty or forty people from serious injury, and, perhaps, many of them from death, in West Duluth last night.

About 2 o'clock this morning fire broke out in the National hotel, on Fifty-sixth avenue west, between Raleigh and Second street. The building, which is owned by John H. Markuson, is leased by Ericsson Brothers and run as a boarding house. Between thirty and forty people were stopping at the house at the time the fire broke out, and all were sleeping soundly. The fire had gained good headway, starting at the rear of the house and rapidly making its way upward and toward the front, when a cat, which had been sleeping in the kitchen, being unable to get out, ran madly through the upper halls, making a terrific noise. The guests were awakened by the noise and immediately fled from the house in their night garments, some not even having time to secure an extra wrap to protect them from the cold night air. All escaped in safety without serious injury, although some were badly choked with the smoke. They found shelter in neighboring houses for the remainder of the night.

"The building was worth about $3700," said Mr. Markuson, the owner, in speaking of the fire this morning. "It is very badly damaged and the percentage of loss will be large, probably in the neighborhood of $2500. There is $1000 insurance on the property."

The building burned rapidly and the fire had a good start before the department could reach the scene.

The Ericsson Brothers, who leased the building, suffered a loss of about $700 on the furniture, which is fully covered by insurance. A policy of $300 was placed on the furniture less than two weeks ago, there already being one of $500.

MUST KEEP THE PEACE.

Paul Szezesny Arrested on Mrs. Marcinak's Complaint.

Paul Szezesny was arraigned yesterday afternoon before Justice Stone on complaint of Mrs. Frances Marcinak, charged with threatening great bodily harm to her.

He pleaded not guilty, but after hearing the two sides of the case, Justice Stone decided otherwise, and bound the defendant over to keep the peace for six months under penalty of $200. He also paid the costs of the court.

Joseph Szezesny, a brother of Paul, was arraigned by the same complaining witness on a charge of assault. The evidence brought against him was insufficient, in the opinion of the court, and he was released from custody.

Eight witnesses were brought down from the little village of Gneesen, where the two parties in the case reside.

Harold Watt, a West Duluth resident, was brought before the court on a charge of maliciously destroying property. Mrs. Allen, a neighbor, claimed that the defendant threw sticks at her chickens, killing one. Watt was warned to refrain from showing his dislike to

HOW TO FIND OUT.

Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; if it stains the linen it is evidence of kidney trouble; too frequent desire to pass it, or pain in the back, is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

WHAT TO DO.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney and bladder remedy, fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes.

You may have a sample bottle of Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, and a book that tells all about it, both sent absolutely free by mail. Address, Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing be sure to mention that you read this generous offer in the Duluth Evening Herald. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

CHARGED TOO MUCH.

West Duluth Pays More to Fond du Lac Than Duluth.

Residents of West Duluth claim that they are being unfairly treated in the matter of excursion rates to Fond du Lac by the Northern Pacific railroad. They assert that the cost of a return trip ticket to Fond du Lac from the city is only 25 cents, while from the Fifty-ninth avenue depot it is 56 cents.

"Last Sunday," said a well-known citizen, in discussing the matter, "I was called to the city on business in the morning and took the train from there to Fond du Lac. It cost me just 25 cents for a return trip ticket. At Fond du Lac I met some friends and happened to mention the cheap rate which had been made for the Sunday excursions. Then I learned that they had taken the train at Fifty-ninth avenue and had been charged 56 cents each for traveling a shorter distance than that for which I had paid 25 cents. Why such a discrimination is made I do not know, but under existing conditions it is cheaper to pay car fare up town, take the train at the Union depot and travel back to West Duluth than it is to take the train here."

WILL NOT CONFIRM

Clyde Iron Works Striking Molders Are Still Out.

Local labor circles were surprised this morning by the announcement that the molders' strike at the Clyde Iron works had been declared off.

Members of the union declined to affirm or deny the report and they claim that all the molders that struck at the Clyde some ten weeks ago are employed elsewhere.

If the union molders go back to work it will mean that they must work beside non-union men and this is what led to the orighal strike. It will be remembered that on April 1 the machinists employed at the Clyde struck for a 9-hour working day. Non-union machinists were brought in to replace them and the molders went out rather than work in a shop with non-union machinists.

According to the rumor today, the company was notified yesterday that the old molders were ready to go back to work, but that none of the new non-union men would be dismissed to make way for the strikers.

W. F. FITCH ILL.

President of South Shore Confined to Bed.

Word was received here this morning that President W. F. Fitch, of the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic railway, is seriously ill.

Last Saturday, after a few days' illness, he was said to have become much better, and friends at his home in Marquette, where he is confined, were confident that he would be able to leave his room in a day or two.

Evidently a relapse has set in, for word was received today that he is again confined to his room, and that the attacks of the disease are more strenuous than before.

President Fitch caught cold a couple of weeks ago, but did not think it amounted to much and left home. When he returned it had developed to such an extent that he summoned physicians and was informed that he must stay in bed.

It is not at all likely that there is a possibility of fatal results of the illness, but it is considered quite a serious case by the physicians.

President Fitch was to have been here to attend a gathering this evening, but word was sent that he could not come.

Is Not to Leave.

To the Editor of The Herald:

A few days ago, in connection with a business matter, your reporter made the misstatement that, "Mr. Magoffin has decided to leave Duluth and will follow his family to Kentucky in a short time." No, we will continue to be around and about Duluth, for we know not a better place. And as friends have been missled by the statement, you will please insert this correction.

FOURTEEN YEARS FOR RENNICK.

Chicago, June 11.—Herman Rennick was today sentenced to 14 years in the penitentiary for killing Oscar Kreiling several months ago. The attention of Kreiling to Mrs. Rennick caused the deed. Both men had been attentive to the same woman before she married Rennick. When the latter found that his former rival still persisted in his attentions, he went to Kreiling's place on Blue Island avenue and shot him.

MRS. McKNIGHT ARRAIGNED.

Kalkaska, Mich., June 11.—Mrs. Mary McKnight, the self-confessed murderess of her brother, John Murphy, and his wife and baby, was arraigned last night before Justice Kellogg. The woman was a picture of abject despair. Her attorney entered a plea of not guilty. Her examination was set for Aug. 12.

CLASS DAY EVENT

That Part of Commencement Exercises to Be Held.

Address, Oration, History, Prophecy and Last Will Given.

The class night exercises of the High school students who graduate this year will be held in the assembly hall this evening. The program will consist of amusing papers by members of the class who were elected to prepare them, and of light music which has been carefully prepared during the last few weeks.

President Frank Kane will deliver his president's address to the students and public, and the other papers will be the class oration by Joseph Harrison, class prophecy by Kathleen Watterworth, class history by Bessie Harsh and the last will and testament by William Steiner.

Every effort has been made to make these papers as amusing as those which have been read by other graduating students in former years. Several are very original and will be immensely amusing, particularly to the high school students who are qualified to see the points to all of the jokes which frequently escape outsiders who are not up on the lore of the school.

The following is the program:

A GREAT SUCCESS.

Junior-Senior Reception at the Spalding.

Two hundred young people, high school students, alumni and their friends danced last night at the Spalding. When it was over the junior-senior reception given by the class of 1904 had scored a great success.

The crowd taxed the capacity of the dining room floor and the growth of the high school will make it necessary to find another hall for the big social event of the school year hereafter.

The dining room was prettily decorated in orange and black, the senior colors, and white and blue for the juniors. The colors were strung from the chandeliers and were very effectively arranged.

A long and well-selected musical program was rendered by Flaaten's orchestra. Dance cards bearing the mottoes of both of the classes that mingled for their last dances together were furnished.

The dance was by far the most enjoyable that the students have given during the past year and the junior committee consisting of Raymond Willcuts, Shirley Alexander, George Barnum, Helen Coburn, and Jessie Ames, received great credit for the manner in which they executed their work.

DULUTH BOY STANDS HIGH

Fred G. Coburn Stands First In His Annapolis Class.

Fred G. Coburn, a son of Capt. Ira Coburn, who is in the naval academy from Duluth, is winning high honors with his work there. The Army and Navy Register reports him as standing first in his class this year. Last year he stood third, and next year he graduates, and his present course indicates that he will come out with the highest possible honors. Competition is strong at the naval academy, and the demands of the curriculum are exacting, so this report is exceptionally creditable to the young man. Mr. Coburn was appointed by Judge Morris.

BANKS CLOSED

As Result of Absconding of Their President.

Birmingham, Ala., June 11.—The doors of the Bessemer Savings bank and the Bank of Commerce, both located at Bessemer, Ala., failed to open this morning as the result of the shortage and supposed flight of T. J. Cornwell, president of the first named bank. At 2 o'clock this morning Judge Senn, of the city court, on petition of the depositors of the savings bank, named George H. Stevenson as receiver for that bank and on petition of the directors of the Bank of Commerce, in which Cornwell was interested, appointed Thomas A. Smith, receiver of the latter bank. None of the Birmingham banks is affected by the failures.

The petition for a receiver in the case of the savings banks set forth that the liabilities are $235,000, of which about $200,000 was deposited. The assets are placed at $35,000. The liabilities of the Bank of Commerce are $42,000 and assets $67,000. The latter bank, it is stated, was closed as a precautionary measure, and it is believed it will pay out. Nothing has been heard of President Cornwell.

EVERYTHING NOW READY

Plans For the Travelers' Convention Complete.

Decorations Are Going Up on Business Streets.

Everything is set for the tenth annual grand council convention of the United Commercial Travelers for the jurisdiction of Minnesota, the Dakotas and Manitoba.

This afternoon everything that could be done had been done, and done well, too, apparently.

All that remained was for the crowds of delegates and others that were expected to come in and get in the game.

The work of putting up decorations began this morning and progressed merrily all day, and by tomorrow morning, from the way it looked this afternoon, there will hardly be a building between the Bowery and the Masonic Temple on either First or Superior streets without its array of color. There ought not to be, anyway, for everybody knew what was going on and realized the importance of showing the visitors that when Duluth goes in to do a thing she goes in to do it right.

Not all of the buildings were decorated this afternoon, but a large number were. The colors of the order, blue, white and old gold, made a charming combination, and when the decorations are up as they ought to be, the streets will be regular bowers of beauty. Flags of various sizes bearing the device, "Welcome, U. C. T.," fringed cloth and paper bearing the lodge device in the lodge colors, blue, white and old gold bunting, were the main features of the decorations, to which several of the large stores added national colors and flags of all nations.

Headquarters for the travelers were opened this morning in the new building on the south side of Superior street between Second and Third avenues west. This will be the general headquarters during the convention, and it will be a bureau of information for the visitors, where they can find out about rooms and almost anything else they want to know, for a full supply of "wise guys" will be kept on hand who will be supposed to be able to answer any questions that anybody can think up. The uniforms for the members of the local council will be issued from headquarters. The membership of Zenith council No. 40 will be well represented, as the road has been shunned during this latter end of the week, and the council will make a fine showing in its uniforms, consisting of blue coats, white duck trousers, belts and caps.

The souvenir book that will be given to the visitors during the convention has just been issued from the press of Peachy & Lounsberry, and it is a handsome affair. It contains brief sketches of the grand council and of Zenith council No. 40, good pictures of the officers of each, an extended write-up of the city of Duluth, and a number of handsome views of the city and its environments.

Local business and manufacturing concerns are literally piling themselves over to get into the industrial parade Saturday afternoon with floats illustrating their various lines of business. It is hoped that this parade will be fully representative of the city and its industries, and from the way the local houses are falling into line the outlook is that that hope will be realized.

Duluth people have a chance to help out the success of the convention amazingly by swelling the parade and decorating, and they are showing a disposition to do all they can on these things. The city is going to help, the mayor having issued orders that the welcome arch on Fifth avenue west be lighted up during the balance of this week, and flags will be put up along Superior street, in the telephone poles, wherever sockets are found for them. A number of the poles that had sockets have been removed, but all the remaining sockets will be filled with flags.

The run on bunting and other decorations at the local department stores was strong today, and early this afternoon it began to look as though the supply would be cleaned out. One or two stores had been practically cleared of their stock, but hoped to be able to get more.

The convention will open tomorrow morning with a public meeting at the Armory, with speeches, music, etc., and the business sessions of the grand council will start immediately thereafter. At the opening session but little will be done except to organize and get all things ready for the real business, which will come up at the afternoon session, beginning at 1:30 p. m. The closing session will be held Saturday morning, beginning at 9:30 o'clock.

The time before, between and after these sessions, will be well filled with action, and during some of them the visiting women will be entertained.

Besides the regular program there will be the ball games, two each day, and the theaters. The guests that arrive tonight will be entertained by the Commercial club and the local lodge of Elks, both of which hold open house. The Elks will have a social session tonight in honor of the visiting Elks. The program for tomorrow is as follows:

FORENOON.

All members are expected and requested to report at headquarters, register, get caps and badges.

9 o'clock—Line of march will start from headquarters and proceed to Armory, where opening exercises will be held, as follows:

1. Music by Flaaten's Third Regiment band.
2. Address by H. G. Mooney, past grand councillor, chairman.
3. Address of welcome by his honor, Mayor T. W. Hugo.
4. Music by Third Regiment band.
5. Response by Terry McCosker, grand councillor, Grand Forks, North Dakota.
6. Address by F. A. Patrick.
7. Song, selected, by Male Quartet.
8. Address by Robert F. Fitzgerald, "Our Old Constituent, One of the Boys, and Always With Us."
10. Address, "Duluth," by E. L. Millar.
11. Presentation of banner, won by Zenith Council, No. 40, at Grand Council meeting at Minnetonka, 1902, for largest attendance of members from any one council at the meeting. Presentation address by Terry McCosker, grand councillor, North Dakota.
12. Song, selected, by Male Quartet.

Meeting adjourns to Elks' hall for opening session of grand council.

AFTERNOON.

1:30—Grand council session at Elks' hall.

2:00 to 2:30—Ladies' reception at Commercial club rooms, for which a program has been arranged. Wives and best girls will be there to make you welcome.

3:00—Ball game at Athletic park, Duluth vs. Crookston. If you have the price, you get in. If not, jump the fence.

8:00—Dance at Armory hall. Gentlemen admitted must give pass word of the order or have door check on person. No woman will be permitted unless escorted by a gentleman.

The Commercial club will do its best to take care of all the commercial travelers who are coming in tonight and tomorrow morning, for accommodations.

The club believes that there will be rooms enough for all who come, and it was said this morning that the incoming crowd coming tonight can be amply provided for.

Four hundred persons can be accommodated by the outside rooms which have been secured by the club, through advertisement, and on the sheets this noon were reports from the smaller hotels showing that fifty rooms are still unoccupied and can be had by the traveling men this evening.

Long before noon today, the Spalding, St. Louis and McKay hotels were overflowing with guests—including the reservations made previously, the occupants for which will arrive this evening from the West and the Twin Cities.

The Commercial club figures on about 400 people coming on the trains tonight, but the railroad men say there will be twice that number. If the number reaches 800 there is likely to be trouble finding accommodations for them.

As a result the club is looking for every available outside room in the city, and wants the street and numbers of them sent to the club rooms, to be listed for use by the traveling men who come in and cannot find rooms themselves. The club cannot get too many rooms, and the citizens of Duluth should make an effort to see that none of the visitors go away dissatisfied with the reception given them here.

The Commercial club will have a delegation to meet all trains and all visitors who have not hotel or other room reservation will be taken to the club rooms to register and to receive directions as to getting rooms.

It is expected that before the meeting is closed the club will handle several hundred visitors and get them to accommodations in the city.

The club officers will welcome and fit out the members of the excursion parties this evening from the Twin Cities and from Winnipeg, Crookston and Grand Forks, who come in over the Great Northern.

FRATERNAL MEETING

The Thirteenth National Convention of the Modern Woodmen.

Indianapolis Will Entertain 65,000 Woodmen During Next Week.

Indianapolis, June 11.—The thirteenth national convention of the Modern Woodmen of America, one of the four great national gatherings of the year, meets in this city June 16-20. Preparations are practically completed for the entertainment of the 65,000 or more Woodmen who will be in the city during convention week.

On Saturday, June 13, the local Camp Clerks association, with a membership of 11,500, composed of local clerks or lodge secretaries of the Modern Woodmen, convenes here at Masonic hall.

On Monday, June 15, the national Woodmen Foresters' encampment opens on the state encampment grounds. These Foresters are the degree teams of the Modern Woodmen lodges throughout the United States, and it is expected that between 7000 and 8000 men will go into camp here on Monday and remain during the week of the Woodmen convention.

On Tuesday, June 16, the Woodmen convention proper opens at Tomlinson hall. There will be 469 delegates in the convention, besides seventy-eight head officers and members of standing committees. Each delegate will represent 1500 members, and they come from the thirty-three states in which the Modern Woodmen society is doing business at the present time.

At St. Paul, Minn., two years ago the convention brought 50,000 Woodmen to that city. At Kansas City, four years ago, over 45,000 Woodmen were present, and at Dubuque, Iowa, in June, 1897, 35,000 Woodmen were present. The Woodmen conventions have been steadily growing in importance and attendance with the growth of the society, which now numbers over 750,000 members.

Governor W. T. Durbin, Mayor C. A. Bookwalter and a committee of fifteen from the Indianapolis Commercial club have been co-operating with the Indianapolis Woodmen entertainment committee, headed by Hugh J. McGowen, and a fund of $25,000 has been raised for entertainment purposes.

Indianapolis is deeply interested in the success of the coming convention. The various commercial and other public bodies are planning to construct a mammoth coliseum, rivaling the great coliseum at Kansas City. They are laying other plans to capture the next national Republican and Democratic conventions and they expect to be able to demonstrate their ability to take care of these conventions by the manner in which they will care for the Woodmen convention, the Foresters' encampment and the meeting of the Local Camp Clerks' association, during the next two weeks.

Aside from its importance to the citizens of Indianapolis, the coming Woodmen convention will mark an epoch in the history of the fraternal beneficiary societies of the United States, which at the present time have more than 5,000,000 members. A vigorous campaign has been in progress during the past fifteen months within the ranks of the Woodmen organization to bring about a change in the rates of assessment. Lieutenant Governor W. A. Northcott, of Illinois, the head consul of the society, has led this campaign and it has stirred fraternal ranks from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Nearly all of the leaders of the big fraternal societies of the United States will be present at Indianapolis to witness the fight that will be made by the Woodmen officers on behalf of the entire fraternal system of life insurance.

The Modern Woodmen society is not unlike the Ancient Order of United Workmen, the Knights of the Maccabees, the Royal Arcanum, and several hundred other well known American societies. They all work to the same end—to afford their living members the advantages of fraternal co-operation; to extend relief in distress due to poverty or illness, and to pay stipulated amounts varying from $500 to $5000 to the dependents of their dead. The Woodmen insure their members for from $500 to $3000 each, and in these small sums, have distributed during the past twenty years, over $36,000,000.

One hundred years ago there were not all told over 3200 members of secret societies in the United States, and 2500 of these were Masons. The balance were members of local patriotic societies, with a few members of Phi Beta Kappa at Yale, Harvard and Dartmouth colleges. They then comprised one-fourth of 1 per cent of the total American population. Today over 60 per cent of the adult male population of America is affiliated with the purely fraternal and fraternal beneficiary societies.

The fraternal beneficiary societies, it may be explained, are an outgrowth of purely fraternal societies like the Masons. They are comparatively new, the oldest being the Ancient Order of United Workmen, and the largest the Modern Woodmen of America. Yet, young as these fraternal beneficiary societies are, they have far outstripped in numbers and influence the purely fraternal societies. Perhaps the main reason for this is that they are more practical in their plans of conferring benefits, while not less fraternal in character. All, or practically all, of the local camps or lodges are social centers. They perform in the villages and small towns and cities, the functions of the clubs in the larger cities, and they are agencies for the promotion of brotherly love and thee xtension of fraternal relief. They have committees to care for their sick and help those in need; they find employment for the unemployed, and in countless other ways co-operate to ameliorate the hard conditions and circumstances of modern life.

BRANCH POSTOFFICES

All Over Country Are to Be Investigated.

Washington, June 11.—Fourth Assistant Postmaster General Bristow has instituted an investigation of the circumstances governing the establishment and maintenance of all the branch stations and sub-stations of postoffices throughout the country. The object is to determine the necessity of such stations and whether influence or collusion of any sort between officials and outside parties are responsible for their existence. The recent acknowledgement of Gen. William M. Dudley, the former commissioner of pensions, that he accepted a fee of $100 for securing the establishment of a substation in this city for a druggist, called the attention of the officials to the subject.

SLUMP IN STOCKS

Many Duluthians Getting Hit Pretty Hard By the Drop.

Northern Securities One of the Most Popular Stocks Here.

The great slump in stocks in the New York market has hit Duluthians pretty hard. Duluth is a great town for speculation, there is probably not another city of its size in which there is more of the spirit than here. It would be impossible to do any more than guess at the amount of money the slump has meant to Duluth, but that it is very large is without question.

The statement was made one day recently that one of the financial institutions of the city had that day discounted paper to the extent of $50,000, every cent of which went for margins on stocks. How much other institutions furnished, and how much went up of which no financial institution knew, is impossible to guess.

Northern Securities has been one of the popular stocks among Duluth speculators. When the tips were out several months ago to buy it at the time the stock was on its rise from about 101 to 115, a large amount of it was bought by Duluth people. Yesterday it touched 85¼. That means for the man who bought a 100 share lot at 110 a loss of nearly $2500, and as the brokerage offices require a margin of 10 points, it means that he must have $2500 tied up in the deal.

Of course a large number have dropped out and paid their losses, but there are many who are still hanging on.

Northern Securities is not the only stock, however, which has been popular with Duluth traders. Many of them are in the steels, and while the slump in them has not been as heavy, it has been a wearing one nevertheless. Steel common stock has been a favorite stock with a great many. It is constantly pointed out as a stock that is selling now at less than 20 and pays a 4 per cent dividend annually, better than 12 per cent on the cost of the stock.

A man was pointing out this fact to another in a brokerage office the other day and met with a sarcastic response that silenced him. It was:

"Yes, they have paid 4 points a year in dividend every year and knocked 8 off the price of the stock. Who gets the best of that?"

Amalgamated has caught a few, but most of the traders are rather wary of that stock. It has looked rather attractive when it got down to 60, but it is manipulated so fiercely that most traders light very shy of it, and it is the inexperienced who play it very much, except possibly for quick scalps.

Speaking of stocks, there was a little yarn in a Duluth paper a day or two ago telling of a man who, in a Duluth brokerage office, who apparently woke out of a doze and gave an order to buy fifty shares of any stock, and put up $300 margins when the broker selected Brooklyn Rapid Transit. He went to sleep and a little while later woke up and ordered it sold, taking a profit of $500 over and above the margin moneys.

The story may have been interesting to one who knew nothing of the stock market, but the ignorance of the individual who wrote it as to stock movements made it laughable to the man who was at all posted. Brooklyn Rapid Transit has not had a 15-point fluctuation in one day's trading for months and months.

Nor has anybody been able to clean up 10 points on the long side of any stock for a considerable period of time.

Lyceum Tonight.

"The Black Hussar."

THE STAGE

The tuneful music of that old-time favorite, "Erminie," will be heard at the Metropolitan this evening and for the balance of the week when the Wilbur Opera company will sing "The Two Vagabonds." Charles A. Vaughan assumes the role of Marquis de Flerl and Miss Richardson that of the marquis' daughter Rosalie. Gus Vaughan and W. A. McGraw are said to be especially good as Robert Macaire and Jacques Strap, the two vagabonds. Miss Ethel Hunt, the popular leader of the Amazon march, sings the part of Captain Dastpie. "Fra Diavolo" was presented for a fourth time at the playhouse last evening and was witnessed by a good sized audience. At the matinee yesterday afternoon nearly 400 children, admitted free of charge on invitation of Manager Fullwood, witnessed the production and at its conclusion were given an opportunity to meet the three Gardner children who held a reception on the stage.

* * *

This evening will close the first week of the Northwestern Opera company's engagement at the Lyceum theater, and those presenting the "Mikado" to the Duluth public, will go to Superior two nights to present "The Black Hussar" and "Mikado."

The company has more than come up to the expectations of the public, and the attendance at the matinee and evening performance yesterday were quite as large as at the performances of Monday and Tuesday evening.

As before the hits of the show were Miss Hayden's congo love song and the march by the chorus as hussars and the solos by Mr. Langlois and Miss Jenkins were well received.

The opening of the summer season has been more than up to the expectations of the management, and the public, and the members of the company have been aroused to a pitch of enthusiasm by the royal welcome they have received.

* * *

"Zig-Zag Alley" is an original pantomimic trick farce by Jas. Gorman, full of big laughing effects, including the wonderful cyclone with its topsy turvy effects, the underground station of New York, with its mass of trick scenery; the board walk, Atlantic City; the mechanical dummy, the funny automobile, the human phonograph, and a host of other novelties. Original music, pretty girls and handsome costumes will be the main feature, the management claiming that "Zig-Zag Alley" is the best trick comedy, with better comedians, more artists of the first rank, more original effects and the strongest singing chorus of any similar organization on the road. It will be at the Lyceum Friday and Saturday.

"The Charity Ball," which is to be produced at the Lyceum theater Friday afternoon, June 19, as a testimonial farewell to Gus A. Forbes, recently leading man at the Metropolitan theater, assisted by twenty of the prominent young people of the city, is the topic of conversation in social circles. When the announcement was made that a matinee only was to be given, there was such a general expression of regret made by business people who would be unable to attend the afternoon performance, it was decided by the management to give a performance the same evening at the Grand opera house, in West Superior, as Mr. Forbes also has many admirers in West Superior.

Twenty-five of the most prominent society ladies of the city will act as patronesses, and the audience at the Lyceum Friday afternoon, June 19, will undoubtedly be a brilliant one. A large number of theater parties are being made up and will go to West Superior for the evening performance.

"The Charity Ball" is one of the most beautiful of all the great society dramas, and as it is several years since it has been seen here the announcement is received with much pleasure. Rehearsals are being held every day under the direction of Mr. Forbes. Miss Elizabeth Frazer, who is to play the dashing young widow, will it is said, be a great surprise to her many friends. Will S. McCormick has the difficult role of Dieg Van Buren, stockbroker, and brother to the minister. Miss Laura Frankenfield will do Anne Cruger and Miss Mae Wylie, Phyllis Lee. In the second and third acts these two clever young women have two beautiful scenes with the minister, which will be played by Mr. Forbes.

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Alleged Shortage of Dickinson County Treasurer Is Growing.

Iron Mountain—The alleged shortage of John H. Carey, the missing ex-treasurer of Brietung township, who was elected register of deeds of Dickinson county last fall, appears to grow as the investigation progresses. Carey's books were found to balance after he had turned up missing and the reported discrepancies in the accounts could not be explained until the delinquent tax list was published. This list contains, it is alleged, the descriptions of many pieces of property the taxes upon which had been paid to Carey and for which receipts are held. In one instance the Kimberly & Clark Paper company, it is said, paid over $1000 in taxes on property which was returned delinquent. Other alleged discrepancies of a similar nature are developing and in some quarters it is stated the alleged shortage will aggregate over $10,000. Carey's whereabouts are unknown, but it is hinted he is in Canada.

Rex Plowman, a member of this year's graduating class of the Iron Mountain high school, has a record thought to be unparalleled in the annals of the peninsula. This is the eleventh year of his school life and during all that time he has not missed attending his classes a single day, neither has he been tardy during that time.

Sault Ste. Marie—The event of interest to Knights Templar was the election of officers for the ensuing year of the grand commandery. The only contest was for grand warder for which Oramel B. Fuller, of Ford River, and Charles C. Graham, of Ithuen, were leading candidates. It required five ballots to decide, Graham winning the coveted honor. The officers elected were: R. E. grand commander, Thomas E. Borden, Saginaw; V. E. deputy grand commander, Richard D. Swartout, Grand Rapids; E. grand generalissimo, Frank C. Holmes, Alpena; E. grand captain general, Joseph H. Crawford, Flint; E. grand senior warden, Charles A. Warden, Detroit; E. grand junior warden, Fred N. Bonine, Niles; E. grand prelate, Rev. Francis A. Blades, Detroit; E. grand treasurer, Charles H. Pomeroy, Saginaw; E. grand recorder, Henry L. Anthony, Sturgis; E. grand standard bearer, Hutson Colman, Kalamazoo; E. grand sword bearer, Howard D. Taylor Adrian; E. grand warder, Charles G. Graham, Ithaca; E. grand captain of the guard, Andrew J. Brou, Detroit.

Ishpeming—The claim of the new management of the Lake Superior Consolidated company that it will be able to secure half a million tons of iron ore annually from the Helen mine, in the Michipicoten district of Canada, is ridiculed by Editor George A. Newett, of Ishpeming, ex-commissioner of mineral statistics. Mr. Newett declares that if this output is to be achieved, there must be decided gains in the size of the present ore deposit.

Ironwood—Officials of the North Star Mining company, organized to explore a tract of land three miles from the city in the hope of finding copper, of which there are indications, have been surprised at the discovery of iron ore instead. Samples brought to the city show the ore to be of low grade, but as they were taken near the surface, it is expected the quality will improve as depth is attained.

Escanaba—Alfred Beach, of Minneapolis, who has been employed at White's lumber camp, has been formally adjudged insane and taken to the asylum at Newberry. Beach is a young man of powerful build and has been service with the regular army in the Philippines. His insanity is attributed to the result of sickness contracted while in the archipelago.

Munising—An interesting find was made by men engaged in building a road on Grand island. It was an old flintlomk musket, a relic of the early days when Indians comprised almost the exclusive population of the Lake Superior district, and it was found hidden in an old stump.

Republic—Postmaster Erickson is a victim of hard luck. Beginning with July 1, his salary will be cut $100 a year because the gross receipts of the office during the fiscal year fell short of $2.88 of the amount required to keep him in his present class.

RECORD IS BROKEN

In Production of Pig Iron For Month of May.

Output Fifty Thousand Tons Greater Than For April.

New York, June 11.—The record production of pig iron in April was broken by a wide margin last month, according to figures prepared by the Iron Age, which show that in May this country produced 1,758,000 tons of pig iron, compared with 1,666,000 tons in April. This is an increase of over 50,000 tons. Of this enormous total the steel companies produced 1,033,000 tons in May, against 965,000 tons in April.

The productive capacity has, however, been further enlarged during May, so that the whole active furnace plant of the country is now getting close to a rate of 400,000 tons a week, which seems a staggering quantity for the consumption to take care of.

During May there was an accumulation of stocks of about 35,000 tons of coke iron and 5000 tons of charcoal iron, which is about the rate at which belated foreign pig iron has been coming in. This would look as though consumption is now very close to the actual rate of output.

There are indications that large interests are quietly testing the market in the hope of securing supplies for the second half of the year at figures considerably below the present range. There has been somewhat more buying lately, but it is still far below the normal.

The Southern situation does not seem to have been cleared. Outside furnace interests are again under selling the official prices, without, however, marketing much.

The tide water steel market is easier, owing to somewhat lower offerings of foreign billets.

Some good orders for steel rails have been placed in the West and further transactions are pending. In the East the market is quiet. Labor troubles are having effect upon the tonnage being placed in manufactured iron and steel. On the whole, it is not so satisfactory as it should be, although the leading interest reports an exceptional amount of work in tubes, tin plate and some other branches.

Flood Conditions.

C. S. Hazen arrived in the city yesterday after some interesting experiences in the upper regions of the flooded districts.

"I came here from Des Moines," he said last evening, "and when I left, water was flowing through the capitol building and was six inches over the curbs in the streets of the city. At McGregor, Iowa, the same conditions existed, everything being covered with water.

"About half the country down there is planted in corn, and most of it is under water. The crop damage will be heavy."

CLAIM INGRATITUDE.

Josiah and Isabella Roscoe Sue Their Children.

Josiah and Isabella Roscoe, an aged couple, have started an action in district court against their son, Josiah R. Roscoe, and grandson, George Roscoe, to have set aside and declared null and void the deed by which they transferred to the defendants lands in section 10-50-16.

In the bill of complaint filed yesterday the plaintiffs set forth that they deeded their homestead to the defendants Aug. 16, 1902, with the understanding that the latter were to take care of them during their life time. It is alleged that when the property was deeded over the plaintiffs were in ill health, and the promise made by the defendants that they would improve the property by a new house, barn, fences, and pay the back taxes, was an alluring one. It is claimed that the defendants did not live up to their agreement, and the plaintiffs charge them with an attempt to defraud.

The plaintiffs are 84 and 75 years of age respectively.

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

Man With "Horrors" Killed By Jumping From Window.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Hot Springs—William Guilfoil, of Alliance, Neb., who has been here several weeks, jumped from the third floor of the Hot Springs hotel and struck across a large oak chair with such force that he died a few hours afterward. It is supposed he was internally injured. His condition has been bordering upon delirium tremens for several days.

Mrs. J. W. Shepard, wife of the postmaster at Lithia, died of eating greens made from rheubarb leaves.

Spearfish—Edward Wilson was shot to death yesterday and D. Bennett is in the Deadwood jail charged with the shooting. The men had a quarrel over a woman. Bennett says Wilson killed himself. He acknowledges the quarrel and says that Wilson tried to shoot him; that he grabbed the revolver and that when neighbors started to separate them Wilson went back in the house, after which he shot himself.

Oldham—At a meeting of the stockholders of the Farmers' Elevator company, the contract was awarded to a Madison firm for the construction of a grain elevator. The contract calls for a building having a capacity of 22,000 bushels, and for a flathouse.

Rapid City—John G. Smith, tried in circuit court here for incest, has been acquitted. The trial lasted a week and was very sensational. Smith is soon to be tried on another charge, in which an elder daughter is involved.

Pierre—The ferry boat Scotty Phillips left for Yukon, towing a large raft of piling, which will be used on the government river work at that place.

Watertown—The general store of Archie Weaver was robbed of about $65.

Huron—Lawrence Du Bois, superintendent of schools for Beadle county, is fearful that a scarcity of teachers will be felt the coming fall. Only a few in this immediate locality care to take the required examinations, and as certificates cannot be issued except the applicant passes the examination, only a limited number will be likely to be given out.

At the examination of teachers here a day or two since, for both state and county certificates, and but one for first grade, while thirteen wrote for second grade. Another examination will be held in August, when the superintendent hopes there will be a much larger class. At this time it looks as if a supply of school teachers would have to be imported.

Elk Point—The twelfth annual convention of the Sioux Valley C. E. union will be held in this city Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, June 23-25. Rev. Victor F. Brown, of Platteville, Wis., Rev. W. H. Thrall, of Huron, and a large attendance of Endeavors from the district are expected. A large chorus choir is in training and an unusually profitable session is looked for.

The annual school election takes place on Tuesday, June 16. Owing to a change in the school law last winter the entire board will have to be elected this time.

Miller—County Superintendent George Grace has arranged for a two weeks teachers' institute to begin June 15. C. W. Martindale, of Yankton, will be conductor; instructors, Miss Harriet Grant, of Sioux City, Professor Charles Carroll, of Miller, Professor Bruce McVay, of Highmore, Professor Harry Fross, of St. Lawrence, Professor F. D. Snyder, of Miller. Among the prominent lectures will be Professor Southwaite, of the Emerson school of oratory, Boston.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Fargo—The sale of Shorthorn cattle was a decided success. The top price was $400 and the average $195. There was plenty of interest and the bidding was spirited. Every animal offered was sold. A dealer who has attended eight sales in Iowa and Minnesota declares the prices were about 40 per cent higher than the average sales of that class of stock.

The change from the old to the new telephone system was made Wednesday afternoon. The Northwestern Telephone company has the franchise here and this spring erected a new building at a most of $50,000 and placed the wires in the entire business section in conduits. The new system is the same as in Minneapolis and St. Paul. Seventeen girls are employed during the day with a smaller night force.

Frank Hitchcock sleeps in the office of the Flamer house barn. He awoke this morning and found his clothes out in the lot with the pockets wrong side out and $12 and a watch missing.

The North Dakota agricultural college commencement exercises were held last night. The address was delivered by Dr. Hult, of the chair of English. The attendance at the exercises was larger than usual.

Sisseton—At a meeting of the city council it was voted to grant the Fowler Electric company of Morris, Minn., a fifteen years' franchise to erect an electric lighting plant in Sisseton. The plant is to be in operation by Oct. 1.

The first annual commencement of the high school was held Monday evening. The graduates were Charles A. Reed, Lawrence B. Saterer and Maud E. Kellogg. The exercises were of a high standard and showed the thoroughness of the year's work.

Pembina—William Clifford, of Leroy, committed suicide. He disliked the terms of his father's will and began to brood over the matter. He was married a few months ago.

"A Wonder = Working Remedy for Women," Says Mrs. Brown.

Though I sought the best medical advice, my sufferings seemed to increase, and recently upon the advice of a friend, I used Paine's Celery Compound, and found it to be a wonder-working compound. I have used five bottles and can truthfully say I am a new woman. I owe my life and present good health to Paine's Celery Compound."

CHICAGO WIFE

Traces Her Missing Husband Through the Union.

New York, June 11.—After four months of effort Mrs. Victor Hug, of 893 North Oakley avenue, Chicago, found her husband and her former best friend, Mrs. Kate Fennenbach, living together in Williamsburg. Hug was arrested. Mrs. Hug says that on her return home from shopping last February her husband and their 5-year-old child, Victor, were missing. She went to tell her bosom friend, Mrs. Fennenbach, about it, and met the latter's husband, who announced that his wife and their little daughter had disappeared. Through the Machinists' union in Chicago, to which Hug remitted his dues as a member, Mrs. Hug learned of his whereabouts and started after him.

"I don't want my husband back," exclaimed Mrs. Hug, "but I want my little Victor, and I want my husband punished for the way he has treated me."

NEARY AND M'EWEN

Re-Elected President and Secretary of State Labor Federation.

New Ulm Chosen Next Meeting Place—Socialism Repudiated.

Little Falls, Minn., June 11.—The State Federation of Labor adjourned sine die last evening. M. E. Neary, of Minneapolis, was reelected president for the seventh time. It took two ballots. On the first Neary polled 97 votes against 75 for the field, composed of Garfield and James of St. Paul and Bambridge of Minneapolis, and on the second ballot he had 75 majority. William E. McEwen of Duluth was unanimously reelected secretary-treasurer for the seventh time. E. B. Bradley of Little Falls was chosen first vice president and Garfield Morrison of Mankato second vice president. New Ulm was decided upon as the meeting place of the convention next year, and the Union Advocate of St. Paul was named as the official organ of the federation.

Delegates from the St. Paul steam engineers introduced a resolution that the federation affiliate with the American Federation of Labor. It was adopted and the state federation officers were instructed to take proper steps. The new preamble to the constitution was sent to a referendum. A resolution that the federation send fraternal delegates to the Wisconsin state federation convention at Manitowoc on July 14 was carried.

The federation will hereafter elect the federation council from the floor of the convention. Formerly the members were selected by the delegates from the city in which the council was located.

The garment workers' delegates introduced a resolution, which was carried, that the federation center with the American Federation of Labor in an effort to secure the adoption of a universal label.

The organization committee made a report recommending the placing of a permanent organizer in the field, that work in this branch may be prosecuted more vigorously. The report was adopted.

E. M. Shaw, president of the local mill workers, spoke of the progress of the union labor movement in Little Falls, and in its behalf asked that the federation provide an organizer to do special work here.

The federation took action upon the question of securing amendments to the existing state labor laws, defining the liability of employers and the matter was referred to the incoming council, which will draft a new bill.

The committee on officers' reports advised the adoption of the following recommendations:

First—That a permanent organizer be placed in the field.

Second—That the federation concur in the recommendation to have the inmates of Stillwater prison make only enough shoes to provide for themselves and the inmates of other state institutions, and if this would not require all of the time of the inmates, that they be employed in the manufacture of twine, and that this matter be left in the hands of the incoming federation council.

Third—That the matter of printing the proceedings of the convention be left in the hands of the secretary-treasurer.

The committee report on the federation council's report recommended that the matter of affiliating the state federation of labor with the American Federation of Labor be referred back to the convention. The committee also recommended the passage of the Donnelly employers' liability bill, an act relating to damages sustained by employes.

The committee recommended that the constitution be so amended as to provide that the federation council be selected from Minneapolis and St. Paul during sessions of the legislature.

A new preamble to the constitution was offered by the socialist group which embraces among other things demands for collective ownership of all means of production and all means of communication and transportation, national, state and municipal; the election of the president, vice president and judges by direct vote of the people; abolition of all indirect taxes; reduction of hours of labor; equal civil and political rights for men and women; prohibition of all contract prison labor; establishment of postal deposits and savings banks; national insurance of working people against accident, lack of employment and old age; prohibition of child labor; compulsory education at public expense, and that the use of halls in all municipal buildings be granted free of charge to citizens for the discussion of public questions.

The constitution committee reported against the adoption of the proposed preamble, and the convention endorsed the committee's recommendation, despite the threat by a delegate from the Minneapolis Carpenters' union that the carpenters' unions would withdraw from the federation.

MASKED MEN CALL

On Charles Crone But Revolver Disperses Them.

Helena, Mont., June 11.—The suit that was begun in federal court on Monday by the Butte & Boston Mining company against the Geyman Mining company is alleged to be the inciting cause of a sensational attempted murder that occurred at an early hour yesterday morning.

Charles Crone stated that his wife was awakened by noises outside their house, and on looking out the window she saw four men, all of whom wore masks except the leader, and Mrs. Crone declares positively that the unmasked man was Charles Geyman. She warned her husband of the approach of the party, and the next moment there was a loud knock at the front door and a call for Crone to come out. Crone did not open the door, as his early morning visitors were seen in the bright moonlight to have firearms. He responded to the summons with a shot through the door from a revolver. The men at the door hurriedly retreated, but were seen to stop a short distance from the house and began firing at the windows. One of the bullets whizzed alarmingly close to Mrs. Crone's head, but the others went wide of the mark.

No one on either side was hurt. Warrants have been issued for the arrest of the marauders. Crone was the principal witness for the Butte & Boston company against Geyman Bros., who own the Yankee Boy mine, through which ore is alleged to have been illegally extracted.

SHOT THE MARSHAL.

Coldblooded Attack By Negro At Raton, N. M.

Raton, N. M., June 11.—A mob of 200 armed citizens are scouring this vicinity in search of a negro who shot and fatally wounded Night Marshal John Jones about midnight last night. If captured, the murderer will be strung up to the nearest telegraph pole. The shooting was most coldblooded. Tarve Ingroen persisted in pursuing Jones, and when he attempted to arrest them one of them fired a revolver at him from behind a saloon screen. The marshal was shot through the neck, the jugular vein being severed. At last accounts he was still alive, but without a chance of recovery. At the time of the shooting the negroes had been drinking in the saloon.

DOWDELL AND BRIDE

Will Press Damage Suit Against Latter's Father.

Missoula, Mont., June 11.—Carl Dowdell and Miss Bessie Young were married Tuesday evening. Dowdell, it will be remembered, was the central figure in a sensational cutting affray several months ago, when J. L. Young, father of the bride, called him to him room and almost disembowled him with a knife. Young's act was preceded by a charge that Dowdell had ruined his daughter. The young lady was located in Helena, where she had secured employment. She said her departure from Missoula was part of her plan to wait until a dependent relative of Dowdell's died and then they would be married, in the meantime both husbanding whatever they could earn.

Dowdell's life hung in the balance for several weeks, and upon his recovery he sued Young for $21,500 damages.

Young is under bonds to appear at the October term of court to stand trial on a charge of assault in the first degree. The damage suit will not be dropped, as the young woman has all along taken sides with her husband against her father.

IMMENSE CLASS

Nearly Five Hundred Pupils Graduate From the Grades.

Exercises Held At Assembly Hall—Addressed By Supt. Denfeld.

The high school assembly hall was packed last night on the occasion of the graduating exercises of the Eighth grade of the public schools of the city.

There were nearly half a thousand of them in all, the girls sweetly and charmingly gowned, and the spectacle was interesting and delightful.

This will probably be about the last year in which the graduating exercises of the eighth grade will be held at the high school, as the schools are growing so that the assembly hall will hardly accommodate them another year.

R. E. Denfeld, superintendent of the Duluth schools, presided over the exercises and gave the members of the immense class a few parting words of advice. He called attention to the long years of study that they had spent, mostly in the local school, in order to gain the position they occupied last night. He reminded them of the duties and perils of the larger life in the world into which many of them will go at once.

The class is so large that diplomas were not distributed last night, but will be given out by the principals of the various schools.

The graduates opened the program by a song, "Praise to Thee." Edith Wheeler, of the Adams school, gave an amusing recitation, "The Cow and the Bishop," after which Miss Sjoquist, of the Emerson school, gave a humorous recitation entitled "His Mother's Boy." Walter McComber declaimed "Herve Riel," with spirit, and Miss McIrum gave "Home Sweet Home" a pleasing reading. Kenneth Cart, of the Franklin school, gave a humorous reading entitled "The Canvasser of the National Portrait Gallery," and Edith Hopkins told the story of "How the Old Horse Won the Bet." Albert Wayne recited "The Old Man and Jim." Emily Baker and the class sung "The Legend of the Bell," and Clara Shaver, of Lester Park, gave a declamation, "The Duties of American Citizenship." The Jefferson school gave an Indian club drill which was charming. William P. Hicken, of Lakeside, recited "Our Country's Greatest Glory," and Lucile M. Bradley, of the Jackson school, read "The Denominational Garden." Laura LeDuc gave "The Death Bridge of the Tay," and R. L. Johnson, of the Longfellow school, gave a declamation, "Abraham Lincoln." Miss Johnston recited "Kentucky Belle;" Emma Olson gave a humorous declamation entitled "The Annexation of Cuba," and Ralph G. Ely gave a humorous selection on "New England Weather," after which the immense crowd dispersed with the sense of having heard an admirable entertainment.

TROUBLE AT VALPARAISO.

Victoria, B. C., June 11.—An officer of H. M. S. Amphion, which has been ordered to Valparaiso, says that although trouble has arisen as a result of the engines of the wrecked steamer Arequipa having been tampered with prior to her loss during the hurricane of the 3rd instant, the admiralty officials are more worried because an election is pending and trouble is feared as a result of the rivalry between the present military leader and the naval officer, who will oppose him.

COLD AND WET

But Duluth Takes Fargo Into Camp In Pretty Game.

Games Tomorrow Morning and Afternoon With Crookston.

	Won.	Lost.	Perc.
Winnipeg	16	4	.800
Grand Forks	14	5	.737
Crookston	13	6	.684
Duluth	6	12	.333
Fargo	6	12	.333
Superior	2	15	.118

Heavy artillery and spectacular fielding were the features of yesterday's remarkable victory at Athletic park.

Just a few of the forty-fourth degree faithful were present, but the way they rooted would have been a credit to a boiler factory.

The weather was raw and cold, the diamond slippery and slow and the janitor neglected to turn on the steam heat in the grand stand. The players were up on their toes at all stages, and the chilled fans shivered, swore and cheered.

And strange things happened. In one inning there were three Fargoites on bases and no person out, but fast fielding on the part of the Cardinals prevented a score. In the second inning Fargo showed the same form. Duluth had the bases full with only one out, but fast work on the part of the visitors prevented a run from crossing the plate.

The most sensational stunt in a game replete with spectacular work, was Rose's catch of Lyon's long drive to center in the fifth. It was an easy three-bagger for a man as fast as the new Cardinal infielder, but Rose after a desperate run jumped about four feet into the air, pulled down the ball with one hand, fell, turned over three times but still held on.

Quillan also got in the sensational fielding class. In the first inning Howells rapped a fierce drive to second. Quillan slipped and fell in gathering it in, but from a semi-reclining position threw the runner out at first.

Kennally's great head work did as much as anything to win the game. He showed fine judgment in critical moments and when he was off first fielding drives toward right. Mueller covered first nicely.

Shepard continued his hitting streak, having three lfessized hits out of four chances. His double in the fifth went clear to the center field fence and drove in Kennally with the winning run.

Lyons, though a second baseman, showed up well at third except for an unfortunate accident in the ninth. He came direct from Nevada, Mo., where he has been playing with the temperature up to 102 degrees and it was something of a change for him to get right into a game after a tiresome forty-eight hour journey with the thermometer registering 42 degrees.

* * *

Lambert's stick work was fine yesterday. After Kennally had broken off a double in the third, Lambert drove out another double, bringing in the first run.

* * *

It was too cold to see either Foulkes or Mueller at their best, but even at that both men played a nice game.

* * *

Harris is playing a fast game in left field. His three put outs yesterday were the result of pulling down drives labled for doubles.

* * *

Foulkes, the Fargo pitcher, gave the knockers something to think about on the car after the game. A member of the anvil chorus having an impression that a man should play errorless ball despite injuries was roasting Shepard. Foulkes spoke up and said that Shepard today was the best short stop in the league.

* * *

Fargo tried two new players yesterday. Knowlton at first plays a fast game and seems to be something of a sticker. Archer, behind the bat caught a fair game.

* * *

Mueller struck out Brennan every time he went to the bat yesterday.

* * *

Winnipeg shut out Grand Forks yesterday in another fast game. Harris was touched up for fourteen hits, while Bemis let the Grand Forks men down with six scattering singles. About 2500 people saw the game. The score:

CLEVERLY WORKED.

Union Depot Ticket Agent Gives Up $75.

A new get-rich-quick scheme has been successfully worked by a clever crook in this city.

On Monday evening John S. Robitaille, of the Union depot ticket office, answered a telephone call. The conversation was something like this:

"Is that you, John?"

"Yes."

"How are you fixed for currency down there?"

"All right, why?"

"One of my ball players wants to get away tonight and I'd like to have you cash a check for $75."

"All right, Mr. Bryan."

"Thank you. I'll send a messenger down with the check."

Shortly afterward the messenger arrived at the Union depot with the check and $75 was placed in another envelope and sent back to the sender of the message.

The boy got the message at the St. Louis hotel, but the man that sent him met him just outside the depot, took the message and told the boy to send the messenger bill to the Wisconsin Central office. He then disappeared and the police are looking for him.

No Truth In Reported Death of Simcoe Chapman.

Simcoe Chapman, formerly a well-known mining and lumberman here, is in the position of Mark Twain when he pronounced the reports of his death to be grossly exaggerated.

A short time ago a Bay City, Mich., paper published a circumstantial story of how Mr. Chapman had dropped dead on the streets of Portland. It was widely published, as Mr. Chapman is well known all over the Northwest and Middle West. Telegrams and letters of condolence poured in on Mrs. Chapman at Portland. She now rises to remark that Mr. Chapman is enjoying vigorous health and is very far from being dead. At the time the report circulated he was in Southern California on business. Harry Crawford, of Duluth, a brother of Mrs. Chapman, has a letter from her denying the story. They are all a loss to know how it started, however.

BRAVE MONTANA GIRL.

Effects the Arrest of Two Cowboy Terrors.

Culbertson, Mont., June 11.—Alone and shingle-handed, Miss Edith O'Mara, daughter of a prominent resident, arrested and landed in jail two "bad" men who have long been a terror to this locality. "Red" Cutcheon and John Morley, cowboys, are the names of the prisoners.

The young woman was walking along the street Tuesday evening when the two rode into town and began to shoot out lights, whooping like Indians on a raid. She accosted them politely, and then suddenly drew a pistol from the bosom of her dress. The muzzle was pointed first at one man, then at the other, with such rapidity that the two desperadoes failed to see any joke in it.

"Drop your revolvers, and drop them at once," commanded the girl.

With muttered oaths the two men allowed their revolvers to fall to the ground, where they were secured by the girl, who then marched her prisoners to the jail and turned them over to the marshal.

"Someone just had to arrest those horrid men," said Miss O'Mara, in talking of the matter after the prisoners were safe behind the bars, "and as long as the male residents of this place were afraid of them it seemed to be up to a woman to place them where they belonged."

WEEKLY CROP REPORTS.

Favorable Weather For Grains Generally In the Dakotas.

Last week was again favorable for grains according to the North Dakota crop report which says:

"The past week has been a very favorable one for crops of all kinds. Considerably warmer weather prevailed, with light scattered showers, and the growth of grain and grass in nearly all localities has been rapid. Several hail storms are reported, mostly in the northern portion of the state, but none of them did any damage.

"Wheat covers the ground in most places and is generally strong and vigorous. The high temperature of the latter part of the week forced it more than it should have been, but being followed by cooler weather, with light showers in most sections Sunday night, it will have a chance to revive. In some low places where it was drowned out by the heavy rains of the latter part of May, it will have to be resown, which is now being done, most of the land being put into flax, barley and millet.

"Oats, rye and barley are doing well in all sections and making rapid growth.

"Flax seeding is still in progress, although only scattered fields are left to be sown now. That sown early is up and doing fairly well, that sown late has not sprouted yet, and in most sections needs rain to start it. A crust has formed on the ground in most sections, especially on low land, which keeps vegetation from coming through easily, and this is retarding considerable flax from coming up.

"Corn, which has been backward, owing to the cool weather, was greatly improved by the recent warm weather, but is still backward and has a very uneven stand; in some fields it is just coming up in places, while in others it is large enough to cultivate. Some areas in the southeastern part of the state have been replanted, owing to the seed rotting.

"Grass is growing fast, and in most sections promises a large crop of hay, but in considerable of the western portion, where extensive prairie fires prevailed this spring, but little hay can be put up.

"The South Dakota report is as follows:

"The temperature during the week averaged somewhat above the normal; moderately cool the fore part, with considerable cloudiness, but warm the latter part, with clear to partly cloudy weather. Generous rain occurred in the Black Hills region; elsewhere the showers were scattered and mostly light. In some upper James and Missouri valley counties, more rain will soon be needed, especially for grass, late sown flax, and late planted corn.

"Except on some lowland fields in the extreme Southeastern counties, wheat is in splendid condition, and oats, barley, rye, and spelt are doing nicely; all made rapid progress the latter part of the week.

"Except in the extreme Southeastern counties, where considerable lowland is still too wet to work, and where also, there was some damage to corn and some small grain from excessive moisture, corn planting is practically finished. Cultivation of the early planted progressed favorably and the stand is generally fair to very good. The reduced stand is principally due to poor seed, but there is some complaint of damage by cutworms. The crop is backward generally, and on wet lowlands is not healthy, but the condition improved considerably with the warm weather of the latter part of the week.

"Flax and millet sowing generally progressed very favorably, flax sowing being nearly finished. Early flax is generally making very good growth and showing good stand.

"Potato planting is practically completed, and the growing crop shows fine stand and is making very satisfactory growth.

"Alfalfa is in excellent condition. Prairie grass has made good growth and generally affords excellent pasturage, and in some Southern counties is in exceptionally fine condition.

"Garden truck is making vigorous and very satisfactory growth.

"The prospect for tame and wild plums is from fair to good, and for apples fair; strawberries are promising."

STRONG EVIDENCE OF FAITH

S. F. Boyce Guarantees That Hyomei Will Cure the Worst Case of Catarrh In Duluth.

When one of the most reputable concerns in Duluth guarantees that a medicine will effect a cure or he will return the money, it speaks volumes as to the merits of that remedy. It is in this way that S. F. Boyce is selling Hyomei, the treatment that has made so many remarkable cures of both acute and chronic cases of catarrh in Duluth and vicinity.

Hyomei is not a pill nor is it a liquid that has to be taken with a tablespoon or wine glass. Just breathe it in by the aid of an inhaler that comes in every outfit, and benefit will be seen from the first treatment.

It destroys all germ life in the air passages and lungs and enriches and purifies the blood with additional ozone. It cures catarrh of the head and throat, or of the stomach, liver and kidneys. Wherever mucous membrane contains catarrhal germs, there Hyomei will do its work of healing. When using this treatment, the air you breathe will be found like that on the mountain high above the sea level, where grow balsamic trees and plants which make the air pure by giving off volatile antiseptic fragrance that is healing to the respiratory organs.

Remember that if Hyomei does not cure you, S. F. Boyce will refund your money. This is a good time to cure catarrh by this natural method and prevent catarrhal colds that are so common at this season.

WELCOME TO THE TRAVELERS!

Fine weather has finally arrived—and just in time to enable Duluth to extend a bright welcome to the delegates to the convention of the United Commercial Travelers and their friends who are already coming by every train and will arrive in force tonight and tomorrow morning. They are assured of a hearty reception by the people of Duluth who recognize the value of these advance couriers of business and industry—hustlers in every sense of the word. Most of them have probably visited Duluth before and know all about the city and its industrial and commercial importance. Even those who have not been here previously are not unacquainted with the story of Duluth's growth and expanding trade, because they have come in contact all over the Northwest with the many representatives of Duluth houses covering the vast territory stretching westward to the Pacific coast and eastward to the upper peninsula of Michigan. Duluth travelers and Duluth goods are in evidence all over this region, and everywhere the commercial travelers of wholesale houses in other cities meet the competition of the houses at the head of the lakes. Those who have felt the effects of this competition will not be slow to perceive the shipping advantages possessed by Duluth houses, which enables them to compete so successfully for the trade of the Northwest.

The commercial travelers are good advertisers. In their constant traveling through the land they are coming in contact with the city merchants and country storekeepers, and on their next trip out they will undoubtedly have much to say about the Duluth convention and the hospitality extended to them here. Duluth will be liberally advertised in this way, and it will be effective advertising. Thus there is also a selfish reason for Duluthians extending "the glad hand" to the travelers. But the members of the United Commercial Travelers' association are a splendid and sociable class of men, and they will be welcomed on their own account without regard to any benefit that Duluth may receive. The people of Duluth are glad of the opportunity of meeting the wearers of the blue, white and gold colors. May their sojourn here be pleasant and enjoyable, and may the warmth of the sunshine be not less than the strength of the hospitable spirit in which Duluth greets them.

STRONG POLITICAL MACHINE.

It is possible that one reason, of course unannounced, why progress in the establishment of rural mail delivery was abruptly stopped, was the fear of department officials and politicians that the service may become a strong political machine and dominate to a certain extent legislation which the leaders believe should be directed by them. Fourth Assistant Bristow is particularly alarmed and thinks the government is building up a great political engine, which will in time come pretty near running congress. He says that although the rural free delivery has been established only a short time, there are today some congressional districts that contain as many as 300 employes of this special branch of the postal service. If the system is developed at the present ratio, at the end of ten years there will be from 300 to 500 rural carriers in each congressional district.

These carriers are bound to organize, and the power they will wield may become enormous. The department officials fear that when the rural carriers organize, as they surely will, they will be in a position to dictate to congress. They may demand larger pay for their services, and those representatives who fail to vote for this increase can, and will, be beaten for re-election. A small contribution from each of these rural carriers would be sufficient to provide a large fund, and this money, dumped into a congressional district and backed by the votes and influence of the carriers and their friends, would come pretty near defeating any member, no matter how popular or efficient he might be.

While department officials may fear the organization of carriers, it will suit the ordinary politician. Congressmen are in favor of the rural routes and are wise enough to have their henchmen appointed to the positions, and realize they are safe as long as they stand in with the men. It simply becomes a case of reciprocity. There is no doubt that the influence of these carriers can be made to be felt. They visit every day little farm houses scattered through the plains and mountains and in many instances are the only strangers that the inhabitants see for weeks at a time. By dropping a few words here and there on their daily visits the carriers can create much sentiment for or against a candidate for office that cannot be overcome by speeches or literature. The whole thing resolves itself into a question of influence. The postoffice officials do not like the prospect, but the congressmen do, and for that reason rural free delivery will be rapidly extended.

The Boston Globe offers this timely advice: Don't take a pillow and try to mash the mosquito on the ceiling. Tie a sponge to the end of a stick, dip the sponge in kerosene and hold it under him—or her—and see him (or her) drop.

Fifteen million dollars in the United States treasury will be available for irrigation in July. But it will not be needed in Kansas or Missouri.

Between floods and drouths, give us neither. Duluth is happy to escape both.

SHOULD BE INVESTIGATED.

It is hard for the ordinary layman to understand why Gen. Crozier, chief of the bureau of ordnance, recently gave an order for $2,000,000 worth of army field guns to the Erhardt company, of Dusseldorf, Germany. This is the new 3-inch field gun recently adopted after competitive tests held at Sandy Hook. The old pattern cost about $30,000 complete with carriage, and it is estimated that the new ones cost about 50 per cent more. Gen. Crozier gave orders to manufacturers of guns in this country to the extent of the capacity of each plant, and then, because of the great need for the weapons, he was forced to place a big order inGermany. The thing that finally impelled him to give a contract to the Erhardt people, so it is said, was their promise to deliver the guns about a year and a half sooner than any American firm could finish them. Time, he claims, is an important consideration, in view of the fact that the army now has none of these field guns at all.

This is the explanation of Gen. Crozier. Just why the army is in need of this new field gun in such a hurry is not apparent. As far as known the American army has been fairly well equipped with artillery—in fact sufficient to answer all purposes. There is no known indication of war with anyone. Even if there was, the Americans would be able to do pretty well with what equipment they have. There does not seem to be the slightest excuse for giving such a foreign order for guns. It would seem that the postoffice department is not the only one that needs investigation. There are others that should be looked into—not perhaps on the ground of any fraud, but of unnecessary expenditures of good American money.

LET ALL DECORATE.

It is proposed that Superior and First streets be decorated on Friday and Saturday, when the convention of the United Commercial Travelers will be in session here. There should be a ready compliance with this suggestion. The industrial parade on Saturday afternoon, in honor of the visitors, promises to be a large one and thoroughly representative of the varied industries of the city. All the places of business along the line of march should put on gala attire to add to the attractiveness of the demonstration. There is plenty of bunting and other decorative material available, and it should be utilized to adorn the fronts of the business houses on Superior and First streets, along which the parade will move. There should not be a building in the business section of the city without decorations on this occasion.

FOREST FIRES.

The recent extensive forest firest fires in the Adirondacks and in Maine have caused renewed interest in the studies of the agricultural department to prevent these awful conflagrations and the best methods of fighting them after once started. No estimate can, of course, be placed as yet on the losses which have been suffered thus far this year, but the average annual loss for the United States is given at from $25,000,000 to $50,000,000. Forest fires have been regarded as almost inevitable and only a few states, it is said, have enacted laws to guard against them or establish anything approaching a system of regular forest supervision. New York, Pennsylvania and Minnesota have taken the front rank in adopting precautionary measures.

The studies now being conducted by the federal bureau of forestry differ from former ones in that the fire data is being obtained during the progress of the conflagrations, instead of after they have run their course. Special agents are in the field in various parts of the country watching the movement of the fires and the methods of fighting them by state employes, the employes of corporations and the people living in the affected districts. Attention is also given to the causes, the rapidity of the fire, what natural conditions favor or hinder the progress of the flames and what damage is done to the soil and the tree-growth.

There is no doubt that a vast amount of useful information will be collected in this way and that the publication of it will serve an important end. The problem is a difficult one, yet it should be possible to stop in considerable measure the annual destruction of forests by fire. A large amount of time and money can well be spent on this work.

STEAMSHIP EARNINGS.

On the face of the returns of the earnings of foreign steamship companies, it would seem that there had been a large falling off, and but for the fact that the capitalization has been greatly increased over the real increase in property, some apprehension might arise as to the future of profitable shipping.

The North German Lloyd line paid no dividend at all last year, while in 1901 it paid 6 per cent. The Hamburg-American line paid 4½ in 1902, as compared with 6 per cent in 1901. The Hansa line paid 8 per cent in 1901, while last year 6 per cent was declared. The German-Australain Steamship company suffered a reduction from 8 per cent in 1901 to 5 per cent last year. The Hamburg-South American Steamship company paid no dividend in 1902, while in the preceding year the dividend was 4 per cent. The Kosmos company was able to pay 12 per cent in 1901, which last year declined to 9. The German-East Africa line was able to advance its dividend from 2 per cent in 1901, to 2½ per cent last year, being the only one that showed an increase. With this one exception all the lines show a falling off, though most of the dividends remain fairly good.

The apparent over-capitalization has led to an increased demand for bounties from the various governments. While they are usually forthcoming from foreign countries, they are not, and never will be, from the United States. Shipping will pay when conservatively managed, and the American people know it.

There is compensation in all things. It is said the recent drouth in New Jersey has reduced the mosquito crop fully one-half. It is a crop that will not be sadly missed.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

Richard Ferris, somewhat disfigured by his recent automobile accident at Minneapolis, whisked into the Spalding hotel this morning and ate breakfast in the new cafe.

Mr. Ferris left town at 1 o'clock this afternoon for St. Paul, where he plays this evening with his comedians in that city.

His object in coming to Duluth at this time was to verify the complaint and swear to allegations made, as pleadings in a suit which will be started at once against the management of the Metropolitan Opera house for $25,000 damages.

The ground for the action is that the theater management violated a contract alleged to have existed between the Ferris company and the house, extending the season of drama through the summer. The house management claimed that there was no such contract which they would recognize and ousted the showman, to his damage and loss, he alleges, "of $25,000 and the costs and disbursements of this action."

"We have evidence which is positive," said Mr. Ferris this morning, "but which could not be introduced at the hearing of the injunctional matter before Judge Dibbel. In that hearing we could not introduce much of our evidence, for we were desirous of staying, and knew that if we showed our standing would be foregone as a winner in the trial court, the injunction would be dissolved and we would have been given the remedy of a civil suit for all damages.

"We believe there will be little difficulty in presenting evidence that will substantiate our claims, and corroborative testimony we have in abundance.

"I leave this afternoon, and Mr. Bailey will probably file his complaint in a few days now. The trial will probably be deferred until after the summer vacations, although if it can possibly come up earlier we would like it."

Mr. Ferris has just completed arrangements for stock seasons of a few weeks each to be played by his companies through to Butte, and possibly to the coast. He intends having one company on the road, and with the companies at St. Paul, Minneapolis and Omaha, he is in a position to move them around, first placing one on the road and then another, in that way renewing his companies at all of the cities at short intervals.

It was this plan, he says, that made him especially anxious to retain the Duluth house, as it would have made a good basis of supplies for the traveling and stationary companies. It is possible yet, he says, that he will come into Duluth and make this city a permanent home for one of his companies.

Mr. Ferris is looking to the future of Duluth, and says if he is in a house here, he can, under his new arrangement, bring his Minneapolis or other companies here occasionally, as they start or close their trips.

Mr. Ferris is suffering from a blistered face, the right eyebrow, cheek and part of the nose, being scorched some. He and John Williams, manager of the Oshkosh house, rode in his automobile at Minneapolis last week, while the paper flower decorations burned all about them.

The guests of Mr. Ferris and his machine jumped, but he stood by the levers like a hero and breathed some of the flames—and what he didn't breathe caressed the right side of his face with smarting results.

The hotels at noon today were practically filled, and the convention of the United Commercial Travelers will cause a greater strain on the hostelries of the city than any gathering here in years. Reservations were made some months ago, but that method of securing rooms was cut off a fortnight ago, and the visitors were told to take a chance at getting fixed for quarters when they arrived here.

The first party of any size came into the Hotel McKay this morning when a score or more of commercial men and their wives from the Twin Cities registered at this house. The traveling men who could possible do so have been arranging their time on the road so that they could come into Duluth on their regular trip a day or two ahead of the convention and take quarters to hold through the convention.

The large delegations will arrive tonight from the Twin Cities and from Crookston and Winnipeg.

"I noticed just as I was leaving Boston," said P. R. Waite, a traveling man, who registered at the Spalding this morning, "that the first pieces of the much talked of mansion of J. M. Longyear of Marquette had arrived there. The mansion, as I remember is worth of half a million dollars, and it is being moved in sections from Marquette to Fisher Hill, Brookline, in pieces and put up again upon its arrival there. Mr. Longyear has purchased a five-acre lot across the street from the site of his new home, and is placing the blocks of stone, each of which is marked so that it can easily be replaced, as it was, on that.

"Thirty carloads of the stone had arrived at Boston, and forty more carloads had been started from Marquette, so that a good deal of the building, which is now almost razed, is either there or on its way.

"The transportation of the western mansion to the Hub of the Universe, is causing a great deal of talk in Boston, and the people there are watching the developments with interest. Mr. Longyear is well known in this part of the country, and it may be of some interest to the people here to know that the mansion is actually moving and some of it has already been placed on the big lot near the site of the new mansion."

Agitation Among "Guinea Pigs."

Boston Transcript: There are a great many people in England who will hear with considerable mingled emotions the decision of the supreme court that Whittaker Wright must go back. The "guinea pigs," men who lent distinguished names to the directorates of his "companies," would have been perfectly reconciled to an opposite decision by the court.

FLASHES OF FUN.

Philadelphia Ledger: "You don't mean to say he's bought a copy of the city directory for the parlor. What use has he for it there?"

"Why, man alive, his name's in it in print."

New oYrk Sun: Jinks—Rum is a cure. Blinks—Yes, you bet it is. And at times there's nothing like a good swear for relieving the feelings. How do you feel now?

Washington Star: "Why don't you see a physician?"

"No, siree," answered Farmer Corntossel. "If I git cured, it's got to be by patent medicine. Nobody gits his picter in the paper fur bein' cured by a reglar doctor."

New York Times: Willie Boreum—Pa, what's the difference between news and gossip?

Mr. Boreum—Well, my son, whenever your mother tells anything to anyone it's news, but when anyone tells her anything it's gossip.

Chicago News: "Go in and tell the editor I am out here with a horsewhip," cried the irate citizen.

"He'll be very glad to hear it," replied the office boy. "He'll just take it away from you and sell it. We had an auction up here last week and sold a dozen."

Chicago News: "Shall I oppose the bill, then?" said the lobbyist.

"Well," said the magnate, "I leave it to you. Use your own judgment whether to oppose it or put something in it to make it unconstitutional."

Baltimore News: "Blinks is terribly nervous. See how he keeps clutching at the air and carrying his hand to his mouth?"

"That isn't nervousness. That's force of habit. He patronizes the free lunch counters."

Philadelphia Press: "I thought," said the doctor, "that this was a bargain; that I could get it for a song."

"Well, you can have it," replied the dealer, "if you can reach a few high notes."

Detroit Free Press: "Yes, he has an excellent memory."

"Nonsense! He doesn't seem to be able to remember the $10 I loaned him last year."

"That's just what makes his memory so excellent; he can remember or forget things as he pleases."

War Costs Big Money.

Philadelphia Press: War, even by a first-class power against a comparatively small population, is a very costly operation, as the British discovered in South Africa. The London Economist says the cost of that war was $1,035,780,000. In addition, $15,000,000 was loaned to the Transvaal and South Orange colonies, which is to be repaid. The comparatively small part which the British took in the Chinese Boxer trouble cost over $30,000,000. To meet all of this enormous expenditure $575,750,000 was raised by taxation. The remainder will, for the most part, be added to the national debt. It would not take many victories of that kind to put a nation into bankruptcy.

Hope With a String.

Boston Globe: Railway President Hill figures it out that when we sell each person in China a cent's worth a day it will give us a trade with that country of $1,500,000,000 a year. This will lead people to wish the Chinese had the cents to trade with.

A Long Felt Want.

Saturday Evening Post: In these days of high charges for electric lights the country needs another Benjamin Franklin. He brought electricity down.

Facing a Grim Fact.

St. Louis Globe-Democrat: Legislation in Missouri has long rested on a system of bribery. A year ago this would have been hypocritically called slandering the state, but is now recognized as a grim fact.

A False Alarm.

Philadelphia North American: The American ambassador to St. Petersburg may be presumed to know something about Russia's policy in Manchuria and the attitude of its ministry toward foreign trade. He says M. Witte is a firm advocate of the open door and has no desire to see the Manchurian ports closed against the United States. The Siberian railway must carry freight to be a success, and to get freight for the railway the government must encourage trade at the Pacific terminal. So far as the United States is concerned, the Manchurian scare was a false alarm.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: All is not gold that one marries for money.

It's mighty curious how a light heart always goes with the same kind of head.

A woman will always forget that a man loved her unless he remembers to tell her so.

A good many women would like to be married to two men—one to be the father of the children and one to be her husband.

One would suppose that a girl who has brothers would know better than to have ideals about the man she is going to marry.

He Prefers to Live.

DICK CARTER'S CHOICE

By Edwin J. Webster.

(Copyright, 1903, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

Dick Carter was making for the Mexican border as fast as his horse could carry him. The horse in question was an excellent one, yet the possession of it made Dick extremely uncomfortable, not to say nervous. For the horse had belonged to Scotty Farrell until the evening before, when Dick appropriated it without the formality of asking the owner's permission. Such eccentricities are not looked upon as jocular in the Southwest. Dick learned that a lynching party was being quietly organized. Hence his haste to get out of United States territory. Now the foothills were only a short distance ahead. Dick was pretty certain that if he could get a good start among the hills he could throw off his pursuers, who, while no doubt strenuous in their chase, were not yet in sight.

Scarcely had he ridden over the first slight ridge of the foothills than Dick saw a sight which filled him with a good deal of wonderment. Ahead, stretched out on the ground, was a pony. It had evidently twisted its leg and fallen on the treacherous ground. A short distance from the pony was a girl, a much-frightened girl, who was running as fast as possible. At Dick's hail she looked around in terror and then gave a gasp of relief as she noticed that Dick was an American. She stopped running and waited for him to ride up. As Dick halted his horse the girl broke into a torrent of entreaty.

"The Indians! the Indians!" she gasped. "The Yaquis have made a raid over the border. They are on my trail now. Can't you save me? You know," she added, her voice breaking, "how they treat women they capture. And my pony has broken its leg."

Dick drew in his breath with a little whistle. He did not know how the Yaquis treated women. But they treated men the same way, their course of treatment beginning with burning splinters and ending with even more unpleasant things. But while Dick Carter was far from being a good man, it never occurred to him to ride on to safety and leave the frightened girl to the mercy of the Yaquis. A second later, the girl mounted behind him, he was making the best of speed towards the second ridge of the foothills.

But when the second ridge was reached one thing was certain. The horse could not long carry double over that rough ground. Dick halted at the top of the ridge and looked back. To the north could be seen a faint cloud of dust. That was from the vigilantes, following fast on his own trail. To the West was a second and larger dust cloud. Dick knew that was from the Yaquis. He gave a little sigh. It seemed tough luck, just when he had stumbled he would be safe if he reached the foothills. But Dick did not hesitate as to his choice.

"The horse can't carry double," he said, briefly, dismounting as he spoke. "You ride south to the One Trail ranch. There you will be safe. Hurry, hurry! This isn't the time for talk."

Even with the terror of the Yaquis on her the girl hesitated.

"I won't ride away on your horse and leave you to be killed," she said, in determined tones.

Then Dick lied, a noble lie.

"There's a little gully I know of, where one person can hide, especially as they will be watching the trail of the horse and not looking for me. I won't run half the risk that riding double would be."

As the girl rode off Dick looked grimly around.

"Lots of little gullies," he thought, "but none that would hide a rat from those sharp-eyed Indians. Well, I'll shoot as long as I can and keep the last bullet for myself. No little fires on his stomach for Mr. Dick Carter."

The course the Yaquis and the lynching party were taking prevented each from seeing the other, a low ridge intervening between them. The Yaquis reached the foothills first, swung around a curve and, intent on the trail left by the girl, came on at a gallop. Then suddenly the lynchers rode over a ridge, a considerable distance to the northwest. Before either party had time to more than barely realize the presence of the other they were within shooting range.

The Indians, although taken by surprise, supposed most naturally that the lynchers were on their trail, not being acquainted with the incident of the disappearance of Scotty Farrell's horse. They scattered to such cover as could be found, and opened fire. The lynchers were even more surprised than the Indians. But they were well armed and not the kind of men to meekly submit to being shot at. In a moment a very pretty, if wholly unlooked for fight was in progress.

For a short time Dick Carter watched the fight with feelings of unholy joy. Both parties were equally his enemies. The more they injured each other the better were his chances for ultimate escape. Then his emotions began to change. The Yaquis outnumbered the Americans and slowly but surely were getting the better of the contest. After all, thought Dick, the lynchers were men of his own race and breed, even though they had planned unkind treatment of himself. Should he look on while they were killed and wounded by a lot of Indians, and Indians from across the border at that? Dick stretched himself out in the little gully, got a good rest and began pumping at the Yaquis with his repeating rifle.

This practically settled the fight. The Yaquis were dismayed at the rear attack and supposed it meant the arrival of reinforcements for the white men. They scattered, their firing grew desultory and a few minutes later the entire band were in full flight.

There was no use trying to run away on foot and Dick sauntered coolly over to the somewhat diminished band of lynchers. The recognition of their unexpected ally gave them considerable of a surprise.

"You turned up just at the right second for us, Dick," observed the leader. "By the way, if it's not a personal question, what's become of Scotty Farrell's horse?"

"A girl's got it," said Dick, with rather more nonchalance than he really felt. "A girl the Indians were chasing and whose horse broke its leg. She's ridden it down to the One Trail ranch. Scotty can get it there."

"Seeing the way you bobbed up just when we were needing you, I guess everything is all right this time," replied the leader, glancing at the rest of the band and at Scotty Farrell in particular. Scotty nodded his head. "But the next time you borrow a horse don't be quite so impromptu about it. Grab one of those Indian ponies. We'll ride on to the ranch, see that the girl is safe and get the horse."

"Blamed if I didn't make the right choice for all parties," thought Dick, as he mounted the pony. "Though I didn't think so at the time. When I saw that girl galloping away on Scotty's horse I thought it meant either torture or a bullet in his head for Dick Carter."

Nature Slips a Cog.

New York Tribune: Floods in the west and drouths in the East? Can any one strike a satisfactory balance by a reasonable method of adjustment?

Balance on the Right Side.

St. Louis Globe-Democrat: A treasury surplus of about $10,000,000 is in prospect for the fiscal year ending with the present month. The war taxes were abolished last year, but the Republican balance on the right side is still entirely satisfactory.

Sample of Franchise Grafting.

St. Paul Pioneer Press: Right in the midst of the prosecutions now going on in St. Louis, largely growing out of the dishonest use of corporation funds to influence the grant of valuable franchises without compensation to the city, the Terminal association of St. Louis applies for an extremely valuable addition to its franchises, and loftily resents any idea of payment therefor. The "good accruing to the city" from its enterprise it affects to deem sufficient, without dividing with the municipality any portion of its profits. Regardless of morals, and as a purely business proposition, it would seem as though, if a city is to get nothing in any event from such franchises, it makes no difference to the people how much the "boodlers' fleece the corporation to which they are given.

SONG OF THE LAWN MOWER

With hands all calloused and hard,
With red and puffy mien,
The suburbanite with all his might
Keeps shoving the grass machine!
Push! push! push!
With back bending lower and lower,
While frogs they croak and crickets creak
The Song of the old Lawn Mower.

Shove! Shove! shove!
From morning till late at night,
And push! push! push!
With all your muscle and might.
It's oh! to be once more
In the clasp of a city flat
Where you don't have to rattle an old machine
With a cabbage leaf under your hat.

Click! click! click!
Till the brain begins to rock.
Sweat! sweat! sweat!
From your bonnet right down to your sock.
Rocks and rubbish and sticks.
Tomato cans and bean.
These are things I run across
Plying the grass machine.

Oh, men with country tastes,
Oh, men in city spots,
Oh, you have lots to be thankful for,
Yes, lots and lots and lots.
Push! push! push!
Is a thing you never need do,
'Neath the broiling, baking, scorching sun
With the heat at a hundred and two.

Oh, for an hour of rest,
Which I know will never be mine,
Though for my part I'd let the grass
Grow up 'bout six-foot-nine,
But a fellow he hardly rests,
When a voice is heard nearby,
Saying, "Oh, dearest, don't you think
The grass is getting too high?"

Then push! push! push!
Till you wilt in your very clothes,
Shove! shove! shove!
With face as red as the rose,
It's oh! for a city retreat
Away from this vernal green,
I'd rather be a slave to a jan-i-tor
Than work this grass machine.

The Five Stages.

Life: At 17 she said: "I want a man who is ardent in all of love's ways and whose passionate devotion may never flag. He must be tall and broad-shouldered, and handsome, with dark, flashing, soulful eyes, and, if need be, go to the ends of the world for my sake."

At 21 she said: "I want a man who unites the tender sympathies of a woman with the bravery of a lion. I don't mind his being a little dissipated, because that always adds a charm. He must be, however, accomplished to the last degree, and capable of any sacrifice for my sake."

At 25 she said: "I want a man who unites with an engaging personality a complete knowledge of the world, and if, of necessity, he happens to have a past, he must also have a future; a man whom I can look up to and with whom I can trust myself at all times without the slightest embarrassment."

At 30 she said: "I want a man with money. He can have any other attributes that a man ought to possess, but he must have money; and the more he has the better I will like it."

At 35 she said: "I want a man."

The Coryphee's the Thing.

'Tis a singular fact
That to open an act
We must have a hoop-la chorus.
While as every one knows,
We must caper in rows,
And wink at the crowd before us.

We have come to the days
Of musical plays,
With the girl as a vital factor.
The gay coryphee
Now is having her day.
She is more of a card than the actor.

They may say we're the chorus
But we are the principals,
We're the principal attraction, and attracting is our forte.
The men they all adore us
And say we are principals,
The others mentioned on the bill are our support.

Head of Birmingham, Ala., Institution Has Run Away.

Birmingham, Ala., June 11.—With President J. T. Cromwell in parts unknown and short nearly $250,000, the Bessemer Savings bank, one of the strongest institutions in the district will close its doors and ask for a receiver. President Cornwall left three notes explaining the shortage. In one, addressed to the public, he says that he lost the money trying to make back $12,000 he had lost in a legitimate business transaction. He further exonerates all the officers of the bank and takes the whole blame on himself.

In a letter to his wife, which she was expected to open yesterday morning he stated that he would not commit suicide, but would let her know if he died. In a third letter, addressed to Cashier Cockrill, he states that he had nothing left for him to do but "wander on the face of the earth or become a convict in the state mines."

The shortage will not affect the Birmingham banks, as they have all taken their papers out.

It is understood that a great part of the money was in deposits of the merchants and the employes of the roller mills of Bessemer. The city of Bessemer will lose $17,000. The bank will probably not be able to meet a payment of more than a small percentage on its deposits. The bank was organized in 1891 with a capital stock of $100,000 and had deposits of about $250,000.

AGENTS ARE ANGRY.

Do Not Like Cut In Rates on Twin City Lines.

Chicago, June 11.—Developments in the very mixed situation of the rates in Chicago-St. Paul territory were rapid yesterday. The meeting of the representatives of those lines, held at St. Paul the day before, had decided that the one fare for the round trip rate should be put in order to meet the rate advertised by the Soo line. The Soo's rate would divert much if not all of this class of travel through Montreal to the New England points. The rates were advertised to be good between June 11 and 26. On the heels of this announcement from the Northwestern roads the regular meeting of the Central Passenger association came on, and the whole question was brought up for discussion, which at times was very animated. Not only did the representatives of the Central Passenger association roads vote that they would not participate in the rate made by the Northwestern roads, but one of the members said he would favor instructing the conductors on the trains to throw off the passengers who presented these tickets. The fact that the rate had been made without notice to them caused some of the heat exhibited. The Eastern roads take the position that they should have been allowed a voice in the matter.

Farmer Cured of Rheumatism.

"A man living on a farm near here came in a short time ago completely doubled up with rheumatism. I handed him a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and told him to use it freely, and if not satisfied after using it, he need not pay a cent for it," says C. P. Ryder, of Pattens Mills, N. Y. "A few days later he walked into the store as straight as a string and handed me a dollar, saying, 'Give me another bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. I want it in the house all the time, for it cured me.'" For sale by all druggists.

FREAK ACCIDENT.

Derailed Cars Skip Across Bridges on Ties.

Osage, Iowa, June 11.—As the Illinois Central railroad freight came into Osage one of the cars left the track at Wright's crossing, a mile north of town, and before the train could be stopped two bridges were badly damaged and half a mile of ties broken or torn out of place. The first bridge was entirely destroyed, and about sixty ties on the Doran bridge will have to be replaced.

One set of truck wheels ran the entire length of the 100-foot bridge within four inches of the end of the ties, while the other ran on top of a 6x8 stringer on top of the bridge ties. The wheels that ran between the rails cut nearly every tie in two or so damaged them that they will have to be replaced. The track the entire half mile looked like a snake, it was so crooked and out of place.

PREFERRED THE OLD

County Authorities Liked Former Law Against Wife Desertion.

Offenders Now Not Extraditable and Punishment Less Severe.

Is the new law passed by the state legislature to prevent the abandonment and neglect of wife or children, by persons charged with their maintenance, an efficient one?

The new law is receiving much criticism at the hands of the county authorities, who in the past two years have been active in bringing to justice deserters of wives and children, and who claim that the law operative before the new act went into effect was far better.

It is claimed that under the new law wife desertion is not a felony and scarcely a misdemeanor, that practically the only penalty that can be inflicted on a man deserting his wife in this state is for contempt of court.

The provisions of the old law for wife deserters were very stringent. Abandonment of wife and children in Minnesota was an indictable offense and the law provided a severe penalty. Unless after conviction the husband or father could give sufficient bond to provide and care for his family, he might be sent to the state penitentiary for a term of not less than one or more than two years, or might be confined in the county jail a year. Under the new law prosecutions for wife desertion cannot result in a penitentiary sentence.

Under the former law a wife deserter, or a father that deserted his children in this state or refused to support them, could, at the instance of any persons interested enough to make the complaint, could be brought before the grand jury and, if the evidence was sufficient to warrant an indictment, the person indicted could be tried and convicted. It was not an offense that could be tried before a justice of the peace or by a judge of the municipal court.

Being an indictable offense the wife deserter in Minnesota could be extradited, providing he went outside of the state, but it is claimed that under the new law a wife deserter who leaves the state cannot be brought back here for trial.

By the provisions of the new law complaint may be made of any case of willful abandonment or refusal to furnish proper food, clothing and shelter to wife and children, without lawful excuse, to a justice of peace or a judge of municipal court. The complaint may be made by the wife or any other person, and must be made in writing and under oath. A warrant may be issued and the accused person brought before the officer issuing the complaint. The justice or judge shall enter the case as required in criminal actions, the state of Minnesota being the plaintiff and the accused the defendant. The justice or judge is empowered to examine the accused and all witnesses, the accused having the right to removal of the action as in a criminal examination before a justice of peace. If the accused shall pay to the complaining wife such a sum of money as the court may order or she may agree to receive in full satisfaction, and shall pay all the costs of prosecution and give a bond to the state in a sum set by the court, with sufficient securities, that he will furnish his wife or children, as the case may be, with proper food and shelter, the court shall discharge him.

The new law provides that in case the accused does not comply with the foregoing and there is probable cause for belief that he is guilty as charged in the complaint, the justice or judge may require a bond, approved by sureties, in a sum not less than $100, or more than $500, that the accused will appear at the next term of district court, in the county, to answer the complaint and abide by the order of the court. In case a bond is not furnished the accused must be confined in the county jail until district court convenes. Upon trial, if the accused is found guilty, or if he admits the accusation, he shall be adjudged to pay the wife or children such sum as the court may fix and direct.

If the accused disobeys the order of the court his personal estate, rents, profits thereon may be sequestered and applied on the order of the court, or if the accused has an income sufficient to enable him to pay the sum the court directs, he may be confined in the county jail until he complies with the order, or in the discretion of the court, or until he gives a bond conditioned to pay the amount and approved by the court.

Under the old law it was regarded as questionable whether a wife could be compelled to testify against her husband, but the law makes the wife a competent witness and provides that she may be subpoenaed and compelled to testify. In this respect the law is regarded as an improvement.

The only provison the county authorities claim made for a penalty is punishment for contempt of court, and they argue that such penalty will not be nearly so effective in tending to prevent wife desertion as the former punishment of a term in the penitentiary.

At the present time there is a Duluth man in the penitentiary serving out a sentence of one year for wife desertion, and there are a number of other wife desertion cases on the records of district court, where it is shown that rather than serve a penitentiary sentence the accused hustled around and furnished approved bonds that hereafter they will take care of their families. In some cases the accused were arrested outside of the state and brought back to St. Louis county to stand trial.

It is claimed that, as a rule, the persons who are arrested for desertion of wife or children are those who do not have any personal property worth sequestering or an income sufficient to justify the court in holding them in contempt, and that in all such cases the new law is practically a dead letter.

The St. Louis county authorities have been especially active in the past year in bringing this class of offenders to justice, and have been very successful. They are not backward in expressing their disapproval of the new law.

PRINCES WERE IN DISGRACE

Lectured By Kaiser For Flagrant Breach of of Etiquette.

Paris, June 11.—The story has reached here from Rome that Emperor William gave his two sons, Prince William and Prince Eitel Fritz, a very severe parental lecture in front of a large number of distinguished people. He even, in his uncontrollable anger, called them a pair of educated cads. The affair took place in the antechamber of the pope.

The kaiser had entered the private apartments of the pope and was just on the point of kissing the venerable pontiff's hand when suddenly he heard a merry peal of laughter. The sound seemed very familiar to him and he was just ransacking his memory to think whom it could be when the air fairly vibrated with unmistakable Teutonic roars of laughter.

The emperor chewed his mustache and impatiently stamped his foot, but the disrespectful noise continued without abating during his twenty minutes' audience with the pope.

All the furious kaiser could do was to swear, in silence, of course, and this he did to his heart's content. His holiness did not seem to notice anything, but the emperor's face gradually turned purple with rage.

He had thought he recognized Prince Eitel Fritz's voice, but, of course, it could not possibly be him. But, alas, when the audience was over and the kaiser again entered the antechamber he found his whole suite, and even his own two sons, almost convulsed with laughter.

The imperial eyes shot fire, and even the very penitent face of Prince Eitel, who explained that he and William simply could not help laughing when they looked at the quaint old uniforms and dignified manners of the papal bodyguards, failed to pacify the kaiser. The two princes had burst out laughing and, as etiquette demands, every one present had joined in the chorus.

But the kaiser refused to see any excuse in this. He sternly commanded his two sons to stand at attention, and in front of every one preached a most edifying curtain lecture to the ill-behaved princes.

PIPESTONE IS SELECTED

For Next Convention of the State Firemen.

Brainerd, Minn., June 11.—The convention of the Minnesota State Firemen's association opened yesterday at the opera house and the real work of the meeting was taken up. A. D. Brown of Pipestone was presented to the convention and on behalf of that city the Pipestone fire department gave the formal invitation to the association to meet at that place next year. He very appropriately presented President L. H. Stallman with an Indian war club made of the pipestone which has made the city famous and to Secretary Strong a pipe of peace made of the same material. President Stallman and Secretary Strong responded appropriately.

The report of the committee on credentials, consisting of Tom Johnson, E. L. Hey and F. C. Thorton was read and adopted. It showed 359 delegates to be present. Tom Johnson made an address which eulogized Secretary Strong, calling him the "Grand Old Man" of the state firemen's association. There is a report that the old gentleman who has held his office for years will be opposed in some quarters, but it is not thought to have foundation and he will, doubtless, be re-elected by acclamation.

Pipestone will be the meeting place next year by right of custom and may be officially voted on today. G. C. Stone of Pipestone, who is the present first vice president, becomes president, also by right of custom.

Secretary Strong read his annual report and stated that the association had made rapid progress during the year. The report was unanimously adopted. The Le Sueur delegation is strong and is pulling for the third vice presidency, which will give it the convention and tournament in 1905. The men have neat little buttons which they are passing around, and the indication now is that Le Sueur is the most formidable candidate in the field.

The following committee was appointed to check up the report of the secretary and report on new members: John Jackson, St. Paul; A. D. Brown, Pipestone; John Hill, Minneapolis. The following committees were appointed by President Stallman this morning: Life membership, J. T. Black, Duluth; C. C. Jackson, Thief River Falls; L. Kent, Alexandria. Resolutions, Tom Johnson, Crookston; D. L. Kane, Minneapolis, and Dan McIntosh, Brainerd.

AN UPHILL FIGHT

Conditions For Admitting Territories as States Are Worse.

Not Remotest Chance For Double Statehood, Says Beveridge.

Washington, June 11.—Supporters of statehood for the territories are beginning to recognize that an uphill fight confronts them in the next congress. "Uncle Joe" Cannon is not friendly to the statehood proposition. There will be trouble at the very beginning of the session over the organization of the house committee on territories. On the senate side, the committee on territories, as at present organized, will be indifferent to the admission of any of the territories. Political and business pressure may change the senate situation somewhat, but at this time the committee is not interested in the appeals of the statehood supporters. Senator Foraker took with him to the Columbus convention a statehood plan. He did not succeed in having it incorporated in the state platform. Pennsylvania only of the determining Republican states has spoken in favor of the admission of the territories. Senator Beveridge, the chairman of the senate committee on territories, was not inclined to discuss the statehood situation.

"I do not want to go on record with a prediction," said Senator Beveridge, "but you can say one thing, I think, with perfect safety, if there is any statehood legislation, Oklahoma and the Indian territories will come into the Union as one state."

"You don't think there is any chance whatever for double statehood?" was asked.

"Not the remotest," he answered.

Senator Beveridge is, of course, not absolute authority, but whatever position he takes will reflect the sentiment of the influences which dominate the majority side of the senate. The insistence on having Oklahoma and the Indian territory come into the Union as one state is due to many causes. Primarily, it will make consistent the Republican position that New Mexico and Arizona have not sufficient population to justify their admission. The proposition to admit these two territories with 1,000,000 population will be contrasted, with the demand of Arizona to be admitted with one-fourth of that population and New Mexico with less than one-third. Those who want no statehood legislation whatever will be offered the opportunity of opposing the admission of the new state on the ground of Indian territory's unpreparedness. The new state would have at least five and probably six votes in the electoral college. Under no circumstances would a Republican majority vote to admit a strong Democratic state just on the eve of election, and even though the enabling act could be passed, the admission would be fixed for a date subsequent to the election of 1904.

Delegate Rody, of New Mexico, is now here and has traveled extensively in the East, doing missionary work for statehood wherever the opportunity presented itself. He recognizes that there will be trouble in getting a friendly hearing in the house organization. Pennsylvania's Republican representation offers the greatest hope of sucess, but the indications are that it will be impossible to secure that harmony of action among the statehood friends which marked the fight at the last session. There will be friction at the beginning between the double and single statehood interests from the twin territories and another omnibus bill will be impossible in view of the probable organization of the house committee on territories. Speaker Cannon will have a firmer grasp on the house than Henderson had and his opposition will be more serious. With unfavorable conditions already manifesting themselves, it is imperative that Oklahoma and Indian territory should get together if there is an earnest desire for statehood. New Mexico and Arizona are practically elliminated from the statehood calculations. With the chance for any action restricted to Oklahoma and Indian territory, cross firing from that quarter will be fatal.

MUST RECKON WITH LABOR

John Mitchell Says Industrial Promoters Should Be Cautious.

Chicago, June 11.—"Marshall Field is the main is right," said President John Mitchell of the United Mine Workers of America, in reference to the recent statement of Marshall Field to the effect that the country was on the verge of an industrial crisis.

"It certainly is the part of prudence," he continued, "to look into the future, and during labor agitations one must take further precaution in this line than at other times. One who is planning the erection of a large building, or contemplating any other big project entailing great outlay, must reckon with labor before he begins. These matters are to be considered deeply, and it certainly is the part of prudence to look well into the future and reckon thoroughly with labor before undertaking any project.

The general labor situation of the country is good. There is no more labor agitation now, and no more strikes than usual at this time of the year. There are always disputes at this season, for it is from the first of May until the first of July that labor makes its contracts and agreements with employers. I don't believe prosperity has anything to do with the number of strikes. Dissatisfaction among workmen is no more common in prosperous times than in others. There are no more strikes now" than there were a year ago at this time, or two years ago.

"The labor situation all over the country is brighter than it has been heretofore. The present agitation, which seems general in places, is quieting down, I think, and will be over in a few weeks. I look for the settlement of all disputes now being waged by the first of July. Unionism is growing stronger. We added 500,000 new members to union rolls during the last year."

PLENTY OF PROOF

The greatest skeptic can hardly fail to be convinced in the face of evidence like this. It is impossible to produce better proof of merit than the testimony of residents of Duluth of people who can be seen at any time. Read the following case of it:

Mr. J. E. Watts, who lives at 811 Fifth street east, a bricklayer by trade, says: "I had a very severe attack of pain through the small of the back just over the kidneys. It was so bad that I could hardly get around, much less stoop and as a bricklayer when at work is almost constantly in a stooped position, I was unable to work. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills advertised I thought I would try them for plasters and other remedies had failed to give me any relief. I got a box at William A. Abbett's drug store and began to use the remedy. In a few days the pain entirely left me and I felt as well as ever."

BALFOUR TO RESCUE

Succeeds In Extricating Joseph Chamberlain From Predicament.

Henry Chaplin's Amendment Was Defeated By Large Majority.

London, June 1.—By a dexterous and extraordinary speech, Premier Balfour last night temporarily smoothed over the differences in the cabinet, relieved Colonial Secretary Chamberlain of any necessity of resigning, and for the moment averted a crisis which threatened the Unionist party.

This, Mr. Balfour accomplished without committing the government either to protection or free trade, though the effect of his speech will generally be taken to mean that the tariff issue is to be shelved for the present.

Henry Chaplin's amendment, which gave rise to the most interesting debate of the present parliament, was defeated by the overwhelming majority of 336 votes, composed of Unionists, Liberals and Irish members. The minority, who supported Mr. Chaplin's amendment, are almost all followers of the government, while many others of the Conservative party abstained from voting.

It was 10:20 o'clock last night when Premier Balfour sprang to his feet to reply to the taunts of the opposition and appeals from his own party.

For two days the house of commons has rung with echoes of dissensions within the cabinet and dissatisfaction without. The premier was loudly cheered.

He had scarcely begun to deal with Mr. Chaplin's amendment before he was interrupted with a hurricane of applause and ironical cheers at the entry of Mr. Chamberlain, who had been absent hitherto throughout the evening.

The colonial secretary dropped into his accustomed place. The house was now packed with peers, members of the house and spectators as it has never been since the days of the home rule battle, and they waited and listened in intense expectation.

In a whimsical vein Mr. Balfour explained that the only reason that the corn tax was put on was because the government wanted money and the only reason it was taken off was because the government wanted money no longer.

Reverting to the charges of vacillation made against him, the premier took on a tone of unusual vehemence. He declared he himself, though a believer in free trade, which statement met with loud applause, did not regard it as a fetish and he had absolutely an open mind regarding the necessity for any alteration in a system which was found to suit conditions of fifty years ago.

He refused not only to make a statement of any finality upon such an important question, but he also refused to compel his colleagues to conform to a standard of opinion upon which he himself had an open mind.

He admitted that differences of opinion existed within the cabinet, but these were not serious enough to cause the resignation of any member.

Mr. Balfour made an impassioned plea based by the precedents of friction in Mr. Gladstone's ministries, for allowing the premier to retain an open mind upon a question so difficult and so superior to all party issues. The speaker did not believe the country would ever return to the old protective system. No tax on food was ever imposed without the full assent of the working classes.

They were confronted, however, continued the premier, by three great huge tariff walls against the United Kingdom, the growth of the trusts and the desire of the colonies for closer ineal union with the mother country.

These factors could not be ignored. He maintained that the method of starting a public discussion was the only way to deal with these phenomena, though he did not commit himself to Mr. Chamberlain's more advanced program. It would be folly and rashness, he said, to interfere with the great system which had been in operation for so many years without the most careful examination and without due regard to history and the traditions of the past, while at the same time they could not ignore these new problems which the ever changing phase of industrial life presented for decision and the action of statesmen.

This non-committal speech, with all the eloquence and magnetism which Mr. Balfour wields so successfully, appealed for an open mind not only in the cabinet, but in the Unionist party, and brought a constant salvo of cheers. Throughout Mr. Chamberlain sat beside the leader of the house, beaming with satisfaction. Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, the liberal leader, briefly replied, appealing for an opportunity for the house to more fully discuss the issue raised. He said one member of the government was prepared to make a revolution in the country's fiscal system, a question on which the next general elections should be decided. This appeal elicited no response on the part of the government. The members of the house trooped into the lobby to vote against Henry Chaplin's amendment, the general comment being, "Balfour has saved Chamberlain."

Train Had to Return and Pick Him Up.

Washburn, Wis., June 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—An amusing incident happened on the south-bound Northwestern train from Bayfield to Ashland yesterday morning. Conductor Finn, through some mistake, got left at one of the flag stations between Bayfield and Washburn. When the train arrived at Washburn the conductor was missing. The coaches were sidetracked and the engine returned to hunt for the ticket puncher. When he arrived all sorts of questions were asked him, such as "How is the walking?" "Were you picking flowers?" "Wasn't the train making fast enough time for you?" "Did you think you could meet it at Washburn?" All of which he took with a broad brin.

WILCOX MUST SERVE.

Raleigh, N. C., June 11.—James Wilcox, the murderer of Nellie Cropsey, of Elizabeth City, will have to serve his sentence of thirty years in the state prison here. On his first trial he was sentenced to be hanged but the supreme court gave him a new trial because the spectators at the trial made a demonstration when Wilcox's lawyer arose to speak. On the second trial in a different county, he was convicted of murder in the second degree and sentenced to serve thirty years in the penitentiary. This judgment the supreme court affirmed in a long opinion.

JETT ADMITTED THE SHOOTING

Sensational Testimony Is Given By Sister of Lawyer Marcum.

Jackson, Ky., June 11.—The third day of the trial of Curtis Jett and Thomas White for the murder of Attorney J. B. Marcum, was distinguished by the evidence of B. L. Ewen, the first and leading witness of the commonwealth.

Jett and White are being tried jointly, the indictment charging them with deliberation in a conspiracy to murder.

It is charged that White entered the court house while Marcum and Ewen were standing together, and as he passed them gave the signal to fire.

Ewen testified to seeing Jett just before and after Marcum was shot and to seeing Jett just after his victim was carried out of the court house. Ewen's testimony corroborated the statements he had previously made regarding both prisoners and he withstood a rigid cross-examination.

When the court reconvened in the afternoon, the daughter of County Judge Hargis, the leader of the dominant feudists, occupied a seat beside the prisoners.

At the afternoon sitting of the court, attorneys for the defendants moved to dispense with the presence of troops in the court room and were overruled.

What it regarded as significant was the arrival yesterday of Inspector Hines from Frankfort under orders from Governor Beckham. It is generally believed that Inspector Hines will report as to how the trial is conducted as far as judge, prosecutor, jury and all officers are concerned, and much interest is taken in his presence.

Last night Mrs. Mary Johnson, sister of the murdered attorney, made a statement which is even more startling than Ewen's admission. In his statement this morning Commonwealth's Attorney Byrds said it would be proved that Jett admitted to Mrs. Johnson that he killed Marcum. In the evidence yesterday afternoon it was stated that Jett and White were seen talking to Mrs. Johnson at the bridge.

Mrs. Johnson last night confirmed what Byrds said would be her testimony, adding that she feared to tell this earlier, believing that she would be assassinated.

"As I was returning home shortly after the killing," she said, "I was overtaken by Jett. He spoke to me, and I said, 'Jett, did you kill my brother?' He replied, 'I did, but Hargis' money made me do it.' He said he was going to leave the country. Then Tom White came up and I asked him if he had anything to do with the murder and he said he was there, but did not fire the shot."

Byrds says other witnesses will testify that Jett admitted that he killed Marcum.

Inspector Hines had a conference with Capt. Ewen last night. He would not say anything as to the subject discussed. On objection of the commonwealth's attorney, the jury was not taken back to the home of Louis Hargis and will be boarded at the Arlington hotel. They are guarded by Elisor Jones, his deputies and a detail of soldiers. The nature of the testimony yesterday and its drift and the statement of Mrs. Johnson causes anticipation of more startling developments as the trial progresses.

AMERICANS SUIT HIM.

Suggestive Utterances Made By Emperor William.

Berlin, June 11.—"It is only Americans that meet my wants," is one of the latest utterances of Emperor William circulating in army and government circles. The emperor spoke those words recently according to the agebiatt, while dining with the officers of one of his favorite Silesian regiments and the thought pleased the emperor so much that he has frequently repeated it in other forms since then. It pointed out that the visitor of the Prussian finance minister, Baron Von Rheinbaden, to the United States, attracts unusual attention, among the initiated because of the emperor's admiration for American energy and political insight, and it is assumed that his majesty designs to give the minister larger tasks, for which his American observation will be specially useful.

WHOLESALE POISONER

Believed That Mrs. McKnight Killed Eleven Persons.

Detroit, June 11.—Eight other persons, besides the three to whose murder Mrs. McKnight confessed yesterday, investigation shows, have died in the past fifteen years under circumstances that in view of the woman's confession, are now thought to be suspicious. All of the eight were either relatives or intimate friends who died while living with Mrs. McKnight, or while she was at their house. All are said to have shown symptoms that are now believed to indicate strychnine poisoning. They are, Ernest McKnight, the woman's latest husband, James Ambrose, her first husband, who died at Alpena in 1887, Mrs. McKnight, the wife of James E. McKnight, who was a partner of Ambrose, Bable Temple, Mrs. McKnight's niece, Eliza Chalker, another niece, who died at Grayling in May, 1892, Sarah Murphy, Mrs. McKnight's sister, who also died at Grayling in February, 1898, a Mrs. Curry, who died in Saginaw in 1895 while Mrs. McKnight was at her mother's house, and Dorothy Jenson, a child who died in Grayling while under Mrs. McKnight's care during the absence of her mother. Investigation of these deaths shows that all of these persons except Mrs. Curry, were taken suddenly ill and showed what are now regarded as unmistakably symptoms of strychnine poisoning. Dr. Leighton, who attended Ernest McKnight, says that he is now confident that McKnight died of strychnine poisoning. Dr. Leighton was baffled by McKnight's trouble and the suddenness with which it came, but says he can see now that he had every symptom of strychnine poisoning. Eliza Chalker and Sarah Murphy were stricken at the table while Mrs. McKnight was present. Both died in convulsions in a few hours. There was no suspicion against Mrs. McKnight in connection with the death of the Murphys until she filed a mortgage on her brother's property, after his death, on which the figures had, it is alleged, been raised from $200 to $900. An investigation was then begun. The body of John Murphy was exhumed, and strychnine was found in the stomach. Mrs. McKnight was placed under arrest with the result that today she confessed. Her confession today was entirely voluntary and she seemed perfectly sane, although under great mental strain. No motive for the crimes can be found.

STRANGE DISAPPEARANCE

Of Ditzler and Half Sister of Wife.

Lima, Ohio, June 11.—The friends and relatives of Earl Ditzler and Miss Maude Medsker, of Perry township, are instituting a search for them, and are unable to account for their strange disappearance. Ditzler is the son of a wealthy farmer, and is married. He is about 25 years old and the father of five children. He received a large acreage from his father, and has been making his home here with his wife and children. Miss Medsker is a half sister of Ditzler's wife.

Last Saturday Ditzler drove with Miss Medsker in his father's carriage to Lima. The young lady is a school teacher, and her purpose in coming here was to take the yearly examination.

The couple failed to return to Perry Township, and a search has failed to locate their whereabouts. Ditzler had with him checks for several thousand dollars. One of them, said to have been given by Ditzler for $295, turned up in a Lima bank Monday.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. POLICE REFUSED

To Lock Up Eloping Girls at Father's Request.

New Albany, Ind., June 11.—Frank Carpenter and William Bower, two young men who live in Harrison county, near Lanesville, ten miles west of here, are under arrest in this city on a charge of abducting Katie, aged 16, and Rose, aged 18, daughters of Peter Roth, a wealthy distiller in that vicinity.

The girls were taken by the police to a hotel. The father of the girls, when he arrived in the city a few hours later, insisted that they also be locked up, but this the police refused to do.

The girls claimed that on account of the treatment they received from their stepmother they determined to leave home and asked the boys, who are neighbors and schoolmates, to bring them to New Albany. They say that they intended to go to the home of relatives here and remain until they could procure employment. The young men have employed attorneys to defend them in the abduction case.

MURDERER DOOMED

United States Supreme Court Affirms Queenan's Death Sentence.

Mystery of Terrible Crime Has Never Been Explained.

Oklahoma City, Okla., June 11.—The United States supreme court has said Thomas P. Queenan of Oklahoma City must hang for the murder of his wife in that city January 27, 1900. This case has been fought in the courts for three years, and in each instance Queenan has lost. His plea has been insanity. As a result of grief and worry over the murder, Queenan's aged father has died and it is feared that his mother will not long survive the intelligence that the supreme court has also decided against her son. The attorneys for Queenan will at once petition the governor for a commutation of sentence, which, it is believed, will be granted, as there will be no remonstrance filed against it.

Queenan killed his wife on January 27, was indicted on February 21, following and was convicted and sentenced to hang at the same term of court. An appeal was taken to the Oklahoma supreme court, which affirmed the decision of the lower court, and Queenan was again sentenced to hang. On a writ of error the case was taken to the United States supreme court and the final verdict has been given. Judge Burwell at Oklahoma city will for the third time sentence Queenan to hang.

No reason has ever been learned why Queenan should murder his wife. They had been married but a few years, having one child, a 2-year-old daughter. He and formerly conducted a barber shop, which adjoined a millinery store, in which Miss Ella Housh was employed as a trimmer. Their meeting was followed a brief courtship, then marriage. No word of reproach had ever been said regarding her, and she was the only woman, so far as known, he had ever cared for outside his immediate family. There was evidently no reason on his part for jealousy and he had never intimated such.

On the other hand, although at the time of the murder he was employed as a bartender, Queenan never drank. He was never known to quarrel or use offensive language. He had no bad habits except gambling, and was known to have gambled a few nights before the killing of his wife.

On the day of the murder Queenan asked a friend to work for him a little while, and went out. It was only two blocks to his home. Soon two shots were fired, and Queenan was seen to jump from a second story window, taking with him glass, sash and all, and breaking his leg by striking it against a box. When found and induced to speak he muttered something about having killed his wife and child. The child, which the father had evidently intended killing with its mother, escaped uninjured from the place, and was later found in the rear yard unhurt. The wife's body was found dead on the floor, two bullet wounds in the breast. No cause for the killing has ever been suggested. It has remained a mystery. The pistol was empty when found.

Queenan has been a model prisoner in the Oklahoma county jail, where he has been incarcerated since the killing. He has had numerous opportunities to escape, but has taken advantage of none of them. He has at all times manifested absolute indifference as to the final outcome of his case. He is now 22 years old.

Flag Day Celebration.

An effort is being made to establish June 14 of each year as flag day, because it was on this date that the thirteen stars and stripes were adopted as the national emblem. Another important day in the history of the country was the one on which the famous family medicine, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, was first introduced to the public, fifty years ago. Today it is recognized a sour national remedy for stomach, liver and kidney complaints, because it has always proven reliable, often effecting a cure when other remedies have failed. If your stomach is out of order and you suffer from loss of appetite, belching, heartburn, insomnia, dyspepsia, indigestion or constipation, you will find a few doses of the Bitters will set the stomach right and cure these disorders. Try it and see.

MEN HAD PLANNED

To Kidnap Taylor, Fugitive Kentucky Ex-Governor.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 11.—Charles Finley, former secretary of state of Kentucky, a refugee from his own home because of the charge of being implicated in the plot for the assassination of Governor Goebel, says that he and ex-Governor Taylor are constantly under surveillance.

He says a plot to kidnap Taylor recently, was foiled by the overconfidence of a man who visited Taylor's office and told him he might be kidnaped. Taylor recognized him as an ex-convict. Finley says it was learned that the ex-convict and two other men had planned to take Taylor from his home and carry him to Madison, where the river would be crossed. A relay of horses had been engaged.

Finley says he understands that recently someone telephoned the Mayor of Louisville from here and asked him if he would take charge of Taylor if he would land him on the Kentucky side. He disclosed his plan and the mayor refused to have a hand in it.

It was reported here that a former traveling salesman and a former policeman had planned to kidnap Taylor and that they were offered $25,000 any time they were successful but the report could not be confirmed. The former policeman denied having had any connection with a plot.

The men in this plot, it is understood, boldly went to Taylor's house, after dark, with a wagon and knocked on his door, expecting him to show himself, when he would be bound and gaged and carried off, but Taylor happened to be away at the time.

The two Kentucky refugees are living as quietly as possible and apparently are not afraid of being kidnaped, but it is said they are always armed.

10 Story Book For July.

With the summer months the publishers of 10 Story Book show no lack of energy in securing live stories for their popular little magazine. The leader for the July number is by Cutliffe Hyne, the famous English writer of sea mysteries. It is the latest thing from this gifted author's pen, and is a powerful narrative entitled "The Woman in the Mizzen-Top," describing a weird and blood-stirring incident of romance, passion and terror on a tempest-wrecked vessel that is being torn asunder on the reefs of a surging ocean. Gertrude Potter Daniels, the society girl who whose adventures in ventures in smart set literature have caused so much talk, has a story called the "Pink Tea Plot." It is a good one. A breezy skit by M. Quad, called "Engaged to Hannah," is decidedly funny. "The Demoniacal Revenge" of Kenneth Harris is entirely different, as the name suggests. It deals in shivers and dread possibilities. Ex-Congressman Henrichsen, with "A Joke on Bobby," is almost Frenchy, but then again he isn't. The selected masterpiece is Charles Reade's delightful story, "The Box Tunnel."

THE SIOUX INDIANS

Dedicate Monument to Fallen Braves at Wounded Knee.

Last Stand of the Red Race Against the White.

Omaha, Neb., June 11.—Five thousand Sioux Indians—the greatest gathering of red men of modern times—gathered around a little knoll in the lonely valley of the Wounded Knee, on the apex of which, in one huge grave, lie buried hundreds of red warriors, was the curious feature which the few whites who were at the dedication of the "Big Foot" monument saw last week on May 28.

Patterning after the whites, who called the battle on the Little Big Horn the "Custer massacre," and builded a monument in memoriam to the slain, the Sioux have erected a tall marble shaft to their fathers and brothers who were killed at Wounded Knee, and term the battle "Big Foot massacre" (Big Foot was the chief under whom the Indians fought.) Many of the warriors who are buried at Wounded Knee rode to that whirlwind of death which engulfed Custer, and many more were among the crowd of sullen red men who gathered to see the monument erected and dedicated.

Where these children of the plain, the Dakotas, got their dramatic instinct can only be surmised, but it was a master dramatist who arranged the opening details of these exercises, and the effect produced on these half-wild people of savage instinct cannot be described.

The little knoll, 100 feet high, by the side of and overlooking the battlefield, was covered on all sides by gaudily dressed Indians, whose love of brilliant coloring is well known. The green of the surrounding hills formed a splendid background to the gayly bedecked Indians, who silently watched the monument as, piece by piece, it reared its head under the hands of the workmen.

A large band of squaws had pushed themselves nearest to the little iron fence which inclosed the one huge grave and stood with stolid faces gazing at the mound.

Suddenly, as the last stone of the monument was put in place, up from the battle field in the distance came a strange, shrill, mourning cry. Not an Indian moved a muscle, but the few whites present looked with interest in the direction from whence the cry came and saw an old squaw, bent with age, dressed in the proverbial colored blanket, slowly emerge from "Bloody gulch," where so many women and children were killed during the battle, and slowly climb the side of the hill toward the grave.

During the ten minutes required for the ancient squaw to mount the knoll, her weird cry continued to ring out—the cry of the Dakotas mourning for the dead.

Arriving at the apex, the mourning squaw took her stand at the head of the grave wherein lay her father, husband, brothers and sons, and continued her lament for the dead, representing in her person a century of persecution and death of the one-time shoshone owners of the Northwest, whose possessions are now reduced to a few square miles of territory, from whence they must not wander; a people whose bones whiten on every square mile of land in the West, a small hole in each bleached skull showing where crept the leaden bullet of the white man—and through which fled the spirit of the red.

Standing at the foot of the grave, throwing her arms from side to side, the old woman shrieked out her weird song. The surrounding squaws became excited. Here and there a squaw joined in the song for a moment and then ceased, as though afraid. Then one summoned courage to continue—and another—and still others. And then the whole bunch broke into the most weird, blood-curdling song imaginable. But through the whole awful noises the sobbing of the women could be heard with distinctness.

While the lamentations were at their height, from a few braves the old war cry broke out—but only for a moment. The lamenting was left to the women and any resentment against the whites which the memories might have aroused, remained unshown.

Gradually the shrieking of the women subsided into crooning, and covering their heads and bodies with their blankets the crooning sunk into soft sobbings, while the leader of the women cast bright colored clothes over the grave.

This impromptu exhibition over, the real ceremonies begun. Rev. W. J. Cleveland, chaplain at the agency, stepped forward, and resting one hand on the monument, delivered a short address on "God Made of Men One Nation"—speaking in the Dakota language.

Then Joe Horn Cloud, prime mover in erecting the monument, stepped out, and with that eloquence possessed by savage tribes, said: "Standing by the grave where lies my father and my brother, and gazing upon the battle field where they died, as did many of my people, I have only good feeling toward the whites, and hope we will always be friendly."

Fire Lightning, an old chief, said: "For many, many years I have been friends with the white people. I helped make the treaty with them; I have never broken that treaty, and I wish to end my days a friend to them."

After a prayer in Sioux, the whole lot joined in and sang "America." As the Indian language, but it is doubtful if "My Country, 'Tis of Thee" meant much to the Sioux, who are virtually prisoners in a large yard.

After the exercises were finished the Indians filed past the monument, and those who could read English, read to the others this inscription: "This monument is erected by surviving relatives and other Ogallala and Cheyenne River Sioux Indians in memory of the Chief Big Foot massacre, Dec. 29, 1890, Col. Forsythe in command of United States troops. Big Foot was a great chief of the Sioux Indians. He often said: 'I will stand in peace till my last day comes.' He did good and brave deeds for the white man and for the red man. Many innocent women and children who knew no wrong died here."

It was the last stand of the red race against the white, the fight of a dying race against a younger and more vigorous; a people fighting for their homes and their territory, as they supposed, this battle, in which fell those braves to whom this monument was raised.

Their patriotism had been roused to the highest pitch by the wily old chief, Ta-Kan-Ka, Yo-Tom-Ka (Sitting Bull, who was to the Northern Indians what Geronimo was to the Southwestern tribes. But Sitting Bull was more to be feared than Geronimo, because of his long familiarity with the white man and their ways.

In addition to rousing their patriotism, Sitting Bull had anointed each "brave" with "medicine," making them invulnerable to the bullets from the white man's pistol. And every Indian of that band thoroughly believed this.

To accomplish this, Sitting Bull originated the "ghost, or Messiah dance," which soon spread through the Sioux nation like fire over the Western prairie. This dance was only a preliminary to being anointed with the "medicine," and was a mixture of the war and squaw dance, except that the dancers circled around a tall pole on which was hung a skin containing the medicine. The eyes of the dancers were continually fixed on this spot, their eyes thrown upward. It is said the dancers, in time, became actually hypnotized and fell on the ground in a cataleptic fit. While in this state they had visions of what was to happen to the white men who opposed the Indian when anointed with the "medicine." These visions were all alike. Buffalos would return; white men be all killed; the Great Spirit had informed them that the white man's bullet could not injure them any more, and above all, that Sitting Bull must be obeyed implicitly.

Sitting Bull's true object in working the Indians up to this frenzy was really to force the government into increasing the issue of rations to the Sioux, by threatening to leave the reservation and go toward the Northwest along the Montana-Canada border, where he had gone with his people after massacreing Gen. Custer on the Little Big Horn fourteen years before. Scouts who were familiar with this king-pin of bad Indians do not believe that Sitting Bull intended to fight unless absolutely forced to do so.

After the Indians had danced all during the fall of 1890, about 80 per cent of the entire Sioux tribe became firm followers of Sitting Bull; had interviewed the Great Spirit and had been anointed with "medicine" by their high priest or medicine man.

When the Indians had got into the condition that Sitting Bull could be sure his every order and wish would be obeyed, the "ghost" dancing ceased and preparations for war began. Then it was that the commanding officer of the United States troops at Fort Yates was ordered to arrest old Sitting Bull and confine him in prison at the agency of Standing Rock for the time being.

Sitting Bull was camped forty miles away from the agency, but a squad of fifty cavalrymen started after the old Indian early on Dec. 15. The Indian police commanded by "Bull Head" and "Shave Head" were within striking distance of Sitting Bull's camp several days before the cavalry left the fort. Sitting Bull's cabin was almost surrounded by the fanatical "ghost dancers," but the Indian police managed to reach the house and arrest the old fellow. Sitting Bull's young son slipped from the house and aroused the "ghost dancers," who soon swarmed around the little party of police.

After the police mounted their horses to return to the soldiers with Sitting Bull, that old warrior called upon his followers to rescue him, and Strike-the-Kettle and Catch-the-Bear dashed up at full speed to the two police who guarded the prisoner and shot them. Both guards were killed, but in falling, Bull Head, a guard, wheeled, and instead of shooting his assailant, shot Sitting Bull dead.

The police then took refuge in Sitting Bull's cabin, which was immediately surrounded by hundreds of yelling, fanatic Indians. The soldiers came up at that moment and the ghost dancers fled to the timber, half a mile away.

An hour later an incident happened which showed the sublime faith his followers had in Sitting Bull, which had a great bearing upon the future conduct of the Indians, and which led directly to the battle fought two weeks later by the ghost dancers at Wounded Knee—the battle which the monument commemorates.

While the troopers were preparing to return to the fort, carrying the dead body of Sitting Bull with them, an Indian riding at full speed emerged from the woods into which they had gone when the soldiers appeared. Straight towards the assembled soldiers rode the red man until he halted on a small knoll about eighty yards away.

Dressed (or rather undressed) in full war paraphernalia, eagle war bonnet, war paint, war lance, etc., and war shirt which Sitting Bull had anointed, the warrior stood like a copper statue on the knoll, while every soldier and Indian police in the troop fired point blank at him, again and again. For five minutes he sat on his horse, immovable, drawing the fire of the ninety men, most of whom were crack shots.

Then the firing ceased and every soldier in the troop applauded the wonderful nerve of the warrior. He had been testing the efficacy of the "medicine" of Sitting Bull. Apparently satisfied, he turned his back on the soldiers and rode again at full speed for the timber, never once looking back. Two weeks later this same Indian started the fight at Wounded Knee by braining Capt. Wallace in the presence of his entire company. If any of the many bullets fired that day at the Indian had taken effect, Wounded Knee would probably not have been fought. But believing themselves to be proof against the white men's bullets and sure of victory (for had not their great leader, Sitting Bull, who made the medicine which protected this Indian's life, promised them so?), these half-crazed fanatics went to the conference at Wounded Knee creek two weeks later, determined to exterminate the white soldiers there, wipe out the soldiers at the fort and then sweep the Western plains and prairies free of white settlers, in order that the buffalo might return to his old haunts.

And this was the frame of mind in which the Indians were on Dec. 28, 1890, when they met the troops on Wounded Knee creek, waiting for the conference the following day. During that day the scouts "Little Bat" and Lone Star had been among the band which was commanded by Big Foot and ascertained the true state of affairs.

The following morning Lone Star went to the front, in command of the troops, and reported that the Indians would probably resist unless an overwhelming force of soldiers was brought up. Forsythe did not agree with the scout and continued to advance.

But Capt. Wallace, who believed the report of the scout, together with Little Bat and Lone Star, rode ahead of the troops, in order to pacify the Indians.

The three men drew in close to the group of savages which had advanced to meet them, and then Lone Star recognized the daring warrior who had tried his medicine two weeks before that day. He, together with several other Indians, left the main body and advanced toward Capt. Wallace.

Suddenly, from within the crowd, arose the shrill death song of the Sioux. Both the scouts now saw the deadly danger in which all three stood, but Capt. Wallace did not understand, and before he could be warned, held out his hand to greet the advancing braves.

From their positions neither of the scouts could fire, and Capt. Wallace walked toward his death, oblivious of the terrible fate awaiting him.

The singing Indian grasped Capt. Wallace's outstretched hand, and suddenly drawing his other hand from beneath his blanket, struck the brave captain a terrible blow with a tomahawk, killing him instantly.

But the medicine shirt failed to protect the Indian from the bullet which left the pistol of Lone Star a moment later, and the savage fell dead with a bullet through his heart.

The two scouts backed away, firing as they went, and in turn received the fire of the entire band. Both escaped without a scratch. But not so the Indians. A number were killed by the scouts before the soldiers got into action. The Indians broke for cover and succeeded in reaching a ravine, from which the soldiers could not drive them.

Gen. Forsythe wrote an order for reinforcements and handed it to Lone Star, who rode the fourteen miles to the agency in thirty-five minutes. In one hour and twenty-eight minutes the reinforcements dashed up, the soldiers having left too hurriedly to place saddles on their horses.

But they brought the Gatling guns with them. They were new to the Indians, who did not understand the rapid fire. Three of these guns were placed in position to rake the ravine, and the slaughter began. The savages could not escape, and later in the day the ravine was found to be actually choked with dead Indians, more than 200 lying within a space of a few hundred feet. (The Indians still call this "Bloody Gulch.")

The soldiers that day lost Capt. Wallace and twenty-four men killed and thirty-four wounded.

But under the spot on which the Indian monument rests are the bones of more than 205 Indians who were killed that day, and for many months it was nothing uncommon to discover the bleached skeleton of an Indian lying in the grass anywhere in the neighborhood of the battlefield. The exact number of killed was never known.

It was the last stand of the red race. Sitting Bull's "medicine" was not good. The Wa-Ci-Wa-na-gi (ghost dance) had failed in its mission, but the Indians still remember their brothers who died at Wounded Knee, and to their memory reared the monument.

AGED NEGRO IS RELEASED

Imprisoned Twenty-Three Years For Stealing Cotton Seed.

Columbia, S. C., June 11.—The laws of South Carolina have undergone a great change in the last twenty-five years. As an evidence of this fact Cato Gadsden, colored, after serving nearly a quarter of a century in prison for petit larceny, was granted a pardon by Governor Heyward. This is one of the most remarkable cases on record in this state. Gadsden has probably been punished more severely than any other man for a like offense.

Twenty-three years ago he was arrested in Beaufort on the charge of stealing cotton seed from another negro. Throughout his trial the negro protested his innocence, but he was convicted, and sentenced to life imprisonment—that being the penalty in those days. On Nov. 15, 1880, Gadsden was uniformed in felon's garb and placed behind the prison walls for the remainder of his natural life for the trivial offense of stealing a small quantity of cotton seed.

Feeling that his punishment had been sufficient, white friends of Gadsden in Beaufort interested themselves in the case and petitioned the governor for his release, setting forth that just after his conviction the law was radically changed, whereby a lighter sentence might have been imposed and the same might have long since expired. This plea, together with recommendations from the penitentiary officials, one being to the effect that Gadsden had served a longer sentence than any other convict in the prison, resulted in his pardon.

The judge and solicitor before whom he was tried have long since passed away. The jury and the witnesses are dead. Grown gray in prison, the old darky now returns to the scenes of his childhood to make new friends and start life anew.

MODERATE DECLINE

Wheat Falls Off In Spite of Bullish Government Report.

St. Louis Market Firmest —Flax Active and Bulges Sharply.

Duluth Board of Trade, June 11.—The government wheat report for June issued after the close of the market yesterday was less favorable than had been anticipated for it gave a condition of 82.- on wheat, a decline of 10 points when a decline of not more than 6 or 7 points had been expected, but the market today closed lower nevertheless. St. Louis was stronger than other markets, there being an advance there of ½c in the July. The September was off ½c, however. In Chicago July fell ½c and September ¼c. Northwestern markets had about the same losses. In Minneapolis July was ½c lower and September ¼-⅜c lower, while in Duluth, the July was off ½c and September ½c.

The weather in the wheat country was favorable and rather offset the effect of the government report. The opening was steady, but the market fell off afterward. There was a rally toward the close that carried prices back somewhat from the low point. The large clearances aided the market.

Bradstreet estimates the Argentine shipments for the week at 1,600,000 bus, against 1,712,000 bus last week and 204,000 bus a year ago. Primary receipts of wheat were 255,000 bus, last year 230,000 bus. Shipments 167,000 bus, last year 372,-000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregate 786,000 bus.

The Liverpool market closed unchanged, Paris unchanged to ⅛c lower, and Antwerp unchanged.

Receipts of wheat at Duluth and Minneapolis, 192 cars, and at Chicago 17, a total of 209 cars, against 198 last week and 179 last year.

Corn in the Liverpool closed ½d lower and July corn in the Chicago market closed ⅜-¾c higher. July oats advanced ⅝c. Primary receipts of corn were 409,000 bus, last year 347,000 bus. Shipments 209,000 bus, last year 365,000 bus. Clearances were 76,000 bushels.

In the Duluth market trading in wheat was very slow. The opening was unchanged at 80c and the market sold off to 75¾c at 11:05. After that it rallied steadily and closed at 79⅝c, a decline of ⅛c September closed at 72⅝c, a decline of ⅛c.

Cash sales were 15,000 bushels at July price for No. 1 northern and 1½c under for No. 2 northern.

Flax trading was active and the market had a sharp bulge. July closed 1¾c up at $1.12⅝. September advanced 1⅝c and October and November 1⅝c.

Oats made an advance of ½c, but rye was off ½c.

Following are the closing prices.

Wheat to arrive No. 1 hard 81¾c; No. 1 northern 79¾c; No. 2 northern 78¾c; July 79⅝c; September, 72⅝c; Flax in store $1.12⅝; to arrive $1.12⅝; on track $1.12⅝; July $1.12⅝; September $1.14½; October $1.14½; November $1.14½. Oats to arrive 36½-36½c; on track 36½-36¾c. Rye to arrive 50c; on track 50c. Barley 52-56c.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Favorable Weather Offsets Bullish Feeling In Wheat.

Chicago, June 11.—The opening in wheat was about steady and was considerable of a disappointment to many traders who had construed the government crop report as being rather bullish, but the favorable weather offset this feature. July opened ½@⅝c lower to ⅝@¾c higher at 75¾ to 76c, and with liberal selling by commission houses with only a scattered demand the price steadied around 75⅝@ 76c. Minneapolis and Duluth reported receipts of 150 cars, which with local receipts for the three points of 205 cars, against 198 cars last week and 179 cars a year ago.

There was heavy selling by the Southwest later in the day and a lot of long wheat came out on stop loss orders which resulted in a sharp decline. July selling off to 75¼c. Covering by shorts caused a rally and the close was ⅜c lower at 75⅝@ ¾c.

Corn opened firm and higher, July being up ⅜@⅝c to ⅝@¾c at 48½ to 48¾c, but on liberal selling by local traders, the market quickly reacted. July declining to 48¼c, soon after the opening. Local receipts were 343 cars, with 8 of contract grade.

The market closed steady with July ⅛ @¼c higher at 48⅜c.

Trading in oats was dull and featureless with opening prices firm in sympathy with the strength in corn. July being ⅛ @⅜c up at 36¼@36¾c. There was little change in prices the first hour of the day, the market holding steady at the opening figures. Local receipts were 145 cars.

Provisions opened firm on a fair demand from brokers supposed to be for the account of local packers. Trading was light and featureless with barely any change in prices. September pork opened 5c higher at $16.90, September lard was unchanged at $9.00, while ribs were 2½c up at $9.32½.

GRAIN GOSSIP.

Chicago Record-Herald: The June government report made the winter wheat condition 82.2 compared with 92.6 in May and 76 in June last year. The percentage suggests a winter wheat prospect of 450,-255,000 bus. The report made the June spring wheat condition 95.6 with an acreage of 17,257,000 bus. This would suggest a spring wheat prospect of 272,640,000 bus, and a total winter and spring wheat promise of 722,915,000 bus.

* * *

A. H. Farnum, Chicago: The reduction of winter wheat, of 10 points is all any one expected and whatever effect it has is likely to prove bullish. The greatest reduction is on the leading wheat states. I don't think the report on oats will be considered bullish.

* * *

Chicago: New York exporters re-sold 100,000 bus of corn here yesterday bought a little time ago, preferred the profit to the corn, this is indicative of demands.

* * *

Harris, Gates & Co.: Wheat—The government report is figured to indicate a yield of winter and spring wheat approximating 740,000,000 bus. This is anticipating an almost perfect condition of spring wheat at harvest time, a result that could be hoped for but hardly likely to be realized. The report will strengthen our market somewhat. Broomhall estimates requirements of importing countries for the coming year at 5,500,000 bus of wheat. It looks at present as though our prices were low enough. The demand for wheat is moderate, small lots sell at relatively high prices.

* * *

Price Current: Winter wheat is showing wider divergence in condition, but deterioration is apparently about checked and the condition is still slightly above the average. Corn acreage probably five per cent less than last year. Early planted generally good stand and very weedy. Oats show improving tendency but still below average. May improve some.

* * *

Kalb of Chicago: Last year we raised a total wheat crop of 670,000,0000 bus, of poor quality. Europe also raised large crops last year, but of just as poor quality as the United States. Both the European and American crops proved to be virtually small ones, owing to their poor flour producing qualities. European crops this year are small in quantity, but most likely much better in quality. Our total crops will undoubtedly be about 500,000,000 bus, above that of 1902, but most likely of better quality also. July wheat last year was 71⅜c against 76c today. September 70c against 73c today. Europe is not the free buyer it was in April; in fact, it is reselling its spring purchases. Europe may become a buyer again in July and August, but I believe we can let her have all she needs.

* * *

Broomhall: Our Argentine agent estimates shipments wheat to Europe this week to be about 1,600,000 bus., compared with 1,712,000 bus. the previous week and 204,000 bus. last year. Corn shipments will be about 1,600,000 bus. against 2,598,000 bus. last week and 1,488,000 bus. last year. Weather becoming worse.

CHILE DEMORALIZED.

Embezzlement of Public Funds of Daily Occurrence.

New York, June 11.—This country, which formerly ranked first in South America, is now going backward with gigantic strides, declares the Valparaiso, Chili, correspondent of the Herald. Embezzlements of public and private funds are, he says, of daily occurrence.

Leading papers bitterly complain of the serious demoralization pervading the country. The uneasiness prevailing among the working classes is, the dispatch asserts, but the result of the demoralization in the upper classes.

There was no loss of life.

ADVANCE IN STOCKS AND BETTER FEELING

Close Was at the Best Prices of the Day.

Very Heavy Buying and the Shorts Covered Freely.

New York, June 11.—The stock market opened this morning with the bears in a panic and enormous blocks of stocks were bought on a rising scale and at a rebound in prices exceeding the opening drop of yesterday. Opening gains ran all the way from 1 to 1½, the latter for Norfolk & Western. Five hundred shares of Atchison sold at 65½ and the next sale was of 11,000 shares at 66 and 67, compared with 64 last night. Six thousand shares of Erie sold at 29¾ to 30¾ compared with 29 last night. The opening gain in St. Paul was 2¼ and in Union Pacific 2¾. United States Steel preferred and Baltimore & Ohio opened wide on the sale of 3300 shares and 3500 shares respectively.

Profits were taken immediately on the bulge in the active stocks and there was some pressure of left over liquidating sales. St. Paul, Atchison, Norfolk & Western, Southern Pacific and Union Pacific relapsed a point. Meanwhile stocks were advanced vigorously. These gains ran from 1½ to 2½ in New Jersey Central, Delaware & Hudson, Erie first and second preferred, the St. Louis Southwesterns, New York Central, Chicago Great Western, Denver & Rio Grande, National of Mexico preferred, the Wabash stocks, Minneapolis, St. Paul & Soo, Wheeling & Lake Erie second preferred, Consolidated Gas, Brooklyn Rapid, Metropolitan Street Railway, Tennessee Coal and North American. Pittsburg, C. C. & St. Louis jumped 7. Iowa Central preferred broke 8 and New York, Chicago & St. Louis second preferred 4½. Prices of the leaders were rising strongly again at 11 o'clock and some of them had rallied fo their opening prices.

The pressure to sell stocks was light on the advance and prices continued to advance even with smaller buying. The leaders generally rose above the opening. The gain in Atchison extending to 3¾, Baltimore & Ohio and St. Paul 3, Missouri Pacific and Southern Pacific 2¾, and Union Pacific, Louisville & Nashville, Erie, and Reading, New York Central and Amalgamated 2 to 2½. Gains of 2 or over were numerous amongst stocks of secondary importance. Northwestern rose 3⅞. The bond market was dull but strong at noon.

Railroad stocks eased, but as offerings were very light, not much impression was made on prices and the advance was resumed under the lead of Sugar and Amalgamated. These stocks advanced 2 and 2⅝ respectively and pulled the Pacifics. St. Paul and Reading were their morning prices. Pittsburg, C. C. & St. Louis rose 8½ in all, Delaware & Hudson 4¼, Jersey Central and Reading second preferred 2¼ each; Pullman, 2⅝ and Illinois Central 2.

Profit-taking sales were again indulged in and the market responded with losses of 2 points in Jersey Central and 1 each in Reading, Missouri Pacific, Illinois Central and Copper. New buying orders appeared at the lower range and the market rose easily again to near the best. Dealings were small on the reaction and at the recovery. Brooklyn Union Gas advanced 4¾, Consolidated Gas 4½, Detroit United Railroad 3¼ and Pressed Steel 2.

Prices yielded again slightly. Southern Pacific reacting a point. The bears seemed to be testing the market and finding little stock offered the advance was renewed on active trading which carried prices to the high level for the day. The gain in Atchison reached 4⅛, Norfolk & Western, Baltimore & Ohio and St. Paul, 3¾, Union Pacific and Amalgamated 3½ and Missouri Pacific and Canadian Pacific 3⅜. Belated advances brought other stocks into the range of 2 to 3 point gains. The close was active and strong at the top prices.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Waldorf to Coe Commission Co.: The government report for May is commented on as a disappointment, but as far as the stock market is concerned some of the largest operators say it has been fully discounted. The point is made that despite the lowering of winter wheat conditions the report points to an enormous crop and at the same time suggests a fair yield of corn, barring, of course, an early frost. Hence, there is a disposition to regard the adverse features of the crop report as a factor of little immediate importance among the working classes is, the dispatch asserts, but the result of the demoralization in the upper classes.

Ridgley to W. H. Laidley & Co.: It looked yesterday like the culmination of this long bear campaign. Big interests bought freely. I know of one man who took 40,000 shares though possibly he was merely covering shorts. I also know that certain Standard Oil men who have been buying freely for a year bought yesterday morning for long account and in fact have been buying for some days. Wall street's purging is about over and things will brighten up here while the business community is being physicked. For a contraction in general business and fall of prices in the commercial world is bound to follow the drastic scaling down of stock market values. And this will tend to keep banks well supplied with money through the summer. People who have the wherewithal to buy stocks are now in a very fortunate position and purchases are practically certain to yield fine profits in near future. The general list should be a buy this morning. Do not be so unwise as to get bearish at the bottom.

* * *

Harriman to Paine, Webber & Co.: Opinions of leading men that conditions do not justify present range of values and better prices will soon be seen. It is possible that investors will now pay some attention to railroad earnings and other favorable features of situation. We certainly should get a five point advance.

* * *

Sinn to W. H. Laidley & Co.: The rumors about impending failures and that houses have been helped out seem to have been unfounded. In all bear markets there are malicious reports promulgated. People have made a great deal of money within the last three years and no doubt some of them have given back some of their profits. Look for quicker and better market but people do not need to rush in and buy any stocks lavishly. There is not to be any great bull rush immediately.

* * *

Chicago Record-Herald: One prominent insurance company put $1,000,000 into St. Paul common and $1,000,000 into Pennsylvania. The sellers last summer stocks are now the buyers. The leading bankers say there will be no trouble and foundations are being secured. The largest buying was on a larger scale on Tuesday than it has been since May, 1901.

* * *

Chicago to Coe Commission Co.: A prominent Standard Oil interest says: "The most powerful bear clique ever organized is now at work in the stock market. They have unlimited means. The largest money and are very daring, but they will find before many days that they have been selling stocks into a bag. The recent drop in prices has discounted a very great deal of bad news. If all stocks that are now being loaned by the powerful interests in Wall street were suddenly called in there would be a genuine bear panic."

* * *

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: A great many of our New York correspondents tell us the situation is greatly improved because of the heavy liquidation, and the whole street has a more cheerful appearance. Good yield and paying stocks are selling on an attractive basis and about the only bears are those who were most bullish 20 to 30 points higher. We think it safe to buy the dividend-paying rails on all weak spots.

* * *

Harriman & Co. to Harris, Gates & Co.: Traders generally comment upon the crop report being much more favorable than anticipated and the press voices the opinion of many leading men that conditions do not justify the present range of values in stocks, and better prices. It is possible that investors will now pay some attention to railroad earnings and other favorable features of the situation. We certainly should get a 5 point advance even granting all the unfavorable features the bears claim about the market. One can hardly go wrong buying anything.

* * *

Logan and Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—market there was dull and a shade easier. The government report showing a drop in condition of ten points, caused some firmness at the opening, but the crowd has the habit of selling on the government report and did so in this case. Volume of business is small and the pressure was temporary. The cash situation does not by any means active, but stocks are everywhere light and cash wheat everywhere at a premium. With these conditions the crop outlook is not sufficient for us at present. It is best to make any confident short selling on a large scale. The market continues without much selling pressure. Broomhall tables that the political situation in Servia is a matter of some interest in the wheat trade at the moment. While the situation is not urgently bullish, we are inclined to think the safe think to do is to buy wheat on the soft spots. The Price Current says winter wheat conditions are slightly above an average. Estimated cars 26.

Corn—Market was firmer. Temperatures continue low throughout the west with frost reported in many places. Country offerings are only moderately and the cash demand is fair. With good weather, we would likely have a depressing effect on prices, but until this comes or the movement increase from first hands, both of which are likely to come stimultaneously, the market is without selling pressure. Estimated cars 450.

Oats—Market here was firm. There is a good cash demand and movement from first hands is slow. The cool weather and strength in corn also helped. We rather feel that with an average acreage there is plenty of time yet to make a good crop. Estimated cars 155.

* * *

Walker Bros. to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market today opened up, and with much better feeling. London bought a good many stocks and there was more commission house buying. Later prices came off on profit taking by traders. In the afternoon there was very heavy buying, and shorts covered freely. Prices ran up easily and the market became very strong and active. All the good stocks made advances. The market continued strong until the close which was at the best prices of the day.

* * *

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: Pretty much the whole market is sharply higher. Of course a good deal of the buying was covering of shorts as the market was no doubt heavily oversold and to a considerable extent we thing is so still. On the weak spots we would still buy stocks. The best properties are selling at fair prices. Money is easy; general business good. There is no trouble in sight of any kind likely to affect imperant properties or the general market. The market is likely to be nervous for some time, but there is a much better investment interest representing outside money than for a long time. We would wait for breaks and then buy good stocks.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, June 11.—The opening cotton market was easy at a decline of 3 to 10 points and immediately following the call, the old cotton months were forced still lower under active liquidation and bear pressure. July sold at 12.06 on the call, but in the first half hour was forced down to 11.76 while August reached 11.45. New crop months meanwhile were comparatively firm around the opening figure under bull support and the firmness of New Orleans.

Cotton spot closed quiet; 25 points decline. Middling uplands, 12.25; middling gulf, 12.50. Sales 125 bales. Cotton futures closed steady; June, 11.74; July, 11.85; August, 11.44; September, 10.50; October, 9.77; November, 9.62; December, 9.57; January, 9.59.

IN MARINE CIRCLES

New St. Lawrence Line Boat Robert Wallace Coming Here Soon.

Great Northern Ore Dock Capacity Immense With New Dock.

The new steel propellor, Robert Wallace, is on her maiden trip up the lakes, having left Buffalo last Sunday. She cleared with a load of coal for Waukegan, and after unloading she will come to Duluth to commence her regular run between Duluth and Quebec.

The Wallace is another of the fleet of ten vessels which is being built for the great lakes and St. Lawrence Transportation company, and like the Parent and the Keefe, will be placed in the grain and general merchandise trade between Duluth and Quebec.

The Wallace is of the Welland canal size and a sister ship to the Keefe, having been built by the same company, the Buffalo Dry Dock company.

A Jonah seems to be following the ships of the great lakes and St. Lawrence company. The Keefe had to be put back into Detroit twice before she finally got away on her trip up the lakes. The Wallace also proved to be unfortunate. Just before leaving on her maiden trip, while she was lying at her dock last week, some unknown person opened the sea cocks and the vessel narrowly escaped sinking in the slip.

The ten vessels of the great lakes and St. Lawrence company will be the only vessels on the lakes which carry three cargoes on each round trip. They take grain or general merchandise to Quebec. They find cargoes in Quebec for Lake Ontario points, and then load coal on Lake Ontario for the head of the lakes. It takes about twenty-five days to make the round trip.

ORE DOCK CAPACITY.

Great Northern With New Dock Will Lead All.

It is expected that the new ore dock which is being built at Superior for the Great Northern railway by the Barnett & Record company will be completed and ready to turn over to the railway before the end of next week.

When it is completed Allouez bay will probably become the greatest ore shipping point on the lakes. In May there were 661,000 tons of ore shipped from Superior, the total amount to the first of June being 102,000 tons ahead of the same period last year.

Last year the Great Northern road shipped a total of 4,200,000 tons, and at the present rate the two docks alone will exceed 5,000,000 tons. With the new dock in commission it is predicted that the shipments will exceed 6,000,000 tons, which will be considerably more than was shipped by either the Duluth or Two Harbors ore docks last year, and which is believed to be more than will be shipped from either of those ports this year.

The new dock will be put into commission at once, as the present dockage is insufficient for the needs of the railroad.

The new docks is just half the length of the present dock No. 2, which is the largest ore dock on the lakes. It is the intention of the company, however, to extend it to the same length as No. 2 next season.

GARDENS HURT

Frost Nips Them In the Country Back of Duluth.

Minimum Temperature Recorded In Duluth Not Especially Low.

Duluth was visited by a heavy frost last night.

Farmers living in the district immediately north of the city report considerable damage to garden produce. In the district about Hermantown some crops were almost completely destroyed.

In the city owners of flower gardens who did not heed the weather man's warning found their more tender plants badly nipped. In some parts of the city a thin coating of ice was reported to have formed on the sidewalks.

The reports of the weather bureau do not show a freezing temperature, but as the night was still and clear after midnight, frost formed easily. At the office in the weather bureau the lowest temperature recorded was 40 degrees. The thermometer here, however, is placed on the top of the building, and would record a temperature of several degrees higher than it would if placed close to the ground.

On the hilltop the mercury went several degrees lower, and the thermometer at the hilltop station of the weather bureau recorded 34 degrees, which on a still night would be amply sufficient to cause a heavy frost. It is probable that in some parts of the country immediately north of Duluth a temperature lower than the freezing point was recorded.

Temperatures below 40 degrees are not uncommon in Duluth at this time of year, although it is seldom that the freezing point is reached.

It is not thought that the grain in the Dakotas, where a similar cold spell was recorded, was damaged to any extent. It has had a good start and is now too far advanced to be affected by anything short of a temperature several degrees below the freezing point. About Duluth, however, where the season is late and where the crops consist chiefly of garden produce, which is easily affected by frost, it is feared that the damage will be heavy.

FOREPAUGH-FISH SHOW.

Big Wild West Exhibition In Duluth Saturday.

The most exciting and interesting entertainment Duluth has seen in years will be witnessed at the show grounds, Twenty-ninth avenue west, on Saturday when the Lucila Forepaugh-Fish Wild West show will give its performances.

This organization, unquestionably the largest of its character at present in America, is an overtowering monument of well directed zeal and energy.

Combined with its real views of life in the great and almost trackless regions of the far west, with its picturesque cowboys, fearless scouts, lasso throwers and bold riders and dare devil marksmen, it presents new phases of martial splendor, representing the gallant and brave cavalrymen of the United States, the intrepid and famous warriors of the czar-governed Russias, those marvels of wild horsemanship—the Cossacks, the bold and quaintly-attired Arabian-Bedouin riders of the Asiatic deserts, the dashing British dragoons, the well trained and thoroughly disciplined United States artillerymen, with their heavy cannon cartridge and limber, and last, but not least, the detachment of Roosevelt Rough Riders in the Khaki uniforms and campaign hats, and whose riding recalls that of the fabled Centaurs.

As a fitting climax to this stupendous exhibition of courage and heroism is the superb spectacle, painted in vivid, realistic colors, of the brave struggle made by Gen. Custer and his troopers in the Big Little Horn against Sitting Bull and his fierce band of Indians, familiarly known as the Custer massacre—it constitutes a page in frontier history that vividly lends itself to scenic thrilling representation, thus concluding a performance that has few if any counterparts in America.

Two performances will be given Saturday—one at 2 o'clock in the afternoon and the other at 8 o'clock at night. In the morning a brilliant street parade will be given, and in the procession will be all the Indians, cowboys, Cossacks, Arabs, Mexicans, soldiers, scouts, etc., as well as the historic Deadwood stage coach, herds of lions, tigers, hyenas, camel, elephant.

MUNN CONTINUES

His Argument For State In Merger Suit.

St. Paul, June 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—M. D. Munn, special attorney for the state, continued his argument today in the state's suit against the Northern Securities company, arguing that acts of a corporation cannot be dissociated from those of its stockholders, by way of showing that the corporations of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific, have virtually agreed to mergering of their control.

No corporation, he contended, can possess greater rights than are legal in the state in which it does business, therefore it is futile for the Northern Pacific to seek refuge behind its Wisconsin charter.

The so-called merger was described as being practically a voting trust in which the president of the Great Northern and vice president of the Northern Pacific are the dominating characters.

LACK OF MONEY

Was a Godsend In This Case.

It is not always that a lack of money is a benefit.

"A lady of Green Forest, Ark., owes her health to the fact that she could not pay in advance the fee demanded by a specialist to treat her for stomach trouble; she quit coffee and took on Postum. In telling of her case she says: "I had been treated by four different physicians during ten years of stomach trouble.

"Lately I called on another who told me he could not cure me; that I had neuralgia of the stomach. Then I went to a specialist who told me I had catarrh of the stomach and said he could cure me in four months, but would have to have his money down. I could not raise the necessary sum and in my extremity I determined to quit coffee and try Postum Food Coffee.

"So I gave up coffee and gave Postum a thorough trial and the results have been magical. I now sleep well at night, something I have not done for a long time; the pain in my stomach is gone and I am a different woman. I dreaded to quit coffee because every time I had tried to stop it I suffered from severe headaches, so I continued to drink it although I knew it was injurious to me, being the cause of my stomach trouble and extreme nervousness. But when I had Postum to shift to it was different.

"And to my surprise I did not miss coffee when I began to drink Postum. Coffee had been steadily and surely killing to me and I didn't realize what was doing it until I quit." Name given by Postum company, Battle Creek, Mich.

A FINNISH MEETING

County Convention Called to Meet In Duluth Sunday and Monday.

Plan Is to Organize All Workingmen of That Nationality.

Seeking to unite several thousands of Finnish working men of St. Louis county in a labor federation, the Ystava society, of this city, has sent out a call for a general convention to meet here Sunday and Monday of next week.

The Ystava society will be a year old on Sunday. It having been organized on June 14, 1902, for the purpose of banding together the Finnish workingmen of Duluth. This year has been so successful that the members have caught the spirit of expansion and propose organizing a federation of Finnish societies that will embrace all mining towns of the iron ranges and the lumbering industries of the county.

Advices received in Hibbing, Ety, Tower, McKinley, Eveleth and other towns indicate that at least 1000 Finlander-Americans from the ranges will attend Sunday's gathering.

It has been decided to hold a sort of anniversary celebration on that date at Brandana's garden, Thirtieth avenue east and London road. There will be a program of music, speeches and athletic sports. The leading address of the occasion will be by Dr. Tanner, of Ely, and Edward Kriz, the well known socialist labor speaker, is also on the list for an address.

If the weather is unfavorable for an outside celebration the program of sports will be abandoned and the meeting will be held in Odd Fellows' hall.

On Monday, in Kalamazoo hall, 13 West Superior street, delegates from the various societies will try to organize the big federation. The iron range railroads will run special trains Sunday to accommodate the anticipated crowds.

THE MINING EXHIBIT.

Plans Making For One For St. Louis Exposition.

Charles S. Mitchell, of Alexandria, was in the city today on behalf of the board of managers in charge of Minnesota's exhibit at the St. Louis exposition, to talk over with the Commercial club's committee the matter of planning a mining and mineral exhibit.

The members of the committee present included Capt. Alexander McDougall, F. A. Patrick, L. W. Powell, I. Fretmuth and R. L. Denfeld, and the subject was given thorough discussion. The exhibit will certainly include a specimen of the ore of every operating mine on the Mesabi and Vermilion ranges, with analyses, but the committee was figuring today on arranging some more striking features, such as models of mines, etc. The members believe that the exhibit will evolve a plan that will be pleasing and valuable to Duluth and the ranges.

Estimates of the expense involved will be prepared and the committee will hold another meeting and see what can be done. If the expense is not too great the plans under consideration will doubtless be adopted.

IN NEED OF ROOMS.

Prospect That None Too Many Will Be Available.

Advices received at the Commercial club indicate that all the efforts which have been put forth to list the rooms available during the U. C. T. convention will be greatly appreciated. It is expected that the number of visitors that will be in the city from this evening until next Monday morning will be far larger than at first anticipated.

Today Secretary Eva of the Commercial club made arrangements with J. Allyn Scott of West Duluth to receive addresses of all West Duluth people that are willing to rent rooms during the traveling men's convention. It is an unusual thing to secures places outside the central part of the city for visitors, but it is believed best to make all precautionary arrangements so that visitors may not suffer any inconvenience.

SHIPYARDS CLOSE.

Work on the Hill Steamers Is Suspended.

Groton, Conn., June 11.—The Eastern Shipbuilding company today posted a notice that the works could be closed indefinitely. Work on the steamships Dakota and Minnesota, building for the Pacific carrying trade, is suspended.

The ceremony took place in the German Evangelical Lutheran church and was performed by Rev. Mr. Sans, the pastor. The wedding was a pretty one and was attended by over 150 of the friends of the young people. A large reception at the home of the bride's parents followed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Kehtel will be at home after July 1, at 415 East Eighth street.

Copenhaver will go to the scaffold first.

Manila, June 11.—The constabulary yesterday captured in Rizal province Faustino Guillermo, the most famous outlaw in the island of Luzon. Guillermo approached a detachment of constabulary and offered the men a bribe to desert and join him. A successful trap was planned and Guillermo was made prisoner. During and since the insurrection Giullermo has committed many murders and robberies.

DANGEROUSLY ASSAULTED

Mrs. Katherine McAlpine Victim of Attack By Charles Rossiter.

In her home at 1706 Piedmont avenue yesterday afternoon, Mrs. Katherine McAlpine, aged 65 years, was attacked by a man giving the name of Charles Rossiter.

It is claimed that the attack was with intent to commit criminal assault, but Rossiter, who is in custody, says that he had been drinking and is not aware that he molested Mrs. McAlpine in the least.

Mrs. McAlpine told the authorities that Rossiter first talked abusively to her and then knocked her down. She screamed and several men near by hastened in to ascertain the trouble. Rossiter jumped through a window and almost into the arms of Police Sergt. Gillon, who took him in custody.

Late this afternoon Rossiter was taken into the municipal court for an examination, and if the charges against him are proved he will be bound over to the September grand jury.

The prisoner is a laboring man, apparently 35 years of age, and said to be of a quarrelsome and ugly disposition when under the influence of liquor. While Mrs. McAlpine's age is given as 65, she looks even older.

TO PLAY ON THE FOURTH

Duluth Lacrosse Team Will Meet Fort William Twelve.

The Duluth Lacrosse club has arranged a game with the Fort William team for July 4, to be played in Duluth.

The Fort William team is one of the strongest teams in Western Canada, having defeated the Port Arthur twelve and other aspirants for Western honors. The home boys will have worthy opponents in the Canadians and are practicing hard for the contest. A victory would establish their status in the lacrosse field and place them in the strongest twelves in the West.

Several new men are expected to turn out during the coming week. McDonald, a speedy Canadian from Winnipeg, has about decided to come to Duluth and has written friends on the Duluth team that he intends to play in the game here. He will be a notable addition to the good material already available.

Hennessey, another Winnipeger, and a former member of several of the crack Canadian teams, has taken a position in Duluth and will turn out with the team.

The men were not in the least discouraged by the two defeats at the hands of the husky bunch from the Saints City. The St. Paul team is not the committee was figuring today on arranging some more striking features, such as models of mines, etc. The members believe that the exhibit will evolve a plan that will be pleasing and valuable to Duluth and the ranges.

Estimates of the expense involved will be prepared and the committee will hold another meeting and see what can be done. If the expense is not too great the plans under consideration will doubtless be adopted.

RELIANCE WINS RACE

Crossed Finish Line Five Minutes Ahead of Constitution.

New York, June 11.—There appeared to be a better chance for a race today between the three cup yachts, Reliance, Constitution and Columbia, than at the same time on any of the three previous days this week, when the boats have attempted to try conclusions on the ocean course, off Sandy Hook lightship.

There was, up to 8 o'clock, only a breath of air and the fog siren at Sandy Hook had been sounding all night, but what wind there was came out of the southwest, a favorable quarter.

Coney Island, N. Y., June 11.—(Steamer Warden, via De Forest wireless telegraphy.)—The yachts reached the starting point at 11:40. The Reliance was the first to drop her tow and the Columbia soon followed suit. Both started to maneuver around the vicinity of the stake boat. The Constitution arrived sometime after the other yachts. The wind was south-southeast, about twelve miles an hour. The course is fifteen miles to windward and return.

The start was made with the yachts all close together, the Constitution to windward. The Columbia took the lead soon after the start with the Reliance following and Constitution in the rear.

Columbia did not hold her lead after the start and she was passed by the Reliance, which got into first place.

Highlands of Navesink, June 11.—From the Highlands it appeared that the leading yacht turned the mark at 2:24 and the second boat about four and a half minutes later. The third boat apparently turned the mark at 2:34:45. At 2:40 the boats were running in for the finish with spinnakers set to port. The first boat led the second by about five minutes, and the second led the third by about the same time. The wind had freshened and was blowing about ten knots an hour.

The Reliance crossed the line at 4:04:37. The Constitution crossed the finish line at 4:10:15.

KING WAS SHOT

First Killed His Adjutant Who Had Betrayed Him.

Alexander Refused to Sign Document Abdicating Throne.

Vienna, June 11.—Dispatches from Belgrade say that since the late King Alexander's last suspension of the Servian constitution the army had been animated by hostile feelings towards both the king and the queen.

The revolution was planned weeks ago. Secret committees were formed in the country and worked in co-operation with the army. The leaders of the revolution are said to have been the new ministers of justice and finance, respectively, M. Schiokovics and M. Velikovics, and the Sixth regiment of infantry, garrisoning Belgrade was designated to carry out the plot. It was originally intended that the plot should be executed later, but fears that the new Servian parliament would settle the question of the succession to the throne hastened matters. Col. Naumovics, the adjutant of the king, was entrusted with the execution of the plans. While on duty at 11 o'clock last night Naumovics burst into the bedchamber of the sleeping apartments of the royal couple, with a bomb, and then entered, accompanied by Mischics and a number of junior officers. Previously the palace guard had been overpowered and its commander, Capt. Paunjlovics was killed. Naumovics presented to the king a form of abdication for his signature. The document contained the statement that by marrying a "public prostitute" the king had degraded Servia and that, therefore, he must abdicate. The king's answer was to draw a revolver and kill Naumovics on the spot.

Mischics then picked up the document and presented it again and the king, who perceived his danger, fled with Queen Draga to the palace roof, both being in their night clothes. The officers followed, continuously firing and ultimately shot down the royal couple.

Maj. Luka Lazarewics, who had been under the king's displeasure for two years, is said to have fired the shot which actually killed the king.

At 2 o'clock Queen Draga's two brothers were shot at their homes, as well as Premier Markovitch and his brother-in-law, M. Milkovitz, the minister of the interior. M. Tudorovics, and his daughter, and the war minister, Gen. Pavlovitch.

Paris, June 11.—Prince Peter Karageorgevitch, new king of Servia, was a member of the fashionable diplomatic set of Paris and is included among his acquaintances a number of Americans. He is described as having a pleasing personality, is about 50 years old, has been a frequenter of the leading clubs and hotels and was a well known figure at the races and sports. He was educated at the St. Cyr military college and entered the French army in 1870, with the rank of captain. A brother, Prince Arsene, is now in Paris. Thelatter received a dispatch today advising him that his brother had been proclaimed king. Prince Arsene said he probably will join his brother and take part in the events connected with his assuming the sovereignty of Servia.

Former Queen Natalie, mother of the late King Alexander, is living at the Hotel Reservoir, Versailles, with her sister, Princess Khika, wife of the Roumanian minister. Queen Natalie received the first news from Belgrade this afternoon by telephone from the foreign office. She immediately retired to her private apartments, declining to see anyone, except members of the family and intimate friends.

London, June 11.—The Servian minister has communicated to the foreign office the official news of the assassination of the king and queen of Servia, the latter's brother and two sisters, besides one general, one aide-de-camp and two members of the guard. He added that the telegram he had received did not mention the murder of the premier or of the war minister, but he had no reason to doubt the press statements.

The minister subsequently said M. Kalievics, the new foreign minister, was premier at the time King Milan was made to abdicate. He was a strong man and that in conjunction with M. Avakumovics, the new premier, he would probably be able to establish a strong government.

Prince Peter Karageorgevitch is known to be a favorite of the Russian court and it had long been thought that he was being carefully developed to occupy the throne of Servia. The boy has been brought up at the Russian court, practically as the czar's own child, and he will presumably succeed Prince Peter when he attains his majority. The Servian minister added that Austria and Russia would undoubtedly acknowledge the right of Servia to manage her own affairs and would not intervene.

The court announced that a guardian for the young millionaire would be appointed this afternoon. The verdict is a victory for Frederick Chase, the father.

PRESIDENT AT HOME.

Washington, June 11.—President Roosevelt arrived here from Cleveland at 2 o'clock.

PURGED OF CONTEMPT.

Philadelphia, June 11.—Napoleon La Joie and William Bernard, of the Cleveland American league baseball club, were today purged of contempt of court. The players violated an injunction granted about a year ago restraining them from playing baseball with other than the National league club of Philadelphia. The court said they deserved punishment, but as all parties had come to an agreement he would let them off.

N. Stevens, of Portland, Me., was re-elected vice president at large. Mrs. Clara Parrish Wright, of Paris, Ill., was elected superintendent of the young woman's branch.

WATSON'S BAIL REDUCED.

Washington, June 11.—In criminal court No. 1 today Justice Pritchard reduced the bail in the case of J. M. A. Watson, accused of embezzlement of district funds, from $20,000 to $20,000. Watson was allowed to remain in the court house on the assurance of counsel that bond would be furnished late this afternoon.

WITH JUST A MILLION

"What would I do if I had $1,000,000? Was that what you asked me? Wait until the car stops and I'll tell you. It might break the cable."

The North Side man turned away from the bespectacled fellow who asked him the question, says the Chicago Inter-Ocean. He sighed and dropped his paper into his lap as the cable train dropped into the tunnel. Then he turned and said:

"What did you ask me that fool question for, I'd like to know?"

"Well, a passenger I listened to the other Sunday had a scheme to get rid of a million. It was Rev. George F. Hall. He said he would buy a lot and build a seven-story home for us North Siders. He wants a round building with a lot of domes on it. It would have 700 plush seats and a lot of paintings, statuary, tapestries, rugs and mirrors. He had a scheme for a lot of clubrooms. He said he would accept a million from any one person or one tenth that amount from each of ten millionaires, say Field, Swift, Armour, Leiter, Higinbotham, the Palmers, Farson, the Forgans, the Siegels and Pearson. I don't think I would know what to do—"

By the time the bespectacled man had finished his description the cable train was through the tunnel and both dropped off at Randolph street. Maybe, the man had a scheme; maybe he didn't. At any rate there are a number of Chicagoans who have.

"What would I do with a million? Why I wouldn't do a thing, not a thing," said Hat Cowdrey, detective. He leaned back with his elbow on the bar and watched the smoke from his cigar with half-shut eyes.

"On the square, though, I wouldn't blow it in," he said. "The first thing I'd do would build me a big house. Up on the north shore, about twenty miles from the burg here. I'd make it a peacherina, too. There'd be a bothouse all around it, and a big hall with about ten billiard tables, and a good gymnasium, with a running track, and a lot of shower baths and a big plunge, all under glass. Upstairs in the house I'd have a big hall with a regular theater stage and scenery, two or three pianos, and everything to make it a swell place. We could have dances in the hall or regular shows, and there'd be bunks enough for a whole troupe if they wanted to stay all night. Every now and then we'd pull off a few bouts with the gloves, or a chicken fight or two—all free, just for my friends.

"That'd be kind of bad, eh? I'd have plenty of horses and dogs, and every racer that was any good and every fighter would have a standing invite to make himself at home up there every time he came to town. There wouldn't be a thing doing, I guess, with that kind of a bunch around.

"I'd have an office down town and work when I felt like it. I'd have it just so I wouldn't have to loaf if I didn't feel like it. I'd have a secretary and he would have a book with the names of everybody I know in it. If a fellow came in to touch me for a touch he'd get it, unless he was some guy that had handed it to me when I went to him for some favor. Some of the fellows could have a piece of money any time they wanted it, but others would be good only once, unless they paid me back.

"I'd buy $10,000 worth of Illinois farm land, $10,000 worth of real estate here in the city, and put the same amount into stock up in the Northwest. I'd well, I'll have to think awhile before I decide what I will do with the balance."

"A million? I'd make Whitney look like a selling plater. He's posing as the friend of the sport and he ain't doing nothing for it. He ain't, but blowing in a lot of good coin to get back half of it in purses, which he splits up with his trainer and stable boys. That ain't no sort of way to elevate the sport."

Tobe Broderick turned away in disgust. He didn't want to talk about the matter at all. But finally he was persuaded.

"Do? Why, I'd build a mile track all under glass, right close to Chicago, so we could have racers here the year around. One day have trotting races, the next day running races. If it went, we could have races at night. And let me tell you that if I was there everything would be on the square. There wouldn't be any hanging up on heats or pulling horses. I'd get the legislature to pass a bill so if I caught anybody doing that I could send them to the penitentiary for life. You can bet everybody would get a run for his money on my track. I'd have charge of the betting and everything, and I'd know what was going on. I'd make all the books myself and put the profits into a stock farm. The first thing you know we'll have trotters doing a mile in less than two minutes and runners getting it down to about 1:20."

Broderick grew so excited that he changed the tense of his verbs and began to talk as if work on the track already were under way.

"I'd get all the best jockeys and keep 'em in the place so they couldn't go out and raise the devil at night and spoil a horse's chances the next day by making a poor ride. Good scheme! Well, I should say it was. If this man Carnergee would quit putting in money for libraries and do something for the common people, such as President McKinley talked about, he'd be making a name for himself. Or some of these rich men, who are forming trusts—they ought to go into this. They'd make millions out of it. Why, the profits on bookmaking alone, figuring on 15,000 people out there every day of the year, Sundays included, with six races a day, and each man spending from $5 to——"

Here Mr. Broderick got out his pencil and began to figure and his interviewer silently stole away.

"I think one of the first things I would do would be to hire somebody to kidnap about half the managers of fighters in the country," said "Paddy" Carroll, himself an impresario of the prize ring, as the million-dollar proposition was put to him. "They make me tired. Why, if it wasn't for them a fellow could make a million in no time, but they're such a lot of kickers they spoil the game for themselves and everybody else.

"If I had the ready cash, though, I'd hire an ocean steamer—one of the big boys, you know—and book it for a month's trip. I'd get all the real sports in the country to go along and we'd sail the bounding main the proper style. I'd corner the market on good fighters and for an appetizer in the morning a couple of bantams could mix up for a ten-round go. During the forenoon we could drive away that—well, you know that French word, which makes you think of spring medicine—with a good go between the feathers, say, for twenty rounds, or to a finish.

"A couple of light weights or welters would be down in the afternoon for our amusement and at night we could pull off the heavy weight championship, after we had given the crowd a couple of rattling good preliminaries. Say, I guess that wouldn't catch the real sports, eh? Why, if I'd announce that we would sail next September with all the fellows who are claiming titles and that the boat wouldn't come back until every champion in every class had fought his way clear to the title and defended it against all comers, I'd have every stateroom in that schooner full up by tomorrow night.

"No managers would be allowed on board, except myself, and the fighters would be kept on a separate deck from the passengers, so nobody would have to listen to fight talk. If the fighters were unruly, I'd put them in cages and hang them overboard until they promised to keep quiet.

"Incidentally, there would be a little faro, perhaps, and some innocent amusements like that. It's a great scheme and I don't see why somebody doesn't try it."
